CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Social Work Taskforce

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): The 2020 Children and Young People's Workforce Strategy, published last month, set our ambition for significant reform in social work to be supported by a Social Work Taskforce. Today my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health and I are announcing the full membership and remit for this taskforce.

The Social Work Taskforce will undertake a nuts and bolts review of frontline social work practice and make recommendations for immediate improvements to practice and training as well as long-term change in social work. It will report to both the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families and to the Secretary of State for Health.

Social workers carry out highly challenging work, often in extremely difficult circumstances. They have a vital role in protecting children and young people from harm and in supporting adults. Enabling social workers to deliver consistent high quality practice and services is a key priority for this Government. Our ambition is for social work to be a high quality, self-confident profession, with the support and esteem of the public.

The taskforce builds on the Government's significant investment in the workforce over the past 10 years. It also builds on the current investment of over £73 million to improve social work training, induction, practice and recruitment.

The taskforce will be chaired by Moira Gibb, chief executive of Camden Council. Andrew Webb, director of Children's Services, Stockport and Bob Reitemeier, chief executive of the Children's Society will be the deputy chairs. The taskforce will be small and action-focused. It will include individuals with a range of backgrounds and experiences including service user perspectives, frontline social workers, social work leaders and academics. The taskforce will meet for the first time in early February 2009 and will publish findings in summer 2009.

The taskforce will root its work in a thorough review of evidence and will build on Lord Laming's review of safeguarding. It will be crucial that the taskforce listens carefully to the experiences, needs and views of frontline social workers and service users. The taskforce will look at all of the factors that impact on frontline social work practice including a survey of workloads and pressures facing social workers. We have asked the taskforce, as an early priority, to look specifically at the integrated children's system including how it helps to deliver quality support to children and families, procurement and IT issues, how well social workers are supported to use the system and its impact on social worker workloads.

The taskforce will also engage closely with stakeholders including delivery partners, social work employers, unions, providers of social work training and academics to identify the key issues affecting social work practice and to ensure that the taskforce's recommendations will secure excellent frontline practice. It will work in close partnership with the key organisations delivering improvements in social work, including the Children's Workforce Development Council, the General Social Care Council and Skills for Care.

We are very grateful to the people listed below for agreeing to be members of the taskforce and contributing to this important work.

I am placing in the House Library copies of list of the full membership and remit for the Social Work Taskforce.

ContactPoint

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): I can confirm to the House that the first steps to activate the Government's online directory of children's services—ContactPoint—will begin today.

ContactPoint, developed in response to a key recommendation of the Laming inquiry into the tragic death of Victoria Climbié, is a directory to support better communication among practitioners across education, health, social care and youth offending in the statutory and voluntary sectors. It will provide a quick way for those practitioners to find out who else is working with the same child or young person. It is a vital tool to help keep children safe because it is absolutely crucial the right agencies are involved at the right time and get even better at sharing information. And it will also help practitioners to improve outcomes for all children.

Under current child safeguarding arrangements, if a professional believes a child is at risk they may have no immediate way of knowing whether other services are already in contact with that child. The Government believe a fully operational system could save at least 5 million hours of professionals' time, currently wasted trying to track down who else, if anyone, is helping the child.

The first stage of delivery of ContactPoint will enable 19 early adopter organisations—17 local authorities in the north-west of England and two national voluntary sector partners, Barnardo's and KIDS—to train their ContactPoint management teams. It also allows all local authorities to start to shield a small proportion of records on ContactPoint. This additional precautionary measure is appropriate for records of children who are at risk of significant harm. These might include children with particular vulnerable circumstances, such as children from families on witness protection schemes, or where one parent has been the victim of domestic abuse, or in certain cases where the child has been adopted.

These are significant steps on the journey to making ContactPoint fully available. We are taking a steady and incremental approach to implementation, ensuring we evaluate as we progress and adapt our approach if required.

No information on children's cases will be held on ContactPoint and it will not be possible to download content. It is a simple online tool containing:

minimal identifying information for each child in England: name, address, date of birth, gender, and contact details for parents or carers. Each child will also have a unique identifying number;

contact details for the child's educational setting and GP practice and for other practitioners or services working with the child; and an indication as to whether a service or practitioner holds an assessment under the common assessment framework, or whether they are a lead professional for that child.

Security is of paramount importance. We have put in place comprehensive arrangements to prevent inappropriate access to the information on the system and ongoing security will remain a priority.

ContactPoint is backed by major children's organisations, such as Barnardo's and Action for Children, teachers' unions like NASUWT as well as the Association of Chief Police Officers, the Royal College of General Practitioners and the Children's Inter-agency Group whose members include NSPCC, the LGA and the Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health.

I will provide an update to Parliament in the spring.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Severn Tidal Power

The Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (Edward Miliband): Further to the launch of the Severn Tidal Power Feasibility Study in January 2008, I am pleased to inform the House that the Government have today issued a public consultation on the conclusions of the first phase of the study.

The huge, renewable resource of the Severn estuary tides is a means of generating nearly 5 per cent. of UK electricity. It can contribute to meeting the UK's renewable energy targets and the progressive decarbonisation of our electricity supply. But Severn tidal power must be considered in the wider context of alternative options as well as its impact on the environment and the economy. Energy saving, and other low carbon and renewable sources of supply are all means of achieving our goals. The consultation makes the comparison to these alternatives.

Tidal power development in the Severn estuary has benefits, costs, and risks and the consultation paper sets out a provisional assessment of these, in order to promote an open public debate. Studies by external consultants are published today alongside the consultation paper, including technical and engineering assessments, advice on financing and ownership structures, an assessment of regional economic impacts, and initial studies on environmental impacts.

The consultation seeks views on:

the process used to move from a long list of potential schemes (following a call for proposals last summer) to a short list of feasible schemes;

the proposed issues for further investigation by the feasibility study, including the scope of strategic environmental assessment the proposed shortlist of:

1. Shoots Barrage—(1.05GW scheme located downstream of the new Severn road crossing with an estimated construction cost of £3.2 billion)
2. Beachley Barrage—(625MW scheme further upstream of the first Severn road bridge with an estimated cost of construction of £2.3 billion)
3. Bridgwater Bay Lagoon—(1.36GW impoundment on the English side of the Estuary with an estimated construction cost of £3.8 billion)
4. Fleming Lagoon—(1.36GW impoundment on the Welsh bank of the estuary with an estimated construction cost of £4.0 billion)
5. Cardiff-Weston (Lavernock Point to Brean Down) Barrage (8.64GW scheme, commonly known as the "Severn Barrage", with an estimated cost of construction of £20.9 billion)

The Government are keen to continue to consider other innovative schemes. However some of those that have been submitted to the feasibility study are not sufficiently developed at this point for more detailed evaluation. We hope to see these develop further with the benefit of Government financial support and new public funding of £500,000 is being made available (in addition to existing support) to speed their development. The Government will consider their progress alongside shortlisted schemes before taking decisions on Severn tidal power generation.

Copies of the consultation document have been placed in the Libraries and are also available at: http://severntidalpowerconsultation.decc.gov.uk. The consultation period is 26 January to 23 April 09.

I expect to hold a further public consultation at the end of the feasibility study, probably in 2010, to seek public views on whether Government could support a Severn tidal power scheme and if so on what terms. This will include considering the development of alternatives to the shortlisted scheme which are not currently sufficiently technically developed for further evaluation. The option remains open not to proceed with any scheme.

A meeting of the Severn tidal power Parliamentary Forum is being held at 5.00pm this afternoon in the large Ministerial meeting room.

HEALTH

Written Answer (Correction)

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): I regret that the written answer given to the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire (Mr. Lansley) on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 178W, was incorrect with respect to the 2009-10 weighted capitation targets per weighted head provided in the third column in the table. The correct information is as follows:

Cross-border Health Services

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): The House of Commons Welsh Affairs Select Committee published its interim report "The provision of cross-border health services for Wales" on 10 July 2008. We are today laying before Parliament the Command Paper (Cm 7531) setting out the Government response to the report.

We have carefully considered the Committee's interim report. The Command Paper discusses the wider context of cross-border health care, including arrangements to co-ordinate service provision, the commissioning, funding and quality of services, and provides the additional information requested by the Committee.

The Government agree with the Committee that the border between England and Wales does not represent a barrier to the provision of health care. The core principles of the national health service continue to apply across the UK and an inevitable and healthy consequence of devolution has been some divergence in health policy between England and Wales.

The Government and the Welsh Assembly Government operate a protocol whereby responsibility for a patient who lives on one side of the border and is registered with a GP on the other can be determined. The protocol has been renewed annually and is currently in place until April 2009. It is supported by an annual transfer of funds from the Department of Health to the Welsh Assembly Government to cover the costs of providing secondary care for the greater number of patients who live in England but have a GP in Wales. Negotiations on the renewal of the protocol are almost complete.

JUSTICE

Victims Champion

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): The Home Secretary, the Attorney-General and I are today pleased to announce the appointment of Sara Payne MBE as Victims' Champion.

The role of Victims' Champion will be to:

listen to the views and concerns of victims and witnesses represent the views of victims' and witnesses to Ministers, Government officials and in the media challenge criminal justice agencies to further reform their practices in relation to victims and witnesses.

The Victims' Champion will be a new, time limited appointment for one year to ensure continuing focus on victims' issues while Parliament considers proposals in the Coroners and Justice Bill in relation to the separate office of Victims and Witnesses Commissioner. That Bill was introduced in the House of Commons on 14 January.

After the murder of her daughter Sarah, Ms Payne started a campaign to change the way in which sex offenders were dealt with and supervised in the community. Ms Payne has since worked closely with the Home Office on increasing the right of public access to information about known sex offenders.

Ms Payne was also instrumental in establishing the Multi-agency Public Protection Arrangement (MAPPA) which ensures that a risk management plan is drawn up for the most serious offenders.

Ms Payne currently delivers training to specially trained police family liaison officers and has recently been awarded an MBE for her services to protection and work with Phoenix.

TREASURY

Finance Bill (Manufactured Interest)

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Stephen Timms): Legislation will be introduced in the next Finance Bill to prevent a recent decision of the High Court from affecting the tax treatment of real payments of manufactured interest. The legislation will ensure that tax treatment follows the treatment of the payments in company accounts prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting practice ("GAAP").

The recent High Court case involved the tax treatment of deemed manufactured payments, but the decision cast doubt on the tax treatment of real manufactured payments for both payers and recipients. The decision could result in payers being able to claim additional deductions for tax purposes that bear no relation to their economic position, and recipients being taxable on amounts in excess of their actual income.

Before the High Court decision, the tax treatment of real payments of manufactured interest had never been questioned. To ensure the decision does not have adverse consequences either for the Exchequer or for taxpayers this legislation will apply to past payments relating to open accounting periods as well as to payments made on or after today, and will ensure that existing practice is followed.

The legislation will not apply to deemed manufactured interest (which was the subject of the High Court case) treated as paid before today. Unlike actual payments, the tax treatment of deemed payments has been in doubt for some time. Accordingly for deemed payments the legislation will apply only to payments made on or after today.

A copy of the draft legislation together with draft explanatory notes and full background material will be published today on HMRC's website.

DEFENCE

Military Training (Dartmoor National Park)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Kevan Jones): The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, my hon. Friend the Member for Ogmore (Huw Irranca-Davies) and I wish to make the following statement:

Military training takes place within part of the Dartmoor National Park under the terms of a licence granted by the land owner, the Duchy of Cornwall. The current 21-year licence is due to end in 2012. The Ministry of Defence wishes to continue to use this land to deliver military training for the Royal Marines and other armed forces based principally in the south-west of England.

The Government have a duty to ensure that the armed forces are provided with first class training facilities. The rugged terrain and at times hostile weather of Dartmoor provides an ideal environment in which service personnel, particularly Royal Marines, can acquire and maintain skills that enable them to carry out difficult and dangerous tasks across the world.

Our two Departments agreed that prior to the renegotiation of the licence, the Ministry of Defence would establish that there is a continuing need for military training on Dartmoor and that the land would continue to be managed in a sustainable manner. Two separate assessments of military need both concluded that there was a long-term defence requirement and that no suitable alternative land was available within mainland UK. An environmental assessment carried out by independent consultants in 2006-07 considered the economic, social and environmental effects of continued military use at current permitted levels. The reports identify that defence use is carried out in a sustainable manner and with regard to national park purposes. Accordingly, we agree that the licence renegotiation can proceed in order to put in place a licence for a further 21-year period.

In support of the Ministry of Defence's continuing use of the estate for that period, DEFRA has asked the Ministry of Defence to provide a report at the mid-point which would be a stocktake of the training area's environmental management system, which includes environmental management tools and monitoring, usage data and public access. It will not include a further justification of continuing military need. During the stocktake the Ministry of Defence will consult with relevant stakeholders.

In coming to this decision, both Ministers have taken into account the ongoing constructive engagement of the Ministry of Defence in improving public access to, and the environmental conservation of Dartmoor. DEFRA looks forward to the Ministry of Defence building on its record of support for national park purposes and for local communities through the sustainable management of the Dartmoor estate.

We confirm that the Dartmoor Steering Group, which is sponsored by both Departments, will continue to act as the best forum for reconciliation of the requirements of military training, conservation and public access and take forward the good work that has already been undertaken under its auspices.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

New Nuclear Power Stations

The Minister of State, Department of Energy and Climate Change (Mr. Mike O'Brien): On 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 83WS, the then then Secretary of State for the Department of Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, my right hon. Friend the Member for Barrow and Furness (Mr. Hutton) announced the publication of a consultation document on the Strategic Siting Assessment process and criteria for new nuclear power stations and an accompanying environmental study.

A year on from the Nuclear White Paper I am pleased to announce today the publication of the Government response to the consultation and study, which sets out the process for taking forward the siting of new nuclear power stations.

The Strategic Siting Assessment (SSA) is a process for identifying and assessing sites that are strategically suitable for the deployment of new nuclear power stations by the end of 2025. The SSA will provide an opportunity for the Government to assess the suitability of nominated sites at the national level. Sites that have been assessed as being suitable will be listed on the Nuclear National Policy Statement (NPS), which will provide guidance to the forthcoming Infrastructure Planning Commission (IPC).

The Government response contains an outline of the key themes that arose from the consultation on the SSA process and criteria, and the environmental study in relation to the criteria, together with the Government's response and the finalised criteria. It also summarises comments on the habitats screening report and the Government's response. The screening report was not the subject of public consultation. Views were instead sought from interested parties.

In response to points made in the consultation, the Government response contains guidance to nominators who wish to nominate a site to be assessed within the SSA, and a nomination form. Nominations to the SSA are due by 31 March 2009.

The Government will publish nominations and the public will have a month to give the Government their initial comments, prior and in addition to public consultation later in the year.

The assessment will be made by Government using the advice of specialists including regulators and others. The output of the SSA will be a draft list of the sites that Government have assessed to be strategically suitable, and these will form a key component of the draft Nuclear NPS, which will undergo public consultation and parliamentary scrutiny.

Today's announcement underlines the Government's commitment to the development of new nuclear capacity and maintains the necessary momentum towards our climate change and energy security goals.

Copies of the Government response will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses immediately following publication.

Nuclear Regulatory Review

The Minister of State, Department of Energy and Climate Change (Mr. Mike O'Brien): In January 2008, following publication of the White Paper on Nuclear Power the Government asked Dr. Tim Stone to conduct a review of nuclear regulation. Dr. Stone has now reported his findings, and today, 27 January 2009, we publish the recommendations of his review and the Government's response.

Dr. Stone agrees with the UN's International Atomic Energy Agency's conclusion that the UK's nuclear regulatory arrangements are mature and transparent, with highly trained and experienced inspectors. However, in the context of a rapidly changing nuclear environment, Dr. Stone was asked to provide a comprehensive assessment of the nuclear regulators' immediate and longer-term needs. He recommends that in the short-term that the Health and Safety Executive's (HSE) Nuclear Installations Inspectorate (NII) should have greater ability to recruit effectively in order to meet the short-term challenges of new build, such as generic design assessment, alongside the work on existing installations. Dr. Stone recommends that in the medium term, the NII and the wider nuclear directorate of the HSE be structured to give it greater financial and organisational flexibility so that it can remain a world-class regulator.

In response to Dr. Stone's proposals, the Department of Energy and Climate Change and the Department for Work and Pensions recognise that the NII, in order to meet its challenges, will need additional resources to boost recruitment and retention of staff and the recommendations are targeted at improving this. We have worked with colleagues at the Department for Work and Pensions, and at HM Treasury, to put the appropriate facilities in place to ensure that effective recruitment and retention measures can be taken. The Government also recognise that the organisation needs greater operational and financial flexibility within the auspices of the HSE to meet the challenges of nuclear regulation into the future. To this effect, the Government expect to bring forward legislative proposals that will address these issues.

Copies of the Dr. Stone's summary recommendations and the Government's response are today placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Prospects for the European Union in 2009

The Minister for Europe (Caroline Flint): I will today lay before the House the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Command Paper on Prospects for the European Union in 2009. Copies will be placed in the Library of the House. Additional copies can also be obtained from the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office. A copy will also be available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website (www.fco.gov.uk).

This Command Paper provides an overview of the priorities of the Czech presidency for the first half of 2009, as set out in their Work Programme, which is available at: www.eu2009.cz. Under the overarching theme of "Europe without Barriers", the Czech presidency will focus on three key priorities: the economy, energy policy and "Europe in the world".

The top priority for the Czech presidency is the EU's response to the financial crisis. The presidency will promote market liberalisation as a fundamental means of boosting growth and competitiveness and thereby meeting the challenges of the economic downturn. The UK will work closely with the presidency to drive forward timely and targeted measures to lessen the impact of the downturn on families and businesses across Europe. A concerted and co-ordinated European approach will deliver a far greater impact on jobs and growth in each country than that which any country could achieve by acting alone.

In order to develop the foundations for the EU's long-term energy security, the UK will work with the Czech presidency to hasten progress towards a well functioning internal market, the diversification of supply and the promotion of energy efficiency. Following the historic agreement on the 2020 climate package at the December European Council 2008, the presidency will also maintain the momentum on international negotiations in the run up to the United Nations framework convention on climate change in Copenhagen in December 2009.

The Czech presidency has a varied external agenda, including a strong focus on the eastern partnership and the western Balkans. The UK fully supports the presidency in its commitment to strengthen co-operation between the EU and eastern Europe and the Caucasus. The presidency has also committed to holding summits with key partners including the US and Pakistan. The UK will be working closely with the Czech Republic to carry forward agreed priorities with these and other key international partners.

HEALTH

Autism

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Phil Hope): I wrote to a number of hon. Members in response to their letters regarding the Autism Bill. In my response, I set out details of section 64 funding my Department has provided for the National Autistic Society's project "Brighter Horizons, Moving Towards Employment". Funding has been committed over three years.

Due to an administrative error, I regret that the amount of funding was given incorrectly. The figures quoted in that letter should have read: £49,600 was provided in 2007-08, £50,500 will be provided in 2008-09, and £56,300 in 2009-10.

Personal Expenses Allowance

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Phil Hope): There have been calls by a number of organisations for us to significantly increase the level of the personal expenses allowance (PEA). The PEA is the amount that people whose care in a care home is arranged by a local authority are allowed to keep for personal expenditure on items not covered by the local authority contract.

The PEA was introduced in 1948 and since then successive Governments have taken steps to ensure it has maintained its value. We had undertaken to consult to seek views on whether the existing level of PEA is appropriate, in order to inform consideration of the future of the level of the PEA.

My priority is to transform the adult social care system to ensure people have greater independence, choice and control over their lives. In December 2007 my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health announced an extra £520 million of ring-fenced funding to transform social care over the next three years through the introduction of personal care budgets.

My aim is to focus finite social care resources on measures to extend services, improve the quality of care, and protect service users from abuse and neglect because these are what we see as the greater priorities. Work we have undertaken, so far, to achieve this includes:

the dignity in care campaign, to make compassion in care one of the core values of the NHS and social care; work to develop the first ever national dementia strategy, to improve awareness and diagnosis of dementia and improve the quality of care for people with dementia;

the "No Secrets" consultation about how society enables adults to be safe from abuse or harm;

"Valuing People Now—A Three-year Strategy for People with Learning Disabilities", which aims to improve services for people with learning disabilities across health, housing, employment and community care services, to ensure they get the healthcare they need and the support they want to live the healthy lives and give them more choice an opportunity; and extending the scope of the Human Rights Act to cover people receiving publicly arranged care in care homes.

The need to use finite resources to maximum benefit has removed any possibility of an increase to PEA of more than the annual uprating in line with average earnings.

I have, therefore, decided not to consult on the level of the PEA. A part 1 equality impact assessment relating to this decision has been placed in the Library and is available at: www.dh.gov.uk/en/Managingyourorganisation/Financeandplanning/Residentialcare/index.htm

We are committed to reforming the care and support system. The forthcoming Green Paper on the future of care and support will consider how care should be funded in the future; some different systems for funding and delivery may not include the need for a PEA.

The estimated cost of raising PEA to £40 a week, as some organisations are calling for, is £250 million pounds a year. None of this extra expenditure would increase the availability choice or quality of care services or support the transformation of adult social care provision which must be our priority for the future.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Chair Appointment (Royal Mail Holdings)

The Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs (Mr. Pat McFadden): My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, Lord Mandelson has made the following statement:

> I am pleased to announce today the appointment of Donald Brydon CBE as the new Chairman of Royal Mail Holdings plc. He will take up his appointment in March 2009. Donald Brydon is currently Chairman of Smiths Group plc and the London Metal Exchange. He will be joining the Royal Mail Holdings Board as a non-executive director prior to taking up his appointment as Chairman.

TREASURY

Child Poverty

The Chief Secretary to the Treasury (Yvette Cooper): The Treasury, the Department for Children, Schools and Families, and the Department for Work and Pensions are today publishing a consultation document on proposals to legislate on the Government's commitment to eradicate child poverty by 2020.

Every child deserves the best start in life. Where children grow up on low income, suffering either material deprivation or falling too far behind their peers, they can be disadvantaged throughout their lives. Child poverty doubled in the 20 years from the late 1970s to the mid 1990s, leaving far too many British children deprived of important opportunities in life.

That is why in 1999 the Government set an ambitious target to end child poverty in a generation. This commitment has already driven considerable progress across Government. The number of children in absolute poverty has halved and 600,000 children have been lifted out of relative poverty to date. Had the Government done nothing other than simply uprate the tax and benefit system, there would have been 2 million more children in relative poverty than there are today.

All families have benefited from increases in support since 1997; households with children are on average £2,100 better off in 2009-10 and families with children in the poorest fifth of the population are £4,400 better off as a result of personal tax and benefit changes.

But too many children still suffer from poverty or disadvantage. That is why we have committed to enshrine in legislation our historic pledge to eradicate child poverty by 2020. The consultation document outlines how the Government will use primary and secondary legislation to set a framework for achieving the Government's 2020 aims, including setting targets for the future. It will also set a requirement for Government to report annually on progress. Improved accountability and a clear and comprehensive definition of progress will provide a platform for a renewed approach to break the cycle of poverty.

We believe that tackling child poverty and confirming our commitment to ending child poverty by 2020 is even more important during difficult economic times. Giving families real help now is important to help people deal with the challenges from the global credit crunch. But it is also about preventing the kind of long-term unemployment and worklessness caused by past recessions, which scarred communities and pushed up child poverty across the country.

The Government are determined that no child is left behind, and we create a fairer society for the future. This requires ensuring that all children have a good start in life and that the causes and consequences of poverty are tackled.

The consultation document sets out the four key elements of the child poverty strategy:

> more parents in work that pays and allows them to balance work and family life;
> financial support that is responsive to families' situations;
> improvements in children's life chances so that poverty in childhood does not translate into poor outcomes; and > safe, cohesive communities that support children to thrive.

Alongside this document the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families is publishing "Next Steps for Early Learning and Childcare", and the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions is publishing "Realising Potential: Developing Personalised Conditionality and Support". A discussion paper on next steps in implementing the Gregg review".

Copies of the document are available in the Vote Office and have been deposited in the Libraries of both Houses.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Next Steps for Early Learning and Childcare

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): I am today announcing the publication of a new, cross-government strategy document "Next steps for early learning and childcare: building on the 10-Year Strategy" for England.

Five years into our 10-Year Strategy, it is the right time to take stock, identify and address new and future challenges as we move progressively towards the establishment of early learning and childcare as a modern, universal public service for all families.

We have come a long way in delivering on the agenda that we set ourselves in 2004. Thanks to hard work across the sector, parents now have access to more flexible, affordable and better quality early learning and childcare than ever before, and many more families are benefiting from new rights and services. It will take time for the children who have had these opportunities to demonstrate the long-term benefits, but there are already signs that changes could help promote the social mobility of future generations. The latest foundation stage profile results show that 21,000 more children achieved a good level of development at age 5 than the previous year. And the lowest achievers are starting to catch up; the gap between their achievement and their peers has narrowed for the first time.

We are determined to keep improving early learning and childcare because these are crucial long-term investments. Good quality early learning and childcare is vital for ensuring all children, but especially the most disadvantaged, reach their full potential. It supports parents into employment—which is the best way out of poverty. And it relieves the time and emotional pressures that families face in balancing work and home life. In a time of global economic downturn, where parents face increased financial and emotional pressures, these priorities are as important as ever.

Alongside the recent New Opportunities White Paper, this document sets out some clear commitments and firm proposals. In other areas we have identified the case for action and need to develop plans through discussion and consultation. We want this to be the beginning of a wider conversation with parents, people who work in the sector, providers, agencies, children and local government—about how we can meet these challenges. That is why, the Government are also launching today a consultation on our plans to enshrine our historic goal of eradicating child poverty into law—"Ending Child Poverty: Making it Happen"—and publishing a discussion paper on a new framework to help many more parents with younger children and employment and support allowance claimants to prepare for work—"Personalised Conditionality And Support", the Gregg review.

We will place copies of the document "Next Steps in Early Learning and Childcare" in the Libraries of both Houses.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Metropolitan Police Commissioner

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): I am pleased to announce that Her Majesty the Queen has approved the appointment of Sir Paul Stephenson QPM as the next Metropolitan Police Commissioner. I made my recommendation to Her Majesty having regard to the recommendations made to me by the Metropolitan Police Authority and representations from the Mayor of London.

Sir Paul has a strong track record of delivery and a clear vision for leading the Metropolitan Police Service and delivering for the public both in London and nationally.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Consultative Group on the Past (Report)

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (Mr. Shaun Woodward): The Consultative Group on the Past will today be publishing a report, setting out the conclusions from the group's work on how Northern Ireland society can best address the legacy of the events of the past 40 years in order to help continue to build a successful shared future.

The Government recognise the huge importance of this work and welcome the independent report. Dealing effectively with the legacy of the past is one of the most demanding issues facing Northern Ireland today. It is of fundamental importance to the people of Northern Ireland as we find a way to build a shared future which avoids being overwhelmed by the past.

The group has listened to a wide range of differing voices with great care and sensitivity. I am grateful to Lord Eames and Denis Bradley, and to all the members of the group for their work. The Government commend the group for its integrity and commitment.

The report makes a number of recommendations to which British and Irish Governments, and other stakeholders, will need to give very detailed and careful consideration. These are important issues. We all need to reflect carefully on the proposals.

I would also thank all those organisations, community groups and individuals who engaged with the work of the group over the past 18 months.

I have arranged to have copies of the group's report placed in both Libraries of the Houses of Parliament.

TRANSPORT

RTFO Levels (Response to Consultation)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Jim Fitzpatrick): My noble Friend Lord Adonis, the Minister of State for the Department for Transport has made the following ministerial statement:

> I have today published the Government's response to part one of the consultation on the draft Renewable Transport Fuel Obligations (Amendment) Order 2009, (including the addendum to the consultation). The consultation, which closed on 17 December 2008, sought views on provisions to slow down the rate at which the renewable transport fuel obligation (RTFO) increases year on year as recommended by the Gallagher review, adding two new renewable fuels to those eligible for RTFO certificates and revising the definition of relevant hydrocarbon oil.
> Having considered the responses received to the consultation, the Government continue to believe that there is a need to progress with caution with regard to obligation levels.
> The Government have now decided to introduce legislation setting an obligation level for 2009-10 of 3.25 per cent., which is 0.25 per cent. higher than the Gallagher recommendation, and thereafter maintaining the planned increases in line with the Gallagher recommendations to reach 5 per cent. in 2013-14. A draft order to amend the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligations Order 2007 (2007/3072 will be laid in Parliament shortly and will be subject to the affirmative procedure. It is our intention that if the order completes the necessary stages it will be made in time to come into force at the start of the next obligation year in April 2009.
> Our decision on next year's obligation level takes into account the views expressed in response to the consultation. In particular this decision reflects concerns about the effects of the discrepancy in the definition of relevant hydrocarbon oil in the 2007 order. That definition excludes any fossil fuel which is blended with renewable fuel before the duty point. The result is that less fossil fuel than was intended is taken into account in calculating suppliers' obligations, and therefore less renewable fuel is required to be supplied than was intended. My earlier statement of 13 November 2008, Official Report, column 67WS explained the background behind this issue.
> We intend that the draft amendment order will contain provision to revise the definition of relevant hydrocarbon oil for the next obligation period. To avoid problems with retrospective effect, we are not proposing that the amendment should purport to have effect for the current obligation period which started in April last year. The full effect of the discrepancy issue on the volume of biofuel supplied in the first obligation year (2008-09) will not be known until after the end of this year. Our intention is that by setting this level the overall amounts of biofuel supplied in the first two years are still broadly consistent with the Gallagher recommendations; that is, 5.5 per cent. (2.5% + 3%).

We also intend to add both biobutanol and renewable diesel to the renewable fuels eligible for certificates under the scheme and these fuels will be defined as they are in the draft order included in the consultation document. We will continue to keep the fuels covered by the scheme under review in light of emerging new technologies.

In looking forward, under the renewable energy directive (RED) the UK will be required by 2020 to meet a target of 10 per cent. renewable energy in transport. Our current mechanism for delivering renewable energy in this sector is the RTFO. The Government intend to consult later this year about the further amendment of the RTFO that will take these commitments into account, including the trajectories of the UK targets, and further work on the sustainability of biofuels. This will form part of Government policy as we draw up our renewable energy strategy and action plan for meeting the UK's 2020 renewable energy target, which needs to be submitted to the European Commission during 2010. We will be engaging with stakeholders throughout this process to draw on their views and experience.

Copies of the Government's response to part one of the consultation (including the addendum) have been placed in the Library of the House and are available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office. The Government's response to part two of the consultation, which sought views on longer term issues concerning the future transposition of the renewable energy directive and the fuel quality directive, will be published in due course.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Gregg Review

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (James Purnell): In December 2008 Professor Paul Gregg published his review on the effectiveness of the balance of expectations and support for working age benefit claimants. This was entitled "Realising Potential: A Vision for Personalised Conditionality and Support". Copies are available in the Library of the House.

Today my department is publishing a discussion paper setting out further details about how it intends to take forward the recommendations of that review to help many more parents with younger children and employment and support allowance claimants to prepare for work.

We believe that developing the 'Progression to Work' approach, proposed by the Gregg Review, will support families, promote employment and help eradicate child poverty. Therefore this discussion paper outlines our latest thinking on how this approach will be designed and tested out. The framework we plan to establish is one where more claimants:

Actively engage with their adviser on an ongoing basis;

Consider, discuss and agree an Action Plan comprising activities they think will improve their prospects of moving back into work; and Undertake these agreed work preparation activities as part of their own journey towards employment.

This means creating a model where advisers have the necessary skills and capabilities to encourage claimants to co-own, co-produce and take responsibility for their journey back to work.

We want to test the full model proposed by Professor Gregg of higher support and expectations. Because we know that the availability of childcare is so central to enabling parents to realise their aspirations for paid work, we will pay for any additional childcare that claimants need to carry out their action plan. We will also test out whether offering an improved financial incentive for parents to try out work supports them make the full transition from benefits to work.

The current Welfare Reform Bill aims to create the necessary legislation for this approach, initially through a series of pathfinders, subject to parliamentary approval. These pathfinders will cover around a fifth of new and existing ESA claimants and a similar proportion of parents with younger children. Parents with a youngest child aged between one and two will be expected to engage with an adviser and agree an action plan, but undertaking work preparation activities will be voluntary.

This paper is aimed at stakeholder organisations and other interested parties to enable further, more detailed discussions to take place as we move through policy development towards implementation.

Copies of "Realising Potential: developing personalised conditionality and support: A discussion paper on next steps in implementing the Gregg Review" will be placed in the Library of the House.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

National Curriculum Tests

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): In my response to Lord Sutherland's report into the delivery of National Curriculum tests for 2008. I gave a commitment to provide the Government's response to his report by the end of January. The Schools Minister and I are giving evidence to the Children, Schools and Families Select Committee on Wednesday 4 February. We have now received the Qualification and Curriculum Authority's action plan following Lord Sutherland's report. We will publish this, alongside the Government's response to Lord Sutherland's report, in advance of that hearing.

Youth Alcohol Consultation

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): The Secretary of State for Health, and I are today announcing a 12-week consultation on proposed guidance, advice and information on alcohol consumption by children and young people. This consultation is on two documents that are aimed at reaching all parents, children and young people under 18 as well as health, education and children's services professionals: the first is new guidance by the chief medical officer, Sir Liam Donaldson, on the consumption of alcohol by children and young people; the second contains the Government's initial ideas for the supporting advice and information for parents and young people in the light of the independent medical guidance.

The number of young people who drink is decreasing, but those who do drink are drinking more, more often and at a younger age. Young people who drink regularly are more likely to put their health at risk and get into trouble by getting involved in anti-social behaviour or dropping out of school. We also know that there is a strong link between young people's drinking and unprotected sex, which can lead to unplanned pregnancies.

We want to reduce the damage that young people, families and the community experience as a result of youth drinking. That is why we launched the Youth Alcohol Action Plan in June 2008 containing firm proposals to tackle the problems of young people drinking in public places and to work in partnership with the alcohol retail industry to continue to tackle instances of underage sales. In the Youth Alcohol Action Plan, we said that we would ask the chief medical officer to produce clear health guidance in order to help young people to make sensible decision, about drinking, and to support parents to protect their children from the harms associated with early alcohol use. This work has been done and I am grateful to the chief medical officer for producing his guidance on which our advice and information for parents and young people will be based.

This England only consultation will last 12 weeks, finishing on 23 April 2009. It is available at: www.dcsf.gov.uk/consultations

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Sustainable Development Commission

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): The Sustainable Development Commission (SDC) is the Government's independent adviser and "watchdog" on sustainable development, reporting to the Prime Minister, the First Ministers for Scotland and Wales and the First Minister and Deputy First Minister for Northern Ireland.

The SDC was established as an advisory NDPB in October 2000. In the 2005 UK sustainable development strategy, "Securing the Future", the Government committed to reviewing the status of the SDC to assess whether it might be better equipped to fulfil its expanded "watchdog" role as an executive rather than advisory body. The outcome of this review was that it would. Therefore from 1 February 2009 the SDC will be established as an executive NDPB, as a company limited by guarantee, with Jonathon Porritt as chairman (until the end of his term of office in July 2009) and Andrew Lee, previously director of the SDC, as chief executive. This change has been made with the agreement of Ministers in the devolved Administrations.

The SDC will maintain its current staff, objectives and Commissioners but will now be better able to fulfil its role. It will continue to receive core funding from DEFRA and the devolved Administrations.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Global Security: Japan and Korea (Foreign Affairs Committee Inquiry)

The Minister of State, Foreign and Commonwealth Office (Bill Rammell): I will today lay before the House the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Command Paper giving the FCO's response to the Foreign Affairs Committee's 30 November 2008 report "Global Security: Japan and Korea". This document will also be available on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office website link http://www.fco.qov.uk/en/about-the-fco/publications/publications/fac-response/session-09.

The Government welcome the detailed work which the Committee has undertaken. Japan and South Korea are important partners for the UK and, over the coming year, the Government will work closely with both to tackle the new global challenges. The financial and economic crisis is at the top of our international agenda and the UK Government are working closely with both countries as we prepare for the London summit in April. We will also be working with both countries on promoting a low carbon economy, and continuing to advise Japanese and South Korean companies that the UK is the place with which and in which to do business.

North Korea's nuclear ambitions are the single biggest threat to international security in the north-east Asia region. The UK Government strongly supports the six-party talks mechanism and continues to see it as the best means of achieving verifiable denuclearisation of the Korean peninsula. Our close relationship with the US and our representation in North Korea offer us opportunities to contribute to this process.

HEALTH

Co-operation and Competition Panel

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): Patient choice and contestability are potentially powerful drivers of improved quality and efficiency in the provision of National Health Service services. Involving individuals in decisions about their care and offering people a choice of provider, type of treatment, or the time and location of that treatment, are all characteristics of a high-quality, patient-centred health service.

We must ensure that choice, co-operation and competition within the NHS operate in the interests of patients and taxpayers, and that quality is the organising principle. Achieving these aims depends on having a rules-based approach, clear roles and responsibilities for oversight of the system and effective mechanisms for redress.

The Co-operation and Competition panel was established to ensure that NHS-funded services support the delivery of high quality care for patients and value for money for taxpayers. After announcing on 11 September 2008 that Lord Carter of Coles will take up the post of Chair, I am pleased to confirm that the Co-operation and Competition Panel will open for referrals from 30 January 2009.

In carrying out its responsibilities, the Co-operation and Competition panel will work with all parts of the NHS, the independent sector and others to promote best practice, drive improvements in the delivery of healthcare and protect the interests of patients.

The role of the Co-operation and Competition panel is to provide independent advice to strategic health authorities and the Department of Health, and Monitor (for compliance issues concerning NHS foundation trusts), on alleged breaches of the principles and rules of Co-operation and Competition published alongside the 2008-09 operating framework. The rules aim to foster patient choice and use competition to drive service improvements.

On receipt of advice from the Co-operation and Competition panel, it is the responsibility of strategic health authorities, the Department of Health, and Monitor (for compliance issues concerning NHS foundation trusts) to decide whether and how to implement the recommendations.

Strategic health authorities retain responsibility for strategic, competitive and comparative oversight in their locality but now have the additional support offered by the Co-operation and Competition panel to ensure the NHS has effective governance and oversight and operates in the best interests of patients and taxpayers. Strategic health authorities will continue to hold primary care trusts and NHS trusts to account for managing choice and competition.

The Co-operation and Competition panel can also advise the Department of Health and Monitor on the development of policy and wider competition issues within healthcare. In making its recommendations, the Co-operation and Competition panel will help ensure that co-operation and competition within the NHS supports the objective of delivering high-quality care for all.

The commencement of the Co-operation and Competition panel also marks the start of a consultation phase they are undertaking guided by the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Code of Practice on Consultation. A series of guidance documents published on their website for consultation, outline how the Co-operation and Competition panel will do business with the NHS. The consultation phase will allow NHS staff and stakeholders sufficient time to understand the process and offer advice, suggestions and alternatives to meet their needs.

I welcome the launch of the Co-operation and Competition panel.

More information about the Co-operation and Competition panel can be found at http://www.ccpanel.org.uk.

NHS Foundation Trusts and Monitor (Health Committee Report)

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): The Government have today laid before Parliament their response (Cm 7528) to the Health Committee's report into NHS foundation trusts and Monitor.

NHS foundation trusts (FTs) are a key part of the Government's reform programme in the NHS. FTs are delivering high standards of care and good financial performance. The annual health check ratings produced in October 2008 by the Healthcare Commission showed that of the 42 trusts rated "excellent" for both quality of services and use of resources, 38 were FTs.

The Government welcome the Committee's report. Since first being authorised in April 2004, the number of FTs has grown steadily. Of the 225 acute and mental health trusts eligible to apply for FT status, 113—just over half—are now FTs. Now is a good time to take stock of their progress.

One of the key strengths of the FT model is the involvement of local people through being members and governors. The FT governance model is a key part of the Government's drive to move from a centrally managed NHS towards one that is managed locally, and so more responsive to patients. A recent independent review concluded that the FT governance model works well and offers significant benefits, but also noted that there is scope for further benefits to be realised. In the light of the Committee's concerns that the governance arrangements seem to be slow to deliver benefits, the Government will work with stakeholders to ensure the potential benefits of FT governance are fully realised.

The Government are satisfied that FT status is delivering significant benefits, both in terms of patient care and corporate governance. To spread these benefits as widely as possible, all remaining acute and mental health trusts are working towards achievement of FT status by the end of 2010. The Committee's report will help to ensure that as FTs provide an increasing amount of NHS services, patients reap the benefits offered by FT status.

In response to the Committee's concerns about no organisation having a clear remit to assess objectively whether or not FTs are becoming more innovative, the Government are exploring the options around research into FT innovation and the value added by FTs.

The Government's response is available in the Library and hon. Members can obtain copies from the Vote Office.

JUSTICE

(Government Information) National Archives

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): The independent team appointed by the Prime Minister to review the 30-Year Rule has today published its report. Copies are available in the Vote Office, Printed Paper Office and the Libraries of the both Houses.

The Government welcome the report and are grateful to Paul Dacre, Sir Joe Pilling and Professor Sir David Cannadine for producing this comprehensive and detailed report.

The Government will respond to its recommendations in due course, but agrees that there should be a substantial reduction in the period after which official papers should generally be released to the public, and that this should be introduced on a phased basis.

I will make a further announcement to the House once the Government have prepared its detailed response to the report.

TRANSPORT

Dartford-Thurrock Crossing Charging Scheme (Account 2007-08)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Paul Clark): My noble Friend Lord Adonis, the Minister of State for the Department for Transport, has made the following ministerial statement:

> The Dartford—Thurrock Crossing Charging Scheme account for 2007-08 is published today under section 3 (1) (d) of the Trunk Road Charging Schemes (Bridges and Tunnels) (Keeping of Accounts) (England) Regulations 2003. A copy of the accounts will be placed in the House Library.

Practical Motorcycling Test (Consultation)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Jim Fitzpatrick): I have today published a response to the Consultation Paper which sought views on a proposal to introduce a new practical motorcycling test and associated fees.

The DSA is required to implement European Community Directive 2005/56/EC with the main aim of improving road safety for motorcyclists.

After consultation a key decision is that the practical motorcycling test will be split into two modules.

Module 1—a specified manoeuvres test

Module 2—a road riding test

Bookings for the test in its new format will commence from 30 March at the latest, with the first tests taking place on 27 April.

A two part test will provide more delivery options, from a greater number of locations, enabling better utilisation of the current test centre estate and thereby offering improved geographic coverage. It will offer an improved level of customer service for motorcycling candidates and reduce the travel to test distance for some candidates.

The current fee for the existing standard practical motorcycling test, £80.00 will be split into 2 elements: £10.00 for Module 1 and £70.00 for Module 2.

The motorcycling test fees will increase to £15.50 for Module 1 and £75.00 for Module 2, for tests taken on or after 5 October 2009.

Copies of the Response to Consultation Paper and Impact Assessments have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

The documents are also available from the DSA Website www.dsa.gov.uk.

Kickstart Bus Funding Competition 2009

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Geoffrey Hoon): In September 2008 my predecessor, the right hon. Member for Bolton West, (Ruth Kelly), announced that £25 million had been set aside for a second round of Kickstart bus funding. I am now pleased to confirm that the competition is launched today, and that we are now welcoming bids for funding for new and enhanced bus services from local authorities and their partners.

Kickstart is targeted at schemes that have the potential to become successful but which initially might be more marginal in commercial terms and require some financial help to start them off, or which are currently marginal schemes that with some extra support could be made more successful.

Through Kickstart, we are looking to pump-prime bus services which will contribute to the Department's overall objectives of increasing bus patronage, and in particular developing bus services as an alternative to car use, bringing with it a reduction in congestion and benefits to the environment. It is also about improving accessibility and social inclusion. This round will also focus on schemes which make use of the new bus powers in the Local Transport Act 2008. We hope this will allow us to build up good practice on the use of these powers to promulgate to other local authorities and operators.

The application form and guidance are today being placed on the Department's website and in the House Libraries. We will also email these documents to the key bodies which represent local authorities and bus operators later today.

Applications for funding will be accepted through to 3 July 2009, and I anticipate that an announcement of the successful schemes will be made in autumn 2009.

Detrunking Programme (Removal of Route)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Paul Clark): My noble Friend Lord Adonis, Minister of State, Department for Transport, has made the following ministerial statement:

The policy of transferring to local highway authorities the responsibility for trunk roads that are considered to be non-core was first set out in the White Paper "A New Deal for Transport", published in July 1998 (Cm 3950).

Following advice from the Highways Agency, informed by discussions with the relevant authorities, I have now decided that the following route section should be removed from the announced detrunking programme and remain part of the strategic road network, maintained and operated by the Highways Agency:

A40 in Gloucestershire (from M5 Junction 11 to the Herefordshire boundary).

I have written to the appropriate local highway authority, and relevant MPs, outlining the reasons for my decision. Copies of these letters have been placed in the Library of the House.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Employment and Social Policy Ministers Meeting

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Jonathan Shaw): Lord McKenzie of Luton has made the following statement:

The informal meeting of Employment and Social Policy Ministers was held on 22 and 23 January 2009 in Luhacovice, Czech Republic. I represented the United Kingdom along with my right hon. Friend, the Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs.

The theme of this informal was "Mobility—a bridge between the labour market demand and the supply of working skills". Its aim was to highlight the role of workforce mobility in enhancing labour market flexibility, social cohesion and economic growth in the European Union.

Following on from the opening session when representatives from the European institutions and social partners outlined their views, the meeting was split into three plenary sessions, each devoted to specific challenges linked to mobility: job mobility, geographical mobility and social mobility. For the United Kingdom, I intervened on the job mobility session, supporting the European Union economic recovery plan and the European Union skills review, and described some of the recent United Kingdom initiatives in response to the current economic crisis. The presidency and many member states stressed the undiminished importance of mobility, particularly for those furthest from the labour market. The key role of education and skills to ensure the rapid re-inclusion of workers was highlighted. The presidency concluded that the current financial and economic crisis only highlighted the need for greater workforce mobility.

The meeting concluded with a ministerial discussion on the working time directive, attended by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs. The United Kingdom and many other member states argued that retaining the opt-out continued to be an absolute priority. The presidency stated that it would try and facilitate an agreement with the European Parliament during the conciliation process but that finding an agreement would not be easy.

Monday 2 February 2009

CABINET OFFICE

Public Bodies 2008

The Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office (Mr. Tom Watson): The Cabinet Office has today published Public Bodies 2008 which lists all non-departmental public bodies (NDPB) sponsored by the UK Government as at 31 March 2008. Public Bodies 2008 also provides summary information on the size and expenditure of the NDPB sector and statistical information on public appointments.

Public Bodies 2008 can be downloaded from the civil service website at: http://www.civilservice.qov.uk/about/public/bodies.asp. Copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House.

TREASURY

Contingencies Fund

The Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury (Angela Eagle): A Treasury Minute dated 6 November 2008 informed Parliament that the Bank of England had provided a short term loan facility to the Financial Services Compensation Scheme (FSCS) to enable the FSCS to pay out to eligible UK retail depositors in Icesave, the internet product made available by the UK branch of Landsbanki.

That Minute also informed Parliament that this loan will be replaced with a loan from the Government at a time to be negotiated between the Bank of England and the Treasury. The Treasury and Bank of England have agreed that this loan transfer should take place on 29 January 2009 and as a result the Treasury made a payment to the Bank of England of £3,109,742,000 (three billion, one hundred and nine million, seven hundred and forty two thousand pounds).

Part of this loan will be paid back by the FSCS on an interest only basis for the first three years, plus any recoveries made through a claim on Landsbanki in that time. The FSCS will then use levies to repay the remaining balance. The remaining part of the loan is expected to be repaid by the Icelandic Depositors' and Investors' Guarantee Fund (DIGF). The Treasury is in negotiation with the Icelandic authorities with a view to their guaranteeing this repayment in line with their responsibilities under EEA law and the Deposit Guarantee Scheme Directive.

On 1 December 2008, the Government announced that they had put in place arrangements to ensure that all eligible retail depositors—that is, those depositors who are eligible to claim under the FSCS—in London Scottish Bank plc will receive their money in full, including those with balances above the £50,000 FSCS limit.

In order to enable the FSCS to make these payouts the Treasury has advanced £100,000,000 (one hundred million pounds) to the FSCS on 29 January 2009. Part of this advance will be paid back by the FSCS on an interest only basis for the first three years, plus any recoveries made through a claim on London Scottish Bank plc in that time. The FSCS will then use levies to repay the remaining balance. The remaining part of the advance will be recovered from the rights which HM Treasury have acquired in respects of the proceeds of the wind-down and realisation of the assets of London Scottish Bank plc which is in administration.

Parliamentary approval for additional cash cover of £3,209,742,000 (three billion, two hundred and nine million, seven hundred and forty two thousand pounds) for this service will be sought in the Spring Supplementary Estimate for HM Treasury, as the Winter Supplementary Estimate included a provision for this expenditure. Pending that approval, urgent expenditure estimated at £3,209,742,000 (three billion, two hundred and nine million, seven hundred and forty two thousand pounds) will be met by repayable cash advances from the Contingencies Fund.

Saving Gateway Accounts Bill

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ian Pearson): Today, in advance of the consideration of clauses of the Saving Gateway Accounts Bill by the Public Bill Committee, I am publishing draft Saving Gateway Accounts Regulations. These draft regulations have been published for the information of Members, and remain subject to discussion and consideration.

These draft regulations incorporate the draft regulations in relation to eligibility for Saving Gateway accounts, which were published on 12 January.

Copies have been deposited in the Libraries of the House and will be available on the HM Treasury website.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Sutherland Inquiry

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): Last December, Lord Sutherland completed his independent inquiry into the delivery of National Curriculum tests in 2008. On 16 December I laid a copy of his report before the House, and made a statement accepting all his recommendations in full.

Lord Sutherland's report made recommendations covering the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA), the Department for Children, Schools and Families' officials and Ministers, and Ofqual, the independent qualifications regulator. In December I set out the actions my Department was already taking to implement his recommendations, and committed to a further detailed response which I am publishing today. I have laid a copy of this in the Libraries of the House.

Where Lord Sutherland's recommendations included specific actions for my Department to take forward, all have been completed or are under way. Prior to Lord Sutherland's December report I established an expert group to advise on future testing and assessment arrangements and their delivery. I have taken steps to clarify further the reporting lines, information sharing and risk escalation arrangements between the QCA and my department and the role of DCSF observers. My Department will ensure that the legislation that establishes Ofqual and the QCDA gives Ofqual the powers to regulate national curriculum assessments effectively. In the interim, my Department is developing and agreeing a protocol on the reporting arrangements for Ofqual. My officials will discuss with QCA possible technological advances, such as on-screen marking and data capture, for possible use from 2010 onwards.

While Lord Sutherland made no specific recommendations in relation to the Office of Government Commerce (OGC) Gateway process, I asked my officials to liaise with the OGC to consider whether there were wider lessons from the report for Gateway reviews. OGC have identified some areas where aspects of current guidance and practice can be improved, and these are included in our detailed response.

On 16 December I wrote to the new chair of the QCA board, Chris Trinick, asking him to implement all Lord Sutherland's recommendations relating to the QCA in full, and to provide me with a full report on progress by 16 January. He has done this, and I have laid a copy of his letter to me including the QCA's action plan and update on implementation in the Libraries of the House, together with my reply to him. My officials will work closely with QCA in the coming months to monitor progress against their action plan.

Following their initial response to Lord Sutherland's recommendations on 16 December 2008, Ofqual have also published their action plan detailing how they intend to implement the recommendations relating to them as the independent regulator, and I am placing a copy in the Library of the House.

I made clear in December that where we have national tests, they must be delivered successfully and on time, as they have been in the past. I am very grateful to Lord Sutherland for his detailed and comprehensive work, which will significantly strengthen the future delivery of national curriculum tests. His report, and the measures set out in this statement and accompanying action plans, will help ensure that we achieve this in 2009 and in future years, so that children and young people, and their parents and teachers, all benefit from the testing and assessment system they deserve.

DEFENCE

Army Nationality Policy

The Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. John Hutton): I should like to inform the House that with effect from today the MOD will be introducing an upper limit of 15 per cent. on the number of citizens of foreign[1] and Commonwealth countries serving in the Royal Logistic Corps (RLC), the Royal Army Dental Corps (RADC) and the Queen Alexandra's Royal Army Nursing Corps (QARANC).

In making this statement, I should like to record my regret at the unfortunate handling of this issue in this House last week. The unauthorised leak to the media of this story went directly against our intention that this House should be the first to hear of the issue. Following the delay to the Armed Forces Personnel debate, we should have reviewed the timing of this statement. It was certainly not our intent in any way to fail to give this House the proper opportunity to learn of and consider this issue.

We have concluded that in the interests of operational effectiveness, a 15 per cent. limit on foreign and Commonwealth nationals in these areas of the Army is both necessary and proportionate. The three Corps are the only ones where the current proportion of foreign and Commonwealth personnel is at or approaching that level. There will be an option to apply the same limit to other parts of the Armed Forces if, at any time in the future, the percentages merit it. The purpose of the measure is to limit the number of personnel whose foreign citizenship could leave them potentially subject to legislation contrary to our own decisions—on, for example, operational deployments. We have also borne in mind the importance of ensuring that the Armed Forces continue to be identified with and representative of the UK. These arrangements do not extend to Gurkhas who serve as a discrete formed unit to which only Nepalese nationals can apply.

The Race Relations Act provides for arrangements to legitimise measures such as this. These arrangements are made having due regard to the need to eliminate unlawful racial discrimination and to promote racial equality of opportunity. In this case, the restriction is based on nationality and not race. The MOD and the Armed Forces remain whole-heartedly committed to removing unlawful discrimination and promoting equality.

MOD is very proud of the historic links with Commonwealth countries who provide high quality recruits and who have made a valuable contribution to the Armed Forces for many years. We hope they will continue to do so in the future and we will continue to recruit foreign and Commonwealth personnel to join the Armed Forces.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Northumberland National Park Authority

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Huw Irranca-Davies): In December 2007 my hon. Friend the Minister for Local Government announced that all district councils in Northumberland will be abolished on 1 April 2009 and the county council will continue as the sole local authority for the area. Given that Tynedale district council, Alnwick district council and Berwick-upon-Tweed borough council currently appoint members to the Northumberland National Park Authority, their abolition means that the membership arrangements, as set out under the National Park Authorities (England) Order 1996, need to be amended.

[1] In this context "foreign" means citizens of the Republic of Ireland; the percentage of aliens (defined in section 50(1) of the British Nationality Act 1981 as persons who are neither Commonwealth citizens nor British protected persons nor citizens of the Republic of Ireland) who may serve in the regular forces is stringently limited by section 21 (1) of the Army Act 1955 and section 21 (1) of the Air Force Act 1955. Similar restrictions are also contained in section 340 of the Armed Forces Act 2006, which is not yet in force.

Accordingly, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State consulted on the proposals which would reflect the new local government structure while retaining the same overall size of authority and maintaining a strong local presence on the authority. It is proposed that the changes to the membership would take effect on 1 April 2009. They would be delivered through a statutory instrument—subject to negative resolution—made under the Environment Act 1995. The consultation ran from 23 June to 17 October 2008. The responses are available on Defra's website at: http://www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/consult/northumberland-npa/index.htm

I have carefully considered the responses and have decided to pursue the changes proposed in the consultation which will reduce the local authority seats from 12 to six; increase the number of parish members from four to six; and increase the number of Secretary of State members from six to 10. Two of the extra four extra Secretary of State seats shall be taken by those who have experience of living or working in the National Park; one extra with experience of living or working in the Newcastle-Gateshead area; and one with particular knowledge of regional issues. The changes to membership of the Park Authority shall be made by means of a statutory instrument made under the Environment Act 1995 and laid before Parliament in early 2009, so that subject to Parliament's consent, the new membership composition is active from 1 April 2009.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

General Affairs and External Relations Council

The Minister for Europe (Caroline Flint): My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary represented the UK at the General Affairs and External Relations Council in Brussels.

The agenda items covered were as follows:

General Affairs

Presentation of the Czech Presidency's Priorities

The presidency said that their three priorities would be the economy, energy and external relations, especially in the context of their preparations for the Spring European Council on 19-20 March; the Eastern Partnership would be the main focus of work on external relations.

The Government support the Czech Presidency's priorities, including the Eastern Partnership.

Energy Security

The presidency and Commission briefed Ministers on the Russia-Ukraine gas crisis and called for work on the Second Strategic Energy Review (SEER2) and energy project proposals under the Economic Recovery Plan to be accelerated so that decisions could be taken at the Spring European Council; to that end, the GAERC should adopt a list of priority projects at its next meeting. The Commission said that it would shortly identify and propose a number of projects. Ministers agreed that these should focus on the internal market, infrastructure, crisis response and diversification.

External Relations

Middle East Peace Process (MEPP)

Ministers discussed Gaza with the Egyptian, Palestinian, Jordanian, Turkish and Norwegian Foreign Ministers on 25 January. Egypt briefed on its efforts to promote a durable ceasefire and Palestinian reconciliation, and on the proposed donors' conference on reconstruction.

Following the meeting, the presidency publicly expressed support for the efforts of Egypt and other regional actors in brokering the ceasefire and facilitating negotiations; voiced their concern at the humanitarian situation in Gaza and wish to see aid reach those who needed it; reaffirmed the EU's willingness to help with the humanitarian effort and political process; and recalled the EU's support for the Arab Peace Initiative.

At the GAERC, Ministers agreed conclusions, which the Government welcome. They called on all parties to make the current ceasefire permanent through full implementation of UN Security Council Resolution 1860; urged a sustained halt of rocket launches towards Israel, the urgent opening of the Gaza crossings and an effective mechanism to prevent arms and ammunition smuggling to the Gaza Strip; called for the unimpeded provision and distribution of humanitarian assistance to Gaza; expressed the EU's readiness to reactivate the EU Border Assistance Mission (EUBAM Rafah), as soon as conditions allow; and strongly encouraged inter-Palestinian reconciliation.

Russia-Ukraine

The presidency briefed the Council on the state of negotiations on a new partnership and co-operation agreement with Russia and an enhanced association agreement with Ukraine. Many Ministers expressed concern at the behaviour of Russia and Ukraine during the recent gas dispute. The Commission pointed out that the dispute had highlighted the importance of energy for the EU's ongoing dialogues with both countries. The presidency agreed that Ministers should return to this issue in due course.

Guantanamo Bay

Ministers welcomed President Obama's executive order to close the Guantanamo Bay detention facility within a year, and noted that work on closure was ongoing. They acknowledged it was likely that the US would ask allies to assist by resettling some of those detainees who did not represent a major security threat, but who could not be returned to their own countries owing to security or human rights concerns.

Zimbabwe

Ministers adopted conclusions, which underscored EU concerns about the continuing collapse of the country, the intransigence of the regime and the role of diamonds in generating revenue to sustain it. The conclusions also renewed EU sanctions for a further year and added 63 individuals and companies to the sanctions list. The Government strongly support this decision.

Terrorism

The Council removed the People's Mojahedin Organisation of Iran (PMOI) from the list of terrorist organisations subject to restrictive measures at EU level. If new information is made available, the Council could decide to reinclude the group in accordance with applicable procedures. The Government support the Council's decision.

JUSTICE

Service Personnel (Inquests)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice): My right hon. Friend the Minister for the Armed Forces and I wish to make the following statement to the House about the inquests of service personnel who have died overseas. We recognise that every inquest represents the death of someone fighting for this country, and a story of great pain for a bereaved family. We cannot praise enough the job that our personnel do nor pay high enough tribute to the sacrifice which some of them have made.

Today, we are announcing the progress that has been made since the written ministerial statement on 30 October 2008, Official Report, columns 36-38WS, with information about the conduct of inquests by the Wiltshire and Swindon and other coroners. This statement gives the position at 27 January, but does not reflect the 17 January death on operations in Afghanistan of acting Corporal Robinson as the inquest has not yet been opened.

The tables which accompany this statement again include information about those cases which involve a board of inquiry or a service inquiry (boards of inquiry were replaced on 1 October 2008 by a new system of service inquiries).

Progress with inquests

At the time of the last statement, our Departments reported that 209 inquests had been held since June 2006: 195 into the overseas deaths of service personnel and 14 into the deaths of civilians in Iraq whose bodies were repatriated via RAF Brize Norton or RAF Lyneham.

Since October, a further 11 inquests have been held into the deaths of service personnel who died in operations in Iraq or Afghanistan. This makes a total of 220 inquests held since June 2006.

Since operations commenced in 2001 there have been a total of 244 inquests into the deaths of service personnel who lost their lives in Iraq and Afghanistan, including four service men who died in the UK of their injuries. In two further cases, no formal inquest was held, but the deaths were taken into consideration during inquest proceedings for those who died in the same incident.

We remain very grateful for the efforts of all the coroners involved in conducting these inquests and unswerving in our support of the independent coronial system.

The Coroners and Justice Bill will make additional provisions for the transfer of cases from one coroner to another in England and Wales—with the chief coroner having a power to transfer cases without the agreement of the coroners concerned—although the approach will remain that only single deaths are subject to transfer.

The improvements to the coroner system contained in the Bill will lead to a better service for all bereaved families, including service families. Improvements include the charter for bereaved families, which sets out the services they should receive from coroners; and a new appeal system to which families will have access.

Open inquests

i. Pre-31 March 2007 Fatalities

The statement in October reported that there were three inquests to be held into the deaths of service personnel in Iraq and Afghanistan whose bodies were repatriated via RAF Brize Norton prior to 31 March 2007. As at 27 January there is one such inquest remaining, that into the death of Marine Wigley, which will be held in May 2009.

ii. Post-1 April 2007 Fatalities

Since October 2007, additional resources have been provided by the Government to ensure that a backlog of inquests will not build up in the Wiltshire and Swindon jurisdiction (since 1 April 2007 fatalities are repatriated via RAF Lyneham). The coroner, Mr. Masters, transfers inquests for service personnel to a coroner closer to the bereaved family, where possible.

There are 71 inquests to be concluded into the deaths of service personnel who died in Iraq and Afghanistan whose bodies were repatriated after 1 April 2007 (46 involving deaths in the last six months). Of these, Mr. Masters has retained 37 inquests, whilst 30 inquests are being conducted by coroners closer to the next of kin. Four inquests are awaiting transfer to coroners closer to the next of kin. Inquest hearing dates have been set in two of these cases.

iii. Inquests into the deaths of service personnel who returned home injured

There remain two inquests to be held of service personnel who returned home-injured and subsequently died of their injuries.

We shall continue to keep the House informed about progress with the remaining inquests. I have placed tables in the Libraries of both Houses which outline the status of all cases and date of death of each case. Copies are also available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

Liaison with the next of kin

It is of the greatest importance that the next of kin have full information about the progress of the inquest into the death of their loved one.

We remain committed to providing the best possible support to bereaved service families. The written ministerial statement issued on 7 June 2007, Official Report, column 26WS by my right hon. Friend, the then Minister of State for the Armed Forces, the Member for East Kilbride, Strathaven and Lesmahagow (Mr. Ingram) gave details of the support which was then being provided. Since then, we have increased the number of family members who can travel and stay overnight if necessary, at public expense, to attend the repatriation ceremony; and three family members may attend any pre-inquest hearings, as well as the inquest itself, again at public expense.

Visiting Officers—who are appointed to provide liaison between families and the services—fulfil a crucial role, and we continue to give close attention to their selection, training and support.

The Defence Inquests Unit, which was established by the Ministry of Defence on 1 May 2008, now acts as the focal point for all coroners' inquests into the deaths of service personnel and Ministry of Defence civilian personnel who die on, or as a result of injuries sustained during operations; and those who die as a result of training activity. The unit's principal role is to assist coroners so that they can complete inquests satisfactorily and as quickly as possible. The establishment of this dedicated unit reflects our firm commitment to providing full support of coroners and bereaved families and to learning and implementing all appropriate lessons which emerge from inquests.

TRANSPORT

Taxis: (Improving Access)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Paul Clark): The Department for Transport has today published a consultation document which explores ways of improving access to taxis by disabled people. The document looks at a number of approaches and is accompanied by an impact assessment.

Taxis are an important part of the public transport system and provide many people with a way of accessing employment, educational and social opportunities that otherwise may not be available. This consultation looks at ways of improving access, so that disabled people can make the most of these opportunities.

The document is available on the Department's website: http://www.dft.gov.uk/consultations. Copies have been placed in the House Library.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Foot and Mouth Disease Outbreak (2007)

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): Following the outbreak of foot and mouth disease in 2007, the Prime Minister and I invited Sir Iain Anderson to conduct a review to see if the lessons of the 2001 outbreak had been learned and to recommend what further steps might be taken. Sir Iain published his review in March 2008 and I am laying the Government's response before Parliament today.

As we saw in 2007, even when confined to a small number of infected premises in the same area, the impact of an outbreak can be considerable on the livestock sector, food businesses, and the wider community.

Sir Iain commended the Government's overall handling of the 2007 outbreak. He stated that > "many of the lessons identified in the 2002 report had been acted upon and performance, taken as a whole, was much improved". "In analysing how the 2007 outbreak was handled, with its innumerable, interwoven decisions and actions, we found much to applaud, along with some deficiencies. On balance, the positive easily outweighs the negative".

I am grateful to Sir Iain for his review and for the recognition of how Government and the livestock industry tackled the outbreak in partnership. However, even though most things were handled well, I acknowledge that there are always lessons to be learned and ways in which we can do better.

The Government have accepted all of Sir Iain's 26 recommendations contained in the main body of his report. Since 2007, we have dealt with other exotic diseases by applying what we have learned from the foot and mouth outbreak, and as a result we are now better prepared. I am committed to continuing to work with the industry to ensure this remains the case.

Our response also comments on Sir Iain's personal recommendation to reposition the Institute of Animal Health as a new National Institute of Infectious Disease. DEFRA, DIUS and BBSRC have discussed over the past year the future facilities needed for animal health in the UK and specifically the future management and arrangements at IAH Pirbright. BBSRC will continue to fund the Institute for Animal Health so that it can provide the nation with world class research facilities that underpin the livestock industries and our food security. DIUS expects BBSRC soon to submit a business case for the redevelopment of the site at Pirbright to allow the continuation of world class research there on animal diseases. DEFRA will continue to work with DIUS and BBSRC to ensure that the national provision of research, diagnosis and surveillance enables effective disease detection and response. The Institute for Animal Health and the Veterinary Laboratories Agency will continue to pursue opportunities for collaboration.

Copies of the report are available in the Vote Office and at: http://www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/diseases/fmd/2007/index.htm

HEALTH

National Dementia Strategy

The Secretary of State for Health (Alan Johnson): "Living Well with Dementia—a National Dementia Strategy", which is being published today, sets out the Government's vision for the transformation of dementia services.

The launch of "Living Well with Dementia—a National Dementia Strategy" marks the start of an important journey of improving dementia services which will involve both the NHS and social care in England. The strategy has three main aims:

to increase awareness of dementia and remove the stigma associated with it;

to ensure early diagnosis and intervention; and to improve the quality of care that people with dementia and their carers receive.

A copy of the strategy has been placed in the Library of the House and copies are available for hon. Members from the Vote Office.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Control Orders (Lord Carlile's Fourth Report)

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): I am pleased to say that in accordance with section 14(3), 14(4) and 14(5) of the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005, Lord Carlile of Berriew QC has completed the report on the operation of the Act in 2008, which will be laid before the House today.

JUSTICE

Corston Report

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Maria Eagle): I am today updating Parliament on further progress made in implementing the Government's response to the Corston Report on women with particular vulnerabilities in the criminal justice system.

In my statement to this house in December, Official Report, 10 December 2008, column 59WS, I confirmed that while significant progress had been made since the Government's response was published in December 2007, we remain determined to do much more to divert vulnerable women who are not serious or dangerous offenders from custody.

I am therefore pleased to announce that the Ministry of Justice will provide £15.6 million of new funding over two years, to invest in the provision of additional services in the community for women offenders and women at risk of offending. The new funds will be directed towards building capacity of specialist provision for women in the community and developing bail support services. We propose that some of the funding will be used to invest in existing third sector providers, enabling them to work with courts, police, probation and other statutory agencies to provide support and services to vulnerable women in the criminal justice system.

I have asked the cross-departmental Criminal Justice Women's Strategy Unit to lead on this new phase of capacity building and to report progress to the Ministerial Sub-Group on implementation of the Government's response to Corston.

If we are successfully to protect the public from crime then we also need to tackle the underlying causes of crime and break cycles of disadvantage. My announcement today reaffirms the Government's commitment to do more to ensure that there is early and effective provision for vulnerable women in the community and our continued commitment to the wider Corston agenda.

WORK AND PENSIONS

UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Jonathan Shaw): I am pleased to announce that the UK will sign the Optional Protocol to the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities as soon as practicable.

The convention will reaffirm that disabled people have—and should be able to enjoy—their human rights on an equal basis with non-disabled people. The optional protocol builds on this by establishing two additional procedures in respect of implementation and monitoring of the convention itself.

The first is a procedural avenue that, subject to meeting conditions set out in the optional protocol, will enable individuals or groups of individuals to bring petitions to the UN Committee that has been established to monitor implementation of the convention if they believe that their convention rights have been breached. The second is an inquiry procedure giving the committee authority to undertake inquiries, when reliable information, is received into allegations of grave or systematic violations of convention rights.

This is an important decision which further demonstrates the Government's firm commitment to the convention, on which our work towards ratification is continuing, and to the principle of ensuring equality of human rights for disabled people.

The decision to sign this optional protocol does not set a precedent for similar individual complaints mechanisms. These will continue to be considered on their merits on a case by case basis.

Elbourne Review

The Minister for Pensions and the Ageing Society (Ms Rosie Winterton): On 22 May 2008 the then Minister for Pensions Reform announced that John Elbourne had been asked to "examine the current arrangements for the engagement of older people and the ability of those arrangements to inform policy and actions of Government at all levels".

Specifically, this was to include examining Better Government for Older People.

John Elbourne published his report on 18 November 2008 and the Government received comments up to 9 January 2009. The report made a range of recommendations for improving older people's engagement with Government, which fell into three broad areas: establishing a UK advisory forum for older people, building the capacity for effective dialogue at regional and local level through regional forums and local older people's forums; and withdrawing funding for Better Government for Older People from 1 April 2009 to support the new Government Office arrangements and thereby increasing the funds available for "on the ground" activities.

The Government are today publishing their response to this report. The Government will establish a new UK-wide forum. The forum will be known as the UK Advisory Forum on Ageing, and I will co-chair this forum with the Minister of State, Department of Health, my hon. Friend the Member for Corby (Phil Hope). This will bring together representative views of older people at a national level, and will build links with forums in the devolved nations, the English regions, and the local level. The Government will set up a new structure with a designated regional co-ordinator for older people's engagement in each English region, providing advocacy and co-ordination for older people and working with older people to set up regional forums on ageing and local forums where they do not already exist. This will build on existing arrangements for engagement with older people and address weaknesses in the current structure. These new arrangements will give older people a direct line into Government at a local, regional and national level.

Better Government for Older People's response to John Elbourne's review has been to develop a proposal for a new independent body to carry forward their aims. The Department for Work and Pensions will support them in making a smooth transition into this new phase.

ECOFIN

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The Economic and Financial Affairs Council was held in Brussels on 20 January 2009. The following items were discussed:

Presidency work programme

The Czech presidency presented its ECOFIN work programme for the first half of 2009, which received full backing from Ministers.

Follow-up to the December European Council: Impact on Council Work

The presidency took stock of the work arising from the European Economic Recovery Plan (EERP) agreed by the December European Council. Ministers discussed the next steps for two particular issues. The first was reduced rates of VAT. The presidency pledged to find a compromise at ECOFIN in the coming months. The second was how the EU budget can best support infrastructure and energy efficiency projects. Ministers agreed to return to this issue in February. On both issues the Government support the presidency's strategy for finding agreement.

Economic and Budgetary Policy Strategy for 2009, including economic and financial situation and implementation of European Economic Recovery Plan

Ministers exchanged views and adopted an external communication on the economic and budgetary policy messages for ECOFIN's work in 2009. This included discussion of the impact of fiscal stimulus packages on budgetary rules under the stability and growth pact.. The presidency will use the messages at this ECOFIN to inform discussions at the spring European Council in March.

Introduction of the euro in Slovakia

The European Commission and the representative of Slovakia presented a first assessment of the introduction of the single currency in Slovakia on 1 January 2009. The Council congratulated Slovakia on its success.

Western Balkans Investment Framework

The Council heard a report and adopted Council conclusions on progress towards the establishment of the Western Balkans Investment Framework by 2010.

AOB

Balance of payments assistance—Latvia

Ministers adopted Council decisions granting balance of payments assistance to Latvia. The UK supports this loan, which is part of an overall package of support agreed with the IMF, World Bank, and bilateral lenders.

Financial rescue packages and bank capital

The Czech presidency reminded Ministers of ECOFIN's commitment to ongoing monitoring of the progress and effectiveness of national financial rescue measures. The presidency emphasised the need for member states to continue to co-ordinate their actions. Ministers adopted Council conclusions on bank capital, agreeing to take strong and decisive actions to stimulate their economies, provide liquidity, strengthen the capital of financial institutions, protect savings and deposits, address regulatory deficiencies and unfreeze credit markets. The Commission will prepare reports on the implementation of rescue packages and on troubled assets for the March meeting of ECOFIN, when the matter will be revisited. The UK strongly welcomes this work, which is an essential part of wider efforts to restore stability to financial markets.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

National Anti-doping Organisation

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Andy Burnham): The Minister for Sport, at today's UK Sport anti-doping conference, proposed that the UK's anti-doping function be removed from UK Sport and established as a stand-alone National Anti-doping Organisation (NADO). This follows his agreement in principle, in December 2007, to this recommendation from the UK Sport board.

The Department and UK Sport have been working to agree a funding package for the new body and I am pleased to announce that this has been concluded, with a budget for the new NADO of £7 million for 2009-10 and 2010-11 up to the next spending review.

We have tasked UK Sport with responsibility for the delivery of this project, and they inform me that they expect the new functions of the NADO to be operational by the end of the year.

The Department will undertake a formal consultation and impact assessment on the proposals, and will report to Parliament in due course.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture Council (19 January 2009)

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): I represented the United Kingdom at January's Agriculture Council in Brussels, the first under the Czech presidency. Elin Jones, the Welsh Minister for Rural Affairs, also attended.

The CAP Health Check was adopted under the 'A' items.

The presidency set out the four priorities it would take forward over the next six months:

Future of the CAP—discussion would continue on the future of the CAP, focusing on objectives in its post-2013 incarnation. The presidency would conduct discussions at its informal Council with a view to achieving consensus on a way forward at the June Council meeting.

Green Paper on "Quality Policy"—would be taken forward at a ministerial conference in Prague on 12 and 13 March. The output would inform a Commission Communication, discussion of which would take place at the May Council, followed by Council conclusions in June.

Rural Development—work would continue on the review of less-favoured areas (LFAs).

CAP Simplification—the presidency would hold discussion in the Council. The Commission would present a progress report to the March Council meeting. Council conclusions would be tabled at the May session.

Work on foodstuffs, novel foods and food labelling, the welfare of animals at slaughter, the animal testing directive, the sustainability of fisheries and aquaculture, and the reform of the common fisheries policy, were also highlighted.

On the main items, the Commission presented its draft negotiating mandate for Community accession to the International Organisation of Vine and Wine (OIV), followed by a draft regulation setting out requirements on operators who place timber on the Community market to exercise due diligence, ensuring that such timber is legally logged.

Next, the presidency confirmed that there was neither a qualified majority of member states in favour, nor against, Commission proposals to authorise the placing on the market (but not cultivation) of a herbicide tolerant oilseed rape and a blue carnation. The Commission would now adopt under its own powers.

There were a number of items under any other business. There were calls for higher aid intensities to be provided for in response to the global economic downturn and for provision of private storage aid for 100,000 tonnes of pigmeat. The Commission proposed the reintroduction of export refunds in the dairy sector.

JUSTICE

National Offender Management Services

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): I am today publishing the Strategic and Business plans for the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) agency. The document sets out the strategic priorities for the agency to 2011 and the activities and targets to be achieved during 2009-10.

Copies have been made available in the Libraries of both Houses, the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office. The document is also available on the NOMS website at:-

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/corporateinformation.htm

The NOMS agency was established as an executive agency of the Ministry of Justice in July 2008. It has the twin aims of protecting the public and reducing re-offending. The agency is central to the Ministry of Justice's work to achieve better outcomes for society, to improve further the effectiveness of the criminal justice system and to ensure the delivery of efficient and effective offender management.

HOME DEPARTMENT

National DNA Database

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Alan Campbell): I have today placed the "National Database (NDNAD) Annual Report 2006-07" in the Library. The Government accept the need for ongoing accountability to the public on the operation of the NDNAD annual report, which publishes details of its activities, is an important part of the aim to increase transparency and maintain and improve public confidence in the oversight, management and operations of the NDNAD.

OLYMPICS

Government Olympic Executive Annual Report 2009

The Minister for the Olympics (Tessa Jowell): I have today published the "Government Olympic Executive's second Annual Report—London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games Annual Report January 2009".

The document fulfils the commitment to report to Parliament on a six-monthly basis providing details of progress across the Olympic programme and of the funding for the games.

The report outlines the progress that has been made in 2008 on building, staging and capitalising on the legacy benefits of the games. It also highlights the priorities for action in each of these areas in 2009, and explains the latest budget position, including the use of contingency.

This is the second annual report produced by the Government Olympic Executive. As in 2008, we will produce a six-month update of the report in July of this year. For the first time this year we will also produce quarterly financial updates, to increase even further the transparency of the project.

I would like to commend this report to the Members of both Houses and thank them for their continued interest and support of the London 2012 Olympics.

Copies of the annual report 2009 are available at: www.culture.gov.uk and will be deposited in the Libraries of both Houses.

TRANSPORT

De-trunked Roads (Capital Funding)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Paul Clark): I am today announcing that £66 million capital funding will be provided during 2009-10 and 2010-11 to 41 local authorities to carry out capital maintenance on their de-trunked roads. I have placed a list of the allocations to individual authorities in the Libraries of both Houses.

The White Paper "A New Deal for Transport: Better for Everyone" and the report "A New Deal for Trunk Roads in England"—both published in July 1998—identified a core network of existing trunk roads which serve a strategic national purpose and should remain the responsibility of the Secretary of State. It was proposed that those non-core routes which served only regional or local purposes should be transferred to local highway authority management. This transfer of management, known as de-trunking, allows the Highways Agency to concentrate on the operation of the strategic trunk road network, while enabling local authorities to consider their own priorities for the improvement of non-core routes.

The Government provide funding to local authorities for the maintenance of the roads transferred. Revenue support is provided in addition to the general revenue support grant (RSG) provided to local authorities. Like the RSG the de-trunking revenue support is paid through area-based grants.

We also provide capital funding for individual maintenance projects authorities wish to carry out in addition to their routine maintenance programme. This funding is in addition to the formula capital highway maintenance funding this Department provides authorities as part of the local transport plan settlement.

Rail Services

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Geoffrey Hoon): Local authorities and passenger transport authorities have a duty to promote effective public transport for their area. From time to time they wish to bring forward proposals for new or enhanced rail services. They have the required powers to secure the provision of such services but they are sometimes inhibited by the risk that significant funding may need to be committed over the long term. I am keen to encourage the best solutions for identified local needs, and have therefore considered how to make it easier for authorities to develop rail options.

I would therefore like to announce to the House the Government's intention to fund in control period 5 (2014-19) the provision of new or enhanced services promoted by authorities which have rail industry support and can be funded from a budget which would be set for this purpose in 2012.

It is important that the promoter demonstrates that a rail scheme is the best way to address regional and local transport issues; hence promoters would be expected to fund a new or enhanced service for the first three years to demonstrate their commitment to the service and show that it delivers value for money in the light of actual experience.

Schemes which the Department would consider funding in this way would be subject to a number of conditions, details of which have been deposited in the Libraries of both Houses and will be made available on the Department for Transport's website.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Visa Waiver Test

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): Today my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs and I are announcing the final outcomes of the UK's first global review of its visa regimes.

Britain thrives as a society and economy that is open for business, education, culture and tourism to people from around the world, but we want to do that in a way that enables us to distinguish clearly and effectively legitimate from illegitimate travellers. We are completing some of the biggest ever changes to strengthen Britain's border security by implementing a system of triple checks: stronger overseas checks including fingerprint visas and wider pre-arrival screening; tougher checks at the UK border itself; and strong new measures within the UK: against illegal immigration, organised crime and other threats.

The Visa Waiver Test process, announced in March 2007, further strengthens the UK border by ensuring that our visa regimes are properly targeted. A visa regime is a simple but very effective immigration, crime and security control measure.

The Visa Waiver Test measured travel from every country and region beyond the European economic area and Switzerland against a range of criteria including illegal immigration, crime and security concerns.

As part of the test we also considered whether any countries or regions posed a sufficiently low risk such as to warrant the lifting of an existing visitor visa requirement, so as to facilitate legitimate travel.

In the final stage of the test we worked closely with 11 countries whose nationals had been identified as posing a sufficiently high risk as to warrant, in principle, the introduction of a visa requirement for all travellers. We worked with the countries concerned over a six-month period to find ways to reduce the risks posed to the UK without the need for a visa requirement.

We have been able to make real progress with a number of countries through a combination of advice, training and improved working relations on migration matters. As a result some of the 11 countries have made concrete improvements to the immigration, border control and identity systems which would not have happened without the test. Even where a visa regime is the final outcome, we have improved co-operation on migration matters with the countries concerned. At the end of this process we assessed the overall progress made by each country, and whether or not it was sufficient to mitigate the risks to the UK.

We will not be introducing new visa requirements at this time for certain countries involved in the final stage of the test: Botswana, Brazil, Malaysia, Mauritius, Namibia and Trinidad and Tobago. We will continue to work with these countries on migration matters and assess the effectiveness of the actions taken. Should circumstances warrant it, we will re-examine the situation and take prompt action.

We have also concluded that Taiwan presents a low migration risk and we will be lifting the visitor visa requirement for Taiwan passport holders coming to the UK for less than six months, and who are not seeking to work. This will take effect from 3 March.

We have decided to introduce new visa requirements for Bolivia, Lesotho, South Africa, Swaziland and Venezuela. This means that short-term visitors from these countries will need to apply for a six-month visa and provide their fingerprints, before travelling to the UK. Nationals of these countries seeking to travel via the UK en route to another country will also need a transit visa. This is in addition to the existing requirement for a visa in order to live, work, study or marry in the UK.

In the case of South Africa, we will introduce the visa requirement in two stages. The first stage, beginning on 3 March, will require only first time visitors to the UK from South Africa to obtain a visa. Those who can show a satisfactory previous travel history to the UK will initially be exempt from the visa requirement. This exemption must be evidenced by a UK entry stamp in their current passport. We will introduce the full visa regime by the middle of 2009.

In the case of Venezuela we will require visas from their nationals but we will waive this requirement for all those travelling on biometric, machine readable passports. This is because our main concern related to the ease with which old-style Venezuelan passports could be forged or fraudulently obtained. Our assessment is that their new-style passports are secure and that the new visa requirement is proportionate to the remaining risk posed by the old-style passports.

We will announce implementation dates for the full visa regime for South Africa, and the visa regimes for Bolivia, Lesotho, Swaziland and Venezuela, in due course. Implementation for all these countries will be by the middle of 2009. We will announce the final dates at least 21 days before imposition.

All the new visa regimes will be implemented to the high standard of the UK's current visa operations.

Separately to the Visa Waiver Test, we have also decided to introduce a transit visa requirement for nationals of Jamaica. In January 2003 a visa requirement was introduced for Jamaican nationals visiting the United Kingdom. It did not include a requirement to obtain a transit visa when passing through the UK to another destination. We have been monitoring the situation and have found evidence that some Jamaican nationals have attempted to exploit the visa-free transit concession to enter and remain in the UK illegally. The requirement for a transit visa will take effect from 3 March.

The Visa Waiver Test is ongoing. We will conduct a full review in due course to ensure that benefits are fully realised and costs understood. In the meantime we will continue to work with all these countries and regions to build on the excellent working relationships we have developed during the Visa Waiver Test process to make sure we effectively secure the UK border.

TRANSPORT

Community Transport

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Paul Clark): The Government are today publishing their response to the consultation on draft regulations to support the community transport provisions in the Local Transport Act 2008. Those provisions will allow greater flexibility over vehicle size, and over the payment of drivers of community buses, and also make provision for the future issue of time-limited community transport permits.

The Government consulted last year on these draft regulations, and intend to finalise them in time to bring them into force from 6 April 2009. The regulations would apply to England, Scotland and Wales.

Copies of the consultation report will be available on the Department for Transport's website at: www.dft.gov.uk/localtransportact and are available in the Library of the House.

Voluntary Partnership Agreements

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Paul Clark): The Local Transport Act 2008 contains provisions relating to voluntary partnership agreements (VPAs) between local transport authorities and bus operators, and certain other agreements in the bus market. These provisions come into force in England on 9 February 2009.

To support authorities and operators looking to make use of these provisions, the Department for Transport is today publishing guidance following consultation on a draft version last year. The guidance will be published on the Department's website (www.dft.gov.uk/localtransportact), and copies are available in the Libraries of both Houses.

WALES

National Assembly for Wales (Legislative Competence) (Welsh Language) Order 2009

The Secretary of State for Wales (Mr. Paul Murphy): I am pleased to inform the House that the proposed National Assembly for Wales (Legislative Competence) (Welsh Language) Order 2009 has been laid today, as Command Paper (Cm 7544). Copies of this can be found in the Vote Office and will be placed in the Library from 12 noon. I have written to the Welsh Affairs Committee and to the House of Lords Constitutional Committee to request they undertake pre-legislative scrutiny.

ECOFIN

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The Economic and Financial Affairs Council will be held in Brussels on 10 February 2009. The following items are on the agenda:

Preparation of the meeting of the European Council

(a) European economic recovery plan

Ministers will hold a debate on the current state of implementation of the European economic recovery plan (EERP), including a first horizontal evaluation report from the European Commission. The Government are a firm supporter of the timely, targeted and temporary measures taken at national level under the framework of the EERP to stimulate growth in the EU.

ECOFIN will also exchange views on the financial aspects of the Commission's proposals for energy and broadband projects to be funded through the EU budget. The Government will continue to scrutinise the Commission's proposals in detail.

(b) Key Issues Paper

ECOFIN will have an orientation debate on its main contribution to the spring 2009 European Council—the key issues paper on economic and financial issues. The paper itself will be agreed in March before the European Council, and the presidency has provided a proposed outline. The Government support the outline, which emphasises the challenges in 2009, and the remaining need for action to stabilise financial markets and facilitate a speedy economic recovery.

(c) Reduced rates of VAT

Following discussions in January, the presidency will seek political views from member states on the way forwards to a possible compromise on reduced rates of VAT by the spring. The Government believe that member states should be allowed the flexibility to apply reduced rates of VAT where they do not materially affect the functioning of the single market.

General budget of the EU: Discharge procedure in respect of the implementation of the budget for 2007

ECOFIN is expected to approve the recommendation to the European Parliament on the discharge to be given to the Commission for the implementation of the 2007 general budget. The UK welcomes the references within the recommendation relating to the key role of member states in improving financial management and accountability of EU funds under shared management.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Business Rates

The Minister for Local Government (John Healey): Today I am confirming the legislative steps we are taking to implement the Chancellor's announcement in the pre-Budget report (PBR) that we would enable port occupiers, and any other businesses similarly affected by significant and unexpected backdated liability for business rates, to pay their backdated liability through staged payments over eight years and to relieve billing authorities of the duty to collect those liabilities in full in the current financial year. In addition to the PBR undertaking to allow the extended time to pay for previous years' costs, we are enabling any backdated liability arising in the current year's costs to be included in the scheduled payments.

To implement the schedule of payments policy in England, I am laying regulations before the House today, which are set to come into force on 9 March. The Welsh Assembly will be responsible for similar arrangements it intends in Wales.

The recent Valuation Office Agency's (VOA) review of the rating of ports and the subsequent separate entry for the first time of 569 properties within ports on the ratings list has highlighted the impact of such backdated liabilities that can arise as a consequence of rating properties that are newly identified by the Valuation Office Agency.

This is an established feature of the way the business rating system operates in order to ensure that all rateable property pays its fair amount of rates, with all business properties being treated equally. In the year 2007-08, some 777 new assessments, caused by some "splitting" of existing properties, were added to the list. This resulted in a potential 33 months or more backdated liability. Some 1,666 such new assessments, including many of the ports occupiers following the VOA ports review, were added to the list up to 31 October 2008. However, in the current economic conditions the Government are concerned about the impact of a significant backdated rates liability on the trading prospects of businesses. The new schedule of payments will therefore apply to all ratepayers occupying properties that meet the criteria in the regulations. Based on historical trends the Government estimate that up to 1,500 properties could benefit from a schedule of payments in the coming financial year.

The VOA has also put in place fast track arrangements to deal with any port-based firms who want to question or challenge their assessment following the ports review. Although there have been some problems with businesses not providing the full information required in their appeal request, valuation officers are talking to the businesses concerned to ensure these issues can be resolved as rapidly as possible. To date, the VOA reports that 78 formal appeals had been received under the fast-track procedure and five are fully resolved. In the remaining cases the VOA has made initial responses and in most instances is in further discussion with the ratepayers. As part of the commitment to bring cases to an early conclusion, all ratepayers who made a proposal before the end of November 2008, including those who did so before the fast-track procedure was introduced, have been contacted to establish whether they require early reference of their appeal to the independent valuation tribunal.

Finally, while any payments between port occupiers and operators are contractual matters between the parties, I—along with the Under-Secretary of State for Transport, my hon. Friend the Member for Poplar and Canning Town (Jim Fitzpatrick), the Minister responsible for ports—will be meeting this month with the port operators to encourage further discussion between the two parties, as it must be in the interests of port operators to ensure their facilities are put to economic use and to work together with their tenants. Otherwise they may be faced with the prospect of empty premises, no fee income from tenants and an eventual liability for empty rates on that property.

To conclude, the Government understand that in the current economic climate, it could be harder for businesses that are faced with significant unexpected backdated rates bills to discharge their liabilities. Therefore to reduce the cash flow impact on businesses given the current economic difficulties, the Government will allow businesses faced with certain unexpected backdated rates bills up to eight years to pay the amounts due.

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury and I have today written to the Treasury Select Committee and Communities and Local Government Select Committee to update them with fuller details of the steps we are taking, and I am placing a copy of this letter in the Library of the House. I am today writing to the leaders of all billing authorities with ports in England confirming the legislation and the arrangements they should now offer to eligible firms in their area. Chief finance officers will receive a detailed business rates information letter with details of the changes. Departmental officials are also writing today directly to the occupiers of the properties affected by the ratings review of ports, to ensure they are aware of the availability of the schedule of payments.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Marine Management Organisation

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Huw Irranca-Davies): The Marine Management Organisation (MMO) will become the UK Government's marine delivery body, subject to the passage of the Marine and Coastal Access Bill.

In line with the Marine and Coastal Access Bill, it is proposed the MMO will set the standard in the UK and internationally for strategy and planning in the marine and coastal environment, so delivering the Government's commitment to introduce a new framework for the sea that meets conservation, energy and resource needs.

I will make an announcement regarding the location of the Marine Management Organisation before the House rises for the recess.

Relevant supporting information will also be placed in the Library of the House.

JUSTICE

Legal Aid (Prisoners)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Mr. Shahid Malik): My noble Friend (Lord Bach) the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State has made the following written ministerial statement:

> The Legal Services Commission (LSC) has today published a consultation on the provision of prison law services funded by legal aid in England and Wales. Prison law services enable prisoners to receive advice on legal issues arising from their treatment or discipline in prison, and also advice or representation in connection with parole proceedings. Expenditure on prison law work has increased from £1 million in 2001-02 to approximately £19 million in 2007-08, and is expected to increase further in future years. The proposed reforms aim to ensure a sustainable future for prison law services by addressing rising costs and targeting resources on the most appropriate cases. The consultation paper proposes additional controls on the volume of cases that will be funded, strengthened eligibility criteria, new quality measures and a revised payment structure for solicitors. It also describes longer-term plans to develop alternative means of purchasing and delivering these services.
> The 12-week consultation closes on 5 May 2009. Copies of "Prison Law Funding: a Consultation Paper" have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The document can be downloaded from the consultation section of the LSC's website at: www.legalservices.gov.uk.

PRIME MINISTER

Machinery of Government

The Prime Minister (Mr. Gordon Brown): Last October, I announced a series of changes to ministerial responsibilities. I have today placed in the Libraries of both Houses a paper providing more detail on the allocation of responsibilities between the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, the Department of Energy and Climate Change, and the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

DEFENCE

Defence Planning Assumptions

The Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. John Hutton): The Ministry of Defence routinely reviews the planning assumptions which guide the development of capability over the medium to longer-term. In the absence of a direct military threat, these assumptions set out in broad terms the types of operation which the armed forces should be capable of undertaking. The assumptions are not intended either to constrain or precisely describe the actual pattern of operational commitments at any point in time. But regular review is required to ensure there is a relationship between the planning assumptions and the developments in the strategic context.

Previous defence planning assumptions were published in the supporting essays to the 2003 White Paper—"Delivering Security in a Changing World". The Department has now completed the most recent review and is publishing the outcome.

On the military tasks that the armed forces might be asked to undertake, we have decided to:

eliminate the specific military task—"Military Aid to the Civil Power In Northern Ireland" to reflect the continuing normalisation in Northern Ireland;

merge the military tasks—"Integrity of UK Waters" and "Integrity of UK Airspace" as "Integrity of the UK" to reflect the requirement for an integrated approach;

rename and disaggregate the military task—"Defence Diplomacy" to "Security Co-operation: Support to Current and Future Operations" which reflects the requirement to maintain international support for operations, ranging from basing to contributions, and "Security Co-operation: Strengthen International Peace and Stability and Support Wider British Interests" which covers the promotion of UK interests including conflict prevention, counter proliferation and support to other Government Departments; add a new military task—"Military Assistance to Stabilisation and Development" to reflect our recent operational experience.

We will continue to group the military tasks under four generic headings. The consolidated military tasks (MTs) are therefore:

Standing Strategic Tasks

MT 1.1—Strategic Intelligence

MT1.2—Nuclear Deterrence

MT 1.3—Hydrographic, Geographic and Meteorological Services

Standing Home Commitments

MT 2.1—Military Aid to the Civil Authorities (MACA)

MT 2.2—Integrity of the UK

MT 2.3—Public Duties and VIP Transport

Standing Overseas Commitments

MT3.1—Defence and Security of the Overseas Territories

MT 3.2—Defence and Security of the Cyprus Sovereign Base Areas (SBAs)

MT 3.3—Security Co-operation: Support to Current and Future Contingent Operations

MT 3.4—Security Co-operation: Strengthen International Peace and Stability and Support Wider British Interests

Contingent Operations Overseas

MT 4.1—Humanitarian Assistance and Disaster Relief

MT'4.2—Evacuation of British Citizens Overseas

MT4.3—Peacekeeping

MT 4.4—Peace Enforcement

MT 4.5—Military Assistance to Stabilisation and Development

MT 4.6—Power Projection

MT4.7—Focused Intervention

MT 4.8—Deliberate Intervention

We have decided to rename the Strategic Planning Effects as Strategic Outcomes and Strategic Enablers, and have decided to:

delete the effect Contain;

add a new outcome: Reassurance; and three new enablers: Insight; Resilience; and Coalition Influence.

The consolidated list is therefore:

Strategic Planning Outcomes

Prevention—the stopping or limiting of the occurrence, escalation or resumption of a crisis or conflict.

Reassurance—action to protect our own cohesion and that of allied and neutral states.

Stabilisation—the creation and maintenance of the security conditions required to allow all levers of power to address the underlying causes of conflict.

Deterrence—the convincing of a potential aggressor that the consequences of coercion or armed conflict would outweigh the potential gains.

Defeat—the reduction of the military effectiveness of an adversary so that he is no longer able to achieve his aims or prevent us from achieving ours.

Coercion—the use of force, or threat of force, to persuade an opponent to adopt a certain pattern of behaviour of our choosing and against his wishes.

Disruption—the degradation of specific elements of an adversary's capability in order to limit his freedom of action.

Destruction—the damaging of an adversary's organisation, capability or equipment to such an extent that they are no longer militarily viable.

Strategic Planning Enablers

Insight—an understanding of a state or region's diplomatic, economic and military dynamics in order to enhance the ability to identify the causes and likelihood of impending crisis.

Resilience—the ability at every level to detect, prevent and if necessary to handle and recover from disruptive challenges.

Coalition Influence—the ability to affect the aims and objectives of a coalition force.

On concurrency and scales of effort, we have decided broadly to maintain the concurrency assumptions as set out in 2003 as follows:

That routinely and without creating overstretch we should be able to mount an enduring medium scale military assistance to stabilisation and development or peacekeeping operation simultaneously with an enduring small scale peacekeeping or power projection operation and; a small scale power projection, peace enforcement or focused intervention.

That we should seek to avoid committing to two concurrent UK medium scale operations. However, there will be occasions when it will not be possible to draw down an enduring medium scale commitment prior to a second operation at medium scale. Therefore, that we should, accepting that it will place greater stress on our current force structure and cause harmony guidelines to be exceeded for many force elements, be able to reconfigure our forces rapidly to carry out:

> an enduring medium scale peacekeeping or military assistance to stabilisation and development or peacekeeping operation; > an enduring small scale peacekeeping or power projection operation simultaneously with; > a limited duration medium scale power projection, peace enforcement or focused intervention operation.

That given time to prepare, we should be capable of undertaking:

> a demanding one-off large scale intervention operation while still maintaining a commitment to a simple enduring small scale peacekeeping operation.
> That, additionally, we must take account of the need to meet standing commitments, for example; quick reaction alert aircraft for the integrity of the UK Airspace, and contingent forces.

We have been operating above our planning assumptions for scale of effort and concurrency since 2003, but we do not believe that this is a level of commitment which is desirable for our armed forces to sustain for an indefinite period. It is our objective to reduce our current level of operational deployments over the next year or so.

The Department is now taking forward the implications of these changes to our planning assumptions.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs (Mr. Pat McFadden): Subject to Parliamentary approval of the necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Postal Services Commission DEL will be increased by £1,000 from £152,000 to £153,000 and the administration budget will be increased by £1,000 from £2,000 to £3,000. The impact on resource DEL is set out in the following table. There is no impact on capital DEL.

		New DEL
	Change	Voted	Non-voted	Total
Resource DEL	1	3	0	3
Of which: *	1	3	0	3
Administration budget	1	-537	0	-537
Near-cash in RDEL
Capital DEL	0	150	0	150
Depreciation	0	-530	0	-530
Total	1	-377	0	-377

*The total of the 'Administration Budget' and 'Near-cash in Resource DEL' figures may well be greater than total resource DEL, due to the definitions overlapping

Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.

Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The change in resource DEL is as a result of additional administration expenditure relating to research into the social value of the Post Office (£100,000) offset by increased appropriations-in-aid income from the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR).

There is a token £1,000 increase in the resource DEL and the administration budget.

The Minister for Trade, Development and Consumer Affairs (Mr. Gareth Thomas): My nobel Friend Lord Davies of Abersoch, the Minister of State for Trade and Investment has made the following statement:

Subject to parliamentary approval of any necessary supplementary estimate, UKTI's total DEL will be decreased by £199,000 from £91,506,000 to £91,307,000. This reflects the net transfer of £200,000 in Voted capital from UKTI's Vote to BERR's Vote. Within the total DEL change, the impact on resources and capital is set out in the following table:

	Change		New DEL		£'000
	Voted	Non-voted	Voted	Non-voted	Total
Resources DEL	1	-	91,506	-	91,506

Less Depreciation[2]	-	-	-166	-	-166
Total DEL	-199	-	91,388	-	91,388

[1] Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.

[2] Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from total DEL since Capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

UKTI's vote does not include Administration provision, which is included in the Estimates of our parent departments, BERR and FCO.

The change in the resource element of DEL arises from:

A token increase of £1,000 to allow an increase in appropriations-in-aid to be included in the estimate.

The change in the capital element of DEL arises from:

A transfer of capital underspend of £200,000 to BERR to fund capital works to UKTI accommodation.

TREASURY

Pensions Uprating

The Chief Secretary to the Treasury (Yvette Cooper): Legislation governing public service pensions requires them to be increased annually by the same percentage as additional pensions (State Earnings Related Pension and State Second Pension). Public service pensions will therefore be increased from 6 April 2009 in line with the annual increase in the Retail Prices Index up to September 2008, except for those public service pensions which have been in payment for less than a year, which will receive a pro-rata increase.

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury (Angela Eagle): Subject to Parliamentary approval of the spring supplementary estimate, HM Treasury's resource DEL will be increased by £73,000 from £221,551,000 to £221,624,000 and the Administration budget will be increased by £118,000 from £169,425,000 to £169,543,000 with no net change in the capital DEL. The impact on resources and the administration budget is set out in the following table:

	Change		New DEL
	Voted	Non- voted	Voted	Non-voted	Total
Resource of which:	6,386,000	-6,313,000	201,032,000	20,592,000	221,624,000

Total	7,086,000	-7,013,000	197,342,000	22,113,000	219,455,000

*The total of 'Administration budget' and 'Near cash in Resource DEL' figures may well be greater than total Resource DEL, due to definitions overlapping.

 Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.

 Depreciation, which forms part of Resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since Capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The net increase in resource DEL of £73,000 is the net effect of the following:

A transfer to the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills of £17,000 administration costs as a contribution towards the costs of the Skills Strategy.

Transfers from the Departments of Health and Culture, Media and Sport of £45,000 near cash administration costs each to the Office of Government Commerce towards the costs of the Centre of Expertise in Sustainable Procurement.

The net increase in the administration costs budget is £118,000 comprising the administration costs changes mentioned in the preceding paragraphs, plus the reclassification of a programme costs transfer from the UK Statistics Authority received in the winter Supplementary Estimates round to administration costs of £45,000.

There is a reduction in non-voted Resource DEL due to the draw down of Departmental Unallocated Provision (DUP) comprising £4,313,000 administration costs and £2,000,000 programme costs to offset increased voted spending. There is also a reduction in non-voted capital DEL due to the draw down of DUP of £700,000.

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ian Pearson): Subject to Parliamentary approval of any necessary Supplementary Estimate, National Savings and Investments DEL will be increased by £18,900,000 to £183,547,000. Within DEL change, the impact on resources and capital are set out in the following table:

	Change		New Del
	Voted	Non-voted	Voted	Non-Voted	Total
Resource Del:	18,900	—	185,199	—	185,199

Total	18,900		183,547	—	183,547

* Depreciation which forms part of resource DEL is excluded from the total DEL since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The change in the resource element of DEL arises from:

A drawdown of £ 6,900,000 from the Modernisation Fund for the upgrade of NS&I's core IT infrastructure.

The take up of DEL End Year Flexibility (EYF) of £12,000,000—near cash— to cover payments related to increased sales volumes.

The change in the administration budget arises from the Modernisation Fund draw down.

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Stephen Timms): Subject to parliamentary approval of the Supplementary Estimate, the HM Revenue & Customs total DEL will be increased by £75,248,000 from £4,539,797,000 to £4,615,045,000. Within the total DEL change, the impact on resources and capital are as set out in the following table:

2Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.

3 Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The change in the resource element of DEL arises from:

Modernisation Fund drawdown of £62,500,000 administration near cash costs to modernise and transform HMRC;

Near cash administration costs transfer of £252,000, to the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills to fund the Skills Strategy for Government.

The change in the administration budget arises from the changes detailed in the resource element above.

The change in the capital element of DEL arises from:

Capital take up from the Modernisation Fund of £13,000,000 for various programmes supporting the modernisation of the Department.

Take up of Departmental Unallocated Provision of £3,648,000 to facilitate improvements to key operational activities—this is DEL neutral.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): Subject to Parliamentary approval of any necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Department for Children, Schools and Families Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL) will be increased by £41,975,000 from £52,722,327,000 to £52,764,302,000; the administration cost budget will be increased by £2,033,000 from £187,536,000 to £189,569,000. The Office for Standards in Education, Children's Services and Skills (OFSTED) which has a separate Estimate and DEL, will be increased by £32,200,000 from £181,216,000 to £213,416,000 the administration cost budget will remain as £28,721,000.

Within the DEL change, the impact on resources and capital are as set out in the following table:

Resource DEL

The increase in the resource element of the DEL of £43,438,000 arises from an increase in the voted element of the resource DEL of £22,855,000 and an increase of £20,583,000 in the non-voted element of resource DEL mainly in the Department's Non-Departmental Public Bodies.

Voted Resource DEL

The £22,855,000 increase in the voted element of the resource DEL arises from:

RFR1

A take up of End Year Flexibility of £1,950,000 for Administration costs.

A movement of £14,000,000 from non-voted Young Peoples provision to voted Young Peoples provision

A movement of £2,988,000 from non-voted provision to support children and families.

A movement of £8,600,000 from non-voted unallocated provision to Support Further Education, Adult and Lifelong Learning.

A movement of £12,674,000 from RfR2 in respect of Early Years Foundation and National Strategy.

A transfer from Department for Work and Pensions of £132,000 for Joint Birth Registration.

A transfer from the Department of Health of £4,000,000 for Substance Misuse.

A transfer from Department for Work and Pensions of £280,000 for Child Protection.

A transfer to the Department of Innovation, Universities and Skills of £450,000 for Procurement.

A transfer to the Department of Health of £175,000 for Child Migrant Trust.

A transfer to the Office for Standards in Education, Children's Services and Skills of £800,000 for inspection of the early year's foundation stage.

A decrease of £49,000 from Respect administration that reduces DEL.

A movement of £72,581,000 to non-voted resource DEL to support the Department's Non-Departmental Public Bodies.

RFR2

A transfer of End Year Flexibility of £59,175,000 to fund Sure Start local authority grants.

A transfer from Department for Work and Pensions of £862,000 for Child Poverty programmes.

A movement to RfR1 to support Early Years Foundation and National Strategy of £9,786,000.

A movement to RfR1 to support Early Years Foundation and Children's projects of £168,000.

A movement to RfR1 to support Early Years Foundation of £2,720,000.

A movement of £6,400,000 from Non-voted to Sure Start central government grants.

A movement of £1,771,000 to Sure Start Schools.

A movement of £3,091,000 to support the Department's Non Departmental Public Bodies.

The £20,583,000 increase in Non-voted resource DEL arises from:

A movement of £72,581,000 from voted resource to support the Department's Non-Departmental Public Bodies.

A movement of £25,588,000 from non-voted unallocated provision to voted.

A transfer to the Department of Innovation, Universities and Skills from non-voted unallocated provision of £6,530,000 for UKCES QCA funding.

Children and Young People's Health

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): Today my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health and I are announcing the publication of "Healthy lives, brighter futures: The strategy for children and young people's health".

A healthy start in life is at the heart of a happy childhood and the ability of every young person to achieve their potential and grow up well prepared for the challenges of adolescence and adulthood.

Children and young people are healthier than ever before, but we now have the opportunity to go further. We need to do more to achieve world-class health outcomes and minimise health inequalities, offering services of the highest quality and an excellent experience for the young people and their families who use them.

We know that we must do more to provide mothers and fathers with the support they need to give their children the best start and to help young people to make healthy choices as they grow up and take more responsibility for themselves.

Our two departments have come together to produce this long-term strategy to improve health outcomes for all children and young people from pre-birth to 19. It is a direct response to the views and concerns of young people, parents and professionals working with children and families.

"Healthy lives, brighter futures" sets out how we will work in partnership with local authorities and Primary Care Trusts and those working across children's health services to build the quality of support for families at key stages in their children's lives— during pregnancy and the early years of children's lives, for school-age children as well as young people. Our package of support for children and young people with acute and additional health needs is backed by a total of £770 million funding over three years to 2010-11, the largest ever investment in these services.

Investing in children's health from the early years through childhood and adolescence will benefit children, families, society and the NHS.

We have met many children, young people, parents and practitioners in the process of putting this strategy together Children and young people want easier access to health services to support their psychological as well as physical health. Parents and carers want better information about what services are available locally, with better links between the services that their children use. Frontline staff want help with providing excellent, integrated health and health care services for children and families.

Through "High Quality Care for All: NHS Next Stage Review Final Report" we set out how the NHS would meet the challenges of the 21st century. "Healthy lives, brighter futures" sets out how we will continue to deliver improvements in children's physical and psychological health, building on existing policies such as the "National Service Framework for Children, Young People and Maternity Services" and the Every Child Matters reforms.

The strategy builds on work already in train to improve the quality and consistency of services, support and opportunities that families and children can expect in their local area. Services already aim to promote healthy lifestyles, intervene early where health problems arise and deliver support tailored to families' needs: easily accessible support in pregnancy and early years of children's life through Sure Start Children's Centres and GP practices; helping children to take increasing personal responsibility for their health during their school years and young people to deal with the health challenges of adolescence; good access to urgent care; and specialist support for children with complex and long-term conditions, so that every child can reach their full potential.

Through the strategy we are making commitments to improve this existing support for children, young people and families:

> during pregnancy and the early years of life, more health visitors, and a strengthened role for Sure Start children's centres with each centre having access to a named health visitor; further expansion of the successful family nurse partnership programme for vulnerable first-time mothers; and the development and testing of a new antenatal and preparation for parenthood programme for mothers and fathers;
> for school-age children and their families, a core health programme, the development of a 'Healthy Child Programme' to set out what services should be available to parents, children and young people from 5 to 19 with schools supporting pupils' health and wellbeing, and pilots to test the impact of extending free school meals to a greater number of pupils; and > for young people, more opportunities for sport, access to health services that are young-people friendly, and a new campaign to increase young people's knowledge of effective contraceptive methods, backed by increased investment of around £27 million a year from 2008-09 for contraceptive services in a range of settings.

The strategy emphasises the need to ensure that high quality, timely and accessible support is available for children and young people with acute or additional health needs and their families. We are making new commitments to strengthen that support:

> confirmation of £340 million in NHS allocations over three years to improve the experience of disabled children and their families through better access to short breaks, community equipment and wheelchair services, including £30 million for palliative care and end-of-life care, in addition to the £340 million revenue funding already announced by DCSF for the Aiming High for Disabled Children programme and the £90 million capital funding announced in the "Children's Plan"; and > we will test innovative approaches to the provision of community equipment and make sure that by 2010 all children with complex health needs have individual care plans to support co-ordinated care.

Improving children's health from birth to 19 is an ambitious agenda. In order to drive change in every area, we know that we need stronger joint leadership to plan, commission and monitor the delivery of excellent services. The strategy sets out how we will help those on the frontline make a reality of this vision.

The strategy sets out a clear expectation that Children's Trust partners are to provide children and families with accessible and comprehensive information about the services, advice and support available locally. New commitments to support local provision include action to:

> promote stronger joint leadership and local accountability arrangements, with statutory Children's Trust Boards to include GP members as well as Primary Care Trusts; > ensure all organisations with responsibility for child health and wellbeing are fulfilling their statutory responsibilities for safeguarding children; develop the child health workforce, with a particular early focus on health visitors; deliver a support programme for local authorities and PCTs to commission child health services; strengthen the information available to help plan, monitor and improve services; and give a stronger voice for children and young people in assessments of healthcare organisations, and robust arrangements to promote and ensure the quality of health services.

With schools, GP practices, hospitals, Sure Start children's centres, the voluntary sector and Government all playing their part in support of families, we can ensure that every child has a healthy start in life and a brighter future. Working together, we can continue to work towards our goal to make this the best place in the world to grow up.

Copies of "Healthy lives brighter futures: The strategy for children and young people's health" and the accompanying guidance on joint commissioning will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Hazel Blears): Subject to Parliamentary approval of any necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Department for Communities and Local Government's Departmental Expenditure Limits for 2008-09 will change as follows:

The Department for Communities and Local Government's Main Programmes DEL will be increased by £162,288,000 from £11,499,316,000 to £11,661,604,000 and the administration budget will also be increased by £1,240,000 from £289,689,000 to £290,929,000. Within the DEL change, the impact on resources and capital are as set out in the following table:

	Change		NEW DEL

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Charles Darwin

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Andy Burnham): Today is Charles Darwin's 200th Birthday and the beginning of a year long programme of events to celebrate his life and work which culminates on 24 November, the 150th Anniversary of the publication of his seminal book "On the Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection".

Charles Darwin is one of the most influential Britons of all time and perhaps the most important natural historian of all. His theory that all species of life have evolved over time from one or a few common ancestors through the process of natural selection has framed and shaped current scientific thinking and dramatically influenced the society we live in today. At a time of unprecedented environmental change, it continues to inform our understanding of the future challenges for humans and the natural world.

Darwin's importance to the world is such that Darwin's home and workplace, Darwin's Landscape Laboratory, has been chosen as the UK's 2009 nomination to become a World Heritage Site.

A wide range of organisations across England, Wales and Scotland have collaborated under the brand name Darwin200, to produce a national programme of events to celebrate the legacy and enduring relevance of Charles Darwin's work. The partnership includes a number of organisations from across the arts, education, heritage, local government, libraries, media, museums, science, and tourism sectors such as the Natural History Museum, the BBC, the British Council, Research Councils UK, the University of Cambridge, and The Royal Society.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport, the Department for Children, Schools and Families, the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills, and the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs have been working together to support the Darwin celebrations.

There will be Darwin-related events in all parts of the country. The involvement of members from all sides of the House will help to raise the profile of Darwin200 and give added momentum to the work that so many of our national and regional organisations are involved in.

More about events celebrating Darwin's life and work can be found at www.Darwin200.org

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Andy Burnham): Subject to Parliamentary approval, the Department for Culture Media and Sport's Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL) will be increased by £52,635,000 from £2,552,209,000 to £2,604,844,000 and the administration cost limit will increase by £6,281,000 from £49,258,000 to £55,539,000. Within the DEL change, the impact on resource and capital are set out in the following table:

	Change		New	DEL	£'000

[1] The total of Administration budget'and 'Near-cash in Resource DEL'figures may well be greater than total resource DEL, due to the definitions overlapping.

[2] Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.

[3] Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from total DEL since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The change in the resource element of the DEL arises from:

Take up of £30,100,000 End Year flexibility comprising: (£20,000,000) UK Sports; (£3,000,000) Central Sports Support; (£2,000,000) Visit Britain; (£1,200,000) Museums, Libraries and Archives Commission; (£900,000) for the Regional Cultural Consortiums; and (£3,000,000) Administration budget.

Transfers from other Government Departments of: £2,000,000 from Department for Work and Pensions for Free Swimming; £1,650,000 from Department for International Development to UK Sport for International Inspirations; and £332,000 from Cabinet Office to cover baseline costs of the Parliamentary Counsel.

Transfers to other Government Departments of: £45,000 to the Office of Government Commerce (OGC) for the Centre for Expertise in Sustainable Procurement and £2,000 to the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) for the Government Skills Strategy programme.

Partially offset by a transfer from non-cash Resource DEL to Capital DEL of £20,000,000.

The administration cost limit has increased by £6,281,000 from £49,258,000 to £55,539,000. This is as a result of a transfer from Cabinet Office of £332,000, a transfer to the OGC of £45,000 and a transfer to DIUS of £2,000 all detailed above; take up of £3,000,000 Administration End Year Flexibility and agreed net transfers of £2,996,000 from programme to administration costs, the latter to assist with the costs of the Government Olympic Executive.

The changes in the Capital element of the DEL arise from: Take-up of £18,600,000 End Year Flexibility for the Museums and Galleries; a transfer from non-cash Resource DEL to Capital DEL of £20,000,000.

DEFENCE

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. John Hutton): Subject to Parliamentary approval of the necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Ministry of Defence Departmental Expenditure Limits (DEL) will be increased by £626,555,000 (Voted and Non Voted) from £37,510,083,000 to £38,136,638,000. to increase Grants in Aid funding for the Royal Naval Museum of £773,000; the Council of Reserve Forces and Cadet Association (CRFCA) of £3,000,000; and the RAF Museum of £400,000; by reducing Resource DEL current costs and increasing Non Budget Grants in Aid with no overall impact on resource; to increase operating Appropriations in Aid by £180,700,000 and Non Operating Appropriations in Aid by £25,879,000 to reflect current forecasts of outturn offset by corresponding changes to Resource and Capital spending with no overall effect on Resource or Capital DEL;

to revise sub-head provisions to reflect Resource and Capital revisions in allocations between Top Level Budget Holders to match required defence outputs, with no overall impact on DEL;

The changes to Resource DEL and Capital DEL will lead to an increased net cash requirement of £626,555,000.

Votes A Annual Estimate (2009-10)

The Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. John Hutton): The Ministry of Defence "Votes A Annual Estimate 2009-10", will be laid before the House on 12 February as HC117. This outlines the maximum numbers of personnel to be maintained for service in the armed forces during financial year 2009-10.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (Edward Miliband): Subject to Parliamentary approval of the New Estimate, the total Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL) budget for the Department of Energy and Climate Change will be £2,790,657,000 and the Administration budget will be £98,320,000.

*The total of 'Administration budget' and 'Near cash in Resource DEL' figures may well be greater than total Resource DEL, due to definitions overlapping.

 Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.

 Depreciation, which forms part of Resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since Capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The resource element of the DEL arises from:

i) A Machinery of Government transfer from the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform of a net negative £963,013,000 voted near-cash, £1,711,504,000 of non-voted near-cash, a net negative £2,980,000 voted non-cash and a net negative £47,752,000 of non-voted non-cash in respect of Supporting affordable, secure and sustainable energy and managing historic energy liabilities effectively and responsibly;

ii) A Machinery of Government transfer from the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs of £152,512,000 voted near-cash and £34,000,000 of non-voted near-cash in respect of bringing about a low-carbon Britain, Developing an international agreement on climate change and Promoting low carbon technologies in developing countries;

iii) a reduction in non-voted expenditure of £27,000,000 and a reduction in voted income of £28,932,000 relating to reclassification of entities within the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority;

iv) an increase in non-voted expenditure of £296,782,000 and an increase in voted income of £296,782,000 due to updated income and expenditure forecasts for the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority;

v) a Reserve claim of £54,100,000 non-cash in respect of an increase in provision for the Concessionary Fuel Scheme;

vi) utilisation of End Year Flexibility of £50,300,000 non-cash in respect of an increase in provision for the Concessionary Fuel Scheme;

vii) a transfer of £80,000 from the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform in respect of compensation for mesothelioma sufferers; and viii) an increase in voted near-cash expenditure and a decrease in non-voted near-cash expenditure of £34,000,000 with respect to take up of Departmental Unallocated Provision for the Warm Front programme.

Also within the resource DEL, the Administration budget arises from:

ix) A Machinery of Government transfer from the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform of £52,471,000 near-cash and £3,000 of non-cash in respect of Professional support and infrastructure; and

i) a Machinery of Government transfer from the Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs of £42,485,000 near-cash and £3,361,000 of non-cash in respect of Professional support and infrastructure.

The change in the Capital element of the DEL arises from:

i) A Machinery of Government transfer from the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform of a net negative £7,582,000 voted and £1,248,183,000 non-voted in respect of Supporting affordable, secure and sustainable energy and managing historic energy liabilities effectively and responsibly;

ii) A Machinery of Government transfer from the Department for Environment Food and Rural Affairs of £402,030,000 voted and £16,000,000 non-voted in respect of bringing about a low-carbon Britain. Developing an international agreement on climate change and Promoting low carbon technologies in developing countries;

iii) A 2008 Pre Budget Report award of £50,000,000 in respect of bringing about a low-carbon Britain;

iv) a reduction in voted income of £52,782,000 and a reduction in non-voted expenditure of £52,782,000 due to updated income and expenditure forecasts for the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority; and

v) an increase in voted expenditure and a decrease in non-voted expenditure of £16,000,000 with respect to take up of Departmental Unallocated Provision for the Warm Front programme.

Home Energy Efficiency

The Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (Edward Miliband): Together with my right hon. Friends the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government and the Minister for Housing, I am today publishing three consultation documents, the "Heat and Energy Saving Strategy" (HESS), the "Carbon Emissions Reduction Target uplift" (CERT) and the "Community Energy Saving Programme" (CESP), which together make up a comprehensive package to save energy and reduce emissions from now through to 2020 and beyond and increase the UK's energy security.

The consultation on "Heat and Energy Saving Strategy" sets out the Government's long-term vision for dramatically improving the energy efficiency of our homes and businesses. If the UK is to achieve its targets on emissions reductions and renewable energy, we will have to move beyond conventional and easy to install energy efficiency measures and consider more radical ways of saving energy. We will also need to decarbonise the generation and supply of heat. By 2050, emissions from UK households need to be approaching zero if we are to meet our target to reduce greenhouse gas emissions by 80 per cent.. The Minister for Housing recently published a consultation setting out proposals on making new homes zero-carbon from 2016, and seeking views on the Government's ambition that non-domestic buildings should be zero-carbon from 2019. This strategy therefore concentrates on existing buildings. By 2020, our ambition is to have made available comprehensive whole house solutions to improve the energy performance of approximately 7 million homes. Building on this and by 2030, we aim to have made those measures available to all households.

In support of this, two consultations on increasing the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target by 20 per cent. and the Community Energy Saving Programme set out the Government's immediate plans for households. In particular, they include increasing the current roll-out of energy efficiency measures and a new programme to deliver whole house solutions to the most vulnerable households in deprived communities. The Carbon Emissions Reduction Target (CERT) is the Government's principal tool for delivering household energy and carbon savings. Under CERT, electricity and gas suppliers are required to meet challenging carbon-saving targets by encouraging households to take up energy efficiency measures. Suppliers are free to decide how to deliver their obligations, but typically will promote free and subsidised offers on key measures such as loft and cavity wall insulation and high-efficiency lights and appliances. They are obliged to meet at least 40 per cent. of their targets in a priority group qualifying, low-income households, including those aged over 70. The obligation applies in England, Scotland and Wales. By way of increasing the number of energy saving measures available to consumers and in response to high and rising energy prices, the Prime Minister, on 11 September 2008, proposed raising the CERT target by 20 per cent.. Making a significant contribution to the UK's environmental and social ambitions, increasing the level of CERT will mean a revised carbon target of 185 million tonnes lifetime $C0_2$ savings (from $154MtC0_2$) to be delivered by 31 March 2011. This means annual savings of 5:3 $MtC0_2$ (from 4.2 $MtC0_2$), equivalent to the annual $C0_2$ emissions from 940,000 homes. It is expected to drive increased energy supplier investment of some £576 million, taking total energy supplier CERT investment to some £3.2 billion.

The Community Energy Savings Programme (CESP) was also announced on 11 September 2008 by the Prime Minister, and aims to deliver holistic packages of carbon abatement measures to vulnerable households in low-income, deprived communities in Great Britain and offers an opportunity to pilot some of the approaches outlined in the "Heat and Energy Saving" consultation document. The key proposals will deliver substantial emissions reductions and permanent fuel bills savings for those in the targeted areas, and are:

A new obligation on energy suppliers and electricity generators to deliver an estimated £350 million of energy efficiency measures, and to ensure fairness to be targeted at the most vulnerable domestic consumers.

Ensuring targeted households, and hard to treat properties, receive the most effective and expensive actions like solid wall insulation.

Measures to be offered as a package to deliver whole house solutions, delivered in a house by house, street by street approach.

To deliver support through a community partnership where local authorities and community groups work with the electricity generators and energy suppliers to help identify the households in most need.

The proposals in these consultation documents will help us to tackle both the immediate difficulties people face in paying their energy bills and the longer-term issues we face in becoming more energy efficient and decarbonising our heat supply.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Marine Management Organisation Headquarters

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Huw Irranca-Davies): I wish to inform the House of the process and decision on the future location of the Marine Management Organisation (MMO) HQ, which will become the UK Government's marine delivery body, subject to the passage of the Marine and Coastal Access Bill.

In line with the Marine and Coastal Access Bill, it is proposed the MMO will set the standard in the UK and internationally for strategy and planning in the marine and coastal environment, so delivering the Government's commitment to introduce a new framework for the sea that balances conservation, energy and resource needs.

In June 2008, KPMG were appointed to help provide an independent assessment of the most suitable locations for the MMO headquarters, ensuring that the process was transparent and fair. The first part of the process was an evaluation against agreed business and quality of life criteria, based on assessing published information and wide stakeholder consultation, to reach a short list. Copies of the final KPMG report along with an explanatory narrative will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

In consultation with the Marine and Fisheries Agency (MFA), DEFRA Ministers and senior officials along with other key stakeholders, KPMG produced a shortlist of five locations, while retaining London as the benchmark. Lowestoft/Great Yarmouth was added in order to ensure good geographical spread and to ensure that full consideration was given to any business benefits potentially arising from location alongside a directly related part of the DEFRA marine network. This made a final shortlist of six locations, all with considerable merit and some with an excellent foundation of marine expertise: they comprised Plymouth, the East Riding of Yorkshire, Merseyside, Tyneside, Carrick and Lowestoft/Great Yarmouth, in addition to London.

DEFRA officials—accompanied by KPMG—visited all the shortlisted locations to help inform the decision. Each location also had the opportunity to put forward a case to be the home of the MMO to me through its Members of Parliament. I would like to thank parliamentary colleagues for their time and effort, and for the quality of their presentations.

All of the shortlisted locations made professional, well-presented submissions and I would also like to thank all those people and organisations involved for their efforts, enthusiasm and time. All of the shortlisted locations had much to offer as a home for the MMO HQ.

Having assessed all of this information carefully, together with further analysis on the cost of the move, the impact a relocation would have on current MFA business and staff, and DEFRA's wider corporate responsibilities, I am pleased to announce that Tyneside will be the new home of the MMO. Tyneside has a broad range and a good balance of marine interests including a working port, fisheries, a growing renewable energy sector, environmental and industrial sectors, and a strong and developing university sector in marine specialisms, all of which will complement very well the role of the MMO. Tyneside also provides strong transport links to key stakeholders in London, Brussels, Scotland and across the UK. In addition, the extensive evidence of partnership working in the area provides confidence that Tyneside will be able to help the MMO to fulfil its role under the Marine and Coastal Access Bill.

The House will also wish to know that whilst the North East has had some notable success in encouraging private sector investment in recent years, it has not benefited to the same extent as some other regions in the UK from the relocation of public sector organisations and employment following the Lyons Review.

As I indicated earlier, all of the shortlisted locations could have provided a good base for the MMO, and this is a tribute to the continuing strength of those locations, to the case made by their respective Members of Parliament, and to the professionalism of the teams who put their presentations together. There can however be only one MMO HQ, and in thanking all the other locations' teams, I am sure they will join me in offering Tyneside our congratulations and best wishes.

To ensure there is a smooth transition and to mitigate against any risks arising as a result of the relocation an MMO skeleton body is proposed from Autumn 2009. Subject to Royal Assent on the Bill, the expectation is that this will run in parallel with the MFA until midnight 31 March 2010 at which time the MMO will be operational.

The Marine Bill and further information about the Bill can be accessed at: http://defraweb/marine/legislation/index.htm

And further information on the MMO and its implementation on the MFA's website at: http://www.mfa.gov.uk/

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Huw Irranca-Davies): Subject to Parliamentary approval of any necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs DEL will be reduced by £656,314,000 from £3,746,278,000 to £3,089,964,000 and the Administration Budget will be reduced by £45,880,000 from £356,463,000 to £310,583,000. These movements in the DEL Budget are mainly due to the machinery of government transfer to the Department of Energy and Climate Change. That apart, the overall effect on DEFRA's DEL Budget is minimal with the forecast outturn anticipated to run close to allocated budget. Within the DEL change, the impact on resources and capital are as set out in the following table:

	Change		New DEL
	Voted	Non-voted	Voted	Non-voted	Total

Total	439,157	-217,157	4,213,808	-1,123,844	3,089,964

[1] Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The change in the resource element of the DEL arises from:

(i) a transfer of £45,846,000 administration spend from the climate change group located in the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) to the Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC);

(ii) a transfer of £34,000 administration spend to Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) for skills strategy;

(iii) a transfer of £152,512,000 programme spend from the Climate Change Group located in DEFRA to DECC

(iv) a transfer of £34,000,000 Non-voted Departmental Unallocated Provision (DUP) to the DECC;

(v) take up of End Year Flexibility for Investing in Communities Invest to Save Budget (ISB) of £56,000.

The change in the capital element of the DEL arises from:

(i) a transfer of £402,030,000 from the Climate Change Group located in DEFRA to DECC; (ii) a transfer of £16,000,000 Non-voted Departmental Unallocated Provision (DUP) to DECC.

The change in the depreciation budget is due to:

(i) £3,102,000 transferring to DECC for the machinery of government transfer;

(ii) a transfer of £12,050,000 non cash costs from Natural England to DEFRA across non-cash categories;

(iii) re-profiling of Forestry Commissions (FC) Budget of £3,000,000 across non-cash categories.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): Subject to Parliamentary approval of any necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL) will be increased by £128,154,000 from £2,080,557,000 to £2,208,711,000. The administration budget will be decreased by £18,000 from £430,535,000 to £430,517,000. Within the DEL change, the impact on resources and capital are as set out in the following table:

Binyam Mohamed

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): On 5 February I made an oral statement to the House on the case of Mr. Binyam Mohamed, following the judgment handed down in the High Court on 4 February. As I underlined in the debate that followed, we are working as fast and as hard as we can to secure Mr. Mohamed's release from Guantanamo Bay and return to the UK.

I now wish to update the House regarding progress made in Mr. Mohamed's case.

Senior Government officials, including Her Majesty's Ambassador to the United States, have held further talks with the US Administration in recent days. President Obama issued Executive Orders on 22 January which established a review of the cases of all those detained at Guantanamo Bay. Following our representations, the US Administration has now agreed that Mr. Mohamed's case should be treated as a priority in this process. We continue to work with the US to achieve a swift resolution.

We have long been concerned with reports of Mr. Mohamed's welfare and medical condition. Yesterday I met with Mr. Mohamed's US military defence counsel, Lt. Col. Yvonne Bradley, and her account underlined these concerns. The US Government has also agreed that Foreign Office officials should visit Mr. Mohamed as soon as possible. The visit will help us make preparations for his return, should the review confirm a decision to release him. The team will include a medical examiner, who would take part in any return, so that he may assess Mr. Mohamed's condition himself and report back.

I will keep the House informed on this issue.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Intercept as Evidence (Progress Report)

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Jacqui Smith): The Privy Council Review of intercept as evidence was published on 30 January 2008.

In his statement to the House of 6 February 2008 my Right Honourable Friend the Prime Minister affirmed his commitment to the principle of using intercept as evidence and the case for doing so provided that national security could also be protected. He also agreed that the programme of work recommended by the Report be taken forward, with the objective of legislation. At the same time, the Privy Council Review itself, acknowledged that before legislation could be brought forward, further extensive work was required.

I am pleased to be able to report on progress. I am also having placed in the House Libraries copies of a progress report to my Right Honourable Friend the Prime Minister on behalf of the Advisory Group of Privy counsellors, comprising the Right Honourable Sir John Chilcot, the Right Honourable Sir Alan Beith MP, the Right Honourable Michael Howard QC MP, and my noble Friend the Right Honourable Lord Archer of Sandwell. I should like to express my thanks to the Advisory Group for their diligent and constructive support for this programme of work. I should also like to echo their praise for the "commitment and thoroughness with which the interception community has sought to address the issues".

The Privy Council Review rightly recognised that interception is of vital importance to public protection and national security. It also recognised that the issues raised by the potential use of intercept product in evidence are complex. This has proved to be the case, as the Advisory Group's report makes clear. However, we have now reached the end of the programme's first phase, with work to design in detail the model recommended by the Privy Council Review, now largely complete. Work is now in hand to flesh out the detailed guidance required in advance of testing the practicalities of the model.

However, it is clear a number of key issues remain to be resolved if the objective of facilitating the prosecution of terrorist and other serious crime with the assistance of intercept as evidence is to be achieved. As the Advisory Group observes there is an intrinsic tension between meeting legal needs and the operational requirements identified by the Privy Council Review. It is also not yet clear whether the key safeguard of our being able to revert to the current regime should implementation fail would itself be legally sustainable.

The Government agrees with the Advisory Group that "securing the intended increase in successful prosecutions while ensuring fairness of trials remains difficult and may not prove possible in most complex cases". The Government agrees on the importance of a further stage of work being taken forward urgently to test the viability of the model developed.

The Government's intention remains to be in a position to bring forward legislation for use of intercept as evidence as soon as possible. However, it believes, given the importance of interception for national security, including the ability to prevent and disrupt serious crime and terrorism, that if the results indicate that there is no practical solution, they should be accepted. Equally, if it is necessary to take further time to iron out the detail of an apparently workable solution, we should do so rather than be driven by the legislative timetable.

Immigration and Nationality Services (Fees)

The Minister for Borders and Immigration (Mr. Phil Woolas): I am today laying regulations on fees for immigration and nationality services.

The Government review the fees on a regular basis and makes appropriate changes as necessary. We have continued with our strategic approach to charging: setting certain fees on the basis of the value of the service as well as cost recovery in a number of areas.

Some fees will continue to be set at or below levels that reflect the administrative costs of the service. These fees must be set out in regulations before both Houses of Parliament and are subject to the negative procedure. Other fees continue to be set at levels above the normal administrative costs of the service. This allows us to generate revenue which is used either to set certain fees below cost recovery or to deliver the Government's wider objectives such as the doubling of resource for enforcement announced in March 2007, and the fund to manage the transitional impacts of migration announced in July 2008. These fees must also be specified in regulations before both Houses, but are subject to the affirmative process.

Today I laid regulations setting the fees charged above cost recovery. I am announcing our proposals for all the immigration and nationality fees we intend to charge during 2009/10 in order that Parliament may consider these regulations in context. For transparency, I have included the estimated unit cost for each route, so that it is clear which fees are set at or below cost recovery and the degree to which certain other routes are not.

Finally, we have also proposed fees for several new processes and services we provided previously free of charge. These new services were specified in the Fees Order laid on the 21 January. The fees for these services will be set in negative regulations. Full details on how to apply for these services will be provided on our website, www.ukba.homeoffice.gov.uk.

A full table of fees for 2009-10 is set out at Annex A.

Student Loans Company Delivery Strategy

The Minister of State, Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (Mr. David Lammy): In July 2006, the then Education Minister, my hon. Friend the Member for Harlow (Bill Rammell) announced that the Student Loans Company (SLC) would become the national delivery organisation of a transformed student finance service which provides a higher quality of service, and is more convenient for the customer.

The SLC is undergoing a programme of change to equip itself for its new role. As part of this we asked the Company to prepare a Delivery Strategy which sets out how it would deliver the policy objectives of DIUS and the Devolved Administrations.

I received the final version of the Company's Delivery Strategy on 20 October 2008. It outlines what results the Company will deliver over the next three years, and the capacity and capability it will need to build, to ensure the effective delivery of the aspects of the student finance service for which it is now responsible. It also proposes the success measures that DIUS will use to hold the Company to account over its performance.

I am going to place the SLC Delivery Strategy in the Libraries of the House of Commons and the House of Lords.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Douglas Alexander): Subject to parliamentary approval of the necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Department for International Development's departmental expenditure limit (DEL) will be reduced by £29,787,000 from £5,736,451,000 to £5,706,664,000.

With the DEL change, the impact on resources and capital are as set out in the following table:

£917,000 transferred to the Ministry of Defence in respect of Stabilisation Aid Fund projects in Iraq.

£1,000,000 transferred to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in respect of a Police Reform project in Pakistan.

There is no net change in the 'Capital' element of DEL.

JUSTICE

Family Legal Aid Reform

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Mr. Shahid Malik): My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State, Lord Bach, has made the following Written ministerial statement.

"Between 18 June and 10 September 2008, the Ministry of Justice (MoJ) and the Legal Services commission (LSC) consulted on options for how payments made under the Family Graduated Fees Scheme, which governs payments to barristers for family legal aid work, could be reduced in order to live within budget, and to protect services to vulnerable clients. Our consultation was announced in a statement made by my noble Friend, Lord Hunt of Kings Heath, on 18 June, Official Report, column WS81.

Expenditure on legal aid barrister family advocacy has risen unsustainably from £74 million to nearly £100 million in the last five years—a rise of over 30 per cent. Over the same period, the number of cases has increased by only 11 per cent., so there has been a significant rise in average case costs in a short period. Payments to family barristers now form over 10 per cent. of the entire civil legal aid budget. Legal aid operates within a fixed budget and the department is obliged to take action to remain within that budget, or risk being forced to reduce vital services.

Following the close of our formal consultation in the autumn, we have continued to engage with interested parties to hear their views. We are grateful to respondents for their time. We have listened and changed many of our proposals, and accepted some of the suggestions made by consultees.

Today I am announcing a package of measures to restructure family barrister payments, reduce overall expenditure, and to refocus resources on high-priority clients. Given the significant priority afforded to public law children cases, these reductions will apply primarily to private family law work, such as child contact and residence disputes, and disputes over property. The Government is considering how we can increase the number of private law disputes which are resolved through mediation, because adversarial proceedings are not always in the interest of the parties. We will make the following changes to the Family Graduated Fee Scheme for barristers:

Abolish the "more than two parties". Special Issue Payment which provides a 40 per cent. increase to fees when claimed in public law cases. We received strong representations from interested parties that this element of the scheme did not represent a sufficiently 'special' issue to merit a fee increase, as there are more than two parties in the large majority of such cases.

Re-direct most of the funding spent on the "more than two parties" Special Issue Payment into increasing by £4.4 million p.a. the fees paid to barristers for hearings and conferences in child care or supervision proceedings. This will mean an increase in fees paid to lawyers in at least 3,500 of these cases each year.

In private law disputes concerning child contact or residence, reduce the Special Issue Payments claimable by barristers for conduct issues and additional experts from 50 per cent. to 30 per cent. and 20 per cent. respectively. Both of these payments are currently running at 150 per cent. of the level intended.

In private law disputes concerning financial settlement on divorce, abolish the most expensive Special Issue Payments claimable by barristers for issues concerning conduct, analysis of accounts, assets which are outside the control of the parties, and more than one expert. In addition, we intend to reduce the Special Issue Payments claimable for litigants in person or a relevant foreign element from 25 per cent. to 20 per cent. All of these payments are running at a level higher than that intended.

Introduce tighter procedures for barristers' claims for Special Preparation Fees, which was a suggestion made to us by interested parties. This is an area where fees are running at 800 per cent. of the level that anyone expected. Barristers will be required to submit to judges a detailed schedule of the hours spent in preparation so that these payments are only made where appropriate. We will also revise the claim forms so that the basis of any claim is clear.

We are not reducing expenditure in the Domestic Violence category.

Annual expenditure on family barristers' fees is now nearly £26 million per year higher than it was five years ago—an increase which far outstrips any increase in cases. These changes will help us to reduce net expenditure by £6.5 million per year, and to refocus resources on some of the most vulnerable families and children in society"

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): Subject to Parliamentary approval of any necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Ministry of Justice (MoJ), Northern Ireland Court Service (NICS) and The National Archives (TNA) Total Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL) will be increased as follows:

Total DEL for MoJ (RfR1, 2 and 3) is increased by £126,542,000 from £9,743,845,200 to £9,870,387,200 and the administration budget has increased by £195,000 from £461,841,000 to £462,036,000.

Total AME for MoJ (RfR1, 2 and 3) is increased by £455,000,000.

Total DEL for NICS is increased by £20,000,000 from £132,569,000 to £152,569,000 and the administration budget has decreased by £(1,000,000) from £(507,000) to £(1,507,000). This is due to an increase in administration income.

Total DEL for the TNA increased by £1,104,000 from £43,420,000 to £44,524,000 and the administration budget remains unchanged.

Within the Total DEL change for MoJ (RfR1, 2 and 3) the impact on resources and capital are as set out in the following table.

	Change		New DEL
	Voted	Non-voted	Voted	Non-voted	Total

[1] The total of "administration budget" and "near-cash in Resource DEL" figures may well be greater than total Resource DEL due to the definitions overlapping.

[2] Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.

[3] Depreciation, which forms part of Resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since Capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

(1) The change in the Resource and Capital DEL for MoJ arises from:

RfR1: To promote the development of a modern, fair, cost-effective and efficient system of justice for all.

Resource Change: Admin (total decrease of (£685,000))

Take up of End-Year Flexibility (EYF):

RfR2: Overseeing the effective operation of the devolution settlement in Scotland and representing the interests of Scotland in the UK Government.

Resource Change: Admin (total increase of £880,000)

Take up of End-Year Flexibility (EYF):

An increase of £771,000 in Resource DEL in respect of an EYF draw down relating to the Secretary of State for Scotland.

An increase of £109,000 in Resource DEL in respect of an EYF draw down relating to the Office of the Advocate General.

Resource Change: Programme (total increase of £420,000)

Other Increases:

An increase of £420,000 Resource DEL in respect of EYF draw down relating to the Parliamentary Boundary Commission for Scotland.

RfR3: To support the Secretary of State in discharging his role of representing Wales in the UK Government, representing the UK Government in Wales and ensuring the smooth running of the devolution settlement in Wales.

Total DEL for Wales has remained unchanged.

There is no change in the Capital DEL for RfR2 and RfR3

(2) The change in the Resource DEL for the Northern Ireland Court Service (NICS) arises from:

Within the Total DEL change for Northern Ireland Court Service, the impact on resources and capital are as set out in the following table:

	Change		New DEL
	Voted	Non-voted	Voted	Non-voted	Total

[1] The total of "administration budget" and "near-cash in Resource DEL" figures may well be greater than total Resource DEL due to the definitions overlapping.

[2] Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.

[3] Depreciation, which forms part of Resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since Capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

Resource Change: Admin (total decrease of £(1,000,000))

Other Decreases:

The change in the administration budget arises from a £1,000,000 increase in civil court fee income. This will be offset against additional related costs to dispose of civil court business. The appropriations in aid are classified as administrative income and so the additional fee income will reduce the administration cost limit by £1,000,000.

Resource Change: Programme (total increase of £21,000,000)

Take up of End-Year Flexibility (EYF):

Take up of EYF of £20,000,000 to cover an increased requirement in near-cash admin costs due to a projected shortfall by Northern Ireland Legal Services commission (NILSC) on legal aid expenditure. This is comprised of £9,316,000 near-cash, plus an agreed switch to near-cash of £847,000 non-cash and £9,837,000 capital.

Other Increases:

An increase in admin income as stated above has a subsequent impact of an increase of £1,000,000 in programme costs.

Transfer of £2,000,000 resources to finance increase in grant to the NILSC. In budgetary terms, the utilisation of savings on resource DEL (voted) are being used to cover an increase in resource DEL spending (non-voted) by the NILSC.

(3) The change in the Resource DEL for The National Archives arises from:

Within the Total DEL change for The National Archives (TNA), the impact on resources and capital are as set out in the following table:

[2] Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.

[3] Depreciation, which forms part of Resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since Capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

Resource Change: Programme (total increase of £1,104,000)

Other Increases:

An increase in Resource DEL of £1,104,000 in relation to a machinery of government change with a transfer of the Statutory Publications Office from the MoJ to TNA.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office (Kevin Brennan): Subject to parliamentary approval of any necessary Supplementary Estimate, the UK Statistics Authority's total departmental expenditure limit (DEL) will be increased by £200,000 from £216,865,000 to £217,065,000, and the programme budget will be increased by £200,000.

Within the DEL change, the impact on resources and capital is as set out in the following table.

	Change		New DEL

[2] Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.

[3] Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from the total DEL since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The change in the resource element of DEL arises from:

Public Expenditure Survey transfers from other Government Department in support of migration statistics.

The take up of departmental unallocated provision (DUP) of £6,000,000 in order to finance in-year pressures and to meet new priorities.

The change in the programme budget arises from transfer from other Government Department of £200,000 and the draw down of £6,000,000 of DUP.

The Minister for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Liam Byrne): Subject to parliamentary approval of the Spring Supplementary Estimate 2008-09, the Cabinet Office total Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL) will be increased by £50,980,000 from £357,896,000 to £408,876,000.

The impact on resources and capital is set out in the following table:

Summary of Changes in DEL

The change in the resource element of DEL, an increase of £48.675 million, comprises £37.195 million agreed claims on the Reserve, a £0.165 million take up of End Year Flexibility, £12.312 million transfers of budgetary cover from/to other Government Departments and £0.997 million transfers to Capital DEL.

The change in the capital element of DEL, an increase of £4.305 million, comprises a £3.308 million take up of End year Flexibility and £0.997 million transfers from Resource DEL.

Changes in Resource DEL (RDEL)

The changes which result in a net increase in Resource DEL (RDEL) of £48,675,000 are as follows:

Agreed Claims on the Reserve

A drawdown from the Reserve for v Matched Funding for the Office of the Third Sector to cover grant expenditure increases Resource DEL and Net Cash Requirement by £13,000,000.

A drawdown from the Reserve for the Invest to Save Budget (ISB) for the Office of the Third Sector to cover grant expenditure increases Resource DEL and Net Cash Requirement by £916,000.

A drawdown on the reserve for the Grassroots Grant programme increases Resource DEL and Net Cash Requirement by £23,279,000.

End year Flexibility

A take up of End Year Flexibility (EYF) for the Invest to Save Budget (ISB) for the Office of the Third Sector increases Resource DEL and Net Cash Requirement by £165,000.

Budget cover transfers outwards

Transfers to other Government Departments to cover the costs of the Office of the Parliamentary Counsel reduces Resource DEL and net Cash Requirement by £1,728,000.

Budget cover transfers inwards

A transfer from the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) to cover the costs of i Monitoring Security Co-ordination Centre (iMSCC) increases Resource DEL and Net Cash Requirement by £40,000.

A transfer from the Security and Intelligence Agencies to cover the costs of the SCOPE programme increases Non Cash Resource DEL by £14,000,000.

Transfers from Voted Resource to Capital DEL

A transfer from Voted Resource DEL to Capital DEL increases the Capital Budget by £947,000 and consists of the following: a £60,000 transfer from the House of Lords Appointments Commission Resource DEL to cover the costs of redeveloping the appointments database, a £750,000 transfer from the core Cabinet Office Resource DEL to enhance the computer system that supports the Civil Service Pensions and a £137,000 transfer from the core Cabinet Office Resource DEL to cover expenditure on projects implementing security measures.

Transfer from Non-Voted Resource to Capital DEL

The Commission for the Compact Limited, an executive NDPB, has arranged to transfer £50,000 of its Non-Voted Resource DEL to Capital DEL to cover expenditure on office equipment.

Changes in Capital DEL (CDEL)

The changes which result in a net increase in capital DEL (CDEL) of £4,305,000 are as follows:

End Year Flexibility

A take up of End Year Flexibility for the Government Security Zone to cover accounting adjustments on capital grants increases Capital DEL by £3,308,000; there is no corresponding increase in net Cash Requirement.

Transfers from Voted and Non-Voted Resource to Capital DEL

A transfer from Voted and Non-Voted Resource DEL to Capital DEL increases the Capital Budget by £997,000 as previously described in the section Changes in Resource DEL.

Spring Supplementary Estimate 2008-09: Charity Commission

The Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office (Kevin Brennan): Plans to change the Charity Commission's Departmental Expenditure Limit (DEL) and administration budget for 2008-09.

Subject to Parliamentary approval of any necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Charity Commission total DEL will be increased by £1,850,000 from £30,852,000 to £32,702,000. Within the total DEL change, the impact on resources and capital is as set out in the following table:

Departmental expenditure limits and administration budget

	Change		New DEL

Depreciation[3]	—	—	-820	—	-820
Total	1,850	—	32,702	—	32,702

[1] The total of 'Administration budget' and 'Near cash in Resource DEL' may be greater than total resource of DEL due to the definitions overlapping.

[2] Capital DEL includes items treated as resource in Estimates and accounts but which are treated as Capital DEL in budgets.

[3] Depreciation, which forms part of resource DEL, is excluded from total DEL since capital DEL includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

The change in the resource element of DEL and in the administration budget arises from the take up of the remaining £400,000 from the Modernisation Fund (out of a total £3 million agreed in the CSR 07 settlement) and the utilisation of £1,050,000 of the Commission's Resource EYF.

The change in the capital element of the DEL reflects the utilisation of £400,000 of the Commission's capital EYF.

All of these funds will be used to pay for the costs of making ready the Commission's new accommodation at Fox Court in London. The Commission is due to leave its current London accommodation in June 2009.

The change in total DEL of £146,802,000 relates to the draw down of End Year Flexibility of £89,334,000 (£81,534,000 resource and £7,800,000 capital); rephrasing of non-cash budgets from 2009-10 into 2008-09 of £12,184,000 for PNSI and Compensation Agency; additional funding of £12,250,000 for the implementation of FRS 17 and FRS 26; and resource and capital budget transfers with other government departments resulting in a net increase of £272,000.

The take up of End Year Flexibility is required to supplement baselines in Political Directorate, Criminal Justice Directorate, Northern Ireland Prison Service, Central Administration, Public Prosecution Service, Youth Justice Agency, Policing Non-Severance, Bloody Sunday Inquiry, Policing and Security and Compensation Agency.

The administration budget decreases by £1,260,000 from £77,285,000 to £76,025,000. This is due to the transfer of £1,726,000 from Administration to Programme for Forensic Science Northern Ireland and life Sentence Review Commissioners. Additionally there are resource budget transfers of £500,000 from the Department of Finance and personnel, Northern Ireland for accommodation costs; £28,000 to the Office of the First Minister and Deputy First Minister, Northern Ireland for staff costs; and £6,000 to the Department of Innovation, Universities and Skills for the Skills Strategy for Government programme.

The increase in capital DEL of £7,960,000 reflects the budget transfer of £160,000 from the Department of Finance and Personnel, Northern Ireland for energy costs in the Northern Ireland prison Service and the take up of £7,800,000 End Year Flexibility to meet additional capital requirements in the Northern Ireland Prison Service.

The Northern Ireland Executive DEL will increase by £182,606,000 from £8,881,173,000 to £9,063,779,000.

The change reflects the take up of End Year Flexibility of £225,000,000 (£125,000,000 resource and £100,000,000 capital); additions of £1,809,000 arising from the 2009 Pre Budget Report; net outward budget transfers to other departments of £2,748,000; a reduction of £50,880,000 for Northern Ireland Water as a result of it becoming a Government owned Company; an increase of £9,425,000 to take account of capital reprofiling from 2010-11.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Secretary of State for Scotland (Mr. Jim Murphy): Subject to parliamentary approval of the necessary Supplementary Estimates, the departmental expenditure limit (DEL) provision for the administration of the Scotland Office will be increased by £1,300,000 and takes account of the following routine adjustment:

A take-up of near cash end year flexibility of £1,300,000.

The increase will be added to the planned total of public expenditure spending commitments in the current financial year.

The Scotland DEL will increase by £75,866,000 from £27,459,943,000 to £27,535,809,000.

The Scotland DEL increase takes account of the following routine adjustments to the Scottish Executive provision:

a transfer of £114,000 from the Department for Work and Pensions in respect of child poverty pilots;

a transfer of £157,000 from the Department for Children, Schools and Families in respect of Child Trust Fund—Top ups for Looked after Children;

the take up of 2008 Budget consequentials by the Scottish Executive amounting to £5,435,000;

the take up of 2008 Budget consequentials in respect of Capital Fiscal Stimulus amounting to £32,960,000;

the take up of additional Capital Fiscal Stimulus funding amounting to £20,200,000; and an increase in respect of classification change for Scottish water cost of capital amounting to £17,000,000.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Serious Fraud Office (Contingency Fund)

The Solicitor-General (Vera Baird): My right hon. Friend the Attorney-General has made the following written ministerial statement:

"Following the ministerial statement on 13 January 2009 and discussions in the House on 15 January 2009, this subsequent statement provides further explanation of the Serious Fraud Office's access to an advance from the Contingencies Fund ahead of the forthcoming spring supplementary estimate.

The Serious Fraud Office is funded in a different way to most other departments. There are four elements to its funding: its core operations; its large, so-called blockbuster cases; modernisation and transformation programmes; and asset recovery receipts. In addition, like many departments the Serious Fraud Office is able, subject to the Treasury's approval, to use the end year flexibility scheme whereby previously unspent amounts are brought forward into a current financial year.

At the start of each year, the Serious Fraud Office's Main Estimate covers expenditure for its core operations. Additional funding for the other four funding elements, as above, are then authorised through the normal Supplementary Estimates processes and can fluctuate depending on activity.

Parliamentary approval for this year's additional resources of £14.1 million will be sought in a Spring Supplementary Estimate for the Serious Fraud Office. This includes blockbuster funding, modernisation funding and monies from end year flexibility net of asset recovery receipts. This figure has recently reduced from the £15.45 million set out in the statement of 13 January 2009 as blockbuster case costs have been reduced this year.

Pending that approval, urgent cash expenditure estimated at £10.1 million, of the £14.1 million above, being balances in respect of blockbuster cases (£5.9 million) and the transformation programme (£5.4 million), less asset recovery receipts of £1.2 million, will be met by a repayable cash advance from the Contingencies Fund.

No additional monies are being sought by the Serious Fraud Office for its core operations."

TRANSPORT

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Geoffrey Hoon): Subject to Parliamentary approval of any necessary supplementary estimate, the Department for Transport departmental expenditure limit (DEL) for 2008-09 will be decreased by £11,270,000 from £13,239,009 to £13,227,739,000 and the administration budget will be increased by £11,200,000 from £281,926,000 to £293,126,000.

Within the DEL change, the impact on resources and capital, are set out in the following table:

	Change		New DEL
	Voted	Non-voted	Voted	Non-voted	Total

Non-voted: total decrease of £227,060,000

(i) A net transfer of £227,060,000 to voted provision.

WALES

Wales Office Spring Supplementary Estimate 2008-09

The Secretary of State for Wales (Mr. Paul Murphy): The Welsh Assembly Government's Departmental Expenditure Limit will be increased by £99,949,000 from £14,256,819,000 to £14,356,768,000. The increase is a result of:

(a) Take-up of £68,800,000 EYF-Capital.

(b) Capital re-profiling of £28,180,000 from 2010-11 financial year.

And also includes:

(c) Transfer of £66,000 Near-Cash from Department for Children, Schools and Families.

(d) Transfer of £17,000 Near-Cash to the Department of Industry, University and skills.

(e) Increase of £2,920,000 Capital as a result of the Warm Front initiative announced in the 2008 pre-Budget report.

The transfers will be offset within the budgets of DCSF and DIUS and the take up of the end Year Flexibility will be charged to the Reserve and will not therefore add to the planned total of public expenditure. The capital reprofiling and Warm Front additions will be met by an increase in the planned total of public expenditure as announced in the 2008 PBR.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Expenditure Limit

The Minister for Women and Equality (Ms Harriet Harman): Subject to Parliamentary approval of the necessary supplementary estimate, the Government Equalities Office departmental expenditure limit will increase by £1,000 from £83,602,000 to £83,603,000 and administration budget will increase by £4,001,000 from £4,085,000 to £8,086,000.

Within the departmental expenditure limit change, the impact on resource and capital is as set out in the following table:

	Change			New Departmental Expenditure Limit
	Voted	Non-voted	Total	Voted	Non-voted	Total
Resource	1	—	1	14,006	63,161	77,167

Total	1	—	1	14,006	69,597	83,603

[1] Depreciation, which forms part of resource departmental expenditure limit, is excluded from the total departmental expenditure limit since the capital departmental expenditure limit includes capital spending and to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

Resource departmental expenditure limit

The change in the resource departmental expenditure limit arises from a token increase to the administration forecast, where a Department's expenditure within the estimate is wholly offset by income, so that a token amount of £1,000 is voted.

Administration costs limit

The movement in the administration cost limit arises from a funding exchange between the Government Equalities Office and Department for Work and Pensions, in which the Government Equalities Office has exchanged programme funding for administration funding, to ease the funding pressures arising from the creation of the Government Equalities Office as a stand alone Department.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departmental Expenditure Limits

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (James Purnell): Subject to Parliamentary approval of the necessary Supplementary Estimate, the Department for Work and Pensions Total Departmental Expenditure Limit will increase by £175,531,000 from £7,837,785,000 to £8,013,316,000 and the administration budget will increase by £139,878,000 from £5,693,829,000 to £5,833,707,000.

Within the Departmental Expenditure Limit change, the impact on resource and capital is as set out in the following table:

	Change			New Departmental Expenditure Limit

Total	225,013	-49,482	175,531	6,595,820	1,417,496	8,013,316

[1] Depreciation, which forms part of resource Departmental Expenditure Limit, is excluded from the total Departmental Expenditure Limit since the capital Departmental Expenditure Limit includes capital spending to include depreciation of those assets would lead to double counting.

Resource Departmental Expenditure Limit

The change in the resource element of the Departmental Expenditure Limit arises from:

Request for Resources 1

i. A draw down of £46,000,000 of the Department's Resource End of Year Flexibility stock to fund expenditure of the Child Maintenance Enforcement Commission.

Request for Resources 2

ii. An increase of £20,000,000 as a result of benefit savings realised by the rollout of Provider Led Pathways. An agreement with HM Treasury allows the Department to convert 50p of every £1 saved into Departmental Expenditure Limit funding.

iii. A budget transfer of £1,455,000 to the Ministry of Justice to fund increased operating costs relating to the introduction of Employment Support Allowance.

iv. A budget transfer of £220,000 to the Ministry of Justice to fund expected increases in consent orders through the courts for Child Maintenance, following repeal of section 6 of the Chid Support Act 1991.

v. A budget transfer of £330,000 to the Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform in relation to Mesothelioma compensation payments.

vi. A budget transfer of £132,000 to the Department for Children, Schools and Families relating to Joint Birth registrations.

vii. Budget transfers to the Scottish Government £114,000, the Welsh Assembly £66,000 and the Department for Children, Schools and Families £1,142,000 in relation to Child Poverty Pilots.

viii. A transfer of £4,000,000 Administration funding was made to the Government Equalities Office, in return for £4,000,000 of Programme funding, resulting in a net nil overall impact on the Departmental Expenditure Limit.

ix. A £3,500,000 reduction in Departmental Expenditure Limit to contribute to increased Annually Managed Expenditure resulting from enhancements to the Support for the Mortgage Interest scheme, announced as part of the Government's package of help for home-owners.

Request for Resources 3

x. A draw down of £55,000,000 from the Department's Modernisation Fund. As part of the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007 (CSR07), the Department was given access to a Modernisation Fund of £550,000,000 across all CSR07 years, in addition to its settlement funding.

xi. A budget transfer of £2,000,000 to the Department for Culture, Media and Sport to support the Government's free swimming initiative.

xii. A draw down of £45,000,000 from the Department's Modernisation Fund. Refer paragraph 12. above.

xiii. A budget transfer of £315,000 to the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills in relation to the Government Skills Programme.

Capital Departmental Expenditure Limit

The change in the capital element of the Departmental Expenditure Limit arises from:

Request for Resources 3

xiv. A budget transfer of £2,402,000 from the Northern Ireland Executive relating to the Pension Transformation Programme.

xv. A budget transfer of £1,463,000 from the Department for Children, Schools and Families in relation to the Employee Authentication Service project.

Administration costs

The movement in the Administration Cost limit arises from the changes to the Resource Departmental Expenditure Limit as noted in terms i, iii, iv, vi, viii, x, xii and xiii above, and item xvii below.

Movements in Non-Voted Resource Expenditure

The changes in non-voted resource expenditure arise from:

Request for Resources 1

xvii. A £50,000,000 reduction in non-voted resource fully offset by a £50,000,000 increase in voted resource to reflect the allocation of the Departmental Unallocated Provision to support expenditure on the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

Request for Resources 2

xviii. An increase in non-voted expenditure of £1,313,000 offset by a decrease in voted expenditure of £1,313,000 in respect of increased spend of Working Ventures (UK) Limited.

Request for Resources 3

xix. An increase in non-voted expenditure of £8,000,000 offset by a decrease in voted expenditure of £8,000,000 on respect of an increased utilisation of the Financial Assistance Scheme provision.

xx. A reduction in non-voted expenditure of £141,000 offset by an increase in voted expenditure of £141,000 in respect of decreased spend of The Pensions Advisory Service.

xxi. An increase in non-voted expenditure of £82,000 offset by a decrease in voted expenditure of £82,000 in respect of decreased spend of The Pensions Ombudsman.

xxii. A reduction in non-voted expenditure of £3,801,000 offset by an increase in voted expenditure of £3,801,000 in respect of decreased spend of The Pensions Regulator.

xxiii. A reduction in non-voted expenditure of £6,573,000 offset by an increase in voted expenditure of £6,573,000 in respect of decreased spend of the Personal Accounts Delivery Authority.

Movements in Non-Voted Capital Expenditure

The changes in non-voted capital relate to the following adjustments:

Request for Resources 3

xxiv. An increase in non-voted expenditure of £448,000 offset by a decrease in voted expenditure of £448,000 in respect of increased spend of The Pensions Regulator.

xxv. An increase in non-voted expenditure of £871,000 offset by a decrease in voted expenditure of £871,000 in respect of increased spend of the Personal Accounts Delivery Authority.

Uprating Order (April 2009)

The Minister for Pensions and the Ageing Society (Ms Rosie Winterton): This statement explains two supplementary issues concerning payments of Invalidity Allowances to pensioners from April 2009.

The Uprating Statement on 11 December 2008 announced new rates of Invalidity Allowance for customers under pensionable age to support the alignment of the rates of Incapacity Benefit and Employment and Support Allowance.

The rates for eligible pensioners due to receive Invalidity Allowance will be increased in line with the retail price index in the usual way.

The Department subsequently wrote to pensioners eligible for an Invalidity Allowance informing them of their entitlements. However, due to a technical error, a small number were sent an entitlement notice which was incorrect.

The Pensions Disability and Carers Service will ensure that the vast majority of customers who receive an Invalidity Allowance will receive accurate payments from April 2009—and we will notify those customers who receive an inaccurate notification that this correction has been made.

This will ensure that for all of those pensioners their incomes are unaffected and the correct benefits paid.

There will be a small number for whom corrections cannot be made before April and those will be corrected as soon as possible. If an under-payment has occurred, we will ensure the payment is corrected by June, and any arrears are paid to the pensioner. If an over-payment has occurred, we will not seek recovery though we will correct the overpayment as soon as possible.

Of the 500,000 pensioners with entitlement to an Invalidity Allowance we estimate that around 45,000 people may be overpaid and around 25,000 may be underpaid, depending on their individual circumstances. We estimate that the amount of weekly overpayment will range from a minimum 5p to a maximum of £3. The maximum underpayment will be £1.80 a week.

Any arrears will be calculated and paid to customers, and we will not take any action to seek recovery of these overpayments. As the Department works through the affected cases it will write to all customers who are affected to explain their position.

As people become pensioners from April 2009, they should automatically move on to the higher rate of Invalidity Allowance. Because the Uprating Order for this year does not provide the statutory basis ordinarily needed to make these higher payments, we shall be making them on an extra-statutory basis in the coming tax year. Around 7,000 customers are affected with payments worth in total around £350,000.

Our customers will not need to take any action. The Pension, Disability and Cares Service will identify and correct cases as soon as possible and contact all of those concerned.

OBSERVATIONS

DEFENCE

Support for Armed Forces

The Petition of residents of Castle Point and others,

Declares that members of HM Armed Forces in Iraq and Afghanistan are fighting and dying, and that they lack basic equipment to do their job and there is insufficient appreciation and support from the Government for them and their families, particularly when they return from active service, and, in welcoming the provision of limited free postage, feels that the Government should go much further to give help and recognition.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to adopt more generous policies for serving and returning members of HM Armed Forces, and to give them priority in housing, in recognition of the contribution made by these brave men and women.

[P000137]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Defence:

The Government recognise the commitment, bravery and professionalism of our armed forces in all their operations. They further recognise the enormous contribution made by Service families to the effectiveness of those forces and the debt owed by the nation to veterans.

The Government commissioned an independent study into how the British public could better express its support and gratitude for the nation's armed forces. The results of the National Recognition Study were published in May 2008. The MOD formally responded to the study in October 2008, accepting the vast majority of its recommendations about ways to encourage greater public understanding and appreciation of the Armed Forces.

In July 2008 the Government published Command Paper 7424—"The Nation's Commitment: Cross-Government Support to our Armed Forces, their Families and Veterans". Housing and welfare matters are further addressed below.

On provision of equipment, the Ministry of Defence (MOD) takes all the measures possible to ensure that the equipment issued to the armed forces is both right for the job and right for them. Its quality and versatility is higher than it has ever been, and we continually work to improve its range and reliability. The Equipment Programme is designed to deliver the long-term core capabilities our forces need, complemented by the Urgent Operational Requirement (UOR) process which provides the speed and flexibility needed to adapt and respond to specific operational environments and emerging threats. Over £4 billion has been approved for UORs providing commanders on the ground with the equipment they have asked for.

The welfare of personnel and their families is core to MOD business, and there are comprehensive measures in place to ensure that we give the best possible support to all concerned. The highest priority is placed on supporting the families of those who have given their lives or have been injured in the service of their country, and robust procedures ensure that all concerned receive the help they require to come to terms with injury, or life without loved ones. Turning to the wider MOD Deployment Welfare Package, this is an extensive and integrated programme of welfare provision that includes: unlimited free Forces Aerogramme letter post, Electronic Aerogrammes (where available) and a free postal packet service, welfare telephones including satellite telephones in forward locations (30 minutes free calls per person per week to anywhere in the world) are also available, as is free e-mail and Internet access. Back home, concessionary travel allowances are provided for families to enable them to keep in touch with immediate relatives. On return from an operational tour, a leave of 20 working days for a six month deployment is provided. A tax-free "Operational Allowance" of £2,320 for a six month deployment is also payable.

On housing, personnel and their families deserve decent accommodation and we are committed to providing this. The MOD will invest some £8 billion during the next decade on the accommodation estate, of which some £3 billion will be on upgrading and improvement to the top standard, and £2 billion on maintenance and refurbishment. Tackling the problems that have arisen as a result of decades of under-funding, combined with the size of the living accommodation estate, means this will take time, but we are delivering real improvements, both in the UK and overseas, and an increasing proportion of our accommodation is good. Alternatively, important steps have already been taken to assist Service personnel with home ownership and improve access to affordable housing, including the "Long Service Advance of Pay" interest free loan. More recently, all Service personnel in England now have Key Worker status. The Government are also extending this to enable Service leavers to access the Key Worker Living scheme 12 months after discharge. Access to similar schemes in Scotland and Wales is being considered. On 19 March 2008, the Prime Minister announced a £20 million pilot scheme to respond to the demand for more affordable home ownership for Service men and women. The Ministry of Defence (MOD) is currently running an open competition to select partners with which to deliver the scheme to cover a four year period starting in 2009.

The Government are also amending housing legislation to ensure that Service personnel leaving the Services are placed on an equal footing with civilians when applying for social housing. Currently, under housing legislation, former Service personnel cannot establish a local connection with the area in which they have worked or lived while serving with the Armed Forces for the purposes of establishing priority for social housing. However, the Housing and Regeneration Act will rectify this and ensure that Servicemen and women looking for social housing are treated fairly.

OBSERVATIONS

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Flooding (Northamptonshire)

The Humble Petition of residents of Isham in the Wellingborough constituency and the surrounding area, that the village of Isham has seriously flooded three times in the last five years. Previous to this there had been no problems with flooding. Developments of additional housing in the last few years have put pressure on the already strained and ill repaired sewerage and draining systems. The three recent floods have affected several areas of the village, bringing with it immense problems for the homes affected including the leakage of raw sewage. The main trunk road from Wellingborough to Kettering, the A509 also flooded and had to be temporarily closed.

Wherefore your Petitioners pray that your Honourable House urges the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to liaise with the Parish Council of Isham, the Borough Council of Wellingborough, Northamptonshire County Council and Anglian Water to find a solution to the problem of local flooding and to properly maintain the local sewerage system.

And your Petitioners, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.—[Presented by Mr. Peter Bone, Official Report, 10 December 2008; Vol. 485, c. 647 .]

[P000296]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs:

Thank you for your Petition of 10 December 2008 on the subject of flooding affecting the village of Isham. I have been asked to reply as policy on flood risk management is the responsibility of DEFRA.

I am sorry to learn of the flooding incidents that have affected Isham. I understand that these problems arise from inadequacies in the surface water drainage system in the village. I know that Anglian Water have been working with the relevant Councils to identify the precise causes for the flooding and ways of remedying them. The solution to the flooding will I understand involve redirecting the surface water from the foul sewer to a suitable surface water drainage system, and Anglian Water are working with the Highways Agency to ensure the work is completed. I do of course urge all the relevant bodies to work together to find lasting solutions to the problems in Isham.

The Government take very seriously the issues around flooding in urban areas and, in response to Sir Michael Pitt's report into the major flooding events in Summer 2007, announced that the Environment Agency will have a new national strategic overview role for all forms of flood risk and local authorities (identified as County Councils or Unitary authorities) will be taking responsibility for local groundwater and surface water management for which no body has previously been clearly responsible. The Agency will work closely with local authorities on their on-the ground management of surface water flooding so that comprehensive assessments of local flood risk will be possible for the first time. I very much hope that this and other changes announced in my response to Sir Michael Pitt's report will help reduce the number of instances of serious flooding as experienced in Isham.

OBSERVATIONS

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Planning and Development (Cheshire)

The Petition of residents of Cuddington and Sandiway, and others,

Declares that Vale Royal Borough Council is failing to listen and take action on the concerns of local residents regarding the flawed site selection process and public consultation for proposed gypsy and travellers sites in Vale Royal.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to put pressure on Vale Royal Borough Council firstly to place on public record that the proposed site at Chester Road, Sandiway is confirmed as unsuitable for a proposed gypsy and traveller site; secondly to halt its public consultation on proposed gypsy and traveller sites until such time as the site selection criteria can be reviewed and amended to ensure that they comply with government guidance and planning policies; and thirdly, to defer this issue until after the completion of the Regional Spatial Strategy and therefore, by definition of the timescales for the Strategy, to pass this issue to the new unitary authority of Cheshire West and Chester.

[P000287]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

The Secretary of State acknowledges the concerns of the petitioners regarding the site selection process and public consultation for proposed gypsy and travellers sites in Vale Royal.

Successive Governments have taken the view that local authorities should be free to carry out their responsibilities with the minimum of interference from central government since they are ultimately answerable to their electors for the discharge of their duties.

I am aware that Vale Royal Borough Council went out to consultation on a number of possible sites for a gypsy and traveller site, of which the aforementioned Chester Road site in Sandiways is one. I understand that the Chester Road site is not allocated in any plans by Vale Royal but was one of those under consideration in the consultation exercise.

Decisions on planning policy for the Vale Royal area, in the transitional period up to 1 April 2009, will be made by the new shadow authority, Cheshire West & Chester, who will develop a Local Development Framework for the area covered by the new unitary authority. As a consequence, and in line with Government guidance on this issue, I would expect that it would be the new authority that will eventually develop policy on the location of gypsy and traveller sites in their Core Strategy to meet the identified need within the area. That decision will be informed, in part, by consultation exercises such as that carried out recently by Vale Royal. All those wishing to make representations against this site or any other would have opportunity to do so as it is taken through the Local Development Framework process.

Furthermore, I am also aware that the site provision for gypsies and travellers is an issue that will be considered as part of the Partial Review of the North West Regional Spatial Strategy, RSS, being conducted by 4NW, the Regional Leaders Forum for the North West of England.

Planning and Development (Essex)

The Petition of Mrs Jean Everett, the residents of Castle Point and others,

Declares that they suspect that there is a hidden agenda in respect of the public open space bounded by The Chase, Thundersley, on the north side, and by Runnymede Chase on the east side. Because a large area adjacent to the annex of the SEEVIC College has been fenced off and they challenge the legal right for this to have been done. Because Castle Point councillors have decided to no longer maintain this space. Because SEEVIC College has been allowed or encouraged to take over the area at certain times. They further believe that this land, like all public assets, belongs to the people, not to the councillors, and that councillors should respect that fact and keep the public fully informed of their and their officers' discussions and intentions regarding the future of all our public assets. We ask councillors to return this land to full and proper public use and to protect it for the future.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to press all Castle Point councillors, since they have direct responsibility for this matter, to ensure this public open space is retained for its ancient and established use.

[P000267]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

The Government acknowledge the resident's concerns about the future of an area of public open space, but it is the Government's general approach not to interfere with the jurisdiction of local planning authorities unless it is necessary to do so. Parliament has entrusted planning authorities with responsibility for day-to-day planning control in their areas as they are normally best placed to make decisions relating to their areas and it is right that, in general, they should be free to carry out their duties responsibly, with the minimum of interference.

Government consider that, in general, locally elected councillors are best placed to take decisions on planning applications in their area. When determining a planning application, local authorities must take into account: the provisions of the development plan for the area; any relevant views expressed by neighbouring occupiers, local residents and other third parties; and any other relevant material considerations which fairly and reasonably relate to the application concerned. Local authorities should also be guided by the policies and advice set out in the Department's Planning Policy Guidance Notes (PPGs), Planning Policy Statement (PPSs) and planning circulars.

With regard to planning for sport, open space and recreation, as set out in PPG 17 Sport and Recreation, the Secretary of State seeks to ensure that the sport, open space and recreation requirements of the whole community are met by protecting existing facilities and securing appropriate new provision and to create more sustainable patterns of development by locating open space and recreational facilities where they are accessible by a choice of modes of transport and especially by foot, bicycle or public transport wherever possible. The Government recognise that recreational facilities can play a major part in improving people's sense of well being in the place they live. As a focal point for community activities, they can bring together members of deprived communities and provide opportunities for people for social interaction.

An application for outline consent for the demolition of the existing SEEVIC college facilities excluding the west block and redevelopment to provide new college and associated buildings, parking, sports facilities and road junction improvements was referred to the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on 7 November 2008 as the proposals represented a departure from local plan policies. Careful consideration was given to all representations made; however, it was concluded that the Secretary of State would not be justified in taking the exceptional step of removing the decision from the local planning authority. Therefore the Secretary of State decided on 27 November 2008 not to intervene on this application, and return decision-making powers to the local authority.

Public Conveniences (Hull)

The Petition of residents of Hull and others,

Declares their concern at the plans of Hull City Council to reduce staffing at public toilets in the city; and notes that these changes would have a detrimental effect on the safety and cleanliness of the facilities.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to put pressure on Hull City Council to maintain staffing levels at public toilets in the city.

[P000281]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government is aware that a decision was made by Kingston Upon Hull City Council, as part of its 2007-08 budget decision, to reduce staffing levels at the City's three attended toilets from two attendants at each to one at each, with a fourth attendant providing cover.

The Secretary of State understands the Petitioners' concerns about the possible impact on the future safety and cleanliness of the facilities. However, this is a local matter for which the Council has responsibility and the Secretary of State is unable to intervene in the decision. Successive Governments have taken the view that local authorities should be free to carry out their responsibilities with the minimum of interference from central government since they are ultimately answerable to their electors for the discharge of their duties.

The Department for Communities and Local Government published a Strategic Guide on "Improving Public Access to Better Quality Toilets" in March 2008, which highlighted steps that local authority partnerships can take to improve the provision of publicly accessible toilets in their area. Copies were sent to each local authority in the country. The Department published more detailed guidance in November 2008, including step-by-step advice on setting up community toilet schemes, where the public have free access to toilets in participating local shops and businesses.

The action taken by the Department to promote public access to toilets was welcomed and supported by the Communities and Local Government Select Committee's report into public toilet provision, published in October 2008.

War Memorials (Essex)

The Petition of the War Memorial Fund Raising Committee, members of the Royal British Legion and residents of Canvey Island,

Declares that Castle Point Council has acted without proper consultation to propose changes to the War Memorial at the Paddocks on Canvey Island; believes that councillors should not take such action without proper consultation and agreement with the stakeholders and wider community and that the overwhelming view of stakeholders and residents is that it should remain at its current site.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to make Castle Point Borough Councillors aware of this petition and of the very deeply and widely held view that Councillors should consult before taking any action to disturb the War Memorial.

[P000279]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

The Secretary of State understands the resident's concerns about the future of the War Memorial, but it is the Government's general approach not to interfere with the jurisdiction of local planning authorities unless it is necessary to do so. Parliament has entrusted them with responsibility for day-to-day planning control in their areas as they are normally best placed to make decisions relating to their areas and it is right that, in general, they should be free to carry out their duties responsibly, with the minimum of interference.

The Secretary of State understands from Castle Point Borough Council that no planning application was needed for the maintenance work. The council have stated that for some time the local community had expressed some dissatisfaction to the council about the condition of this particular War Memorial and the surrounding gardens. The local community asked the council to tidy the area and make the memorial more presentable in time for Remembrance Sunday. The Council agreed with this and the work has now been carried out.

As the work has already been carried out the Secretary of State has no jurisdiction in the matter and can only suggest that the residents of Castle Point contact the Council's monitoring officer—and initiate the council's complaints procedure—who is responsible for investigating any complaints made against the council with regards to possible maladministration.

Stillbirths

The Petition of Emma and Alexander Pheby (parents of Xanthe Pheby, stillborn on 4 April 2007),

Declares that every one in two hundred pregnancies in the United Kingdom end in stillbirth (around 3,600 children a year) and yet in over half of these cases a cause for the baby's death is not established. There is currently very little funding for research into unexplained stillbirth;

Notes that in the 1980s important research was carried out into sudden infant death syndrome (otherwise known as SIDS or cot death) which in turn led in 1991 to a public health campaign and the numbers of cot deaths were dramatically cut;

Further declares that it is time for the United Kingdom Government to fund additional epidemiological studies and new scientific research to identify risk factors, causes and prevention strategies for unexplained stillbirths so that the country's high rates can be reduced.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government of the United Kingdom to put more resources into research in this area.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mr. Charles Clarke .]

TRANSPORT

Coastguard Services (Devon)

The Petition of residents of Hope Cove and the surrounding area,

Declares that the Hope Cove Coastguard lifeboat should be reinstated immediately; further declares that the Maritime and Coastguard Agency should recognise that it is an auxiliary and additional rescue cover to the RNLI lifeboat at Salcombe for one of the most dangerous parts of the South Devon coastline.

Further declares that the inshore Hope Cove lifeboat has been in operation since 1890 and has saved 213 lives alone since 2000, and can be launched within minutes.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Transport to ensure that tourists and yachtsmen visiting Hope Cove beaches and the Thurlestone area are adequately protected by way of sea rescue from Hope Cove in the event of an emergency.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mr. Anthony Steen, Official Report, 14 January 2009; Vol. 486, c. 314 .]

[P000304]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Transport:

The Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) boat at Hope Cove is classified as an additional resource in support of the primary rescue assets in that area. It is not a lifeboat.

Checks in June 2008 showed that the boat was not safe for use by members of the voluntary Coastguard Rescue Service and it was a danger to members of the public. As a result the MCA decided that the boat could no longer be used for coastguard purposes. Following some repairs of deficiencies locally, the MCA agreed to the boat returning to service under restricted conditions in terms of weather and the distance from shore that the boat could operate. The weather restriction meant that the boat was again stood down from being used from 1 November 2008.

As part of the Government's responsibility to deliver search and rescue (SAR) provision around the UK coast, experts in Her Majesty's Coastguard, with many years practical experience of co-ordinating responses to maritime incidents, have been conducting detailed reviews of the SAR needs for a number of areas including the southern part of the south-west peninsula. These reviews have looked at the maritime risks presented by trends, incident types, geography and weather conditions for each area. They have then explored the SAR requirements for each area and have considered what SAR assets are (or should be) available to address those maritime risks. Where a residual risk has been identified, the reviews consider what additional assets would best address the gap and how those assets might be made available. In some cases, the reviews have concluded that SAR cover in particular areas could be better delivered by a different configuration of assets from those currently provided.

Ensuring appropriate SAR provision is of the highest importance not only in meeting our national and international obligations, but also for the individual local communities served. The UK Search and Rescue Strategic Committee and its Operators Group will be asked to provide an independent evaluation of the reviews conducted by the MCA. This Committee is an inter-agency national forum, with responsibility for advising Ministers on the structure, scope and framework of the organisation of UK SAR. The Committee's expert views will be reflected in the final package of recommendations that will result from this review process, which will then be consulted on locally. It is hoped to conclude this procedure in February and the local consultations on the recommendations will begin soon after that.

OBSERVATIONS

JUSTICE

Criminal Sentencing

The Petition of Mrs Elizabeth McPhee and others,

Declares that the sentence of 6 years imprisonment for the two men convicted of the murder of Mr Ryan McPhee (17 years of age) on 4th July 2007 is far too lenient. The reality is that these people will serve about 3 years in prison.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Justice to instruct a review of sentencing guidelines in light of the sentence given to the men convicted of the murder of Ryan McPhee.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Lindsay Roy, Official Report, 15 December 2008; Vol. 485, c. 934.]

[P000134]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Justice:

The Government expresses their deepest sympathy to Mrs McPhee and her family over the tragic loss of her son, Ryan McPhee.

The Government have the following observations to make.

Sentence imposed

Sentencing in individual cases is entirely a matter for the court, which will take account of all the circumstances of the particular case. In doing so, the court will be guided by relevant case law laid down by the Court of Appeal and any relevant sentencing guidelines when determining the appropriate sentence. The defendants in this case were convicted of manslaughter, which carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

The Attorney General, with the leave of the Court of Appeal, has powers under sections 35 and 36 of the Criminal Justice Act 1988, to refer to the Court sentences which appear to her to be unduly lenient. This must be done within 28 days of the sentence being imposed. Manslaughter is an indictable only offence and falls within the scheme. The Attorney General did not make a reference in this case; and the time limit has now expired.

Sentencing guidelines

The independent Sentencing Guidelines Council and the Court of Appeal are responsible for producing sentencing guidelines. There is no current guideline on involuntary manslaughter but the courts will take account of relevant case law established by the Court of Appeal. The Council has produced a guideline on manslaughter by reason of provocation and will, in due course, produce guidelines on all offences including manslaughter generally. The Government have no plans to request to the Council to produce a guideline on involuntary manslaughter as a matter of priority.

TREASURY

Northern Rock

The Petition of small shareholders and supporters of Northern rock of the Hexham constituency in the North East of England,

Declares that it welcomes the acknowledgement by the Government that it must pay compensation for nationalising Northern Rock plc, but that the terms of reference for the valuation of the shares are wrongly based as the company was not in administration and was still a "going concern".

Further declares that if these terms are unchanged there will not be a fair compensation payment which will lead to many in our region having their savings and pensions undermined which in turn will have a negative impact on the North East's economy.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons calls on the Government to reconsider the terms of reference given to the valuer so that he can fully reflect the true value of Northern Rock shares.

OBSERVATIONS

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Care Services (Somerset)

The Petition of the residents of Bridgwater and others,

Declares that the Petitioners are concerned about cuts to funding by Government which have resulted in Homes in Sedgemoor, and other housing organisations, reviewing the arrangements in their warden-controlled accommodation so that wardens will no longer be resident on site, and the implications that this has for elderly residents and others who have made arrangements to be in warden-controlled accommodation as part of their long-term future care.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to review and reconsider funding arrangements to local authorities so that funds are available to allow the continued employment of resident wardens to assist elderly residents in retaining a degree of independence and the peace of mind a warden on site brings them.

[P000277]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

The Secretary of State acknowledges the concerns of the petitioners regarding the funding of resident wardens in warden controlled accommodation.

We are aware that a number of older people are concerned about changes to the warden systems in some sheltered housing schemes, and the implications that such changes might have. I should like to emphasise that the Government are very mindful of the housing and support needs of all older people—wherever they live—whether in their "own homes", or with family, or in supported housing, like sheltered or extra care accommodation, or residential care establishments. The Government wants to ensure that our older citizens should get the best housing and support services that can be made available locally and in the most effective way.

It is, however, for local authorities to determine how to best meet the support needs identified in their communities - we do not prescribe any particular model of support. My Department has given local authorities £1.686 billion of Supporting People funding. Authorities use this funding to provide housing support to a whole range of people, focusing their spending to best meet local need. All decisions about how the services are funded and monitored, which includes satisfaction with the service, are therefore made at the local level.

Once my Department has had a chance to review the report and meet with representatives from Age Concern and Help the Aged as mentioned above, we can then decide how to best work with and support the sector and service users going forward.

Police Stations (Essex)

The Petition of residents of Hadleigh, Thundersley and Benfleet,

Declares that we are concerned about the move of the Coroners' Office from the old Hadleigh Police Station, are deeply worried that Councillors may be considering selling this building off for yet more development which our community cannot absorb, believes there is a need for a Police Station, with public access, in Hadleigh, and that the station is a community asset and residents should be consulted before any decisions are taken on its future and that Councillors should support this petition on behalf of residents.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for the Home Department to encourage Essex County Councillors and the Police Authority to return Hadleigh Police Station to police use,

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Catz Club

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what records the Electoral Commission holds of donations by Catz Club to the (a) Labour Party and (b) Labour-related regulated donees. [250352]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it has received one report of a donation by Catz Club to the Labour Party of £7,500 reported as accepted on 27 June 2008. No other donations from Catz Club have been reported to the Commission by the Labour Party or any regulated donee.

Policy Development Grant

Mr. Hurd: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission how the policy development grant is uprated each year; and whether the allocation of policy development grant will be (a) cut or (b) frozen if yearly retail price index inflation is negative. [250526]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that section 12 of the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act (2000) limits the policy development grant to an annual sum of £2,000,000. The amount of grant is not linked to the retail price index. However, the Act does allow for the Secretary of State, with the consent of the Treasury, to vary the annual amount.

Political Parties: Finance

Mr. Hurd: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what plans the Electoral Commission has to revise its guidance on regulated donees following recent decisions by the Crown Prosecution Service. [250528]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it is currently reviewing the implications of the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) decision in December 2008, not to bring charges in a case referred by the Commission to the Metropolitan Police.

Pending the outcome of that review, the Commission believes that the guidance it has issued on the reporting obligations of regulated donees remains valid. The Commission will consider whether it is necessary to revise its guidance when it has completed the review and has agreed with Government what steps, if any, are needed to clarify the legal requirements on the reporting of donations by regulated donees.

TRANSPORT

A14: Kettering

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the detailed plans for the widening of the A14 between junctions 7 and 9 around Kettering will be made available for public consultation. [251081]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency is carrying out a detailed assessment of proposals to widen the A14 between junctions 7 and 9 at Kettering to dual three-lane standard within the highway boundary. A public information exhibition on the widening plans is expected to be held in autumn 2009.

Airports: Police

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of the policing costs for (a) East Midlands airport, (b) Humberside airport and (c) Bournemouth airport was met by the airport owners in each year since 1997. [250110]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Under section 25 of the Aviation Security Act 1982, there are only nine airports where the owners are required to pay for dedicated policing costs: London Heathrow, London Gatwick, Stansted, Aberdeen, Edinburgh, Glasgow International, Glasgow Prestwick, Birmingham and Manchester. The extent to which airport operators at non-designated airports contribute towards policing costs is a private commercial matter for the parties involved.

Part 6 of the Policing and Crime Bill proposes that all airport operators should be required to meet the costs of any dedicated policing where they have agreed these with the Chief Officer of Police and police authority for the area.

Aviation: Finance

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what oversight his Department has over the allocation and use of (a) route development funds and (b) other sources of support for air services. [250656]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A regional body wishing to establish a route development fund to provide start-up aid for new air services will be expected to sign up to the Department's Protocol governing the operation of such funds. The Protocol has been published on the DfT website at:

www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/domestic/anationalprotocolforukrouted2873

An air route on which a Public Service Obligation (PSO) has been imposed may be eligible for subsidy under the rules set out in Regulation EC 1008/2008. Any application to impose a PSO must be approved by the Secretary of State.

Any other proposals to provide funding for air services must take account of European guidance on the use of State aid. Any resulting State aid notification to the European Commission must be cleared by the Department.

Aviation: Standards

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his Department's practice is with regard to the monitoring of (a) seat availability, (b) pricing and (c) competitive behaviour of individual airlines. [250655]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None. A European airline which meets the necessary safety and financial fitness requirements may operate without Government oversight of its seat availability or prices. In the European Union, airlines are of course subject to competition law as overseen by the competition authorities.

Biofuels

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what estimate he has made of the percentage of biofuel produced from used cooking oil; [250792]

(2) what steps he has taken to encourage production of fuel from used cooking oil. [250793]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation requires suppliers of fossil fuel to ensure that a proportion of the fuel they supply is renewable fuel. Under the scheme biodiesel made from waste cooking oil is an eligible renewable fuel.

The Renewable Fuel Agency administers the scheme and their January quarterly report summarises data on fuel supplied between April and October 2008. This report indicates that used cooking oil made up 3 per cent. (22 million litres) of the biofuel supplied over this period to meet the obligation. Their report is available on the RFA website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/rfa/.

Cars: Sales

Mrs. McGuire: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many sales of (a) petrol- and (b) diesel-fuelled cars there were in each of the last three financial years. [250304]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers (in thousands) of petrol and diesel-fuelled cars newly registered in Great Britain in each of the last three financial years were as follows:

	Financial year
Fuel type	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Diesel	900	910	978
Petrol	1,501	1,435	1,392

These data include all cars that have been newly registered in each financial year and will, therefore, include vehicles that have been imported into Great Britain during this time.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department and its agencies provide for staff. [249083]

Mr. Hoon: None.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248419]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, columns 1004-05W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248704]

Mr. Hoon: In total £14,070 has been spent within the Department for Transport on staff reward and recognition schemes. This is broken down per year as follows:

2006-07	6,262
2007-08	6,433
2008-09 (to date)	1,375

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what use (a) his Department and (b) service providers under contract to his Department make of (i) 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration his Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if he will make a statement. [247349][1]

Mr. Hoon: The Department for Transport and its Executive agencies operate three 0845 numbers and one 0844 number. The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency uses 0870 revenue-sharing numbers to provide access to nine public services. Information about these is set out as follows:

Number	DfT or agency	Purpose	Revenue (yes/no)
0845 877 0877	DfT	Freight Best Practice helpline providing free information to promote operational efficiency	No
0845 750 4030	HA	Motorway and trunk road information line	No
0845 600 5977	VOSA	Garages hotline for checking MOT standards	No
0844 800 0819	VCA	Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment helpline	No

0870 850 1074	DVLA	Allows customers to seek advice on the use of Smart Tachographs	Yes

Revenue information from the DVLA services is only available since January 2005. The figures are shown by calendar year.

2005	2,130,881
2006	2,328,307
2007	3,329,794
2008	3,047,304

In addition, the Driving Standards Agency and the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency have recently switched from 0870 to 0300 numbers for calls made to their contact centres. Revenue information about these is set out as follows:

	DSA	VOSA
2004-05	706,399	10,386
2005-06	693,254	63,400
2006-07	623,284	72,400
2007-08	672,048	78,600
2008-09	[1]208,512	[2]52,000

[2] VOSA switched to 0300 line on 30 September 2008.

Consideration is currently being given to switching to 0300 numbers for the Freight Best Practice helpline and for the Highways Agency Information Line. DVLA had intended moving to 0300 numbers in line with Ofcom recommendations prior to the retraction of the Ofcom paper on use of 0870 numbers. Preparations to move to 0300 are still in place, once the Ofcom paper and recommendations are republished.

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what expenditure his Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises in each of the last five years. [251869]

Mr. Hoon: The Government Car and Despatch Agency does not routinely record the details of individual journeys made by cars allocated to Ministers.

Driving Offences: Fixed Penalties

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many appeals were made to traffic adjudicators against fixed penalty notices in each of the last five years. [247901]

Paul Clark: This information is not collected centrally by the Government, but the available figures for the number of appeals made against the issuing of penalty charge notices and the number of appeals upheld for each local authority are set out in the annual reports of the traffic adjudicators: the Parking and Traffic Appeals Service (PATAS) for London, and the Traffic Penalty Tribunal (TPT) for outside London.

The reports of the PATAS are available at:

Driving Tests: Motorcycles

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reasons his Department decided to implement the new motorcycle test on 30 March 2009; and (a) how many and (b) what percentage of multi-purpose test centres will be operational from that date. [250921]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The new motorcycle test was due to be implemented on 29 September in accordance with the EU directive 2000/56/EC. However, the Driving Standards Agency (DSA) recognised that having 38 multi-purpose test centres (MPTCs) operational at the launch of the new test would mean candidates in significant parts of Great Britain would not have the expected access to a MPTC. 58 per cent. of the population would have been able to reach a MPTC within 45 minutes travelling time. Following consideration of representations from motorcycle interest groups, DSA decided to defer implementation for six months to allow consideration of delivery options which might help with the number of locations to offer the test when it was launched.

Since then we have been consulting on a modular approach to practical motorcycle testing. If adopted, DSA will split the off-road from the on-road part of the test.

By 30 March, DSA will have in place up to 67 operational sites including part-time and temporary sites for the off-road elements. In addition, there are outstanding planning approvals or legal negotiations on a further five sites that the Agency hopes to have ready in time. Not all of these sites are MPTCs. We will have operational sites in 94 per cent. of the original 66 search areas. This means that 89 per cent. of the population could reach a motorcycle testing site within 45 minutes travelling time. DSA will have 104 locations delivering the on-road test.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the maximum distance learner drivers and motorcyclists should have to travel from their homes in order to take their driving tests. [250922]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given to the hon. Member for Mid-Dorset and North Poole (Annette Brooke) on 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1298W.

Great Western Railway

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the time frame is for the construction of a connection between the Great Western main line and Heathrow Airport from Bristol and the west country. [249693]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport announced on 15 January 2009 that it will work with the airport operator and Network Rail to consider schemes that provide better connections from Heathrow airport to the Great Western main line while maximising the effectiveness of scarce railway paths. Until this work is concluded, it is not possible to determine potential timescales for construction of such schemes nor the destinations which would be served.

Heathrow Airport

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what additional risks have been added to the Heathrow Expansion Risk Register since 9 October 2007; and what the (a) inherent risk, (b) measures in place, (c) residual risk, (d) status and (e) further action are assessed by his Department for each risk; [246775]

(2) what the status is on the most recent edition of the Heathrow Expansion Risk Register of risk (a) 1.1.2, (b) 1.1.6, (c) 1.1.7, (d) 1.2.1, (e) 1.2.2, (f) 1.2.4, (g) 1.3.1, (h) 1.3.6, (i) 1.3.7, (j) 2.1.1, (k) 2.1.2, (l) 2.1.3, (m) 2.1.4, (n) 2.1.5, (o) 2.1.6, (p) 2.1.7, (q) 2.2.1, (r) 2.2.4, (s) 2.2.5, (t) 2.2.6a, (u) 2.2.6b, (v) 2.2.7, (w) 2.2.8, (x) 2.2.9, (y) 2.2.10, (z) 3.1.1, (aa) 3.1.2, (bb) 3.1.3, (cc) 3.13, (dd) 3.2.2, (ee) 3.2.1, (ff) 3.3.1, (gg) 3.3.2, (hh) 3.3.3, (ii) 3.3.5, (jj) 3.3.6 and (kk) 3.3.7 as identified by the numbering on the Heathrow Expansion Risk Register as at October 2008; [246917]

(3) what the most recent edition of the Heathrow Expansion Risk Register records as (a) measures in place and (b) further action required in respect of risk (i) 1.1.2, (ii) 1.1.6, (iii) 1.1.7, (iv) 1.2.1, (v) 1.2.2, (vi) 1.2.4, (vii) 1.3.1, (viii) 1.3.6, (ix) 1.3.7, (x) 2.1.1, (xi) 2.1.2, (xii) 2.1.3, (xiii) 2.1.4, (xiv) 2.1.5, (xv) 2.1.6, (xvi) 2.1.7, (xvii) 2.2.1, (xviii) 2.2.4, (xix) 2.2.5, (xx) 2.2.6a, (xxi) 2.2.6b, (xxii) 2.2.7, (xxiii) 2.2.8, (xxiv) 2.2.9, (xxv) 2.2.10, (xxvi) 3.1.1, (xxvii) 3.1.2, (xxviii) 3.1.3, (xxix) 3.13, (xxx) 3.2.2, (xxxi) 3.2.1, (xxxii) 3.3.1, (xxxiii) 3.3.2, (xxxiv) 3.3.3, (xxxv) 3.3.5, (xxxvi) 3.3.6 and (xxxvii) 3.3.7 as identified by the numbering on the Heathrow Expansion Risk Register as at October 2008; [246918]

(4) what his latest assessment is of the (a) inherent and (b) residual risk for (i) impact and (ii) likelihood of occurrence in respect of risk (A) 1.1.2, (B) 1.1.6, (C) 1.1.7, (D) 1.2.1, (E) 1.2.2, (F) 1.2.4, (G) 1.3.1, (H) 1.3.6, (I) 1.3.7, (J) 2.1.1, (K) 2.1.2, (L) 2.1.3, (M) 2.1.4, (N) 2.1.5, (O) 2.1.6, (P) 2.1.7, (Q) 2.2.1, (R) 2.2.4, (S) 2.2.5, (T) 2.2.6a, (U) 2.2.6b, (V) 2.2.7, (W) 2.2.8, (X) 2.2.9, (Y) 2.2.10, (Z) 3.1.1, (AA) 3.1.2, (BB) 3.1.3, (CC) 3.13, (DD) 3.2.2, (EE) 3.2.1, (FF) 3.3.1, (GG) 3.3.2, (HH) 3.3.3, (II) 3.3.5, (JJ) 3.3.6 and (KK) 3.3.7 as identified by the numbering on the Heathrow Expansion Risk Register as at October 2008; [246919]

(5) with reference to the Heathrow Expansion Risk Register, what change there has been to his Department's assessment of (a) inherent risk, (b) measures in place, (c) residual risk, (d) status and (e) further action required since the October 2008 update to the register in respect of closed risk (i) 1.1.1, (ii) 1.1.3, (iii) 1.1.4, (iv) 1.1.5, (v) 1.2.3, (vi) 1.2.5, (vii) 1.3.2, (viii) 1.3.4, (ix) 1.3.5, (x) 1.4.1, (xi), 1.4.2, (xii) 1.5.1, (xiii) 1.6.1, (xiv) 1.6.2, (xv) 1.6.3, (xvi) 2.2.3 and (xvii) 3.3.4. [246925]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The risk register to which these questions relate was one of the tools used to manage a project which concluded with the publication, on 22 November 2007 of the consultation "Adding Capacity at Heathrow". The project board has not therefore met since October 2007, and no further versions of the risk register were produced after this date.

Heathrow Airport: Railways

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects the proposed high-speed link from Heathrow to Scotland to come into operation. [250919]

Paul Clark: The Government's ambition is for a north-south high-speed rail line from London. As a first stage, the Government believe that there is a strong case for a new line between London and the West Midlands serving a Heathrow international interchange station. Direct high-speed services could make use of the new line and the conventional rail network to serve destinations in the north of England and Scotland, cutting journey times and increasing capacity.

The company, High Speed Two, has been created to advise Ministers on a credible, detailed plan for a new line to the West Midlands, and beyond with specific route options, bv the end of 2009. Until this advice is available, it is not possible to determine when high-speed rail services could come into operation.

Level Crossings: Accidents

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps he is encouraging Network Rail to take to reduce injuries and fatalities to pedestrians and cyclists at level crossings through the introduction of safer surface material. [249328]

Paul Clark: The Office of Rail Regulation, the independent safety regulator for rail, is working to ensure that Network Rail is making proper use of non-slip surfaces to reduce risks to pedestrians and cyclists at level crossings.

More generally the Office of Rail Regulation is reviewing and revising its guidance on level crossings and one aspect of this includes reviewing the provision of non-slip surfaces on level crossings for all crossing users.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department takes to ensure a full record is kept of all incidents at level crossings involving injury to pedestrians and cyclists but where trains are not involved. [249329]

Paul Clark: Under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995 (RIDDOR), the railway industry must report certain injuries to pedestrians and cyclists at level crossings, where trains are not involved, to the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR). Failure to do so can, ultimately, result in prosecution.

If incidents involving pedestrians and cyclists are not brought to the attention of the relevant body, then they will not be reported to the Office of Rail Regulation.

Motor Vehicles: Licensing

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many new vehicles were licensed in each of the last five years; and how many licensed vehicles were sent for scrap in each year. [250746]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of new vehicles licensed at the end of each of the last five years in Great Britain were as follows:

New vehicles licensed at the end of each year

	Number (thousand)
2003	3,081
2004	3,022
2005	2,871
2006	2,752
2007	2,831

Statistics relating to 2008 are not yet available, but are due to be published in April 2009.

Statistics are not held on the number of scrapped vehicles.

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many vehicles were the subject of a statutory off-road notice but not sent for scrap in each of the last five years. [250747]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of registered vehicles subject to a Statutory Off Road Notification (SORN) in each of the last three years were as follows:

Registered vehicles subject to a SORN declaration

	Number (thousand)
2005	1,565
2006	1,691
2007	1,705

Statistics on vehicles subject to a SORN declaration are not held for 2003 and 2004. In addition, statistics relating to 2008 are not yet available, but are due to be published in April 2009.

Statistics are not held on the number of scrapped vehicles.

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by his Department, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250136]

Mr. Hoon: The requested information has been placed in the Library of the House.

Parliamentary Trains

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) on which routes parliamentary trains within the meaning of the Railways Act 1844 are running; [247440]

(2) how many rail replacement bus services are funded directly by his Department. [247441]

Paul Clark [holding answer 14 January 2009]: There are no parliamentary trains within the meaning of the Railways Act 1844.

Mindful of the requirements of relevant legislation, the Department for Transport is currently funding a rail replacement bus service between Ealing Broadway station and Wandsworth Road station. This service, which is a temporary measure until the Department can arrange a replacement rail service in this area, has been operating since 14 December 2008.

Other than the aforementioned service, no rail replacement bus services are directly funded by the Department. London Midland provide rail replacement bus services in place of all trains to Barlaston, Norton Bridge and Wedgewood. The costs for these are part of the overall subsidy payment for the London Midland franchise.

Public Transport: Bus Services

Mr. Kemp: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of people using public bus services in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [250059]

Paul Clark: The following tables show the number of bus passenger journeys in Great Britain for each of the last five years together with the frequency of bus use for British residents.

DFT National Travel Survey

Public Transport: Greater Manchester

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans his Department has for the funds previously earmarked for public transport improvement in Manchester as part of the Transport Innovation Fund bid. [250149]

Paul Clark: The funding previously earmarked for the Greater Manchester Congestion Transport Innovation Fund package will now be made available to other high quality TIF proposals.

Public Transport: Rural Areas

Sir Patrick Cormack: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what grants his Department and its predecessor provided to subsidise public transport in rural areas in England in (a) 2001, (b) 2005 and (c) 2008; and if he will make a statement. [250067]

Paul Clark: The annual totals of grants paid to local authorities under the rural bus subsidy grant (RBSG) and rural bus challenge (RBC) schemes for the relevant financial years are shown in the following table.

£ million

	RBSG	RBC
2001-02	41.2	12.1
2005-06	53.0	12.3
2008-09[1]	[2]157.0	[3]2.0

[1] Paid to local authorities as part of their area-based grant.

[2] Allocation.

[3] Estimated.

In addition, local authorities support rural transport services using funds from the unhypothecated revenue support grant and local bus service operators, including those in rural areas, receive bus service operators grant from this Department.

Rural railways are funded as part of franchises covering both rural and urban areas or by grants to Network Rail which operates both rural and non rural railway. No separate figures are available for rural rail support.

Railway Stations: Parking

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will investigate car parking charge increases which have taken place over the last three years at railway station car parks; and if he will make a statement. [250152]

Paul Clark: There are no plans to investigate increases in station car parking charges, which are a matter either for Network Rail at its managed stations or for the relevant train operating company at the franchised stations.

Railways: Repairs and Maintenance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance his Department gives to rail maintenance companies with regard to (a) damage to highways and (b) disturbance to residents during anti-social hours, with particular reference to the West Coast Main Line at Hampton-in-Arden. [249644]

Paul Clark: This is an operational matter for Network Rail as the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member may consider contacting Network Rail's chief executive at the following address:

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive Network Rail Kings Place
90 York Way
London, N1 9AG.

Railways: Subsidies

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been paid in subsidies from the public purse to the rail network in each financial year since privatisation. [250072]

Paul Clark: Historic Government support to the rail industry is published by the Office of Rail Regulation in National Rail Trends. Copies are available in the Library of the House and the data and accompanying notes are also available on the Office of Rail Regulation's website at the following address:

http://www.rail-reg.gov.uk/upload/xls/nrt-tables-6miscell111208.xls

Road Traffic Control

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what guidance his Department (a) has recently produced and (b) plans to produce for local authorities on their enforcement of box junction offences; and if he will make a statement. [250222]

Paul Clark: The enforcement of box junctions in London is carried out under legislation promoted by the relevant local authorities. The Secretary of State has, therefore, no specific powers under which to produce guidance. The remaining provisions in part 6 of the Traffic Management Act 2004—which include the power to enforce box junctions—will be brought into force in due course with regulations. These will be accompanied by statutory guidance setting out the matters to which local authorities using the powers must have regard.

The Department for Transport has been discussing the timing and implementation of these powers with the Local Government Association, and our decisions will be informed by the outcome of their soundings with their membership.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the duties are of (a) traffic managers and (b) local traffic authorities with regard to (i) responding to and (ii) preventing traffic gridlock; what guidance his Department has issued on this issue; and what plans he has to issue such guidance in the next 12 months. [250227]

Paul Clark: Local traffic authorities have a statutory responsibility (Network Management Duty) to secure the expeditious movement of traffic and to facilitate the same on the networks of others. The Traffic Manager is responsible for carrying out this function. The formal duties are laid out in sections 16 and 17 of the Traffic Management Act 2004.

The Department for Transport has published 'Network Management Duty Guidance' and 'Guidance on Intervention Criteria' to help Traffic Managers understand and implement the duty. These came into force in December 2004 and 12 March 2007 respectively. Currently there are no plans to issue further guidance in this area.

Road Traffic Control: Cameras

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the (a) locations and (b) roads in (i) the Metropolitan Police area of London, (ii) Essex and (iii) Hertfordshire are where box junction cameras (A) are in place and (B) will be in place within the next 12 months for the purpose of monitoring vehicles for offences other than speeding. [250223]

Paul Clark: This information is not kept by the Department for Transport. In London, the enforcement of box junction markings is undertaken mainly by local traffic authorities in accordance with their powers in the London Local Authorities and Transport for London Act 2003. Those powers include the option of using cameras to enforce. Outside London, box junction enforcement is the responsibility of the appropriate police authority.

Road Works: Injuries

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people working on roadworks have been (a) killed and (b) seriously injured in each of the last five years. [250929]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following table gives the numbers of fatal accidents and major injuries that have occurred to those working on the Highways Agency's road network in the last five years. There have been no further accidents of these types this year.

	Fatal accidents	Major injury accidents	Total accidents
2005	5	12	17
2006	2	21	23
2007	0	14	14
2008	1	12	14
Total	10	76	86

Information on road worker casualties on roads that are the responsibility of local highways authorities is not collected by the Department for Transport.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many pedestrians have been (a) injured, (b) seriously injured and (c) killed in collisions with (i) cars, (ii) all motor vehicles and (iii) cyclists in each of the last 10 years. [250454]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of pedestrians that were (a) injured, (b) seriously injured and (c) killed in collisions with (i) cars (ii) all motor vehicles and (iii) cyclists in reported personal injury road accidents in each of the last 10 years are given in the table:

Rolling Stock

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much rolling stock operates on (a) Northern Rail, (b) London Midland and (c) franchises providing commuter services in London and the South East. [250717]

Paul Clark: The quantity of rolling stock operating on Northern Rail, London Midland and franchises providing commuter services in London and the South East is outlined in the following table.

Operator	Number of passenger vehicles in service December 2008
(a) Northern	663
(b) London Midland	508
(c) c2c	296
NXEA	1,039
FCC	659
Chiltern	156
FGW	609
SWT	1,339
Southern	1,141
South Eastern	1,328

Sea Rescue: Devon

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the reasons are for the time taken to initiate a consultation process following the suspension of the Hope Cove lifeboat by the Maritime and Coastguard Agency. [250216]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Maritime and Coastguard Agency is developing a local consultation which considers the search and rescue provision across a wide area of the South West Peninsular rather than just the provision at Hope Cove. I will be writing shortly to the hon. Member about the plans for local consultation.

Speed Limits: Accidents

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what evidence his Department holds on the effectiveness in reducing accidents of (a) 20 miles per hour zones and (b) other speed restrictions. [250877]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There exists a wide range of research which identifies the link between vehicle speed and accident risk. This answer identifies the key papers.

The Transport Research Laboratory conducted two reviews of 20 mph zones in 1996 and in 1998.

Both reports showed that 20 mph zones with traffic calming achieved an average 9 mph reduction in vehicle speeds and a 60 per cent. reduction in accidents whereas in those areas where there was little or no traffic calming, reductions in vehicle speeds were minimal.

For speed restrictions more generally, the Transport Research Laboratory published a review of non-UK studies in 1994 which established a link between vehicle speed and the risk of accidents. This indicated that, in broad terms, a 1 mph reduction in average speed can reduce accident risk by around 5 per cent.

In 2000 the Transport Research Laboratory published a report investigating whether this general rule could be applied to different types of UK roads and to further understand the relationship between vehicle speed and accident frequency.

The report concluded that for each 1 mph reduction in average speed the percentage reduction in accident frequency is between 2 and 7 per cent. depending on vehicle speeds and the nature and layout of the road.

Transport: Finance

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if his Department will commission research into the effects of public spending on capital projects and programmes in respect of different modes of transport in stimulating economic activity. [250715]

Mr. Hoon: In 2006 the Department for Transport published the Eddington Transport Study. The study reviewed a broad range of evidence to understand how transport can contribute to economic success. The study highlighted transport's pivotal role in supporting the UK's future economic success. The study is published on the internet at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/about/strategy/transportstrategy/eddingtonstudy

The Department has a comprehensive appraisal framework[1] that is used to assess the costs and benefits of proposed transport schemes across all modes. It includes an 'Economy Objective' concerned with improving the economic efficiency of transport, with a sub objective to provide beneficial wider economic impacts.

The appraisal framework builds on a broad base of evidence and research, including work produced for the Eddington Study. It builds in evidence on the value of time saved and reliability gains to businesses, which are important for economic efficiency. Recent evidence on the contribution of transport to national productivity, such as through transport's impact on the efficiency and effectiveness of the labour market is also being incorporated into the assessment framework for schemes.

The Department is currently undertaking research to develop an approach for evaluating the productivity effects of transport schemes, ex post (i.e. after they have been delivered). This forms part of longer term work to generate robust evidence about the actual effects of key transport schemes on business productivity.

Waterloo Station

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects platform 20 at Waterloo Station to re-open for train services; and what services will be provided from that platform. [248331]

Paul Clark: Network Rail has now completed the works to convert platform 20 of Waterloo International for domestic usage. The Department for Transport is engaged with South West Trains seeking to reach agreement whereby they would operate train services into the platform.

Written Questions: Administrative Delays

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to reply to Questions (a) 246918, (b) 246917, (c) 246775 and (d) 246919, on the Heathrow Expansion Risk Register, tabled on 18 December. [251347]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A reply has been given to the hon. Member today.

OLYMPICS

Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many former prisoners are employed by her Office; and what her Office's policy is on the employment of former prisoners. [246354]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 872W.

Olympic Delivery Authority

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister for the Olympics if she will place in the Library a copy of the most recent edition of the Olympic Delivery Authority's (a) register of board member interests and (b) register of gifts and hospitality. [250198]

Tessa Jowell: In accordance with its management statement and its commitment to comply with its obligations under the Freedom of Information Act:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/
Freedom_of_Information_Act>2000

the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) has made its register of board members' interests and its gifts and hospitality register publicly available.

The most recent editions of: the ODA's register of board members' interests (quarter ending September 2008), and the ODA's corporate hospitality register (July- September 2008), are available on the London 2012 website. I will have copies placed in the Library of both Houses.

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics pursuant to the answer of 15 January 2008, Official Report, column 879W on Olympic Games 2012: construction, what RAG rating has been applied to the (a) budgetary and (b) timescale elements of the Olympics construction programme in each of the last six months. [250377]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 22 January 2009]: It is not our policy to release the RAG ratings contained in confidential reports to the Olympic Board as, in isolation, they could be misinterpreted. When reporting to the Olympic Board, RAG ratings reflect the risks that exist, as well as progress to date, and these have recently focused primarily on financial challenges as a consequence of the current economic situation, as reflected in my statement of 22 January. Construction works over the last six months have continued to be delivered within the budget and on programme.

Olympic Games 2012: Facilities

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics on what date construction began on (a) the Olympic Stadium and (b) the Olympic Village. [250269]

Tessa Jowell: The Olympic Delivery Authority began construction of the Olympic Stadium in May 2008, two and a half months ahead of schedule, and of the Olympic Village in June 2008.

Olympic Games 2012: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics pursuant to the answer of 15 January 2008, Official Report, column 879W on Olympic Games 2012: finance, what level of contingency was (a) requested and (b) granted in relation to the (i) additional seating requirements in the handball arena and (ii) the additional building works in the Olympic Stadium. [250376]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 22 January 2009]: The details of contingency releases to date will be contained in the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games annual report, due to be published next month, and in subsequent quarterly financial updates.

Olympic Lottery

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much the Olympic Lottery scratch cards had raised at the latest date for which figures are available; and when she expects the operator to reach its target of £750 million. [251020]

Barbara Follett: I have been asked to reply.

The National Lottery Commission have advised that as of 28 November 2008, designated Olympic lottery games have raised half of the £750 million target, and are on track to reach £750 million by 2012.

The National Lottery Commission compiles a quarterly report detailing the level of funds that have been transferred to the National Lottery Distribution Fund and the Oylmpic Lottery Distribution Fund, the next of which will be published on 11 February 2009 and will be available at the following weblink:

www.natlotcomm.gov.uk.

Olympic Park: Roads

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics on what date the construction of the temporary roads and bridges required for traffic access to the Olympic Park was completed. [250267]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1255W.

SCOTLAND

Navy: Ports

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland if he will hold discussions with the Secretary of State for Defence on the future use of Scottish ports by the Royal Navy. [250347]

Ann McKechin: Scotland Office Ministers are in regular contact with Ministry of Defence Ministers on a range of issues.

WALES

Departmental Manpower

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many members of staff are employed in his Department's media and communications team; when each member of staff was recruited; what the responsibilities of each member of staff are; and what the salary of each member of staff is. [248513]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office has three members of staff employed in the media and communications team who are involved in a range of communication activities:

the Chief Press Officer recruited on 2 October 2006;

Senior Information Officer on 8 January 2007; and Information Officer on 15 December 2008.

Salary information for individual staff is confidential and cannot be provided.

Departmental Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and how much was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [249860]

Mr. Paul Murphy: No bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working in the Wales Office in 2007 or 2008.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Antisocial Behaviour

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many anti-social behaviour orders were issued in each court area in Northern Ireland in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008. [251271]

Paul Goggins: The number of antisocial behaviour orders reported to the Northern Ireland Office by the relevant authorities is set out by court area and year in the following table.

Court Area	2005	2006	2007	2008	Total

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247373]

Mr. Woodward: Details of funding provided by the Northern Ireland Office to charities and voluntary organisations can be found in the 'Government Funding Database' which is located at the following address:

www.volcomgrantsni.gov.uk.

This database allows public access to grant awards made by the Northern Ireland Office and the NI departments. The information spans a number of financial years and is updated regularly by each department.

Departmental Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248706]

Mr. Woodward: The Department does not operate a reward and recognition scheme. Staff performance is recognised through the NIO's bonus arrangements.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249130]

Mr. Woodward: Of the 1,477[1] questions received by my Department, from the beginning of 2008 until the end of the Session, only 24 received no answer on the grounds of disproportionate cost. This represents less than 0.02 per cent. of the total.

If a question is deemed to exceed the threshold it is my Department's policy to provide whatever information it can, if available, within that threshold.

[1] These figures cover questions tabled in both the House of Commons and House of Lords, including oral questions in the House of Commons. They exclude transferred or withdrawn questions.

Ireland: Official Visits

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions in 2008 the President of the Irish Republic visited Northern Ireland; and which official UK representative met her on each visit. [248933]

Paul Goggins: The President of the Irish Republic has visited Northern Ireland to conduct private working visits on 13 occasions during 2008. I have outlined the locations and confirmed the official UK representative who met the President on each occasion:

(1) Visit to Co. Down on 28 January and met by William Hall, Lord Lieutenant of Co. Down;

(2) Visit to Belfast on 8 February and met by Lady Carswell, Lord Lieutenant for the County Borough of Belfast;

(3) Visit to Co. Antrim, Co. Londonderry and Co. Tyrone on 20 February and met by Sheelagh Hillan, Deputy Lord Lieutenant of Co. Antrim;

(4) Visit to Armagh on 5t March and met by the right hon. the Earl of Caledon, Lord Lieutenant of Co. Armagh;

(5) Visit to Belfast on 18 March and 19 of March and met by Commander Keith Cochrane, Vice Lord Lieutenant for the County Borough of Belfast;

(6) Visit to Co. Down on 3 April and met by David Shillington, Deputy Lord Lieutenant of Co. Down;

(7) Visit to Londonderry on 29 May and met by Denis Desmond, Lord Lieutenant of Co. Londonderry;

(8) Visit to Londonderry on 10 June and met by Denis Desmond, Lord Lieutenant of Co. Londonderry;

(9) Visit to Belfast on 29 June and met by Lady Carswell, Lord Lieutenant for the County Borough of Belfast;

(10) Visit to Co. Tyrone on 17 September and met by Denis Desmond, Lord Lieutenant of Co. Londonderry (greeted at Derry City Airport);

(11) Visit to the City of Derry on 4 October and met by Donal Keegan, Lord Lieutenant of the City of Londonderry;

(12) Visit to Co. Down on 23 October and met by Commander Keith Cochrane, Deputy Lord Lieutenant for the County Borough of Belfast;

(13) Visit to Belfast on 18 November and met by Lady Carswell, Lord Lieutenant for the County Borough of Belfast.

Offensive Weapons

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what quantity of (a) firearms, (b) ammunition, (c) explosives and (d) detonators was discovered in Northern Ireland in 2008. [250826]

Paul Goggins: This is an operational matter for the Chief Constable. I have asked him to reply to the hon. Member directly, and I will arrange for a copy of the letter to be placed in the Library of the House.

Reparation By Offenders

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what methodology is used to (a) monitor the progress made by and (b) measure the outcome for those participating in community restorative justice schemes funded by his Department. [250827]

Paul Goggins: The Government protocol under which community-based restorative justice schemes are accredited provides that a multi-agency review panel, representative of key criminal justice organisations, will have responsibility for case monitoring, outcome reviews and the overall assessment of the effectiveness of specific interventions for particular categories of offence and offender. Additionally, the protocol provides that accredited schemes will also be subject to inspection by Criminal Justice Inspection Northern Ireland who will have access to all records of protocol activity undertaken by schemes to ensure that the prescribed standards are being maintained.

Security

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the security situation in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [248994]

Paul Goggins: The 20th IMC report underlines the very significant progress that Northern Ireland has made towards a more normal society; however, dissident Republicans remain active and committed to killing or injuring police officers. They are isolated within the wider community and I have every confidence in the PSNI's ability to deal with the threat they pose. The extension of the decommissioning scheme provides loyalists with a final opportunity to signal their commitment to move forward and give up their weapons. This scheme does not cut across continuing PSNI efforts to find and remove illegal weapons.

Weapons: Northern Ireland

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland for what reasons the Government has extended the deadline for loyalist paramilitary decommissioning. [248362]

Paul Goggins: The Government remain committed to removing illegal weapons from Northern Ireland society.

The Secretary of State would not have sought an extension to the scheme unless he believed there was a reasonable prospect of decommissioning in the coming period. The scheme applies only in restricted circumstances to those who have reached agreement with the IICD on the process of decommissioning. It does not cut across continuing PSNI efforts to find and remove illegal weapons.

Witnesses: Protection

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the budget for the Key Persons Protection Scheme in Northern Ireland was in each of the last two years. [251272]

Paul Goggins: Admissions to the key persons protection scheme ceased on 31 October 2006 and was replaced by the limited home protection scheme.

Expenditure on the limited home protection scheme in the last two years is as follows:

As at 1 April to 31 March each year	Expenditure on the scheme (£ million)
2007-08	[1]2.149
2008-09	[2]1.655

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer of 14 January 2009, Official Report, columns 738-39W, on Iraq and Afghanistan: peacekeeping operations, what the reasons are for the four-month period between the withdrawal of Merlin helicopters from Iraq and their planned redeployment to operations in Afghanistan. [25021[illegible]]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 22 January 2009]: It is essential that all personnel are fully trained for the demanding operational conditions in Afghanistan ahead of any deployment. The majority of the preparation for the redeployment of Merlin from Iraq to Afghanistan is taking place while the Merlin Force remains committed to Iraq. However, certain key aspects of the flying training cannot be conducted until the equipment deployed in Iraq is released from theatre.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to replace the Harrier aircraft currently operating in south west Afghanistan. [251239]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the answers given on 17 November 2008, Official Report, columns 134W and 136W, to the hon. Member for North-East Milton Keynes (Mr. Lancaster).

Aircraft Carriers

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consideration has been given to the deployment of unmanned aerial vehicles from the future aircraft carriers. [247172]

Mr. Quentin Davies [holding answer 14 January 2009]: We keep our requirements under constant review and are conducting studies into the potential requirement for unmanned aerial systems including maritime systems. So far, this work has not specifically focused on the use of any particular maritime platform such as the future aircraft carrier.

Armed Forces: Health

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required, (b) actual and (c) actual personnel medically fit for purpose total is for (i) each battalion of the infantry (ii) 1 Rifles, (iii) 40 Commando Royal Marines, (iv) 42 Commando Royal Marines and (v) 45 Commando Royal Marines. [250402]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 22 January 2009]: The figures requested for the infantry are shown in the following table:

Div	Unit	Required strength	Actual strength	Fit for purpose strength
Guards	1 Grenadier Guards	632	549	502
	1 Coldstream Gds	626	511	511

	3 Para	648	662	660
RGR	1 Royal Gurkha Rifles	643	739	720
	2 Royal Gurkha Rifles	758	925	896

In addition to the battalions shown above there are three incremental guards companies which are primarily for public duties but which can also be used to augment the other guards battalions as required:

Unit	Required strength	Actual strength	Fit for purpose strength
N Coy Grenadier Gds	108	109	105
7 Coy Coldstream Gds	108	90	90
F Coy Scots Guards	108	108	105

The figures in both tables include personnel filling all roles within each battalion, not just infantrymen. "Fit for purpose" has been interpreted as fit for primary role.

The figures for the Royal Marines Commandos Units specified are as follows:

Unit	Required strength	Actual strength	Fit for purpose strength
40 Cdo RM	703	555	521
42 Cdo RM	703	703	649
45 Cdo RM	703	824	790

Armed Forces: Manpower

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 17, what the evidential basis is for his statement that there has been an overall improvement in recent times; and if he will place in the Library all relevant figures on harmony guidelines. [248398]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Maintaining Harmony helps to relieve the stress and burden on our armed forces and their families. Consequently, the Service Chiefs expend considerable effort in increasing intervals between operational tours intervals and maintaining the Harmony Guidelines. As I stated in the House on 12 January 2009, breaches of the Harmony Guidelines have decreased, albeit not as quickly as I would have hoped for, but I am confident that the trend is heading in the right direction and that the Service Chiefs have measures in place to monitor and address the breaches while maintaining operational capability. The first table following gives an indication of mean unit tour intervals, which shows that the Royal Artillery, Royal Signals and the Royal Logistic Corps units are suffering greater commitment than most. However, the unit tour interval does not reflect the degree of trickle posting of personnel through these units or how much separation an individual incurs.

	Average tour interval
	2007				2008
	September	October	November	December	January	February	March	April	May	June
Infantry	23	22	22	23	23	23	23	27	27	24
RAC	24.1	24	24	26	26	26	26	26	26	25
RA	19.1	18.5	18.5	18.5	18.5	18.5	18.5	21	21	21
RE	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9	26.9
R SIGNALS	19.6	19.6	19.6	19.6	19.6	19.6	19.6	19.6	19.6	19.6
RLC	15	15	15	15	15	15	15	15	15	15

The second table identifies the level of separation (Harmony), which incorporates all activities, such as training, support to operations and courses that take service personnel away from their family and friends.

The current levels of Individual Harmony show that:

Less than 1 per cent. of Royal Navy/Royal Marines personnel were in breach of the single service guidelines.

Owing to the introduction of the Joint Personnel Administration system, it is not possible at present to identify the exact level of breach of the Harmony Guidelines in the Army. Validated data will not be available until January 2010 but, for administrative purposes, the percentage is currently being held at 10.3 per cent. the last figure in which we can have confidence before the introduction of the new system. However, every effort is being made by all levels of the chain of command to ensure that soldiers are not overly committed.

The level of RAF breaches shows a significant drop from 9.4 per cent. to 6.1 per cent. The degree of change has been brought about by an amendment to the reporting criteria. The RAF Harmony Guideline has changed from 140 days separation in a 12-month period to 280 days in a 24-month period. Without increasing the level of separation commanders now have greater flexibility to deploy personnel on career courses, education and adventure training without breaking the Harmony Guideline.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many full-time equivalent (a) military and (b) civilian personnel are employed at the headquarters of each UK-based regional brigade. [250084]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested is shown in the following table:

Brigade	Military posts	Civilian posts
15 (North East) Brigade	46	46
42 (North West) Brigade	33	53
51 (Scottish) Brigade	34	47
2 (South East) Brigade	26	44
43 (Wessex) Brigade	34	59
145 (South) Brigade	33	42
49 (East) Brigade	40	39
143 (West Midlands) Brigade	47	56
160 (Wales) Brigade	36	56
38 (Irish) Brigade	100	171

Military numbers include posts filled by non regular permanent staff and full-time reserve service personnel working alongside regular Army personnel.

Civilian numbers include some posts which are filled by contracted personnel who are not civil servants. Some of these posts may not be currently filled.

38 (Irish) Brigade figures are not in line with a typical regional brigade pending the full implementation of Northern Ireland normalisation plans.

Armed Forces: South Georgia

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the Royal Navy stations any vessels in the region surrounding South Georgia and the Sandwich Islands. [250288]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are no Royal Navy vessels permanently stationed near South Georgia and the South Sandwich Islands. There are regular patrols in this area by the Falkland Islands Patrol Vessel, HMS Clyde, and the Atlantic Patrol Task (South). Visits would also normally include the Antarctic patrol and survey vessel in the austral summer (HMS Endurance). Regular air and land patrols also take place.

The South Georgia and South Sandwich Islands Government also have their own fisheries protection vessel, MV Pharos.

Army: Labour Turnover

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the (a) inflow and (b) outflow rates of each army infantry battalion were in each month of 2008; [249727]

(2) what the (a) inflow and (b) outflow rates of each army corps were in each month of 2008. [249728]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Information broken down by each Infantry Battalion is not held centrally and is therefore currently unavailable. Flows information by Army Service is not currently available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, the inflow to the trained strength of the total army can be found in Table 4 of Tri-Service Publication four UK Armed Forces Quarterly Manning Report and the outflow from the trained strength of the total army can be found in Table 6 of Tri-Service Publication four which can be viewed on the DASA web at the following link:

Athena Mechanism

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what changes have been made to the Athena mechanism in the last six months. [249697]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: A number of changes have been made to the Athena mechanism in the last six months. The resulting revised Athena mechanism document 16561/08 dated 16 December 2008 has been published and can be found within the Council of the European Union's website at:

http://register.consilium.europa.eu/pdf/en/08/st16/st16561.en08.pdf.

I can confirm that the UK was successful in delivering our key goal of ensuring that the eligibility for common funding remained within previously agreed levels.

AWE Burghfield

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what evidence his Department holds on the safety of airborne particulate debris arising from the functioning of the Main Process Facility at AWE Burghfield. [249007]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The release of radioactive material to the environment is regulated by the Environment Agency (EA) under the Radioactive Substances Act 1993 (RSA93). Under this regulatory regime, the Atomic Weapons Establishment (AWE) has an authorisation, issued by the EA, which places various requirements and limits on AWE operations, including those associated with the main process facility for the assembly/disassembly of nuclear warheads at AWE Burghfield.

The methodology used by AWE and accepted by the EA is based on air sampling and modelling and shows that actual discharges are well within safe levels i.e. those required by legislation. Sampling results are reported regularly by AWE plc to the EA and to the Ministry of Defence.

The EA is content that radioactive releases from the existing AWE Burghfield facility would have negligible impact upon the environment, even at the maximum permissible release limits as set out in the AWE Burghfield RSA93 Authorisation. The proposed replacement facility will be required to operate under the same regulatory regime and it is anticipated that radioactive releases from the proposed replacement facility will be no higher than the already negligible releases from the existing facility.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the risk from activity in the gravel gerties to (a) building workers, (b) other on-site workers and (c) the general public is below the basic safety objectives in the Burghfield assembly facility. [248811]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The basis for demonstrating the safe operation of nuclear facilities is that the requirements of good practice in engineering, operation and safety management are met. Risks from activities in the gravel gerties have to meet the legal requirement to be As Low As Reasonably Practicable (ALARP). There are also in place numerical risk targets defined by the independent nuclear safety regulator, the Health and Safety Executive's Nuclear Installations Inspectorate (NII).

When compared to these numerical targets, risks for building workers lie between the Basic Safety Objective and the Basic Safety Level and have been assessed to be ALARP. The risks for other on-site workers and the public are below the Basic Safety Objective. An ongoing programme of work in the gravel gerties, agreed with the NII, continues to drive risks down further. The NII is satisfied with this strategy and that operations continue to be completed safely.

Defence Equipment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the McKinsey and Co study, "Transforming the UK's Defence Procurement System". [249720]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Yes. I will arrange for a copy to be placed in the Library of the House.

Defence Management Board

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of (a) Defence Board (08) Paper 03, Strategic Risk—Making The Defence Case, (b) Defence Board (08), Paper 02, Strategic Review of Remuneration, (c) Defence Board (08), Paper 10, Typhoon Tranche 3 and Future Support, (d) Defence Board (08) Paper 13, Corporate Manslaughter and Homicide Legislation, (e) Defence Board (08) Paper 17, Balanced Scorecard and (f) Defence Board (08) Paper 47, Departmental Management of International Acquisition; [249698]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of (a) Defence Management Board DMB (07) Paper 24, Defence Attaches Review, (b) DMB (07) 25, The Future of NAAFI, (c) DMB (07) 28, Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide, (d) DMB (07) 28, Maximising Defence Capability Through R and D, (e) DMB (07) 46, Managing Our Military Strategic Balance 2, (f) DMB (07) 57, the Future of NAAFI, (g) DMB (07) 58, Update on Maximising Defence Capability Through R and D, (h) DMB (07) 58, Update on Maximising Defence Capability Through R and D and (i) DMB (07) 60, Pay Strategy 2008; [249710]

(3) what Defence Management Board papers were taken in 2008; [249711]

(4) if he will place in the Library a copy of (a) Defence Management Board (07) Paper 11 Crown Immunity, (b) Defence Management Board (07) Paper 12 Maximising Benefit from Defence Research, (c) Defence Management Board (07) Paper 13 Crown Immunity in Defence, (d) Defence Management Board (07) Paper 15 Comprehensive Spending Review 07—Value for Money Reviews, (e) Defence Management Board (07) Paper 16 Science and Technology Rapid Assistance to Operations (STRATOS), (f) Defence Management Board (07) Paper 33 DMB Involvement with Investment Approval Decisions and (g) Defence Management Board (07) Paper 34 Defence Balanced Scorecard Revision. [249712]

Mr. Hutton: The Defence Management Board was renamed the Defence Board in early 2008. It is the main corporate board of the MOD, providing strategic level leadership and strategic management of Defence, with responsibility to Ministers for the full range of Defence business, other than the conduct of operations.

It is a forum in which judgments about advice to Ministers are made, policy formulated, and issues relating to defence, national security and international relations (including some involving classified information, commercial and legal advice) are discussed. It is important that there should be a free and frank exchange of views. Accordingly, most of the papers it considers cannot be released.

However, reports on "Maximising Benefit from Defence Research" and "Maximising Defence Capability Through R and D", which formed the basis of Defence Management Board papers (06)12 and (07)30 are publicly available on the MOD website. I have placed in the Library of the House copies of Defence Management Board papers (06)34 "Defence Balanced Scorecard Revision" and (07)58 "Update on Maximising Defence Capability Through R and D" and Defence Board paper (08)13 "Corporate Manslaughter and Homicide Legislation".

Lists of the papers taken by the Defence Board in 2008 and of those taken by the Defence Management Board in previous years are published on the MOD's website, together with meeting agendas and unclassified summaries of conclusions.

Defence: Military Aircraft

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many fixed-wing aircraft serve as (a) transport and troop carriers and (b) air refuelling craft; and where each such aircraft is based. [250085]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The aircraft that comprise the air transport and air to air refuelling fleets are in the following table.

Aircraft	Role	Base
Hercules C130K	Air Transport	RAF Lyneham
Hercules C130J	Air Transport	RAF Lyneham
C-17 Globemaster	Air Transport	RAF Brize Norton
VC10	Dual-role Air Transport and Air to Air Refuelling	RAF Brize Norton
Tristar	Dual-role Air Transport and Air to Air Refuelling	RAF Brize Norton

Communications and training aircraft have been excluded.

For the aircraft numbers, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 105W, to the hon. Member for Woodspring (Dr. Fox).

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Tranche 3 Eurofighter Typhoon aircraft are on order for (a) Saudi Arabia, (b) Japan and (c) the UK; and if he will make a statement. [250091]

Mr. Quentin Davies: There are currently no Tranche 3 Eurofighter Typhoon aircraft on order for any nation.

Departmental Air Travel

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend, East of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 253W, on departmental air travel, whether staff who travel in a cheaper class than that to which they are entitled receive a (a) personal and (b) pecuniary benefit from doing so. [250049]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Ministry of Defence or Defence Agency staff entitled to first or business class air travel may travel at a lower class if they wish. Where employees travel outside their entitlement, they receive no personal or pecuniary benefit for doing so.

Departmental Fuels

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what volume of (a) petrol, (b) diesel, (c) aviation fuel and (d) other fuels derived from petroleum his Department consumed in (i) 2005-06, (ii) 2006-07 and (iii) 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [249634]

Mr. Quentin Davies: As MOD central financial systems do not record total fuels consumption, this information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Figures are, however, available for marine fuels consumed (including fuels for operations) by UK gallon and are set out in the following table:

UK gallon

	Financial year
Fuel type	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
F-76 (marine diesel)	50,127,440	48,431,460	49,506,380
MGO (marine gasoil)	6,421,140	9,632,920	11,299,200
F-44 (marine aviation)	3,132,360	2,633,400	2,574,220

Some figures are also available for the amount purchased by UK gallon of aviation and ground fuels and these are set out in the following table:

UK gallon

	Financial year
Fuel type	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Avtur F-35 (aviation turbine)	138,991,189	152,765,198	131,781,498
ULGAS F-67 (unleaded petrol)	1,766,740	1,712,115	[1]—
Dieso F-54 (road diesel)	13,276,872	12,219,604	13,450,000

[1] Figure not yet available.

The figures in this table exclude fuel card purchases and some refuelling arrangements with other nations. Moreover, they do not include fuel for use on operations as non-marine fuels are obtained by arrangement with NATO and the United States.

Departmental ICT

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer of 24 November 2008 to the hon. Member for Chesterfield, Official Report, columns 897-8W, on departmental ICT, (1) how many of the principal operators of the (a) 65 memory sticks lost or stolen from his Department in 2008 and (b) 11 memory sticks recovered by his Department in 2008, had security clearance to enable then to access (i) confidential, (ii) secret and (iii) top secret information; [249502]

(2) how many of the principal operators of the (a) 120 laptops lost or stolen from his Department in 2008 and (b) 26 laptop computers recovered by his Department in 2008, had security clearance to enable then to access (i) confidential, (ii) secret and (iii) top secret information; [249503]

(3) how many of the principal operators of the (a) 12 desktop computers lost or stolen from his Department in 2008 and (b) the desktop computer recovered by his Department in 2008, had security clearance to enable then to access (i) confidential, (ii) secret and (iii) top secret information; [249504]

(4) how many of the principal operators of the (a) 74 hard drives lost or stolen from his Department in 2008 and (b) five hard drives recovered by his Department in 2008, had security clearance to enable then to access (i) confidential, (ii) secret and (iii) top secret information. [249505]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer of 12 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1176-77W, on departmental manpower, whether civilian staff who are allocated to the redeployment pool are required to relocate to (a) permanent and (b) temporary positions in specific parts of the country. [250043]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Generally, full-time civilian staff at band D and equivalent and above have a full mobility obligation. All part-time staff and those below band D have a minimum mobility obligation, within the travel to work area. All civilian staff, whether in the redeployment pool or not, may be required to transfer within the terms of their mobility obligation, which may be to a permanent or temporary position.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many mobile telephones (a) were reported as lost or stolen from and (b) have since been recovered by (i) his Department and (ii) each of its agencies in each year since 2003. [249501]

Mr. Kevan Jones: MOD units are not required to report centrally incidents of loss or theft of mobile phones. The information requested therefore could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

EC Defence Policy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what changes in EU defence policy took place during the 2008 French Presidency. [250244]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the Explanatory Memorandum (EM number 30250) submitted for parliamentary scrutiny by the Minister for Europe on the presidency report of the European Security and Defence Policy. This EM was placed in the Library of the House on 10 December 2008 and sets out the HMG view on developments and changes for the European Security and Defence Policy that took place during the French presidency of the EU.

EU Battlegroups

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost to his Department of providing Britain's commitment to the EU Battlegroup was between July and December 2008. [249742]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the answers my predecessor gave on 16 June 2008, Official Report, column 278W, and 2 June 2008, Official Report, column 681W. The UK EU Battlegroup did not deploy and hence there were no additional deployment-related costs to the UK.

Ex-servicemen: Radiation Exposure

Mr. Cash: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent representations he has received from veterans who were present at the nuclear tests which took place in and around Malden Island in the 1950s; if he will make compensation payments to such veterans whose health was affected by the tests; and if he will make a statement. [250209]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 22 January 2009]: I refer the hon. Member to the replies I gave today to the hon. Member for Blaenau Gwent (Mr. Davies) and to the hon. Member for South Holland and The Deepings (Mr. Hayes).

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent representations his Department has received from the British Nuclear Test Veterans' Association (BNTVA) over claims for compensation from such veterans; and what the outcome was of his most recent meeting with the BNTVA to discuss compensation. [248784]

Mr. Kevan Jones: In December 2008 I received a letter signed by the Chairman of the BNTVA John Lowe, the hon. Member for Billericay (Mr. Baron) and my hon. Friend hon. the Member for Norwich, North (Dr. Gibson). That letter set out a case for an end to the atomic veterans litigation and for payment of damages to "nuclear test veterans and their affected offspring". While I have considered the points made, the Ministry of Defence has seen no general evidence of damage to nuclear test veterans' health, and therefore in my view the atomic veterans litigation must proceed at the High Court. I will place a copy of that letter and my reply in the Library of the House.

I do, however, take the concerns of our nuclear test veterans very seriously. For that reason, I met with representatives of the BNTVA, John Baron and Ian Gibson in October 2008 to discuss taking forward a study into the health of the offspring of nuclear test veterans. Officials also met the BNTVA and John Baron on 4 December 2008 to discuss preliminary scientific and ethical considerations that may be relevant to such a study. Both meetings were in clear agreement that compensation should not be discussed in advance of the forthcoming legal case. The Ministry of Defence has received no other recent representations from the BNTVA concerned with claims for compensation.

We are currently arranging a follow-on meeting to include the BNTVA and scientific experts, to take place as soon as practicable.

Future Large Aircraft

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what progress has been made on the position of the A400M project; and if he will make a statement; [249608]

(2) what the expected delivery dates for the A400M aircraft are; whether the aircraft will meet the Royal Air Force's heavy lift requirement needs; what recent discussions his officials have had with Airbus on the project; and if he will make a statement. [249609]

Mr. Quentin Davies: A contract for the development and production of the A400M aircraft was signed with Airbus Military on 27 May 2003 by the Organisation for Joint Armaments Co-operation (OCCAR) on behalf of participating nations (Germany, France, Spain, Belgium, Luxembourg, Turkey and the UK). The UK offtake is 25 aircraft from a total order of 180. The A400M is proving to be a challenging programme, and several delays and programme slips have been announced. Most recently, EADS/Airbus Military announced a slow down in production and that the first flight of the A400M prototype aircraft will slip until the "second half of 2009".

EADS/Airbus Military have recently presented a proposed way ahead for the A400M programme and announced that they wish to discuss the delivery schedule and specific performance characteristics. The implications of these proposals are being studied by the nations and OCCAR.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of co-operation between his Department and the Department for International Development in Operation Telic. [250853]

Mr. Hutton: There is strong and effective cooperation between officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the Ministry of Defence and the Department for International Development on Operation TELIC and in other areas of stabilisation and conflict prevention activity. On a recent visit to Basra, the US Commanding General in Iraq, General Ray Odierno, praised the levels of UK civil-military integration in Basra, describing it as 'the way forward' for Iraq.

Joint Strike Fighter

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on procurement of the Joint Strike Fighter. [248373]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I refer my hon. Friend to my answer on 6 November 2008, Official Report, column 676W, to the hon. Member for Mid-Sussex (Mr. Soames)

Met Office: Consultants

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much the Meteorological Office has spent on (a) public affairs firms and consultants and (b) external public relations companies in the last five years; and on which firms the money was spent. [250236]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information requested is provided in the following table.

	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
Public affairs companies
Politics International Ltd.	12,053	25,919	49,201	60,725	25,275
Cavendish Place Communications	—	—	—	—	4,000
External public relations companies
Citigate Communications	20,924	—	—	—	—
Primus Communications Ltd.	6,127	1,250	—	—	—

Payments to public affairs firms relate to training for Met Office witnesses appearing before Select Committees; training for Met Office staff in stakeholder management; assistance with the development and strengthening of relationships with key stakeholders, and support for Met Office participation in stakeholder events relating to meteorology and climate science.

Payments to external public relations companies relate to the provision of general PR support and advice. The Met Office no longer uses external public relations companies for this purpose.

Military Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many helicopters were available for deployment by each service in each year since 2001. [249702]

Mr. Quentin Davies: All aircraft in the Forward Fleet are available for potential deployments worldwide. The Forward Fleet figures for each helicopter type by service are shown in the following table.

Military Bases: Northern Ireland

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent progress has been made in the review of catering and other ancillary services provided to military bases in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [251132]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Department sent a consultation document to trade unions on 9 January 2009 seeking agreement on recommendations for the future delivery of catering, retail and leisure services and soft facilities support in Northern Ireland. The trade unions have 30 working days to respond plus an additional 15 days if required.

Navy: Piracy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what Royal Navy assets will form the UK contribution to Op Atalanta in the (a) second quarter, (b) third quarter and (c) fourth quarter 2009; [249713]

(2) what Royal Navy assets are (a) currently participating and (b) planned to participate in (i) CTF 151 and (ii) Op Atalanta; [249714]

(3) which EU member states are contributing to the EU's Op Atalanta; and what each is contributing. [249744]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The UK will contribute the Operation Commander and the Operation Headquarters to Op Atalanta throughout 2009, and the Royal Navy is currently providing HMS Northumberland for the first period of this EU counter-piracy mission.

Contribution of any further vessels is dependant on European Security and Defence Policy force generation requirements and UK operational priorities.

A number of European countries are contributing to Operation Atalanta. Questions regarding the specific contribution of other EU member states should be referred to the appropriate EU authorities.

HMS Portland will, on a case by case basis, support Combined Task Force 151 for counter-piracy operations. The UK will continue to provide a frigate to broader coalition operations in the region, including Combined Task Forces 150 and 151.

Nuclear Weapons: Ex-servicemen

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many settlements have been made by his Department of claims made by British nuclear test veterans; [248978]

(2) for which medical conditions his Department has accepted liability in relation to British nuclear test veterans; [248979]

(3) what reviews have been undertaken by the Government of the claims for compensation of British nuclear test veterans in the last 30 years; [248980]

(4) how much compensation has been paid to British nuclear test veterans to date. [248981]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Ministry of Defence has not settled any common law claims for compensation relating to participation in the British nuclear testing programme of the 1950s and 1960s. The MOD does, however, have a long established war pension scheme which pays no-fault compensation in the form of tax-free pensions and allowances for ex-service personnel injured or made ill as a result of their service before 6 April 2005. There are no time limits for making a claim under the war pension scheme. The scheme is administered by the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency (SPVA). Information on awards under the scheme is published quarterly by the Department's Defence Analytical and Services Agency (DASA) derived from data from the war pension computer system. Those data do not enable injuries or illnesses to be linked to service at a particular location. It is not, therefore, possible to identify payments made to British nuclear test veterans under the war pension scheme. Nor is it possible to say how much has been spent on war pensions to nuclear tests veterans.

The Department is committed to compensation policy and individual decisions reflecting case facts and the relevant law, which are evidence based and in line with contemporary medical and scientific understanding. To meet this commitment there is routine scrutiny of the published peer reviewed literature and any other evidence of suitable quality.

When considering a claim for a war pension the facts of each case are considered on their individual merits. The test of proof is unique to the war pension scheme and is preferential to the claimant. It is more advantageous than the normal civil test of proof. In a war pension claim made more than seven years after leaving service there has to be no more than reliable evidence to raise a reasonable doubt that there is a connection between service and the claimed condition.

For nuclear test veterans, entitlement may be given under the war pension scheme for leukaemia, other than chronic lymphatic leukaemia, and polycythaemia rubra vera, in both cases where the condition arose within 25 years of presence at a nuclear test. This is based on the findings of the three National Radiological Protection Board epidemiological studies on mortality and cancer incidence of nuclear test participants 1952 to 1998 (published in 1988, 1993 and 2003). For these conditions, entitlement relates to presence at the sites and not exposure to ionising radiation. Otherwise the studies concluded that levels of mortality and cancer incidence in participants and controls were similar, with overall mortality less than expected from national rates.

A war pension, however, may be awarded in any individual case where the evidence shows that the individual is suffering from a recognised radiogenic disease and was exposed to a significant level of ionising radiation. It is important to note that the overwhelming majority of British nuclear test veterans received a "zero" dose of ionising radiation.

Pirates

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made towards reaching an international agreement on a legal framework for the detention and trial of pirates. [250677]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Piracy is a crime of universal jurisdiction which any state is entitled, as a matter of international law, to prosecute. However it remains for individual countries to ensure legislation or suitable arrangement are in place for the detention and trial of pirates.

In line with UN Security Council Resolution 1851, the inauguration of the International Contact Group on Piracy off the Coast of Somalia took place on 14 January to discuss an international response to piracy. The Contact Group was attended by 24 countries and five organisations, including UK representatives. One of the key focus areas is strengthening judicial frameworks for arrest, prosecution and detention of pirates, exploring regional arrangements, bilateral arrangements, and international judicial systems. A working group is taking forward discussions on this important issue.

Small Scale Focused Intervention Force

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which regiment or battalion forms the Small Scale Focused Intervention Force (SSFIF); whether it is fully equipped; whether the present SSFIF is deployed; and when the future SSFIF will take over from the present SSFIF. [249737]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Small Scale Focused Intervention Force was replaced by the Small Scale Contingent Battle Group (SSCBG) in January 2009 and is currently formed by 3rd Battalion, The Parachute Regiment. A rotation of the SSCBG will take place in December 2009, for which a replacement unit has yet to be determined.

The SSCBG is not currently deployed, but is in a state of high readiness to deploy at 30 days notice.

Unmanned Air Vehicles

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether Reaper unmanned aerial vehicles deployed by the Royal Air Force are fitted with precision munitions. [248631]

Mr. Quentin Davies: RAF Reaper unmanned aerial vehicles are capable of carrying 500lb laser guided bombs and Hellfire air-to-surface missiles. The actual weapons fitted during each operational deployment can and does vary and will be tailored to meet the operational requirement.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1053W, on unmanned air vehicles, what drone systems were procured prior to the purchase of the Reaper system in the last 10 years; and at what cost. [250852]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I have taken the term "drone" to mean Unmanned Air Systems (UAS) rather than aerial target drones. The information requested is contained in the following table.

Year of procurement	System	Cost (£ million)
2003	Desert Hawk I	0.95
2003	Buster	0.28
2005	Desert Hawk I+	2.8
2006-08	Desert Hawk III	8.1

In addition to the systems listed above, the Hermes 450 UAS was declared In Service in July 2007. The Hermes 450 is not owned by MOD but is provided through a service provision contract with a Thales/Elbit consortium.

The ongoing Watchkeeper tactical UAS procurement programme, worth about £900 million, began in 2005.

Warships

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required and (b) actual level of spare part availability is for each (i) frigate, (ii) destroyer and (iii) submarine type in the Royal Navy. [249707]

Mr. Quentin Davies: There is no requirement to measure the availability of spare parts for Royal Navy vessels in the format requested as availability is measured at equipment, rather than platform, level. Instead, the Department holds data on the number of demands made for spare parts and whether the required delivery date for each line was met.

There are over 700 different types of equipment fitted to vessels across the fleet, made up of over 450,000 line items. These include items that support the systems and equipment onboard the vessels themselves, as well as the medical and general stores and the weapons and helicopters that they carry. Records of all replacement equipment demands are not currently held centrally as they are classified. A new system is, however, being rolled out that holds details for some 270,000 line items across 400 types of equipment. Performance statistics for demands placed against those items on the new system in the last 12 months are provided in the following table:

Vessel type	Percentage delivered by required date[1]
Type 23 Frigate	84
Type 22 Frigate	85
Type 42 Destroyer	88
Swiftsure Class Submarine	88
Trafalgar Class Submarine	85

[1] Spares that were delivered in time to meet the required delivery date specified by the demander (e.g. ships' crews).

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to increase public understanding of agriculture and horticulture. [243186]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA has undertaken a variety of activities to increase public understanding of agriculture and horticulture. These include:

A public awareness campaign celebrating 21 years of DEFRA agri-environment schemes highlighting the importance and contribution agriculture makes to protect the natural environment.

A regular stand at the Royal Show to highlight key agriculture and horticulture issues to the public.

Regular ministerial attendance of a wide range of agriculture and county shows.

A programme of ministerial regional visits to raise profile of key DEFRA projects in the regions.

Commitment to developing the understanding young people have of both where and how their food is produced by supporting the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) led Learning Outside the Classroom Manifesto.

Working closely with DCSF, the Department of Health, and other stakeholders to support the Year of Food and Farming (YFF) in Education, an industry-led initiative to reconnect children and young people with the countryside.

Supporting Open Farm Sunday, an industry run initiative, organised by LEAF (Linking Environment and Farming) with the objective of encouraging the public to visit farms, find out what farmers do, why they do it and why farms matter.

Agriculture: Subsidies

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 485W, on agriculture: subsidies, how the £10,000 for additional costs was allocated. [246402]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 12 January 2009]: The £10,000 figure put against 'additional costs' was the estimate for dealing with 'appeals' against penalties imposed by the Rural Payments Agency on applicants who had a breach of cross compliance reported by the Environment Agency (EA). This relates to the time spent by the EA team in head office and the area inspector involved with the case.

The figure is an estimate as no direct cost measurement is in place.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many claims were made under the single farm payment scheme in (a) 2005, (b) 2006 and (c) 2007. [247175]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 14 January 2009]: The following table gives the total number of claims made to the Rural Payments Agency under the Single Payment Scheme (SPS) in England for scheme years 2005, 2006 and 2007.

SPS scheme year	Number of claims
2005 SPS	119,964
2006 SPS	100,354
2007 SPS	106,341

The aforementioned figures are claims made and include, for example, duplicates and claims not subsequently valid for payment.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the administrative cost of processing an individual claim under the single farm payment scheme was in the latest period for which figures are available. [247176]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 14 January 2009]: The average administrative cost of processing an individual Single Payment Scheme claim in 2007-08 is estimated at £742.

This figure was obtained by considering the direct processing costs and the total number of claims received. It is not however representative of the actual costs of processing individual claims because in practice, these vary in complexity and thus processing effort is required to validate and pay them.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many claims of under (a) £5, (b) £10, (c) £20, (d) £50, (e) £150, (f) £200, (g) £250 and (h) £400 were made under the single farm payment scheme in 2007. [247177]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 14 January 2009]: The following table gives the value of claims made under the Single Payment Scheme (SPS) in England in 2007, falling into various size categories.

SPS claim value	Number of claims
≥£5 ≤£10	6
≥£10 ≤£20	34
≥£20 ≤£50	591
≥£50 ≤£150	4,361
≥£150 ≤£200	2,303
≥£200 ≤£250	2,188
≥£250 ≤£400	5,157

The figures represent the number of claims which have a claim value before any deduction is made, for example, taking off EU and National Modulation.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to introduce a de minimus level for single farm payments; and what the smallest such payment was in 2008. [249574]

Jane Kennedy: Under the recently agreed CAP health check, member states will be required to introduce a de minimis threshold, within defined limits, for 2010 EU direct payments, including the single payment scheme (SPS). For the UK, this means having the option of setting the minimum either in the range of €100 to €200 or in the range of one to five hectares. A consultation exercise will be undertaken during 2009 on how this discretion will be exercised in England.

The smallest payment made so far under the 2008 SPS is £0.70.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of single farm payments in respect of (a) 2006-07, (b) 2007-08 and (c) 2008-09 remain outstanding; and what the sum of such outstanding payments for each year is. [249871]

Jane Kennedy: The following table shows the proportion and sum of single payment scheme (SPS) outstanding payments in England for the scheme years 2005, 2006, 2007 and 2008:

SPS scheme year	Percentage of total SPS payments outstanding for the scheme year concerned (rounded)	Value of outstanding SPS payments (rounded) (£)
2005	0.005	£75,000
2006	0.006	£93,000
2008	24.8	£400,000,000

For 2005 and 2006 the outstanding payments are held up awaiting the granting of probate for customers or the resolution of other legal issues blocking payment. Granting of probate is also the largest single issue holding up the remaining 2007 payments. The 2008 figure reflects the statement published on the Rural Payments Agency website on 22 January 2009.

Animal Welfare: Prosecutions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, columns 1070-1W, on animal welfare: prosecutions, what steps are being taken (1) to increase the number of prosecutions for those abusing animals; [247841]

(2) to reduce the numbers of animals being abused. [247842]

Jane Kennedy: The introduction of the Animal Welfare Act 2006 has already had a significant impact on improving the welfare of animals. We believe the new welfare offence, tightening up the law relating to animal fighting and ending the loopholes that allowed miscreants to circumvent disqualification orders introduced in the Act will help reduce the number of animals being abused. We are also currently in the process of producing new codes of practice for keeping dogs, cats and horses. These will help educate the public as to how to better keep their animals. We are also working on new secondary legislation under the Animal Welfare Act to help protect the welfare of racing greyhounds, and new codes of practice on the keeping of primates by private collectors and the rearing of gamebirds.

Badgers: Vaccination

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made towards establishing a team to manage the implementation of the badger vaccine deployment project. [248222]

Jane Kennedy: A DEFRA project team has been set up to develop the Injectable Badger Vaccine Deployment Project. A project board has also been established to manage the process and long term implementation. This board includes DEFRA officials, representatives from the Veterinary Laboratories Agency, Animal Health and Natural England, and an independent farmer. The project team are currently planning the project to allow initial deployment once the vaccine is licensed in 2010.

Bluetongue Disease: Copeland

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the likely effect of a bluetongue outbreak on agricultural livestock in Copeland constituency. [249465]

Jane Kennedy: The symptoms of bluetongue and its potentially high mortality rate represent a significant threat to livestock welfare. Infection rates tend to be greater in cattle, but symptoms and mortality are generally more severe in sheep (studies in Europe suggest up to 30 per cent. mortality for BTV8).

No data are available on the likely effect of a bluetongue outbreak on agricultural livestock in Copeland constituency. However, we have worked in partnership with industry through the Joint Campaign Against Bluetongue to encourage vaccination, the only effective tool against bluetongue, in Cumbria and across the country.

The effects of bluetongue will be minimised in a vaccinated herd or flock. In unvaccinated livestock, given the experience in continental Europe, the effects of Bluetongue, and the economic consequences, could be significant.

Bluetongue Disease: Vaccination

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the supply of doses of bluetongue vaccine available to protect agricultural livestock in Copeland constituency in the event of an outbreak of the disease. [249464]

Jane Kennedy: Under a voluntary vaccination programme in 2008, DEFRA underwrote the purchase of 28 million doses of vaccine, sufficient to vaccinate all susceptible livestock in England. This was made available according to priority areas as vaccine consignments became available. Sufficient doses were made available to livestock keepers in the Copeland constituency on 1 September 2008.

Because uptake in the North of England was lower than hoped, there is a surplus of 12 million doses of vaccine, which is being made available for use in 2009, subject to expiry dates.

DEFRA does not intend to underwrite further supplies of vaccine in 2009 but livestock keepers can purchase from their vets any of the three authorised BTV8 vaccines produced by Intervet, Merial or Fort Dodge. This flexibility provides farmers with a choice as to the best purchase options for their stock.

Further detail on vaccination in 2009 is available in the Delivery Plan For Vaccination Against Bluetongue Serotype 8 In England (2009), published on the DEFRA website.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of whether there is a correlation between the numbers of reported cases of bovine tuberculosis in cattle and the areas affected by floods in 2007. [244513]

Jane Kennedy: TB herd incidence in all counties is monitored through DEFRA's routine monthly collection of TB statistics. It is not possible to make a formal assessment of whether there is a correlation between bovine TB and flooding.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what evidence there is of any link between the incidence of bovine tuberculosis herd breakdowns and the intensification of dairy farming. [248788]

Jane Kennedy: No specific research has been carried out to assess the link between bovine tuberculosis (TB) herd breakdowns and the intensification of dairy farming.

Surveillance data routinely collected and analysed by the Veterinary Laboratories Agency indicate that confirmed incidence in dairy herds is no higher than for other herd types when herd size is controlled.

Philips 'et al' in their 2000 report on the role of cattle husbandry in the development of a sustainable policy to control 'M. bovis' infection in cattle recognise that cattle farming systems have increased in the intensity of production in recent decades, with increased milk yield and growth rates of cattle. However, they draw no conclusions between this and an increase in risk of Bovine TB herd breakdown. This report is available on the DEFRA website.

While there may be a correlation between variables related to the intensification of dairy farming, such as increased herd size and risk of TB (e.g. Goodchild and Clifton-Hadley 2001), TB has a complex epidemiology and due to the number of variables that contribute to the risk of a TB breakdown, it is not practically possible to isolate the direct impact of one measure.

Goodchild, AV and Clifton-Hadley, RS (2001). Cattle-to-cattle transmission of Mycobacterium bovis. Tuberculosis 81 (1/2): 23-41.)

Bovine Tuberculosis: Disease Control

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent progress has been made towards distinguishing between vaccinated and infected (a) cattle and (b) wildlife in relation to bovine tuberculosis. [248221]

Jane Kennedy: Tests to differentiate infected from vaccinated animals (so called 'DIVA' tests) have been developed under DEFRA funded project SE3222: Development of improved diagnostic tests for detection of bovine TB, which is due to report this year. This work will be continued under project SE3233: Cattle TB Vaccine: Development of a DIVA test.

A DIVA test for cattle is required because vaccines based on BCG will potentially make cattle react to the current tuberculin test as if they were infected with Mycobacterium bovis (M. bovis). Badgers and other wildlife are not routinely tested for TB and therefore there is no need to develop a DIVA test for use in this species.

Further information about these DEFRA-funded projects is available on the DEFRA website.

Compost: Licensing

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether compost heaps at (a) allotments, (b) schools, (c) churches and (d) grounds of voluntary organisations will be exempt from proposals within the Environmental Permitting Regulations to require a £50 composting permit on anything which is outside a private individual's garden; and if he will make a statement. [250536]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 22 January 2009]: Between July and October 2008, DEFRA, in conjunction with the Welsh Assembly Government and the Environment Agency, carried out a consultation to review the waste exemptions from environmental permitting. This included holding several workshops.

The consultation proposals seek to retain an exemption from permitting for small scale community composting, which would include allotments, schools, churches and the grounds of voluntary organisations where they meet the other requirements of the exemption. The consultation also proposed that exempt waste operations would be required to re-register every three years and pay a registration charge.

Officials are currently analysing the 286 responses to the consultation. No decisions have been made as to whether to introduce charging for some or all exempt waste operations. A summary of the consultation responses received and the Government's response to them will be published as soon as possible.

Disease Control: Finance

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to announce his policy on animal health cost sharing following his Department's consultation on the matter; and if he will make a statement. [249804]

Jane Kennedy: We plan to consult on specific proposals for implementing responsibility and cost sharing for animal health shortly.

Dogs: Animal Breeding

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Kennel Club on plans to improve dog breed health. [248786]

Jane Kennedy: Officials and my predecessor have had discussions with the Kennel Club on ways to improve the health of pedigree dogs before, during, and since the Animal Welfare Act was passed in 2006. I also welcome the Kennel Club's decision to carry out a joint review with the Dogs Trust of dog breeding.

I have met the Kennel Club and Dogs Trust for discussions.

Farms: Local Authorities

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which local authorities have disposed of smallholdings in each year since 1980; and on what date each such smallholding was disposed of. [244258]

Jane Kennedy: I regret that the information requested is not readily available in DEFRA and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost by drawing on the resources of local authorities in England.

I am aware that over the years, faced by growing financial pressures, a number of local authorities have taken the decision either to dispose of all or part of their smallholding estates. In 1970, the total number of smallholdings held by local authorities in England was 10,971 with a total area of 148,044 hectares. By 2007, the number of smallholdings had fallen to 3,138, a reduction of 72 per cent., and the total area had decreased to 94,063 hectares, a reduction of 36 per cent.

Food

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the percentage of food consumed in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008 which was produced domestically. [250759]

Jane Kennedy: In 2006, 49 per cent. of all food consumed in the UK was produced in the UK. In 2007 the figure was 51 per cent. This is based on the farmgate value of unprocessed food. The figure for 2007 is provisional. Figures for 2008 are not yet available.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the percentage of (a) vegetables and (b) fruits consumed which was produced domestically in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [250760]

Jane Kennedy: In 2006, 57 per cent. of all fresh vegetables supplied in the UK were produced in the UK. In 2007 the figure was 55 per cent. In both 2006 and 2007, 6 per cent. of all fresh fruit supplied in the UK were produced in the UK.

These estimates are based on volume. The figure for 2007 is provisional. Figures for 2008 are not yet available.

Gamebirds

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the welfare of gamebirds. [241709]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA has commissioned research on the use of bits and spectacles used in the rearing of gamebirds for sport shooting. The research report is currently being peer reviewed and will be published shortly.

Landfill: EC Law

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress is being made in meeting the UK's recycling targets under the EU Landfill Directive; and if he will make a statement. [248926]

Jane Kennedy: The EU landfill directive does not set any recycling targets for the UK.

England is making good progress towards meeting its share of the UK's landfill diversion targets for biodegradable municipal waste set in the EU landfill directive. Overall considerable progress has been made in recent years and England landfilled less in 2007-08 than its 2010 target. The further targets in 2013 and 2020 remain challenging, but achievable. DEFRA will continue to work with local authorities to build on the progress made to date.

The devolved administrations are responsible for delivering their proportion of the UK targets, and are best-placed to make assessments of progress made in their respective areas.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many waste disposal plants (a) have been built and (b) will be needed in the future to comply with the proposed recycling targets in the EU Landfill Directive; what the timetable is for building these plants; and how they will be funded. [248927]

Jane Kennedy: The number of plants required and the timetable for building them to meet the EU landfill directive targets will depend on the size of plants and the waste management strategies of each local authority.

DEFRA is working with waste disposal authorities to ensure that the total waste diversion capacity delivered by existing and future plants is sufficient to meet the diversion targets for 2010, 2013 and 2020 and that the recycling targets set out in the Waste Strategy for England 2007 are met.

These plants will be funded through a combination of public private partnerships (PPP) and private finance initiative (PFI) and some authorities are likely to utilise capacity available from the private sector.

Lighting

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs by what date the (a) sale and (b) use of iridescent light bulbs will end; and if he will make a statement. [247677]

Jane Kennedy: Under an implementing measure agreed by EU member state experts in December 2008 under the eco-design for energy-using products directive, though yet to be formally adopted by the European Parliament and Council, all frosted incandescent bulbs and clear bulbs above 100W will be removed from the market by September 2009. A phase out of 75W lamps in September 2010 and 60W lamps in September 2011 will follow, and by September 2012 all other incandescent lamps will be removed from the market. In addition, by September 2016 the least efficient halogen lamps will be removed from the market.

There are no plans to regulate the use of incandescent lamps.

In advance of this measure, a voluntary initiative led by some UK retailers and energy suppliers to remove incandescent lamps from sale began in January 2008 with the phase out of 150W lamps. 75W and 100W lamps will be removed by January 2009, 60W lamps by January 2010 and all others by the end of 2011.

According to the Energy Saving Trust the use of energy efficient compact florescent lamps can save householders up to approximately £60 over the lifetime of each bulb.

New Technologies Demonstrator Programme

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the New Technologies Demonstrator Programme in diverting biodegradeable municipal waste from landfill; [249176]

(2) how many waste projects contract payments were (a) reduced and (b) delayed under the New Technologies Demonstrator Programme; [249177]

(3) how many waste projects under the New Technologies Demonstrator Programme had (a) cost overruns and (b) start-up dates later than those originally proposed; [249178]

(4) how many waste projects under the New Technologies Demonstrator Programme were completed in accordance with their original contract; [249179]

(5) how much his Department paid out under the New Technologies Demonstrator Programme (Waste Implementation Programme) in each year of the programme. [249180]

Jane Kennedy: The objective of the New Technologies Demonstrator programme (NTDP) is to provide impartial information and impart industry experience to waste stakeholders on new innovative technologies not yet established in England. The intention is to overcome the real and perceived risks and barriers of introducing such technologies in England. This is being achieved through the provision of impartial technical, environmental and economic information and performance data for the project facilities. This includes real experiences of planning and permitting, reaching financial closure and on wider issues such as informing policy development, for example the renewables obligation.

An assessment of the effectiveness of the programme can only truly be made once all the technical and commercial information has been derived from the facilities and through the successful deployment of similar technologies in England over the coming years. This will also be ultimately achieved through assessing the total volume of wastes diverted from landfill.

The programme runs until 31 March 2009 and following this date impartial technical papers will be produced on the performance of the facilities, which are being written under the guidance of the Technologies Advisory Committee.

DEFRA has a commercial contract with each project, and payments are made against the achievement of milestones related to agreed deliverables, not to specific dates.

Most of the facilities had start-up dates later than originally proposed, due to a variety of technical and commercial reasons.

DEFRA is only providing a contribution to the final costs of each project. We therefore do not hold information on the project's own cost overruns.

Of the total nine projects, two have withdrawn and one has completed in accordance with their contract with DEFRA. We do not envisage that all of the remaining six projects will complete their full contractual requirements by 31 March 2009 and as such there will be reduced payments made where this is the case.

	Amount paid out by DEFRA (£)
2006-07	4,145,797
2007-08	9,728,367
2008-09 to date	5,781,592

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had regarding the participation of Scarborough Power Ltd. in the New Technologies Demonstrator Programme. [249568]

Jane Kennedy: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Environment (Hilary Benn) has held no such discussions on this topic.

Recycling

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of (a) the effectiveness of recycling markets and (b) the impact of volatile commodity prices on the viability of the country's recycling strategies. [247904]

Jane Kennedy: The UK has tripled the amount of household waste it recycles in the last 10 years, and on the back of this there is a growing recycling and reprocessing industry in the UK, particularly for materials such as glass, newsprint and plastic bottles. Not all of the materials collected for recycling are re-processed into products in the UK: some are re-processed abroad, reflecting trends in the global economy. As with all commodities, the prices for recyclable materials rise and fall according to supply and demand. In the current economic downturn, demand for raw materials—including recyclable waste—has declined, leading to a fall in prices.

The Government are monitoring the situation closely, working with the Waste and Resources Action Programme, the Local Government Association, the Environment Agency, the waste management industry and others. According to the best available information, markets for recycled materials have stabilised, though at lower prices. Recycling continues to be an economically viable and environmentally beneficial part of the UK's waste strategy, and we are encouraging householders to continue to put out waste for recycling.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of (a) the cost of operating all recycling programmes in the country and (b) the value of material collected under all recycling programmes in the latest period for which figures are available. [247906]

Jane Kennedy: No assessment has been made of the cost of operating recycling programmes in the UK. The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) estimates that the total value of materials recycled from households in England in 2007 was around £310-330 million.

Renewable Energy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assistance his Department has made available to local authorities which have decided to develop biogas projects. [248207]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA provides assistance to some local authorities through private finance initiative (PFI) credits to assist with their waste management solutions, these projects may include a biogas element.

DEFRA also operates the New Technologies Demonstrator Programme to demonstrate innovative waste treatment technologies (including anaerobic digestion (AD)/Biogas) as possible alternatives to landfill. Under the renewables obligation AD plants, as an advanced conversion technology, will receive two renewables obligation certificates (ROC) per megawatt hour.

The Organics Capital Grant Programme provides financial assistance towards the capital costs of plant, equipment and infrastructure for food waste processing capacity, including anaerobic digesters.

The Bio-energy Capital Grants Scheme supports the installation of biomass-fuelled heating and combined heat and power projects, including anaerobic digesters.

Waste Disposal

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many municipal collection vehicles collected from the kerbside (a) food waste, (b) recycled waste, (c) domestic waste and (d) garden waste in (i) 1998 and (ii) 2008. [247905]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA does not hold the information requested.

Waste Disposal: Oil

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what account he has taken of (a) the provisions of the Waste Incineration Directive and (b) the decision by Corus to cease accepting oil as a reductant in the provisions he has made for the safe (i) disposal and (ii) recycling of waste lubricating oil. [249323]

Jane Kennedy: The provisions of the waste incineration directive have applied to relevant facilities burning waste oil since December 2005. There has been no change in those provisions. We are aware that for commercial reasons Corus has ceased taking waste oil for use as a reductant in one of its steel plant. Other outlets for that waste oil exist including export to re-refining plant in other member states which can recycle the oil back into base lubricating oil. The Environment Agency is maintaining a close dialogue with the waste oil sector to ensure that waste oil can continue to be managed in an environmentally sound manner.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Aerials: Lancashire

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which organisations transmit from the Winter Hill transmitter. [248348]

Andy Burnham: The broadcasters which use the Winter Hill transmitter are:

BBC
Channel 4
Five
Digital 3 and 4
SDN (S4C Digital Networks)
Arqiva
Century 105
Rock FM
Smooth
Bauer
CE (Capital Emap)
Digital One
MXR.

In addition Orange, 3, Airwave and Vodaphone operate on or near the Winter Hill site.

Ofcom has published a list of businesses which are licensed to use the transmitter, e.g. BT, on its website at

Arts

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the annual growth rate of the creative industries was in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [249677]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 20 January 2009]: The annual growth rate of the creative industries in the UK for each of the last three years for which figures are available was as follows:

	Percentage
2005-06	-3
2004-05	5
2003-04	6

Source:
DCMS Creative Industries Economic Estimates—based on Annual Business Inquiry data (ONS).

The drop in growth rate from 2005 to 2006 is the result of drops in GVA for the advertising, publishing and software sectors, which are among the largest of the creative industries.

However, these data are taken from sample surveys and are subject to sampling errors. Therefore too much emphasis should not be placed on fluctuations in the figures.

These rates do not include crafts and design, as figures are not available for these sectors.

Arts: Reviews

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of his Department's staff provided support for the Creative Britain Review. [248902]

Andy Burnham: At the time of Creative Britain's publication in February 2008 there were 3.3 full time employees working on it. A group of around 10 other officials in this Department also contributed to the research and drafting of the publication, while also working on other priorities.

Big Lottery Fund: Property

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what (a) buildings and (b) land are leased by the Big Lottery Fund; and what estimate has been made of the value of these assets. [250257]

Barbara Follett: The Big Lottery Fund have advised that they do not own any buildings or land but they are legal tenants of properties which they sub-let, all of these leases are short-term operating leases, and therefore no value is assigned to them by the Big Lottery Fund.

Big Lottery Fund is the legal tenant of the following offices, which are sub-let to others:

1st, 2nd and 3rd Floors
1 Plough Place
London
EC4A 1DE.
Ground Floor (Part)
Apex House
3 Embassy Drive
Birmingham
B15 1TR.
3rd Floor
Dominion House
Guildford
GU1 4BN.
Elizabeth House
Chesterton
Cambridge
CB4 1YW.
6th Floor
Baron House
4 Neville Street
Newcastle
NE1 5NL.

Broadcasting Programmes: Television

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps he is taking to increase the use of audio description on television broadcasts; and if he will make a statement. [250578]

Andy Burnham: The Communications Act 2003 sets minimum targets for the audio description of programmes by broadcasters. However, it is the responsibility of Ofcom to ensure that these requirements are met.

The steps taken by Ofcom to increase the use of audio description include a successful TV campaign to raise awareness, requirements that the Electronic Programme Guide indicate which programmes have audio description, and discussions with manufacturers to encourage them to provide accessible equipment.

Catz Club

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding the charity Catz Club has received from each of the Lottery funds to date; and on what dates each of the payments was made. [250502]

Barbara Follett: The charity Catz Club has been awarded £203,134 in lottery funding. £80,296 on 26 June 2003, £117,311 on 17 October 2003 and £5527 on 10 February 2006.

Children: Internet

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the (a) staff costs and (b) total cost of the Byron Review. [248901]

Andy Burnham: The information is as follows:

(a) During the six-month period of the Byron Review, it was supported by two full-time DCMS staff. Using capitation rates[1] this equates to £51,992.

(b) The total cost of the review (excluding staffing costs) were approximately £275,000. This included expenditure on consultation with parents and other stakeholders, and a comprehensive literature review. This expenditure has been incurred in accordance with the Cabinet Office guidelines and a value for money assessment.

Departmental Art Works

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Angus of 21 April 2008, Official Report, columns 1737-8W, on departmental property, what the (a) title and (b) Government Art Collection reference number was of the art work stolen from his Department in 2006. [250092]

Barbara Follett: The works of art listed in the following table were prints reported as missing from various Government offices in the UK and around the world and recorded in DCMS's Losses Register in 2006.

Title	GAC number
Paradox No. IV	GAC 12096/15
Blackfriars from Southwark Bridge	GAC 3295
Lower Wessex Lane, Summer	GAC 12360
Lower Wessex Lane, Spring	GAC 12254
Strand on the Green	GAC 6016
Third day of Creation	GAC 12705
Gondola III	GAC L983
Hall of Christ Church Hospital	GAC 15326

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many special advisers were employed in his Department at each pay band on 30 November 2008; and what his Department's total expenditure on special advisers was in 2007-08. [243577]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 870W, by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Watson).

Departmental Public Bodies

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when his Department completed its review into its relationship with its non-departmental public bodies; and if he will publish its findings. [249812]

Andy Burnham: The March 2007 report of the Department's Capability Review recommended that the Department should develop a more robust, risk-based approach to engagement with its sponsored bodies and to managing performance. We have responded by carrying out risk assessments of our public bodies and tailoring the relationship with each body to the level of risk; working to reduce the number of reports required of sponsored bodies, and setting up an Advisory Board of sponsored-body representatives which considers strategic issues and ways to improve our working relationship. The Capability Review team will be looking at this as part of its re-review of the Department in February and March, and will publish a report of its findings.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make an assessment of the extent to which the functions and services currently carried out by his Department could be carried out by other Government departments. [250871]

Andy Burnham: There are no plans to carry out such a review. The Department's existence reflects the importance of the sectors we sponsor, which already account for some 13 per cent. of the economy and are central to the quality of life of every citizen. Following our Capability Review published in 2007, we have restructured and refocused the Department to ensure that we continue to increase our added value.

Digital Broadcasting: Selkirk

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what date the national help scheme for the digital switchover process in the area around Selkirk was initiated; and on what date communications for the help scheme began. [249411]

Andy Burnham: Under the scheme agreement, help scheme eligibility within a region starts eight months prior to switchover. Switchover in Selkirk took place on 20 November 2008. Using the Department for Work and Pensions data and data provided by local authorities and care homes, the help scheme contacted about 17,000 eligible people in the Selkirk transmitter area directly by mail to invite them to take up the offer of help. Of these around two-thirds responded.

The scheme was mentioned in the very earliest publicity about switchover in Selkirk and when Digital UK announced the date for switchover in the Scottish Borders in October 2007. Further information about the scheme was available throughout 2008 through press and radio adverts, regional events and on screen analogue TV captions.

Digital Radio Working Group: Manpower

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of his Department's staff have provided support for the Digital Radio Working Group. [248922]

Andy Burnham: The Digital Radio Working Group (DRWG) were supported by up to four members of staff, with a varying degree of their time allocated to the project; taken together their time represented a full-time equivalent of 1.4 posts.

Horserace Betting Levy Board

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to begin the process of appointing a new chairman of the Horseracing Betting Levy Board; and if he will make a statement. [247353]

Andy Burnham: My officials are currently planning the appointment process in consultation with the Horserace Betting Levy Board in order to minimise disruption to its work, which includes facilitating discussions around the review of the Levy System. We hope to begin the process shortly.

National Lottery Commission: Consultants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was spent by (a) the National Lottery Commission and (b) the Gambling Commission on recruitment consultants in each of the last five years; and which companies provided these services. [249791]

Barbara Follett: The information is as follows:

(a) The National Lottery Commission has provided the information in the following table for spend on recruitment consultants.

Financial year	Cost of recruitment agencies (£)
2003-04	49,012
2004-05	76,718
2005-06	47,901
2006-07	12,530
2007-08	55,811

Note:
All figures include VAT.

The recruitment companies used were as follows:

Connect Executive Resourcing Ltd.
Hays Office Support
Jonathan Wren
KPMG UK
Morgan Hunt Public Sector Ltd.
Parkway Associates
PMR Ltd.
Tate Employment
Thomas International UK Ltd.
Total Jobs Group Ltd.

The National Lottery Commission is unable to provide the names of recruitment consultants used in financial years 2003-04 and 2004-05 except at disproportionate cost as their electronic finance system was changed for financial year 2005-06 onwards and to provide the information would require thorough examination of two years of invoices.

(b) The Gambling Commission has provided the information in the following table for spend on recruitment consultants. The Gambling Commission came into existence on 1 October 2005.

Financial year	Cost of recruitment agencies (£)
2005-06[1]	286,286
2006-07	276,991
2007-08	152,551

Non-departmental Public Bodies

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer of 1 July 2008, Official Report, column 880W, on non-departmental public bodies, on how many occasions bodies for which his Department is responsible requested authority to incur expenditure above the delegated limits set out in their financial memoranda in the last 12 months. [247496]

Andy Burnham: In the last 12 months, my Department received 19 requests from our non-departmental public bodies for approval to incur expenditure above the delegated limits set out in their financial memoranda.

Press

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions he has had with the European Commission on the future prospects of local newspapers; and if he will make a statement. [250150]

Andy Burnham: I have had no recent discussions with the European Commission on the future prospects of local newspapers. However, the future of the local press is an important issue and is being taken forward under the Digital Britain project, which is shortly to publish an interim report.

Public Libraries

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assistance his Department plans to provide to local authorities to improve public access to library services. [248482]

Barbara Follett: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport is undertaking the Library Service Modernisation Review, which was launched by the Secretary of State on 9 October 2008. This seeks to define the Government's vision for a modern, world-class public library service and sets out some of the steps necessary to achieve it. There are already some excellent library services across the country, which serve their communities' needs and support the delivery of a range of outcomes. With the review's findings, which will be published in the spring, we aim to help empower all library services to reach this standard, and help the best to go even further.

The Museums Libraries and Archives Council is the Government's strategic adviser on the public library sector, and it continues to work to deliver its Action Plan for public libraries funded by DCMS through grant in aid. More details are at <http://www.mla.gov.uk/what/strategies/library>.

Royal Parks: Nature Conservation

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps the Royal Parks Agency is taking to protect wildlife in London's Royal Parks. [250896]

Barbara Follett: The Royal Parks advise that they take a range of steps to protect wildlife in all the sites under their care and management, and each of the Royal Parks has a management plan which incorporates ecological objectives.

The Royal Parks also advise that they carry out regular ecological surveys to provide data to inform management practice; biannual assessments and ongoing projects to improve the ecological quality of major water bodies; and where appropriate, employ consultants for specialist work. They also work in partnership with relevant organisations and with central Government to inform management and planning.

Although all parks staff receive training in wildlife management as required, the Royal Parks also employ staff with specialist skills and knowledge who have specific responsibility for wildlife protection and biodiversity enhancement and directly protect wildlife through a range of works. Projects include feeding wildlife in extreme weather, physically protecting vulnerable habitats, and providing nest and roost boxes for birds and bats.

The Royal Parks also create areas of conservation priority habitat, such as reed-beds, and manage and restore other habitats of biodiversity importance. The parks also include protected areas of land, such as Richmond Park which is a National Nature Reserve (NNR) and Site of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI). Management of these sites is undertaken in accordance with best practice and relevant legislation.

Sport England: Public Appointments

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer of 30 October 2008, Official Report, column 1226W, on Sport England: public appointments, on what date the previous chairman left the employment of Sport England; and by what date he expects to appoint a new chairman and deputy chairman. [247358]

Andy Burnham: The previous chair of Sport England, Derek Mapp, resigned on 29 November 2007. Sport England board member, Michael Farrar, has been acting as interim chair since December 2007. The process to appoint a new chair and deputy chair is currently in progress and we expect to appoint a new chair by March and a deputy chair soon after. Both of these ministerial appointments will be made following an open competition regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments.

Sports: Public Participation

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of his Department's 20 public service agreement 3 targets to increase the take-up of cultural and sporting opportunities by those aged 16 years and above from each of the priority groups have been achieved; and if he will make a statement. [249674]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 20 January 2009]: Four out of the 20 targets that make up the overall PSA3 target have been assessed as achieved. These are:

3 percentage point increase in those from Black and minority ethnic backgrounds attending historic environment sites;

2 percentage point increase in those from Black and minority ethnic backgrounds attending museums and galleries;

2 percentage point increase in those from lower socio-economic backgrounds attending museums and galleries;

3 percentage point increase in those from Black and minority ethnic backgrounds attending arts events.

The assessment was made by comparing the baselines collected during 2005-06 with the final estimates from 2007-08.

We always knew these would be very challenging targets, and we remain committed to increasing participation in culture and sport across all sectors of the community. Our programme of research is helping us to better understand and address the barriers to participation. The results should help us in giving more people the opportunity to take part.

Swimming: Greater London

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many local authorities in Greater London have indicated that they have a short-fall in the funding awarded to them for the provision of free swimming. [249558]

Andy Burnham: I was delighted that of the 33 eligible London boroughs, 31 have chosen to participate in the free swimming programme.

In terms of the amount of funding available, the Government made it clear when the programme was announced that councils would not be forced to take up the offer. Indeed, we were keen that the programme should encourage local authorities to put in additional funding and to stimulate partnership at local level.

Swimming: Public Participation

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will place in the Library a copy of representations received by his Department from the Amateur Swimming Association on making two million more people active by 2012. [247572]

Andy Burnham: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to my hon. Friend the Member for Great Grimsby (Mr. Mitchell) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 2200W, and the position remains the same.

The Department has not received representations from the Amateur Swimming Association (ASA) in relation to the policy of getting two million more people active by 2012. As the National Governing Body of Swimming, the ASA are working with Sport England to finalise their new whole sport plan. This will identify the contribution they will make to Sport England's commitment of getting 1 million more people playing sport by 2012, as part of the wider 2 million target. The ASA are also working with the Department, Sport England, the Local Government Association and others in the design and delivery of the Government's Free Swimming Programme.

Tourism: Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether he plans to provide additional funding for tourism in respect of the London 2012 Olympics. [250851]

Barbara Follett: I have no plans to provide additional funding for tourism in respect of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games in this comprehensive spending round.

The Government remain fully committed to tourism, as illustrated by the Prime Minister in his speech at the National Tourism Summit on 8 January 2009.

VisitBritain's strategic review, to be presented in February 2009, will make the most of the substantial amounts that the public sector puts into tourism.

VisitBritain: Consultants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much VisitBritain spent on recruitment consultants in each of the last five years; and which companies provided these services. [249797]

Barbara Follett: VisitBritain has provided the information in the table for spend on recruitment consultants:

Financial year	Cost of recruitment agencies
2003-04	£262,578.32
2004-05	£343,080.59
2005-06	£346,885.31

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many (a) letters and (b) e-mails received by the Government Equalities Office had not been responded to as at 15 December 2008. [244720]

Maria Eagle: At 15 December 2008, 30 letters from Members of Parliament to Government Equalities Office Ministers and 38 Treat Official and e-mail inquiries had not yet been responded to.

Departmental Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how much has been spent by the Government Equalities Office on staff reward and recognition schemes since its inception. [248724]

Maria Eagle: Since its creation on 12 October 2007, the Government Equalities Office has not spent any money on staff reward and recognition schemes.

Equality and Human Rights Commission: Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many permanent staff within the Equality and Human Rights Commission are (a) staff without posts, (b) part of a people action team, (c) pre-surplus, (d) priority movers and (e) otherwise do not have a formal permanent position. [250499]

Maria Eagle: The Equality and Human Rights Commission (EHRC) was established in October 2007. Jobs within the EHRC were available to staff from the commissions the EHRC replaced (the Equal Opportunities Commission, the Disability Rights Commission and the Commission for Racial Equality). Six permanent staff from a complement of 525 currently employed within the EHRC are yet to be matched to roles following their transfer from one of the former Commissions. These six are being helped to find suitable job matches within the EHRC. Five of the six are actively engaged on priority EHRC projects, and the other is currently on maternity leave. EHRC do not have any individuals who are part of a 'people action team', are 'pre-surplus', or are 'priority movers'.

PRIME MINISTER

Sir Fred Goodwin

Gregory Barker: To ask the Prime Minister (1) on which dates and at which venues he has met Sir Fred Goodwin in his capacity as (a) Chancellor of the Exchequer and (b) Prime Minister since 1997; [250966]

(2) how many times he had discussions with Sir Fred Goodwin in connection with his membership of the International Business Advisory Council; and when and for what reasons Sir Fred Goodwin ceased to be a member of the Council. [251174]

The Prime Minister: Sir Fred Goodwin was a member of the High-Level Group on the City. The meetings of the group are a matter of public record. My officials and I have meetings with a wide range of organisations and individuals on a range of subjects.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Political Levy

Mr. Maude: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what information the House of Commons authorities provide to Commons staff on workers' rights to opt out of the trades union political levy. [250351]

Nick Harvey: The House Service does not provide staff with information on their right to opt out of the trades union political levy. The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform advises that individual unions must immediately inform their members if they wish to set up a political fund and give them the right to "contract out" of paying the levy if they wish to do so.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost to the public purse has been of the Afghan Social Outreach programme; and how its performance is assessed. [246708]

Bill Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

The UK has agreed to provide $590,000 to fund the roll-out of the Afghan Social Outreach Programme pilots in the Helmand province districts of Nad-e-ali, Garmsir, Gereshk and Musa Qaleh until 31 March 2009. The programme will be monitored throughout its implementation and will be regularly evaluated including immediately after the completion of each phase of the roll-out. We will carry out monitoring and evaluation in conjunction with the government of Afghanistan, other international donors, the Afghan Independent Directorate of Local Governance, and local Provincial and District councils.

Departmental Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and what was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [249856]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given on 21 January 2008, Official Report, columns 1512-13, to the hon. Member for Sutton Coldfield (Mr. Mitchell).

Departmental Press

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many copies of the Morning Star publication his Department receives on subscription each week; and at what cost. [250513]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not subscribe to the Morning Star publication.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249138]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not record this information.

Ethiopia: Overseas Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding his Department is providing to the Ogaden area of Ethiopia in 2008-09. [249659]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not target funding specifically to the Ogaden area of the Somali region of Ethiopia.

In 2008-09, DFID will spend £17.4 million in the Somali region of Ethiopia: £11.9 million through the United Nations and NGOs in response to the humanitarian crisis; and £5.5 million to help improve education, health, water and sanitation, agriculture and roads in the region.

Sub-Saharan Africa: Malaria

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress his Department has made in sub-Saharan Africa towards meeting targets on the provision of bed nets by World Malaria Day in 2010. [250924]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Progress on halting and reversing the spread of malaria in sub-Saharan Africa has not been sufficient and there is a high risk that the target under Millennium Development Goal 6 will be missed. However, there has been some significant progress in some African countries. In Eritrea, Rwanda and Sao Tome and Principe, deaths from malaria have been halved by following the recommended measures, including providing bed nets. Of the 647 million people at risk in Africa, the percentage protected by bed nets rose from 3 per cent. in 2001 to 26 per cent. in 2006.

Between 2000 and 2007 the Department for International Development (DFID) funded approximately 40 million bed nets worldwide (mostly for sub-Saharan Africa) and we estimate that these will have saved 660,000 lives. Over the course of 2008-11 we will provide at least 20 million bed nets in sub-Saharan Africa and it is estimated that these should save 330,000 lives.

Our support towards the provision of bed nets is usually part of a larger package of measures to improve health and to combat malaria, through a number of programmes and health sector approaches which include the purchase and distribution of bed nets. It is therefore difficult to disaggregate the costs of the bed nets alone. For example, we contribute to the Global Fund to Fight Aids, Tuberculosis and Malaria (GFATM) who estimate that they financed 120 million bed nets between 2001 and 2006, during which period we provided approximately 8.7 per cent. of GFATM financing.

Sudan: Humanitarian Situation

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on how many occasions he has visited Darfur to assess the humanitarian situation in the region in the last 12 months. [250925]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Secretary of State for International Development (DFID) last visited Darfur in July 2007. DFID officials visit Darfur regularly to monitor the humanitarian situation, and provide monthly humanitarian updates to Ministers.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Debates: Tourism

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Leader of the House if she will make it her policy to provide for an annual debate on tourism on the floor of the House. [250663]

Chris Bryant: Although the Government have no immediate plans to do so, the topic of future debates is kept under constant review.

Members: Allowances

John Mann: To ask the Leader of the House what discussions she has had with members of the 1922 Committee on the exemption of hon. Members from the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 in respect of their expenses. [250758]

Chris Bryant: My right hon. Friend has frequent private discussions with Members from all parts of the House on a range of issues relating to her ministerial responsibilities.

Ministerial Statements

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Leader of the House what guidance she gives to Ministers on making statements on Government policy to the House. [250657]

Chris Bryant: My right hon. Friend has regular discussions with ministerial colleagues when deciding whether an oral statement should be made to announce Government policy. This is done against the general principle set out in the Ministerial Code that when Parliament is in Session, all important announcements of Government policy should be made in Parliament, in the first instance.

Right of Search

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Leader of the House what meetings she has attended with Mr Speaker on the arrest of the hon. Member for Ashford and the search of his office; what was discussed; if she will place in the Library a copy of records held by her Department of such meetings; and whether she has received a request under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 from the hon. Member for North Essex for this information. [250885]

Chris Bryant: The Leader of the House has regular meetings with Mr. Speaker on a variety of subjects.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Maintenance Enforcement Commission: Debts

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1368W, on the Child Support Agency, if he will place in the Library a copy of the overview of the Child Maintenance Enforcement Commission's policy on negotiating the recovery of debt. [246631]

Kitty Ussher: The Commission's current policy in negotiating arrears settlements with non-resident parents has been placed in the Library. However, it is worth noting that this guidance is under constant review and Members having future queries should refer this to the Commission.

Children: Maintenance

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what value of child support arrears has been categorised as (a) collectable, (b) possibly uncollectable and (c) probably uncollectable by the Child Support Agency, broken down by the smallest possible geographic area for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [249314]

Kitty Ussher: I would refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave her on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 21W.

Departmental Advertising

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many complaints about advertisements sponsored or funded by his Department were made to the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) in each year from 1997 to 2008; and how many of these were upheld by the ASA in each year. [246656]

Jonathan Shaw: Between 1 January 1997 to 21 December 2008, 164 complaints about 122 cases were raised with the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) about advertisements sponsored or funded by the Department for Work and Pensions. None of these complaints was upheld.

This information was provided by the ASA.

Broadcast advertising complaints only became the responsibility of the ASA in 2004. Complaints prior to that date were handled by the Public Affairs team at Ofcom. These figures exclude data on broadcast advertising between November 2004 and May 2006. Changes in the ASA database systems in this period mean that extracting this information would incur disproportionate cost.

The ASA has stated that breaking the figures down into yearly totals would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Complaints

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he plans to take to make his Department's customer information system compliant with Cabinet Office rules; and when he expects this will be achieved. [249682]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 20 January 2009]: The Cabinet Office published requirements for accreditation of IT systems only apply to those systems that were introduced after 1 July 2008, and are not retrospective. However, the Department is currently reviewing the technical options that will enable the Customer Information System to meet the new requirements. Until this review has been completed, it is not possible to confirm the timescale for this work.

All IT systems that become operational from 1 July 2008 will be formally accredited.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have which allow contractors to store personal data of UK citizens overseas; for which contracts this applies; in which countries the data for each contract is held; and how many people have their data stored overseas in the case of each such contract. [245352]

Jonathan Shaw: There are no instances where the Department or its agencies have authorised, through any contracts, the storage of personal data overseas.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when his Department appointed a senior information risk owner in accordance with the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government and the accompanying document Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action; and what grade the person holds within the Department. [245373]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department's head of legal group was appointed senior information risk owner as from 1 September 2008. Prior to that date, the Department's chief information officer performed the role. Both are directors general, and are members of the Department's Executive team.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of the IT systems in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies are fully accredited to the Government's security standards. [245394]

Jonathan Shaw: All IT systems that have become operational since 1 July 2008 are formally accredited.

For systems that were operational before that date, there is no requirement under the Data Handling Review for formal accreditation. Nevertheless, all current systems are routinely assessed for compliance against the Department's Information Systems Security Standards, and are fully authorised for use. Any residual risks have been identified and are being managed.

Departmental Equality

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what information his Department holds on the (a) sex, (b) ethnicity, (c) age, (d) disability, (e) sexual orientation and (f) religion or belief of its staff; and what assessment he has made of his Department's performance against its targets relating to diversity in its workforce. [246017]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Work and Pensions holds the following information on the diversity of its work force:

(a) 68.5 per cent. of DWP staff are women;

(b) 10.2 per cent. of staff have disclosed that they are from an ethnic minority;

(c) The age breakdown of DWP staff is

	Percentage
16-24	4.4
25-34	16.6
35-44	30.5
45-54	33.4
55-64	14.5

(d) 5.7 per cent. of staff have disclosed that they are disabled.

(e) A new system to allow staff to disclose their sexual orientation was introduced in April 2008. As we would expect at this early stage, the disclosure rate has yet to reach a level that could allow the current data to be considered representative.

(f) DWP does not monitor the religion or belief of its staff at present but will start to do so in order to meet its commitments under the Civil Service Diversity Strategy.

The Department's performance against its diversity targets is monitored regularly and is reported in its equality schemes. The latest available figures (from October 2008) show that DWP's performance against its 2008 diversity targets was as follows:

Grade	Target	Percentage Representation in October 2008
Ethnicity
Senior Civil Service	5.0	4.2
Grade 6/Grade 7	4.0	3.8
SEO	4.0	4.2
HEO	5.5	6.3
Women
Senior Civil Service PB2 and above	30.0	23.9
All Senior Civil Service	39.0	36.8
Grade 6	45.0	43.2
Grade 7	45.0	45.1
Disability
SCS	6.0	3.8
Grade 6/Grade 7/SEO	4.0	4.2
HEO/EO	7.0	6.5
AO/AA	6.0	5.2

Results show a marked improvement in the Department's performance since 2002, both at SCS level, and at feeder grade levels—with an increase in female staff at Grade 6 and Grade 7 of nearly 20 per cent. and ethnic minority representation rates more than doubling at grades HEO, 6, 7 and SCS over the same period.

However, there remains work to be done—women and ethnic minority staff remain under-represented at senior grades, and there has been little change to the proportion of disabled staff at all grades since 2002.

New targets for 2011 covering gender, ethnicity and disability will be published shortly. DWP does not currently have targets relating to age, sexual orientation or religion or belief.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment of value for money he has made of his Department's IT contracts with (a) BT and (b) EDS. [246682]

Jonathan Shaw: Since the realignment of the EDS and BT contracts in 2005 the overall combined spend with EDS and BT is on track to reduce by around 40 per cent. from the overall spend of £840 million in 2005-06 to around £508 million by 2010-11.

At the same time IT operational performance has improved, with all 25 of the Department's major critical systems available 100 per cent. of the time in August 2008.

The BT contract has also provided the Department with a single modern converged telephony data network that has enabled new contact centre technology, offering major improvement dealing effectively with the growth in customer call volumes.

Departmental Languages

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) Ministers and (b) civil servants in his Department received coaching in a foreign language in the last 12 months; what expenditure his Department incurred in providing such coaching; and in what languages such coaching was provided. [248070]

Jonathan Shaw: The information requested is not retained centrally; to obtain this information would incur disproportionate costs.

Departmental Sick Leave

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 13 January 2008 to question 245661, how many days staff took as sick leave from (a) his Department and (b) its agencies in the 12 months from 1 December 2007 to 30 November 2008; what the average number of working days lost per staff year in his Department and in each agency was during that 12 month period; and if he will make a statement. [249183]

Jonathan Shaw: The information was contained in my earlier answer on 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 575W, in the table headed 2008-09.

In the notes to the previous answer, it was stated that the information contained in the table 2008-09 covered the period from December 2007 to November 2008.

The following table provides the required information.

Data for 12 month period from 1 December 2007 to 30 November 2008

Business	Working days lost	Average working days lost per staff year
Jobcentre Plus	643,445	9.7
Disability and Carers Service	52,429	9.6
The Pension Service	100,445	9.4
Other, including central directorates	73,781	6.8
DWP	870,100	9.3

Notes:
1. The table reflects data currently held on the Department's personnel computer system.
2. The averages shown are the average per full time staff year, rather than per employee, to take account of part-time workers.
3. Any difference between the sum of the agency figures and the total for DWP is due to rounding.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [247925]

Jonathan Shaw: Quantitative and qualitative research is an integral part of the development of communications campaigns. The cost of such is often included within those campaign development costs and the specific costs are not held separately. To attempt to extract those costs, covering a three year period, would be at disproportionate cost to the tax payer.

My Communications Department has also conducted omnibus surveys on public attitudes to the Government's welfare reform programme and a small amount of research on attitudes to savings and retirement in the last three years.

Details per financial year are provided in the following table.

	Cost (£)
2005-06	50,000
2006-07	32,030
2007-08	46,800

Disability Living Allowance

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many claimants received awards of disability living allowance on the basis of drug or alcohol dependency in each of the last 11 years. [248761]

Jonathan Shaw: Entitlement to disability living allowance is not dependent on a diagnosis or condition but relies instead on the care and/or mobility needs arising. In the case of someone with drug or alcohol dependency, needs may arise as a result of their substance dependence or a physical or mental complication caused by drugs or alcohol. Many people with drug or alcohol dependence have an underlying psychiatric illness. Information about the number of people receiving disability living allowance where the main disabling condition is recorded as drug and alcohol abuse is in the following table.

Disability living allowance cases in payment where the main disabling condition is recorded as drug and alcohol abuse

As at May each year	Number
2008	19,300
2007	16,800
2006	15,300
2005	13,800
2004	12,000
2003	10,800
2002	9,100
2001	7,600
2000	6,400
1999	5,600
1998	4,900

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 100 and have been uprated to be consistent with WPLS data.
2. Although the preferred data source for benefit statistics is 100 per cent. Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study, the 5 per cent. sample data has been used in this case because it provides some detail not yet available from the 100 per cent data sources, in particular, more complete information on the disabling condition of Disability Living Allowance claimants.
3. Where more than one disability is present only the main disabling condition is recorded.
4. A diagnosed medical condition does not mean that someone is automatically entitled to Disability Living Allowance. Entitlement is dependent on an assessment of how much help someone needs with personal care and/or mobility because of their disability. These statistics are only collected for administrative purposes. For example, a customer would not be awarded Disability Living Allowance on the basis of a diagnosis of drug/alcohol abuse. The decision is based upon the care/supervision and difficulty getting around as a result of the substance dependency and any associated physical or psychological complications.

Employment Schemes: Finance

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of the £1.3 billion funding announced in the Pre-Budget Report 2008 to help people find work will be allocated to (a) the public, (b) the voluntary and community and (c) the private sector. [247511]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 14 January 2009]: The pre-Budget report allocated an additional £1.3 billion over CSR07 to help to deliver effective support to unemployed people and extend these services. The Department is deciding how best to allocate the additional money and we are currently re-planning right across the organisation and working closely with our delivery partners to ensure that the support needed by unemployed people is delivered in the most effective manner

This money includes the additional measures that were announced in the pre-Budget report—expansion of the Local Employer Partnerships and further expansion of Jobcentre Plus' Rapid Response Service.

Health and Safety Executive: Bootle

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will publish the Health and Safety Executive's equality impact assessment carried out for its move to a single headquarters in Bootle. [248499]

Jonathan Shaw: Yes. An initial equality impact assessment (EIA) was published on the HSE intranet in November 2007. This will be placed in the House of Commons Library. The final EIA will be produced after the end of the How and Where We Work Programme, scheduled for March 2010.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the planned size and structure is of the new Health and Safety Executive Policy Group in Bootle. [248500]

Jonathan Shaw: The Health and Safety Executive is currently carrying out a public consultation over its new strategy 'Health and Safety in Great Britain—be part of the solution'. The future size and structure of its policy group will be determined for the coming two years in light of HSE Board decisions on the strategy consultation.

Health and Safety Executive: Greater London

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many of the 326 Health and Safety Executive staff in London, identified in How and Where We Work, were still working in Rose Court at the end of November 2008; and how many of them are expected to be doing so by the end of March 2009. [248501]

Jonathan Shaw: There were 351 HSE staff in London (including loans, secondments, career breaks and long-term special leave) identified as being within the scope of the How and Where We Work Programme at November 2007. The figure of 326 is the full-time equivalent of the 351 identified in the outline business case.

At the end of November 2008 there were 199 in-scope HSE staff working in Rose Court.

On the basis of confirmed staff intentions, it is expected that 162 in-scope staff will be working in Rose Court at the end of March 2009.

Health and Safety Executive: Manpower

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) replacement and (b) temporary staff have been recruited in Bootle to fill the positions vacated in Rose Court by the Health and Safety Executive. [248502]

Jonathan Shaw: The information is as follows:

(a) To date, 112 replacements have been recruited in Bootle to fill positions vacated in Rose Court.

(b) There are currently three temporary staff employed in Bootle replacing posts vacated in Rose Court.

Health and Safety Executive: Resignations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff have left the Health and Safety Executive at Rose Court premises since July 2007 (a) on permanent transfers to other departments, (b) as leavers to private sector, (c) on retirement, (d) as leavers under early release schemes and (e) on loans/secondments. [248503]

Jonathan Shaw: Since July 2007 the numbers of HSE staff that have left Rose Court under the five categories are as follows:

(a) 84 on permanent transfer to other departments;

(b) 18 have resigned. Central records are not kept of their next job;

(c) seven have retired;

(d) 12 have left under an early release scheme; and

(e) 19 are on loans/secondments.

Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1382W, on incapacity benefit, what the total monetary value of the benefits paid to claimants whose recorded diagnosis includes drug dependency was in each of the last five years. [241855]

Jonathan Shaw: Drug dependency does not of itself confer entitlement to incapacity benefits. The medical assessment of incapacity for work is the personal capability assessment. This assesses the effects of a person's condition on their ability to carry out a number of everyday activities relevant to work. A majority of people with a recorded diagnosis of drug dependency also have other diagnoses, for example mental illness, which results in their incapacity for work.

We do record the diagnosis of incapacity that is written on a claimant's medical certificate. The available information is in the table.

Estimated incapacity benefits expenditure on claimants whose diagnosis includes drug dependency (nominal terms)

2003-04	186
2004-05	189
2005-06	188
2006-07	190
2007-08	195

Notes:

1. Incapacity benefits includes incapacity benefit and severe disablement allowance payable to working-aged adults.
2. Figures include incapacity related income support expenditure for Credits Only claims.
3. Figures are rounded to the nearest £ million.
4. Estimates are based on information from the Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study and published DWP benefit expenditure tables.
5. The expenditure figures are consistent with PBR 2008. DWP benefit expenditure tables can be accessed at:
http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd4/expenditure.asp

Income Support

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have claimed the minimum income guarantee in (a) the UK, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each year since its introduction. [244899]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The answer is in the following tables.

Number of household recipients of pension credit in Great Britain 2003-08

	Total pension credit	Guarantee credit only	Savings credit only	Guarantee and savings credit
November 2003	2,084,700	709,310	242,010	1,133,010

1. The number of households in receipt are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Household recipients are those people who claim pension credit either for themselves only or on behalf of a household.
3. Tees Valley is made up of Hartlepool, Stockton, Darlington, Middlesbrough and Redcar and Cleveland local authorities.

Jobcentre Plus: Recruitment

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the Written Ministerial Statement of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 619W, on employment, how many staff he estimates will be recruited to (a) full-time and (b) part-time (i) temporary and (ii) permanent positions in Jobcentre Plus; how many of these appointments will be made from staff originally recruited to support the introduction of employment support allowance; and if he will make a statement. [241780]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question in reference to his Statement of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 619W, on employment, how many staff he estimates will be recruited to (a) full-time and (b) part-time (i) temporary and (ii) permanent positions in Jobcentre Plus and how many of these appointments will be made from staff originally recruited to support the introduction of Employment Support Allowance. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

We are still planning for the impact of the Pre-Budget Report announcements at the moment. In practice, we try to accommodate applicants' preferences for working patterns, subject to business needs. Currently, around 35 per cent of the staff in Jobcentre Plus work part time and we anticipate a similar proportion of part time staff amongst our new recruits.

We plan to recruit the majority of people to fixed term appointment contracts, normally for 1-2 years, although there will be local variations and this will include some permanent appointments. There will be periods of the year, at the start and during the summer months, where we recruit temporary staff to cover known peaks of work or scheduled leave. Currently, we do not plan to recruit significant numbers of temporary staff outside these periods.

We are unable to identify through our Resource Management reporting system whether someone has been recruited specifically for Employment and Support Allowance backfill. However, in the first quarter of 2009, we anticipate converting up to 300 staff from temporary to permanent contracts, and although it is not possible to say how many may apply for permanent appointments, we encourage people to do so.

Current Civil Service Commission rules mean that someone on a temporary contract can only secure a permanent appointment by applying through fair and open competition via one of our recruitment exercises. The Civil Service Bill allows for some recruitment flexibilities. One of these is the capacity to convert temporary employees to permanent status by a fair and objective process approved by the Civil Service Commissioners. This applies to employees at Administrative level at or after 12 months employment. DWP is currently writing a submission to the Commissioners on the process it proposes to use for the conversion of up to 300 temporary staff.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will place in the Library a copy of (a) the list of responsibilities, (b) the job description and (c) the personal specification used when advertising a Jobcentre Plus personal adviser vacancy. [246584]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking if he will place in the Library a copy of a) the list of responsibilities, b) the job description and c) the personal specification used when advertising a personal adviser vacancy in Jobcentre Plus. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

I attach to this reply a copy of the information you require. A copy has also been placed in the Library. The responsibilities, role description and person specification outlined is not exhaustive and will sometimes be tailored within each recruitment exercise to reflect changes in business processes, changes in the provision available to unemployed customers and any particular initiatives within local labour markets.

Jobcentre Plus: Resignations

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff have left their post in Jobcentre Plus in each region in each month of the last five years. [241449]

Jobseeker's Allowance

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many claimants waited longer than the target average actual clearance time for Jobseeker's Allowance in the most recent available period; and what has been the average actual clearance time for Jobseeker's Allowance for the most recent available period. [241645]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 9 December 2008]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about how many claimants waited longer than the target average actual clearance time for Jobseeker's Allowance in the most recent available period, and the average actual clearance time for Jobseeker's Allowance for the most recent available period. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The target for Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA) Average Actual Clearance Time (AACT) is 11.5 days. The latest AACT performance for JSA is 10.0 days for the month of November 2008. The year to date performance is also 10.0 days.

To manage the spread of clearance times in each month, Jobcentre Plus collects information on volumes of processed claims over several time bands. These are shown in the table below for November 2008.

The table shows that 67% were processed in 1-10 days and 33% processed in over 10 days. This does not map exactly to the target of 11.5 days but shows that most of our customers had their benefit processed within the target.

	Number	Percentage
JSA claims processed in 1-10 days	184,277	67
JSA claims processed in 11-21 days	76,581	27
Total JSA claims processed (including those processed in more than 21 days)	276,544	[1]100

[1] Including 6% processed in over 21 days

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people flowed on to (a) contributions-based and (b) income-based jobseeker's allowance in each of the last 12 months. [244474]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 16 December 2008]: The available information is in the following table.

Number of flows onto jobseeker's allowance by type—quarterly

	Total income and contribution based	Income based	Contribution based
November 2006	358,700	272,600	110,600
February 2007	350,500	262,300	110,600
May 2007	295,600	221,400	90,200
August 2007	291,700	223,600	83,500

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 100.

2. Claimants can be in receipt of both income based and contribution based JSA, and therefore may appear in both columns. A total number of flows onto JSA has therefore been produced separately.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people flowed on to (a) contribution-based and (b) income-based jobseeker's allowance in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [244553]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 16 December 2008]: The available information is in the following table.

Number of flows onto jobseeker's allowance by type

As at August each year	Total income-based and contribution-based	Income-based	Contribution-based
1998	1,692,800	1,276,900	546,900
1999	1,704,600	1,288,700	540,800
2000	1,565,800	1,179,000	497,500
2001	1,483,600	1,090,100	500,800
2002	1,474,500	1,049,500	539,900
2003	1,457,200	1,033,000	534,700

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 2-4WS, whether he plans to revise the (a) savings and earnings disregards and (b) tariff income applied to jobseeker's allowance claimants' savings; [250824]

(2) if he will suspend the business assets disposal rule for new customers applying for jobseeker's allowance; [250825]

(3) if he will (a) suspend and (b) revise the (i) savings disregards, (ii) earnings disregards and (iii) tariff incomes for savings for jobseeker's allowance (JSA) customers moving from contribution-based JSA to means-tested JSA in 2009-10. [250844]

Mr. McNulty: There are no plans to change the income and capital rules used when determining eligibility to jobseeker's allowance.

The additional funding for this Department announced in last year's pre-Budget report and other measures have helped to ensure that people continue to leave jobseeker's allowance quickly, the great majority within six months of claiming. The new measures announced on 12 January will provide additional help for people who are still unemployed after six months. The Government's aim is to do everything they can to help people into jobs.

Parliamentary Questions: Government Responses

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to respond substantively to (a) Question 241441, on provision of emergency support for Jobcentre Plus customers, tabled on 4 December 2008 and (b) Question 245228, on payment of child maintenance to parents with care, tabled on 15 December 2008; and what the reason is for the time taken to reply is in each case. [250917]

Kitty Ussher: I replied to the hon. Member's questions (a) 241441 on 22 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1443-44W, and (b) 245228 on 21 January 2009, Official Report, column 1687W. I apologise for the delay in replying to these questions, which was due to the time required to conduct and check the relevant analysis.

Pension Protection Fund: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have claimed pension payments from the pension protection fund in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in each of the last five years. [246559]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Pension Protection Fund was set up to protect members of eligible defined benefit and hybrid pension schemes. Individuals do not need to make a claim to be eligible for PPF compensation.

The PPF commenced operations in April 2005 and the first schemes transferred to the PPF in December 2006.

As at 30 November 2007 there were 1,167 members receiving compensation from the PPF, with 6,024 members due to receive compensation in future as it falls due. 75 members receiving compensation and 370 deferred members resided in the South East of England (excluding London).

As at 30 November 2008 there were 7,703 members receiving compensation from the PPF, with 12,942 members due to receive compensation in future as it falls due. 439 members receiving compensation and 733 deferred members resided in the South East of England (excluding London).

A breakdown of the aforementioned figures below regional level is not available.

While in the PPF assessment period, the process which determines whether a scheme transfers to the PPF, the trustees remain responsible for the running of the scheme with benefits being paid to members at PPF levels when they fall due. As at 30 November 2008 there were 121,300 scheme members, across the UK, in the assessment period.

Poverty: Children

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps are being taken to reduce levels of relative child poverty in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire. [249060]

Kitty Ussher: We have made substantial progress in tackling child poverty. 600,000 children have been lifted out of relative poverty since 1998-99. As a result of the support we have introduced, families and children in the poorest fifth of the population are, on average, £4,100 a year better off than in 1997. The measures we announced in the pre-Budget report 2008 will increase this to £4,400 from April 2009. These measures will continue to benefit children in Hemel Hempstead and Hertfordshire.

In addition, Government measures over the past two years will result in lifting around a further 500,000 children from relative poverty. Our plans for reducing levels of child poverty in England were set out in "Ending child poverty: everybody's business", which is available in the Library.

Sick Leave: Musculoskeletal Disorders

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate has been made of the number of working days lost due to musculoskeletal conditions in the last three years. [249270]

Jonathan Shaw: The estimated number of working days lost in 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08, taken by people who believed that they were suffering from a work-related musculoskeletal disorder, are given in the following table:

Estimated full-day equivalent working days lost (in thousands) due to self-reported work-related musculoskeletal disorders

		95 (per cent.) C.I.
	Central	Lower	Upper
2007-08	8,845	7,422	10,268
2006-07	10,715	8,973	12,457
2005-06	9,450	7,885	11,015

Notes:

1. 95 per cent. C.I.: 95 per cent. confidence interval, the range within which we are 95 per cent. confident that the true value lies in the absence of bias.

Social Fund

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many individual applications to the Social Fund for (a) community care grants, (b) budgeting loans and (c) crisis loans there were in each month from July to December 2008. [250891]

Kitty Ussher: The available information is in the following table.

Discretionary social fund applications received in Great Britain from July to December 2008

	Number of applications received
2008	Community care grants	Budgeting loans	Crisis loans

Social Services: Private Sector

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the cost of regulation of private sector contracted welfare services for incapacity benefits claimants at a typical investment rate of £62,000 as proposed by David Freud. [244200]

Jonathan Shaw: The White Paper (Cmnd 7560, published 10 December 2008) announced our intention to pilot the approach recommended by David Freud. One outcome from these pilots will be information on the cost of managing the contracts that we shall let.

State Retirement Pensions

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) men and (b) women he estimates will begin claiming the basic state pension between the end of the first full week in December 2008 and the end of (i) January and (ii) February 2009. [246583]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is not available on a weekly basis. The estimated numbers of people who are expected to claim the basic state pension from the beginning of December 2008 is given in the following table.

	December 2008 to January 2009	December 2008 to February 2009
Men	45,000	70,000
Women	57,000	89,000

Notes:
1. Estimates are rounded to the nearest thousand claims.
2. Estimates include claims from residents of Great Britain and those residing overseas.
3. Some individuals may not claim until some time after they reach state pension age (65 for men and 60 for women).
4. Individuals are considered here to begin claiming at the point at which their claim is processed.

DWP forecasts

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what methodology was used to calculate the additional entitlement to the state pension for those over 80 years of age. [246756]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The weekly age addition was introduced in 1971 for those pensioners over the age of 80. This amount has not been uprated by successive Governments.

State Retirement Pensions: Overseas Residence

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the effect of recent exchange rate fluctuations on UK pensioners resident abroad. [248820]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Pensions paid to UK residents abroad are always subject to fluctuations in exchange rates which means that the local purchasing power of the state pension can go up and down.

All economies are vulnerable to the effects of global financial markets. While the Government understands the difficulties current exchange rates are causing for some pensioners who choose to live abroad, no assessment has been made of the effect of recent exchange rate fluctuations on UK pensioners resident abroad.

United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what reservations his Department is seeking in relation to the ratification of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities; and if he will make a statement. [248195]

Jonathan Shaw: My Department has been considering the implications of article 12.4 of the convention on the arrangements whereby a person may be appointed to exercise rights in relation to social security claims and payments on behalf of an individual who is for the time being unable to act.

Article 12.4 states that > "States Parties shall ensure that all measures that relate to the exercise of legal capacity provide for appropriate and effective safeguards to prevent abuse in accordance with international human rights law. Such safeguards shall ensure that measures relating to the exercise of legal capacity respect the rights, will and preferences of the person, are free of conflict of interest and undue influence, are proportional and tailored to the person's circumstances, apply for the shortest time possible and are subject to regular review by a competent, independent and impartial authority or judicial body. The safeguards shall be proportional to the degree to which such measures affect the person's rights and interests".

The arrangements for appointees are not at present subject to the safeguard of regular review, so we are now actively working towards a proportionate system of review. We are currently considering the terms of the specific text which will be necessary to make our position clear on this article when the UK ratifies the convention.

Winter Fuel Payments

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) which constituencies are covered by each weather station used for the calculation of cold weather payments; [245140]

(2) how many (a) payments and (b) recipients there were of cold weather payments in each constituency in each of the last five years. [245141]

Kitty Ussher: The information requested is not available.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what information pensioners are required to provide to his Department to receive winter fuel payments. [248738]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The vast majority, over 95 per cent., of winter fuel payments are made automatically, based on information already held in DWP records. In these cases there is no need for an individual to provide further information or to make a claim.

However there are a small group of people who may qualify for winter fuel payments but cannot be identified by DWP records. This is usually because they are not in receipt of a state pension or other benefit administered by the DWP. These people need to complete a claim form so that their eligibility can be assessed.

Information required by the winter fuel payment claim form includes: name, address, date of birth, national insurance number and bank/building society details so that we may make a payment direct into a person's bank account. People are also asked to declare, for example, whether there is anyone else aged 60 or over in their household and whether they are in hospital or a care home. The claim form is available from the Pension Service website.

Winter Fuel Payments: Sight Impaired

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer of 17 September 2008, Official Report, column 2226W, on sight impaired: disability living allowance, how much it would cost to extend the winter fuel payment to the same group of people with severe sight impairment. [246863]

Jonathan Shaw: Winter fuel payments are made to people aged 60 or over. The cost of such a change would depend on the precise definition used. On the same basis as used in the previous question, the estimated annual cost of extending winter fuel payments to all people under 60 with severe sight impairment is £4 million.

This estimate is based on a £200 winter fuel payment.

Working Conditions: Temperature

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many accidents at work have occurred involving individuals who have been exposed to high temperatures at work in each of the last five years. [249054]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The information requested is as follows:

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Antisocial Behaviour

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many penalty notices were issued to persons who were drunk and disorderly in Essex in each of the last five years. [249647]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Data on the number of Penalty Notices for Disorder (PNDs) issued to persons aged 16 and over for being drunk and disorderly, in the Essex police force area from 2004 to 2007 are given in the following table. Data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

Number of Penalty Notices for Disorder issued to persons aged 16 and over for offences of being drunk and disorderly[1] in the Essex police force area, 2004 to 2007[2]

	Number

Being found drunk in a highway or other public place, whether a building or not, or on licensed premises—Licensing Act 1872, section 12;

Being guilty while drunk of disorderly behaviour—Criminal Justice Act 1967, section 91.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what materials are used by her Department and its agencies to ensure young people are aware of the implications of alcohol abuse for their (a) home life, (b) health and (c) education. [247667]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

The 10-year Drug Strategy "Protecting families and communities", published in February 2008, sets out a series of steps to address the problems associated with young people's misuse of drugs, alcohol and volatile substances.

The strategy committed Government to conduct a review of drug and alcohol education. This has taken place and Ministers announced their intention to make PSHE statutory in October 2008, in recognition of the key role it plays in equipping children and young people with the knowledge and skills they need to lead healthy and successful lives. At the same time, Ministers launched an independent review of how this might be achieved in the most effective and practicable way. Sir Alasdair Macdonald, head teacher of Morpeth school in Tower Hamlets, is conducting the review and will report to Ministers in April 2009. Proposals for the statutory implementation of PSHE will be the subject of a full public consultation.

Frank, the joint DCSF, Department of Health and Home Office drugs advice and information campaign for young people, continues to play a key role in helping to prevent drug use among young people (11-18) by changing their attitudes and perceptions towards drugs and drug users. A new Frank Cocaine campaign was launched in December 2008. Awareness of Frank remains very high: in the latest tracking study (report July 2008) 83 per cent. of young people were aware of the campaign. This figure is unchanged from 2007.

The Drug Strategy also committed to publish guidance to help the commissioning and delivery of treatment services with a greater focus on the needs of parents and families, and to that effect the National Treatment Agency (NTA) published carers' guidance in October 2008. The NTA will also shortly be publishing commissioning guidance for local drug and alcohol commissioners and partnerships which will have a greater focus on the needs of families.

To meet our commitment to provide intensive support to substance misusing parents through a range of recently established family interventions, targeting families at risk, the substance misuse agenda has been included in remit letter for local parenting support advisers and in the broad remit for Parenting and Early Intervention projects. Furthermore, Family Intervention Pilots have been extended to 500 further families affected by substance misuse. The NTA is working with DCSF in the development of the Child Poverty Family Intervention Projects in 10 pilot areas during 2008-09. This will be rolled out to further areas in the next two years.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people aged (a) under 16 and (b) between 16 and 19 years old received penalty notices for disorder for being drunk and disorderly in 2007. [248655]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Data on the number of Penalty Notices for Disorder (PNDs) issued to persons aged between 16 and 19 for being drunk and disorderly in 2007 are given in the following table. Data on the number of PNDs issued are published for persons aged 16 and over only.

[1] Data include the following offence descriptions and corresponding statutes:
Being found drunk in a highway or other public place, whether a building or not, or on licensed premises—Licensing Act 1872, section 12;
Being guilty while drunk of disorderly behaviour—Criminal Justice Act 1967, section 91.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Crime: Motor Vehicles

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps the Government has taken to reduce levels of car theft in (a) England and Wales, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency. [249579]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Reducing car theft remains a Government priority and we are seeking to maintain the reductions that were achieved in exceeding PSA1. We expect Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships (CDRPs) to prioritise this crime where it is identified as a local problem as part of their work to reduce Serious Acquisitive Crime (SAC). It has been included within the definition of Serious Acquisitive Crime as part of our new set of PSAs and is included under the SAC indicator (NI 16) in the National Indicator Set for Local Area Agreements. NI 16 has been chosen as a priority indicator in the Middlesbrough Local Area Agreement. While Redcar and Cleveland have decided not to include NI16 in their Local Area Agreement indicators, the CDRP has an action plan in place and activity is under way to tackle and reduce vehicle crime.

Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships (CDRPs) in the North East region undertake a range of activities based upon local priorities identified through strategic assessments that have contributed to this success. This work includes:

offering targeted crime prevention advice in 'hot spot areas' to help prevent victimisation and repeat victimisation working to secure car park areas targeting prolific offenders in 'hot spot' areas making regular use of automatic number plate recognition operations undertaking operations with a 'sting' vehicle equipped with CCTV camera at peak times in 'hot spot' areas.

Crimes of Violence

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) burglaries, (b) violent crimes and (c) thefts were reported in the Metropolitan Police Force area in each of the last 10 years; and what the detection rate in each such year was. [248063]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The available information relates to offences recorded by the police and is given in the following tables.

A number of changes have been made to recorded crime in response to suggestions in the two reviews of crime statistics. One such change is that the term 'violent crime' is no longer used in connection with the recorded crime statistics and we now provide figures for violence against the person.

It should be noted that non-sanction detections that contribute to the percentage change in detection rates have fallen in recent years reflecting a significant shift by many police forces away from recording detections of crime where no further action is taken. For this reason overall detections over time are not fully comparable. From 1 April 2007 the rules governing recording of non-sanction detections were revised to reduce the scope within which they can be claimed to a very limited set of circumstances.

Crimes of Violence: Hillingdon

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of violence against the person were recorded (a) in total and (b) per 100 population in (i) Uxbridge constituency and (ii) the London borough of Hillingdon between 1997 and 2008. [250897]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The available data relate to recorded offences of violence against the person in the Hillingdon Basic Command Unit. Data at Basic Command Unit level for violence against the person are only available from 1999-2000. Data for Uxbridge are not collected centrally.

Table 1: Recorded offences of violence against the person in the Hillingdon Basic Command Unit -1999-2000 to 2001-02[1]

Driving Under Influence: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many drink driving offences have been recorded in the area served by the Northern Basic Command Unit of Cambridgeshire Constabulary in each quarter since May 2004; and if she will make a statement. [250806]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Offences of driving while unfit through drink are summary offences and do not feature in the recorded crime statistics collected by the Home Office.

The Home Office does collect data on recorded offences of 'Causing death by dangerous or careless driving' (including whilst under the influence of drink or drugs). However, it is not possible to determine from the information held centrally which, if any, of these offences were committed while the offender was under the influence of alcohol.

Driving Under Influence: Hillingdon

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences of (a) drug and (b) drink driving were recorded in (i) Uxbridge constituency and (ii) the London Borough of Hillingdon in each year since 1997. [250770]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Offences of driving while unfit through drugs or drink are summary offences and do not feature in the recorded crime statistics collected by the Home Office.

The Home Office does collect data on recorded offences of "Causing death by dangerous or careless driving (including whilst under the influence of drink or drugs)". However, it is not possible to determine from the information held centrally which, if any, of these offences were committed while the offender was under the influence.

The available information for the above offence is given in the following table. The data relate to the Hillingdon basic command unit and data at this level are only available from 2000-01. Data for Uxbridge are not collected centrally.

Drugs: Statistics

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the announcement on her Department's Research, Development and Statistics website, why the National Statistics bulletin Drug Offenders England and Wales is being withdrawn with immediate effect. [250467]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The decision to withdraw this bulletin has been made for several reasons.

Responsibility for offender statistics passed to the Ministry of Justice last year. MOJ has absorbed the drug offender series into its overall offender statistics outputs, such as the Criminal Statistics command paper. My statisticians conducted an extensive consultation exercise, both internally and externally, which revealed dwindling demand for a separate drug offenders bulletin. They have been assured by their MOJ colleagues, that any material previously published in the Drug Offenders England and Wales bulletin would continue be available either in MOJ publications or on request.

The recommendation to withdraw this bulletin was endorsed by the national statistician, the chair of the UK Statistics Authority, the chief statistician and the chief scientific adviser in the Home Office and myself.

Electronic Surveillance

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which agencies outside the United Kingdom are permitted to undertake remote surveillance of the use of an individual's computer in the UK; and under what legislation such surveillance is permitted. [250874]

Mr. Coaker: None. Such activity without the system owner's permission would constitute an offence under the Computer Misuse Act 1990.

Extradition

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been extradited from the UK to (a) Zimbabwe, (b) Colombia, (c) Cuba, (d) Iraq, (e) Israel and (f) the Russian Federation in each year since 1997. [248615]

Meg Hillier: Statistical information of this kind is only available from 1998 onwards. In the period from 1998 to 2008, the United Kingdom extradited three persons to Israel (one in 1998 and two in 2006). There were no extraditions to the other countries listed.

Human Trafficking

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research her Department is using to ascertain the number of people who have been trafficked into the UK; and if she will place in the Library a copy of that research. [244930]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The covert nature of the crime makes it very difficult to provide an accurate assessment of the scale of the problem faced by the United Kingdom.

The UK Human Trafficking Centre and the Serious Organised Crime Agency continue to develop our knowledge of the scale of human trafficking through a variety of means, including analysis of the outcomes of Operation Pentameter 2 and ongoing intelligence collation. In addition to the work being undertake by these agencies, funding is in place for dedicated intelligence officers in each of the 10 Regional Intelligence Units in England and Wales to focus on organised immigration crime, including human trafficking.

We expect to have an up to date assessment of the extent of the problem faced by the UK by the end of the year.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department under what protocols her Department operates when managing people deemed to have been trafficked. [247520]

Mr. Alan Campbell: On 17 December 2008 we ratified the Council of Europe convention on action against trafficking in human beings. By April 2009 at the latest we will introduce a reflection period of 45 days and a renewable one year residence permit for identified victims of human trafficking. Additionally we are introducing formal identification measures under a national referral mechanism by which victims are systematically identified by a competent authority and referred to appropriate support.

This will further strengthen our existing collaborative way of identifying, referring and supporting victims.

Identity Cards: Welsh Language

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether identity cards will be produced (a) in English and Welsh, (b) in English only and (c) in Welsh only when asked for by an individual; [247079]

(2) what estimate she has made of the extra costs of producing identity cards in Welsh and English instead of in English. [247080]

Meg Hillier: The initial identity cards issued to British citizens, starting in the second half of 2009 to airside workers at a small number of airports, including Manchester and London city airports, will have headings in English and French in line with travel document standards set by the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO). This follows the practice for passports.

The Government are looking at the possibility of issuing identity cards in Wales that would in addition have headings in the Welsh language and, while it cannot be for the initial cards issued from 2009, we are exploring this for the next generation of identity cards.

Details of the cost of doing so are not yet available.

Immigration: Appeals

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of appeals against determination by the UK Border Agency and its predecessors were successful in each of the last 10 years. [249925]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

The latest figures are available from the Home Office Statistical Bulletin 2007 ("Control of Immigration: Statistics United Kingdom 2007"), which was published in August 2008. This bulletin indicates that, between 1998 and 2007, (a) 874,885 appeals were lodged with the asylum and immigration tribunal, or its jurisdictional predecessors, against decisions by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for the Home Department and (b) 250,930 of those appeals were allowed (comprising asylum, in-country, entry clearance and other non-asylum cases). The bulletin only provides figures between the years of 1997 to 2007 as figures for 2008 are not yet available.

It should be noted that the following figures relate to immigration adjudicator/judge decisions and do not include immigration appeals tribunal decisions or asylum and immigration tribunal reconsiderations of appeals for each of the last 10 years as this information is not available in the published bulletin.

	Total determined	Allowed	Proportion (percentage)
1998	38,200	5,200	14
1999	28,610	7,630	27
2000	27,130	5,960	22
2001	56,815	13,335	24
2002	84,260	21,910	26
2003	108,350	29,025	26
2004	109,220	34,245	31
2005	100,250	30,440	30
2006	167,310	54,860	32
2007	154,740	48,365	31
Total	874,885	250,930	29

Notes:
1. Prior to April 2005, the figures are based on data supplied by the Presenting Officers Unit within the Home Office. From April 2005 the figures are based on information supplied by the Ministry of Justice.
2. The figures for 1997, 1999, and 2000 are rounded to the nearest 10, figures for 1998 rounded to the nearest 100, and figures for 2001 onwards are rounded to the nearest five. All percentages are calculated by the Ministry of Justice using the figures contained in the bulletin and are rounded to the nearest whole number.
3. The bulletin states that some of the figures provided for 2005 and 2006 have been revised. It also states that the figures for 2007 are provisional only.

Offensive Weapons

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) prosecuted, (b) convicted of knife possession and (c) sentenced to prison for knife possession between (i) June and October 2008 and (ii) June and October 2007. [241863]

Mr. Coaker: Data showing the number of people proceeded against at magistrates courts, found guilty and given a custodial sentence at all courts for knife possession, from 1 June 2006 to 31 October 2006 and from 1 June 2007 to 31 October 2007 in England and Wales, are in the following table. Data for 2008 are due to be available in the autumn of 2009.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Information on knife crime has also been published on 22 January 2009 as part of the quarterly crime statistical bulletin.

Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts, found guilty and given immediate custody at all courts, for knife possession[1], England and Wales for the periods 1 June 2006 to 31 October 2006 and 1 June 2007 to 31 October 2007[2, 3, 4]

	2007	2006
Proceeded against	3,258	3,288
Found guilty	2,720	2,729
Given immediate custody	499	480

[1] Includes the following offences and statutes:
Having an article with blade or point in public place—Criminal Justice Act 1988 S.139A (1)(5)(a) as added by Offensive Weapons Act 1996 S.4(1).
Having an article with blade or point on school premises—Criminal Justice Act 1988 S.139A (2)(5)(b) as added by Offensive Weapons Act 1996 S.4(1).

[2] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Offensive Weapons: Young People

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many people were (a) cautioned and (b) prosecuted for attempting to purchase a knife under age in each of the last 10 years; [248640]

(2) how many people were (a) cautioned and (b) prosecuted for selling a knife to a young person under age in each of the last 10 years. [248641]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Data provided by the Ministry of Justice, showing the number of persons cautioned and proceeded against for selling a knife or other article with a blade to a young person under age in England and Wales from 1998 to 2007 (latest available) are given in the following table.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

It is not an offence to 'attempt to purchase a knife under age'—therefore no data can be supplied.

Number of offenders cautioned[2] and defendants proceeded against for selling a knife or other article with a blade to a young person under age, England and Wales, 1998 to 2007[3, 1]

	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007
Cautioned	—	1	—	—	—	—	1	1	2	—
Proceeded against	1	2	—	4	4	9	6	21	43	32

[1] From 1 June 2000, the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the totals.

[2] The cautions statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been cautioned for two or more offences at the same time, the principal offence is the more serious offence.

[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Organised Crime: Databases

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the European database of dangerous offenders to prevent homicide associated with organised crime is expected to be operational; and what funding her Department has allocated to the database. [246853]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Work is ongoing to reach an agreed position with EU member states. No funding has been allocated by the Home Office.

Police and Community Support Officers: Crosby

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) police officers and (b) police community support officers there were in Crosby in each year since 1997. [251464]

Mr. Coaker: The available data for the Basic Command Unit of Sefton are given in the following table. Data are not collected by parliamentary constituency.

Police officer and police community support officer strength (FTE)[1] for the Basic Command Unit[2] of Sefton as at 31 March in the given years

	Police officers	PCSOs[3]

[2] Data by BCU were first collected in 2002-03.

Police: Standards

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to her statement of 4 December 2008 on police targets, Official Report, column 158, which targets have been removed. [250109]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 22 January 2009]: The Policing Green Paper—From the Neighbourhood to the National: Policing Our Communities Together—stated that

> "with one exception the Home Office will neither set nor maintain top-down numerical targets for individual police forces—a significant gesture of trust and reduction of bureaucracy."

The Government have already removed the targets for the police that concerned frontline officers the most, such as the target to bring more offences to justice. Following the Green Paper announcement, the Government have removed centrally set, top-down targets for police forces relating to efficiency, and the 10-year race employment targets come to an end at 31 March 2009, when a final report against a centrally set progression target will also be made.

Going forward, we will expect police authorities to set their own local targets on these issues.

The Government have also set multi-agency targets for Local Criminal Justice Boards (LCJBs) for 2008-09 on enforcement (including fail to appear (FTA) warrant enforcement, community penalty breach enforcement and licence recall), asset recovery and the Persistent Young Offender pledge. LCJBs are multi-agency partnerships which include the police, and LCJBs' targets measure jointly the performance of the police and their partner agencies. In response to the Policing Green Paper, there will be no top-down numerical targets for LCJBs for 2009-10. Instead, LCJBs have been asked to set their own local targets according to local priorities and circumstances.

The one remaining target the Government will set for police forces will be on confidence that they and their partners are tackling the crime and antisocial behaviour issues that matter most locally.

Proceeds of Crime: Terrorism

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost to the public purse of operating the suspicious activity reports regime has been since its creation. [247622]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 14 January 2009]: Suspicious activity reports (SARs) are submitted to the UK Financial Intelligence Unit (UKFIU) of the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA). Approximately £20,080,465 has been spent on the operation of the UKFIU since April 2006, when SOCA assumed responsibility for it. This figure includes the running costs of the SARs Transformation Project, an IT-enabled business change project focused entirely on improving the SARs regime.

In addition, the overhead costs associated with running estates and IT for the UKFIU in 2008 was approximately £1,280,000.

Prostitution

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether her Department's definition of a prostitute working for another person's gain applies where the other person is (a) a receptionist, (b) also working as a prostitute, (c) working as a prostitute on the same premises, (d) a partner or a flatmate who shares premises with the prostitute woman or man, (e) a landlord letting the premises where the prostitute woman or man is working and (f) a dependant. [244923]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We announced our intention to include the offence of paying for sexual services of a prostitute controlled for gain in the Policing and Crime Bill. An explanation of the intended application of this offence will be given during the passage of this Bill.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether her Department's definition of a prostitute working for another person's gain applies in circumstances where the prostitute has entered into a working relationship with another person in the absence of force or coercion. [244924]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We have included the offence of paying for sexual services of a prostitute controlled for gain in the Policing and Crime Bill, which was introduced on 18 December. An explanation of the intended application of this offence will be given during the passage of this Bill.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research her Department has (a) undertaken, (b) commissioned and (c) evaluated on the average age at which people first enter prostitution; and if she will place in the Library a copy of each such piece of research. [247521]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government's consultation paper on prostitution, "Paying the Price", provides a summary of research on the age of first involvement in prostitution. This paper is available at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/documents/paying_the_price.pdf?view=Binary

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what services and schemes are available to people working as prostitutes to assist them with (a) housing, (b) poverty, (c) childcare, (d) drug addiction and (e) health care; how much is planned to be spent on each such service or scheme in 2008-09; and if she will make a statement. [247528]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Support for individuals in relation to these issues is the responsibility of appropriate local agencies and funding is devolved accordingly.

To support local partnerships the Home Office has produced specific guidance for criminal justice integrated teams to assist in improving the engagement of those individuals with a Class A drug problem involved in prostitution, and to help develop effective working practices with specialist projects.

As part of the co-ordinated prostitution strategy the Government will develop guidance for local areas on commissioning services for those involved in prostitution.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what schemes and services are available to people working as prostitutes to assist them in reporting incidents of violence and abuse. [247529]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We have expanded the range of services supporting victims of sexual violence including those involved in prostitution, through the development of sexual assault referral centres (SARCS), and independent sexual violence advisers (26 SARCS are now up and running, with one in every police force area planned by 2011). In order to implement one of the recommendations of the Tackling Demand Review, and a key action of the Government's Co-ordinated Prostitution Strategy we will be developing comprehensive guidance, including on advocacy services to support women in prostitution who become victims of serious violent and sexual crime.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many people have been (a) arrested, (b) prosecuted and (c) convicted for incidents of prostitution-related activity in each of the last five years; [248013]

(2) how many people have been (a) arrested for, (b) prosecuted in respect of and (c) convicted of offences of controlling prostitution for gain in each of the last five years; [248014]

(3) how many people have been (a) arrested for, (b) prosecuted in respect of and (c) convicted of offences relating to loitering or soliciting for purposes of prostitution in each of the last five years; [248025]

(4) how many people have been (a) arrested for, (b) prosecuted in respect of and (c) convicted of kerb-crawling in each of the last five years; [248036]

(5) how many people have been (a) arrested for, (b) prosecuted in respect of and (c) convicted of brothel-keeping in each of the last five years. [248037]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested on arrests is not available.

The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, broken down at a main offence group level, covering categories such as violence against the person, burglary, robbery and sexual offences. From these centrally reported data we are not able to identify specific offences from within the main offence groups.

Data provided by the Ministry of Justice, showing the number of persons proceeded against and found guilty of selected prostitution offences in England and Wales, 2003 to 2007, are in the table.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] The number of defendants found guilty in a particular year may exceed those proceeded against, as it may be the case that the proceedings in the magistrates court took place in the preceding year and they were found guilty at the Crown Court in the following year, or the defendants were found guilty for a different offence to the original offence proceeded against.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) arrests and (b) convictions there have been for soliciting for prostitution in each year since 1997. [248354]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested on arrests is not available.

The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, broken down at a main offence group level, covering categories such as violence against the person, burglary, robbery and sexual offences. From these centrally reported data we are not able to identify specific offences from within the main offence groups.

Data provided by the Ministry of Justice, showing the number of defendants found guilty of soliciting for prostitution in England and Wales from 1997 to 2007 are given in the following table.

Number of defendants found guilty at all courts for soliciting for prostitution, England and Wales, 1997 to 2007[1,2]

[3] Staffordshire Police Force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates' courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

Prostitution: Crimes of Violence

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many convictions there were for violent offences in cases where the victim worked as a prostitute in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008. [247525]

Mr. Alan Campbell: These data are not available centrally.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what schemes and services there are with the objective of increasing the number of convictions of those who have committed violence towards a person working as a prostitute. [247530]

Mr. Alan Campbell: As part of the Government's Co-ordinated Prostitution Strategy the Ugly Mugs scheme which enables those involved in prostitution to share information on dangerous clients, has been expanded through the existing Crimestoppers helpline that allows crime to be reported anonymously.

Prostitution: New Zealand

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will visit New Zealand to assess the effects of the legislation which decriminalised prostitution in that country. [247527]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government recently published the findings of a review that considered what action could be taken to tackle the demand for prostitution. As part of this review, Ministers considered research into the experience of different countries including New Zealand. Ministers conducted fact-finding visits to both the Netherlands and Sweden. There are no plans for further ministerial visits to other countries in relation to this matter.

Prostitution: Rape

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many convictions there were for rape in cases where the victim worked as a prostitute in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008. [247524]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is not available centrally. The data held centrally by the Ministry of Justice on court proceedings do not contain information about the circumstances behind each case beyond the description provided in the statute under which prosecutions are brought. It is therefore not possible to identify rape offences where the victim was a prostitute.

Theft: Hillingdon

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of (a) theft and (b) burglary have been reported in (i) Greater London, (ii) the London Borough of Hillingdon and (iii) Uxbridge constituency in each year since 1997. [250771]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The available data relate to recorded offences in the Metropolitan Police Service area and the Hillingdon basic command unit. Data at basic command unit level for theft and burglary are only available from 1999-2000. Data for Uxbridge are not collected centrally.

Table 1: Recorded offences of theft and burglary in the Metropolitan Police Service area and in the Hillingdon basic command unit—2000-01 to 2001-02[1]

	Metropolitan Police		Hillingdon
	Theft offences[2]	Burglary offences	Theft offences[2]	Burglary offences

2001-02	443,523	116,026	10,539	3,643

[1] The data in this table are prior to the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard. These figures are not directly comparable with those for later years.

[2] Includes offences against vehicles and other theft offences.

2007-08	332,156	93,894	8,621	3,361

[1] The data in this table take account of the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in April 2002. These figures are not directly comparable with those for earlier years.

[2] Includes offences against vehicles and other theft offences.

Tobacco: Young People

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people (a) were prosecuted, (b) were cautioned and (c) received a penalty notice for disorder for selling cigarettes to an under age person in the last 12 months. [248643]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The number of persons proceeded against and cautioned for selling cigarettes to an under age person in 2007 (latest published) are given in the following table.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

The Penalty Notice for Disorder scheme currently does not extend to the offence of selling cigarettes to an under age person.

Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts and cautioned[1] for selling cigarettes to an under age person, England and Wales, 2007[2, 3, 4]

[1] From 1 June 2000, the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the totals.

[2] The cautions statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been cautioned for two or more offences at the same time, the principal offence is the more serious offence.

[3] The proceeded against statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[4] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

UK Border Agency: Manpower

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many UK Border Agency staff are employed in managing the Refugee Integration Strategy; how many she estimates will be employed in 2009-10 and 2010-11; how much that strategy is expected to cost in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; and if she will make a statement. [245683]

Meg Hillier: The UK Border Agency is intending to publish a refugee integration strategy early in 2009. The strategy will confirm Government commitment to supporting refugees through integration and resettlement. The cost of developing the document and of any subsequent delivery activity will be resourced from existing provision for 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Catz Club

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) her Department, (b) its predecessor and (c) its agencies have provided funding to the charity (i) Catz Club and (ii) Schoolfriend in the last five years. [250350]

Mr. Khan: The Department, its predecessor and its agencies have not provided funding to the charity (i) Catz Club and (ii) Schoolfriend in the last five years.

Community Relations: Finance

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much of the £3 million innovation and challenge fund she announced on 10 December 2008 will be allocated in 2009-10 and 2010-11; what the criteria for awarding grants will be; what the maximum grant size is expected to be; who will administer the fund; what the annual administration costs of the fund are expected to be; how grants from the fund will be evaluated; and if she will make a statement. [249588]

John Healey: The £3 million challenge and innovation fund is for the financial year 2009-10 only. The criteria for awarding grants; the maximum grant size; fund administration; annual administration costs; and grants evaluation will be published in due course.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in each year since the Department's inception; how much has been spent on wallpaper in that time; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248804]

Mr. Khan: Expenditure by Communities and Local Government on maintaining, decorating and improving departmental buildings is shown in the following table:

CLG Maintenance, Decorating, Improvements

	Total costs (£)
2006-07	6,116,496
2007-08	8,207,273
2008-09	2,068,049

CLG does not record how much is spent on wallpaper.

Plans for further spending on departmental decoration are currently under review.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets her Department and its agencies provide for staff. [249069]

Mr. Khan: In relation to CLG's London HQ buildings, a staff restaurant service is provided at Eland House and a snack bar service is provided at Ashdown House. These are non-subsidised, directly-operated outlets provided by Mitie PLC as part of the Department's Integrated Facility Management contract.

In relation to CLG agencies, staff catering services for the Planning Inspectorate at Temple Quay House, Bristol and the Fire Service College at Moreton in Marsh, are provided on a non-subsidised, directly-operated basis as part of the facility management contracts for those premises with Eurest and Operon respectively.

In relation to the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre, the catering concession holder, Leith's, provides a non-subsidised, directly-operated canteen facility for all staff working at the Centre.

Departmental Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at her Department and its agencies in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and what was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [249855]

Mr. Khan: The numbers of bonuses paid to all senior civil service staff and the cost of these in 2008 and 2007 are given in the following table:

Senior civil servants (SCS)	Number of bonuses	Cost of bonuses (£)
2008	111	856,932
2007	104	686,000

The bonuses are non-consolidated, non-pensionable cash payments that reward excellent performance during the year, based on a judgment of how well an individual has performed relative to their peers. Senior civil service staff members are assessed against a range of factors, such as:

The achievement of their prime objective which focuses on the way in which they lead, manage and develop their staff;

Degree to which business objectives are met;

Delivery for Ministers;

Demonstration of skills such as judgment, leadership and the PSG skills;

Effective resource management

Details of bonuses paid in the Department's agencies are not held centrally.

Departmental Personnel

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 18 June 2008, Official Report, column 948W, on departmental personnel, what the current figure is for staff without posts or in the career transition centre or in a people action team in (a) her Department, (b) its agencies and (c) each of the Government Offices for the Regions; how many of the staff without posts were classified as such after returning from maternity leave; and how many of the staff without posts have been classified as such for (i) at least six months and (ii) at least 12 months. [250541]

Mr. Khan: My information is that there are currently no staff without posts in my Department, its agencies or the Government offices.

Fire Services: Contracts

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 10 December 2008, Official Report, column 196W, on public sector: contracts, whether general break clauses have been included in the contracts for regional fire control rooms. [250280]

Mr. Khan: Break clauses are not included in the contracts for regional control rooms for reasons of national resilience and to provide continuous public service.

Fire Services: Hoaxes and False Alarms

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) genuine and (b) malicious false alarm fire emergency calls have been received in (i) the non-metropolitan county of Hampshire and (ii) the City of Southampton in each of the last five years. [250172]

Mr. Khan: The information requested is available in the following table, however information regarding incidents attended by the Fire and Rescue Service is not available at a local level.

Fire Services: Manpower

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many firefighters there were per 100,000 residents in each fire and rescue authority area in England in (a) 1997, (b) 2004 and (c) the latest year for which figures are available; and how many such firefighters there were in each year in each region. [250704]

Mr. Khan: Information on the number of firefighters per 100,000 population and firefighters in England is shown as follows.

Annual returns to Communities and Local Government

Fire Services: Radio

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the national implementation of the FireLink project; and if she will make a statement. [248672]

Mr. Khan: The project is making good progress. The existing radio communications infrastructure has been enhanced to provide a more resilient network. The project has now moved into the next phase, the provision of new digital radios into fire and rescue service appliances and cars. The installation of radio equipment is almost complete in the first region on the rollout schedule, the North East. Users have welcomed the improved clarity of the system and the better reception compared to the previous analogue networks.

Fire Services: Standards

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which fire and rescue authorities did not meet the public service agreement sub-target of having an annual fatality rate from accidental fires in the home of no more than 1.25 times the national average in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [250703]

Mr. Khan: Because of inherent fluctuations in the number of fatalities in individual Fire and Rescue Authority (FRA) areas, the definition of this sub-target takes the average data across a five year period, and this runs from April 2005 to March 2010.

The comparable statistics that can be calculated now are for the five year period 2002-03 to 2006-07, and are shown in the table. However this should only be used for guidance purposes and not as a means of judging FRA performance or ability to meet PSA 3 targets.

Fire authorities exceeding 1.25 times the national average rate of accidental dwelling fires

Area	Average fatality rate (per 100,000 population) based on 2002-03 to 2006-07 data
England average	0.49
Rate 1.25* the National Average	0.61
Lancashire	0.87
Greater Manchester	0.74
West Yorkshire	0.66
Durham	0.64
South Yorkshire[1]	0.61

[1] The figure for South Yorkshire is higher than 1.25* the national average when taken to three decimal places.

Fires

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many electrical fires occurred in (a) newly rewired and (b) newly built properties in England in each year from 1997 to 2003. [251425]

Mr. Khan: Fire and Rescue Services in England do not collect information on property construction dates or a history of electrical maintenance in buildings when attending fires. Information on the number of building fires in each year from 1997 to 2003 started by electrics is available in the following table.

Fires in buildings started by electrical appliances and sources of ignition, England, 1997 to 2003

Home Information Packs

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1047W, on home information packs, if she will make gas safety certificates a mandatory part of home information packs where a gas supply is present. [249571]

Margaret Beckett: No. A gas safety certificate is authorised for inclusion in the HIP where one exists and the seller wishes to include it. The new property information questionnaire (PIQ) includes information on the service history of heating systems. The PIQ will be completed by sellers and will become a required HIP document from 6 April 2009.

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer from the Minister for Housing in the Communities and Local Government Committee on 23 October 2008, Q16, on home information packs, what recent discussions the Minister has had on (a) the updating of home information packs and (b) the period of validity of home information packs from the date of commission; with which authorities she has had discussions; what conclusions she has reached; and if she will make a statement. [250818]

Margaret Beckett: The stakeholder panel, which I chair, meets regularly to consider how to improve the home buying and selling process, including home information packs. My announcement of 8 December sets out, and makes clear how we plan to improve the content of HIPs to help realise their full potential for consumers. In particular, I have asked Ted Beardsall to convene a working group to consider local property searches. The group will consist of industry and consumer representatives and will consider consumers' needs, utility and presentation of existing searches information. We will also be working with RICS and other key stakeholders to look at how to ensure consumers receive appropriate information about a property's condition.

Homes and Communities Agency: Finance

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will publish a breakdown of the interim budget of the Homes and Communities Agency. [250445]

Margaret Beckett: The following table provides a break down of the Homes and Communities Agency's (HCA) budget. This gives the full HCA budget for 2008-09 for the reason set out in my response to the hon. Gentleman on 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1076W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the start-up costs of the Homes and Communities Agency were; and if she will give a breakdown of the cost of its administration in its first year since establishment. [250471]

Margaret Beckett: The costs of the Homes and Communities Agency are set out in the Housing and Regeneration Bill-Impact Assessment, a copy of which is in the House Library. This states that the one-off cost of setting up the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) will be £20 million over three years.

A break down of the 2008-09 administration running costs of the HCA is provided in the following table. This gives the full HCA budget for 2008-09 for the reason set out in my response to the hon. Member on 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1076.

Homes and Communities Agency: Pay

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what role she has in monitoring increases in salaries of staff of the Homes and Communities Agency. [248753]

Margaret Beckett: The Secretary of State's role is to approve the overall annual pay proposals for the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) bearing in mind the terms of the annual guidance on pay for civil and public servants issued by Her Majesty's Treasury. It is then for individual non departmental public bodies (NDPBs), including the HCA, to determine pay and conditions for their staff.

The Secretary of State also approves the annual inflation increase for the Chief Executives of Communities and Local Government's NDPBs, including for the HCA. The Chairman of the HCA also confers with my Department if the Board is minded to award an annual performance bonus to the Chief Executive.

Furthermore, the HCA will consult my Department on any proposed major structural changes to the HCA's pay and grading systems, and on the pay for any appointments made at Director level or above, including the Chief Executive.

Infrastructure Planning Commission

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the composition of the Infrastructure Planning Commission will be announced; how it will be determined; and what consultation will take place with representatives of relevant industries. [249766]

John Healey: Recruitment of the chair of the new Infrastructure Planning Commission has already commenced. The process of recruiting the other members of the Commission will follow shortly. These are all public appointments and the recruitment is being carried out in accordance with the rules of the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments (OCPA) with an independent OCPA assessor supervising the process. In addition, the appointments of the chair and deputy chairs will be subject to the pre-appointment hearing by the relevant Parliamentary Select Committee. It is open to anyone who considers they meet the essential criteria to apply for the posts.

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions her Department has had with the Railfreight Interchange Investment Group on the composition of the Infrastructure Planning Commission. [249768]

John Healey: There have been no discussions with Railfreight Interchange Investment Group and the Department of Communities and Local Government on the composition of the Infrastructure Planning Commission.

Local Government Finance

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1049W, on local government finance, what estimate she has made of the resources required by local authorities in England to carry out their proposed new responsibilities for strategic commissioning of education for 16 to 18-year-olds; and what discussions she has had with ministerial colleagues in the Department for Children, Schools and Families on the matter. [247762]

John Healey: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1049W. My Department maintains a regular dialogue with other Departments at both ministerial and official level on policies which affect local government, including resource implications.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what local authority revenue was provided from (a) central Government, (b) council tax revenues and (c) special grants for each region in each of the last 12 years, ranked in descending order according to the size of increase. [250719][1]

John Healey: Details of local authority funding provided by central Government, council tax revenues and specific and special revenue grants for each region in England in each of the last 12 years are shown in the following tables.

Communities and Local Government Revenue Outturn Summary (RS) returns.

The definition of central Government grant used here is the sum of formula grant (revenue support grant, redistributed business rates and police grant) and Greater London Authority (GLA) grant. In past years, where applicable the SSA reduction grant and Central Support Protection Grants have also been included.

The definition of specific and special grants used here is Specific grants inside Aggregate External Finance (AEF), i.e. revenue grants paid for council's core services.

Figures exclude grants outside AEF (i.e. where funding is not for authorities' core services, but is passed to a third party, for example, rent allowances and rebates), capital grants, funding for the local authorities' housing management responsibilities and those grant programmes (such as European funding) where authorities are simply one of the recipients of funding paid towards an area.

Comparison across years may not be valid owing to changing local authority responsibilities.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of the effects of the economic downturn on the income of local authorities; and if she will review the level of revenue support grant paid to local authorities. [250916]

John Healey: The effects of the economic downturn on the income of local authorities was an issue identified in a recent report by the Audit Commission entitled 'Crunch Time', which looked at the impact of recent economic changes on local authorities' finances. The report found that councils are generally prepared for the impact of the economic downturn.

Following consultation with local authorities on the provisional local government finance settlement 2009-10, I confirmed our plans for the funding of local authority revenue spending through Formula Grant on 21 January which is now subject to parliamentary approval. Overall Government grant to local authorities will next year be £73.1 billion which provides an increase of 4.2 per cent. on a like for like basis. This is the second year of a three year settlement which provides councils with an additional £8.9 billion up to 2010-11 and gives them the certainty and flexibility they need to plan ahead and manage their budgets. We also expect authorities to deliver £4.9 billion net cash-releasing savings over that period, which can be used to improve services and control council tax pressures.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to bring forward payments to local authorities in order to mitigate the amount of interest forgone by local authorities in meeting targets for payment of supplier invoices within 10 days. [251131]

John Healey: Local authorities are responsible for their own payment arrangements and in the present economic downturn many are taking steps to ensure invoices are settled promptly. In putting in place the first-ever three-year settlement last year, we gave councils an extra £8.9 billion and the certainty and flexibility they need to plan ahead and manage their budgets.

Non-Domestic Rates: Business

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidelines are used to determine business rates for companies placed into administration. [251106]

John Healey: The determination of rates liability on a property occupied by a business does not alter if the company is in administration. However, if the company owns an empty property it would not be liable for empty rates on that property whilst in administration.

Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what bookings the QE2 Conference Centre has arranged at commercial rates for Whitehall-based government departments and agencies since February 2008. [250349]

Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she is taking to ensure that the enforcement concordat in respect of the principles of good enforcement is used by enforcement authorities in their application of guidance her Department has issued on the implementation of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005; and if she will make a statement. [250946]

Mr. Khan: It is a matter for individual enforcing authorities to determine their own enforcement policies and procedures, having regard to the established principles of good enforcement set out in the Enforcement Concordat and the Regulators' Compliance Code.

We have issued guidance on enforcing the provisions of the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 to all enforcing authorities, under article 26 of the order. This makes clear that all enforcing authorities are expected to enforce the order in accordance with the principles of the 'Enforcement Concordat' issued by the Cabinet Office.

In addition, the National Framework 2008-11 makes it clear that we expect Fire and Rescue Authorities to be mindful of the need to take an open and proportionate approach to their audit and enforcement functions in accordance with the principles of good enforcement set out in the Compliance Code and Enforcement Concordat.

Street Cleaning: Wolverhampton

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much money her Department granted to Wolverhampton City Council in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09 for street cleaning in Wolverhampton; what conditions were applied; and if she will make a statement. [249632]

John Healey: Street cleaning is one of the services supported through formula grant. Formula grant, which comprises revenue support grant, redistributed business rates and principal formula police grant, is an unhypothecated block grant which means that councils have the freedom to spend it on any service provided that they meet their statutory duties. For this reason, and due to the method of calculating formula grant, particularly floor damping, it is not possible to say how much grant has been allocated for any particular service.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Children: Disadvantaged

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (a) how many and (b) what percentage of children lived in workless households in each year since 1997, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [249370]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question how many and what percentage of children lived in workless households in each year since 1997, broken down by parliamentary constituency. (249370)

The available information is provided in the table. A copy of the table has been placed in the Library of the House.

The information requested has been answered using annual estimates derived from the Annual Population Survey (APS) household dataset, which are only available from 2004. Estimates before 2004 are derived from the Labour Force Survey and are of insufficient quality for answering this question due to the detail requested. It is vital to note that as with any sample survey, estimates from the APS are subject to a margin of uncertainty as different samples give different results.

Figures are based on children in working age households. A working-age household is a household that includes at least one person of working-age, that is a woman aged 16 to 59 or a man aged 16 to 64.

Estimates that are deemed unreliable for practical purposes are presented in italics. These estimates are based on small sample sizes and are subject to large variability. Estimates that are reliable are shaded.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department and its agency provides for staff. [249068]

Kevin Brennan: None.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when his Department appointed a senior information risk owner in accordance with the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government and the accompanying document Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action; and what grade the person holds within the Department. [245355]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Office appointed a Senior Information Risk Owner (SIRO) on 3 November 2004. The Managing Director of the Cabinet Office at that time was the appointee. The Current CO SIRO is the Director General and Head of Cabinet Office Management.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many members of staff in (a) his Department and (b) the Prime Minister's Office have been (i) investigated, (ii) suspended and (iii) dismissed for losing (A) memory sticks, (B) laptop computers, (C) desktop computers and (D) mobile telephones in each year since 1997. [248259]

Mr. Watson: Cabinet Office, which includes the Prime Minister's Office, requires its employees to report any loss of Cabinet Office assets (memory sticks, laptop computers, desktop computers and mobile phones). Information prior to 2006 is not available.

five investigations have been conducted for the loss of such items; to protect the confidentiality of individuals, exact numbers of suspensions or dismissals cannot be given, but fewer than five staff have been suspended or dismissed for loss of official property following such investigations.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people who have made requests to his Department under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 have been waiting for longer than (a) four, (b) eight and (c) 12 months to receive the information they requested. [243522]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Justice publishes statistics on Government Departments' handling of requests for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. This includes details of the timeliness of the responses to requests. The statistics are available on the MOJ website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

and copies are available in the Library of the House. The specific information requested by the hon. Member can however be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working in the Cabinet Office and its agencies in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and how much was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [249862]

Mr. Watson: The number of senior civil servants in the Cabinet Office awarded bonuses and the total cost of these bonuses, since 2007, are as follows:

	Number of bonuses	Total cost (£)
2008	105	972,500
2007	123	895,000

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much his Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [248045]

Mr. Watson: The central communications unit of the Cabinet Office has not incurred any expenditure on public surveys.

Immigration

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what contribution to population change in the UK was made by (a) natural growth and (b) net migration in each of the last 20 years. [249508]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question asking what contribution to population change in the UK was made by (a) natural growth and (b) net migration in each of the last 20 years. (249508)

The attached table shows the contribution of net migration and natural change to population change for the UK for the last 20 years since 1988.

Net migration and natural change for the UK for mid-year 1988 to mid-year 2007

Thousand

	Net migration and other changes[1, 2]	Natural change
1988	-24	136
1989	21	139
1990	43	118
1992	-11	157
1993	1	129
1994	36	112
1995	56	107
1996	62	77
1997	47	103
1998	60	100
1999	133	77
2000	139	62
2001	153	74

	Net migration	Other changes[2]	Natural change
2002	146	2	62
2003	152	5	77
2004	184	[3]—	104
2005	263	3	127
2006	189	2	159
2007	199	2	187

[1] It is not possible to separately identify and split net-migration and other changes in the years up to 2001. From 2002-07 net migration and other changes are shown separately.

[2] Other changes primarily include changes in the number of home and US armed forces and dependants resident in the UK.

Immigration: Poland

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what estimate the Office for National Statistics has made of (a) the number of Polish persons living in the UK in 2007 and 2008, (b) the number of Polish persons who returned to Poland from the UK in 2008 and (c) how many Polish persons are currently living in the UK. [249587]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to respond to your questions concerning what estimate the Office for National Statistics has made of (a) the number of Polish persons living in the UK in 2007 and 2008, (b) the number of Polish persons who returned to Poland from the UK in 2008 and (c) how many Polish persons are currently living in the UK (249587).

The Office for National Statistics collects data on country of birth on the Annual Population Survey (APS) which covers residents of the UK. Estimates from the APS show that in 2007, 405,000 people living in the UK were born in Poland. This estimate has a margin of error of +/-26,000. No data are not yet available for 2008 or 2009.

The number of Polish persons who returned to Poland from the UK in 2008 is not yet available. The latest data for 2007 show that 18,000 UK residents who were born in Poland, migrated back to Poland. This estimate is based on the International Passenger Survey and excludes people who have been living in the UK for less than a year or who intend to return to Poland for less than a year.

Ministers: Pay

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which Ministers from each Department have received severance payments on leaving their Ministerial role in each year since 1997. [249389]

Mr. Byrne: Information on Ministers leaving office is a matter of public record. Under the Ministerial and other Pensions and Salaries Act 1991, only those who leave office over the age of 65; and the Prime Minister, the Lord Chancellor and the Commons Speaker (because they have alternative pension arrangements which include an element to cover the issue of severance) do not receive severance payments. Severance is also not paid to a Minister who leaves an unpaid office in Government, nor to a Minister who leaves a paid office and moves to an unpaid one.

Non-departmental Public Bodies: Pay

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many staff employed by non-departmental public bodies earned over (a) £100,000, (b) £200,000, (c) £300,000, (d) £400,000, (e) £500,000, (f) £600,000, (g) £700,000 and (h) £800,000 in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [250485]

Mr. Watson: This information is not held centrally. Non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) publish details of salaries and allowances paid to senior staff in their annual reports and accounts.

Parliamentary Questions: Commercial Secrets

Mr. Harper: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what guidance his Department has issued about the rules on commercial confidentiality and disclosure of information in response to Parliamentary Questions. [245473]

Mr. Watson: Parliamentary questions are answered in accordance with Cabinet Office "Guidance on Answers to Parliamentary Questions" and the "Ministerial Code", copies of which are available in the Library and from the departmental website.

Population

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what his estimate is of (a) the population of the United Kingdom and (b) the percentage of the population who will be senior citizens in (i) 2014, (ii) 2019 and (iii) 2024. [250201]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 22 January 2009]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated January 2009:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your question regarding what the estimate is of (a) the population of the United Kingdom and (b) the percentage of the population who will be senior citizens in (i) 2014, (ii) 2019 and (iii) 2024. I am replying in her absence. (250201)

Table 1 below shows the projected population of the United Kingdom for 2014, 2019 and 2024 together with the percentage of the population that will have reached state pension age in each of these years. These are based on the state pension age applicable in each year so they take into account the forthcoming increases in state pension age.

Table 1: Projected population of the United Kingdom, 2014, 2019 and 2024

	Total population (million)	Percentage at state pensionable age[1]
2014	64	19
2024	68	20

[1] These percentages allow for forthcoming increases to the state pension age for women, from 60 to 65, which is a graduated change between 2010 and 2020. They also allow for further changes between 2024 and 2026, when the state pension age will increase from 65 to 66 for both men and women.

Public Bodies: Telephone Services

Paul Rowen: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps are being taken by the Contact Council in relation to public sector bodies that do not charge fees for the use of their services and which use revenue sharing 084x and 087x telephone numbers. [240799]

Mr. Watson: The use of non-geographic phone numbers is currently a matter for individual Departments. It is their responsibility to balance the costs and the needs of their users and customers.

Some central Government Departments operating 084x and 087x telephone numbers apply additional charges on top of the costs of the call. However the extent of these practices has not been systematically assessed. Therefore the cross-government Contact Council has commissioned research requesting that central Government Departments provide details of how many 084x and 087x telephone numbers they operate, and whether these numbers partake in revenue sharing activities, as part of a comprehensive survey of number usage in the public sector. Once this research has been carried out the Contact Council will issue guidelines on numbering in general, including the use of 084x and 087x numbers. This guidance will be published later in the year.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UK personnel are working for the UN assistance mission in Afghanistan. [246709]

Bill Rammell: The UK strongly supports the work of the UN assistance mission in Afghanistan (UNAMA), and we work closely with them there, including through our embassy in Kabul. UNAMA employs 16 British citizens directly. While no Government personnel are currently employed with UNAMA, we are holding discussions with them on providing further UK staff to the mission.

Brazil: Overseas Students

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many Chevening scholarships have been awarded to Brazilian nationals in the last 10 years. [250119]

Caroline Flint: There have been 569 Brazilian Chevening scholars in the last 10 years. This includes a provisional figure of 24 scholars for this academic year (2008-09), because the British Council does not yet have nationality information for all of those scholars in receipt of partnership awards.

Burma

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has held discussions with the government of Thailand regarding the treatment of Burmese boat people near the Andaman Islands. [250202]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 22 January 2009]: We are deeply concerned by allegations that refugees from Burma were abandoned at sea by the Thai navy. We have raised the issue with the Thai authorities and welcome Prime Minister Abhisit's assurances of an investigation into the matter. Working with EU partners, and in close consultation with the UN High Commissioner for Refugees, we will continue to press the Thai authorities to establish the facts and take appropriate action.

Czech Republic: EU Presidency

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the Czech Republic's agenda for its presidency of the EU. [245466]

Caroline Flint: The Czech presidency of the EU began on 1 January and ends on 30 June 2009. The Czech Government have said that over the next six months the presidency will focus on energy, external and economic issues. The priorities of the Czech presidency are very much in line with Government objectives and we look forward to working with the Czech Government and our other EU partners on these issues. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office produces a Command Paper on each EU presidency every six months and this will be laid before the House before the end of January. It will also be placed in the Library of the House and on the FCO website at:

www.fco.gov.uk.

Czech Republic: Foreign Relations

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will invite the President of the Czech Republic, Vaclav Klaus, to make an address to hon. Members on achieving better co-operation in Europe during his term of office as President of the European Council; and if he will seek to arrange for that address to be delivered in the precincts of the House. [250923]

Caroline Flint: There are currently no plans to invite President Klaus to make an address to the House. President Klaus, as the Czech Head of State, has an important role to play in the presidency. But Prime Minister Topolanek, as Head of the Czech Executive, is the President of the Council. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary met Prime Minister Topolanek in London on 18 December 2008. We have every confidence in the Czech presidency's ability to promote better European cooperation through their presidency objectives of a "Europe without Barriers".

Democratic Republic of Congo: Armed Conflict

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the implementation of the ruling of the International Court of Justice of 19 December 2005 on Uganda; and if he will make a statement. [243886]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 14 January 2009]: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has received no recent reports on the implementation of the ruling of the International Court of Justice of 19 December 2005 on Uganda.

Departmental ICT

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to page 7 of his Department's Autumn 2008 Performance Report, what the risks are which remain to deploying and realising the full benefits of his Department's new IT system. [246267]

David Miliband: Since the publication of the report the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has successfully deployed the new IT system to our UK offices and two overseas pilot posts. This has mitigated the risk in some areas. However, as the programme progresses, the risks continually change, with new risks arising and others being mitigated. The main areas of risk on which we are focusing are:

the testing of the system/performance of the telecommunications network

the deployment schedule

getting the right resources where and when needed

co-ordination with wider IT/building changes preparation of staff to take advantage of the benefits of the system.

The FCO deployment team continually monitor the risks to the programme and seek external assurance through the Office of Government Commerce gateway process.

Diplomatic Relations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to page 7 of his Department's Autumn 2008 Performance Report, what the meaning is of (a) laptop diplomats and (b) virtual embassies; and if he will make a statement. [246266]

David Miliband: "Laptop diplomat" is a phrase we have coined to describe a member of staff equipped, with mobile communications and a laptop computer, to work away from the embassy. He or she could be based in London or at a Post overseas, working in a single country or on a regional basis, but will have the capability to travel outside the capital city to often remote locations (for example Goma in eastern Democratic Republic of Congo, or Juba in southern Sudan) in response to a specific need.

We are already doing a lot of "laptop diplomacy". We have laptop diplomats operating in a range of roles and environments across the network, including as conflict advisors and analysts in Africa, in Pakistan's North West Frontier Province, or as roving envoys in the Pacific and Central Asia. Each scenario is different. But in each case, laptop diplomats give the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) a better understanding of events and a greater ability to influence those events by working more closely with the people who matter, whether they are UN agencies, non governmental organisations or local political figures. We are developing IT solutions that will enable us to do more of it and do it better.

Those solutions include the "Virtual Embassy"—an interactive website which will build on many of the features of our current embassy websites. They will consist of an external, public-facing web page that provides basic information for visitors (UK or local); some of the services a real embassy provides (for example a click through to real (call centre) or virtual (self help) consular and visa services); and allows some engagement on political issues, through the creative use of tailored, local content and interactive features (such as blogs; videoconferences; discussion forums, and personalisation). In addition, they will include a set of internet-based tools that enable a laptop diplomat to carry out all the functions they could do at their desk in the embassy, anywhere where they have an internet connection. So virtual embassies will provide us with a means to engage with stakeholders and advance policy campaigns in countries where we have no physical presence.

Laptop diplomats and virtual embassies are examples of the way the FCO is modernising, helping us to build a flexible, agile overseas network that adapts quickly to new challenges and delivers for the whole of Government.

Diplomatic Service: Education

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many of those who were made a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George in each of the last 10 years attended (a) independent and (b) state schools; and how many attended (i) Oxford and Cambridge and (ii) other universities. [244269]

Gillian Merron: Educational backgrounds are not factors which are considered in awarding honours. We do not have complete information on the schools and universities attended by the 74 recipients of a D/KCMG since 1998. We have the following information on the 45 recipients from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office:

1998: (a) 4; (i) 4; (ii) 1

1999: (a) 4; (b) 1; (i) 3; (ii) 2

2000: (a) 4; (i) 4

2001: (a) 3; (b) 1; (i) 4

2002: (a) 1; (b) 1; (i) 2

2003: (a) 6; (i) 3

2004: (a) 3; (i) 3

2005: (a) 3; (i) 3

2006: (a) 4; (i) 4

2007: (a) 3; (i) 3; (ii) 1

2008: (a) 3; (b) 1; (i) 2; (ii) 1.

European Structural Funds

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the European Commission on the European Court of Auditors' disclosure of a 12 per cent. error rate in the execution of the Structural Fund; and if he will make a statement. [249745]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply

The UK is taking the lead in ECOFIN Council discussions on the European Court of Auditor's (ECA) Report on the 2007 EC Budget. Examination of the report includes analysis of Structural Funds for which the ECA's estimated error rate was 11 per cent. February's ECOFIN meeting will agree measures which the Commission must implement to improve the financial management of EU funds.

European Union

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which officer in the UK Permanent Representation to the EU (UKRep) determines which (a) reports and (b) e-grams (i) originating in and (ii) received by UKRep are circulated to the EU offices of the devolved Administrations; and if he will publish the protocols which apply to decisions on such matters. [242056]

Caroline Flint: The duties of the UK Permanent Representation to the EU (UKRep) (and Whitehall departments) to share information with the devolved Administrations are detailed in a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU), (available on the Ministry of Justice website), specifically Annex B, the Concordat on coordination of European Union Policy Issues.

UKRep and the devolved Administration EU Offices are in regular and open communication on all EU business which touches upon matters which fall within the responsibility of the devolved Administrations. All members of staff within UKRep concerned with these matters share information with the EU Offices of the devolved Administrations under the terms of the MOU.

Iran: EU External Relations

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his EU counterparts in advance of the forthcoming Council of Ministers meeting on the delisting of the People's Mujahedeen Organisation of Iran from the EU terror list following the judgement of the Court of First Instance of the European Communities on 4 December 2008. [249291]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 22 January 2009]: We have discussed the CFI judgment and the current review of the EU list of terrorist organisations with EU partners.

We have made clear that we believe the Council should respect the judgment of the Court of First Instance annulling the listing of the PMOI when conducting its review

We expect a decision on a new list by the end of January.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs following the recent decision of the Court of First Instance, if he will make it his policy to vote against the continued inclusion of the People's Mujahedeen of Iran on the EU blacklist. [243666]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 17 December 2008]: We have made clear our view that EU member states must respect the Court of First Instance's judgment annulling the listing of the People's Mujahedeen of Iran in the current review of the EU list of terrorist organisations. The review continues and a decision on the new list will be taken before the end of the month.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact of the decision by Ethiopia to withdraw its troops from Somalia on (a) the security situation in Somalia and (b) the continued operations of African Union forces in Somalia. [243875]

David Miliband: The Djibouti Agreement envisaged the withdrawal of Ethiopian troops from Somalia as part of a process leading to a more broadly accepted government within the country. Ethiopian troops have now left Mogadishu and are beginning their withdrawal from Baidoa, the current seat of the Somali parliament.

Somali security forces supportive of the Djibouti process have taken over security posts vacated by Ethiopian troops. Together with African Union troops (AMISOM), they have ensured that the security situation has not deteriorated following Ethiopian withdrawal. Somali leaders in Mogadishu have called for a cessation of fighting and many displaced people have returned to the city.

The African Union has agreed to continue AMISOM's deployment in Somalia until 19 March 2009, and has requested additional financial and logistical support to continue its mission beyond this date. UN Security Council Resolution 1863 of 16 January 2009 addresses ways to provide this support.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in deploying a police component to the African Union force in Somalia; and if he will make a statement. [243877]

David Miliband: No African Union member state has so far contributed a police component to the African Union Mission in Somalia. The African Union force in Somalia currently consists of approximately 3,500 troops from Uganda and Burundi. This number may be reinforced by additional troops from African countries, up to the mandated number of 8,000 troops.

Sudan: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has had discussions with the Inter-Government Authority on Development on co-ordinating international efforts to support the Comprehensive Peace Agreement and wider peace in Sudan and the region. [249546]

Gillian Merron: The Inter Government Authority on Development (IGAD) is represented on the Assessment and Evaluation Commission (AEC), which monitors implementation of the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA), through the two seats held by member states of the IGAD Sub-Committee on Sudan. The UK also has a seat on the AEC and has regular contact and discussion with the IGAD member states' representatives.

Tibet

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress his Department has made against its policy objectives regarding Tibet since 1 January 2008; what specific outcomes have resulted from steps taken by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [243955]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 15 December 2008]: Working to improve human rights in Tibet has been a consistent Government policy priority during the course of 2008. We raised Tibet at our UK-China Human Rights Dialogue in January, where a broad discussion took place on minority rights and the role of the police, and also visited Tibet as part of that dialogue. There have also been several ministerial interventions on this issue, including statements by my right hon. Friends the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary, my noble Friend Lord Malloch-Brown and myself.

We have consistently pressed the Chinese Government to engage in open and substantive dialogue with the representatives of the Dalai Lama. We believe that the clear expression of support for dialogue from the international community, including the UK, was helpful in encouraging the dialogue to continue. Equally, we are disappointed that the process has so far failed to achieve results, and appears to have reached an impasse. I issued a statement on 24 November calling on both sides to resume discussions without delay, focused initially on identifying points of agreement within the proposals already put forward by the Tibetan side.

We have also continued to express our concern, to the Chinese and publicly, over those who remain in detention, the increased constraints on religious activity, and the restrictions on access to Tibetan areas for foreigners. We have also continued to raise individual cases in conjunction with our EU partners.

We will continue to work in support of human rights in Tibet, in accordance with the written ministerial statement that my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary issued on 29 October 2008, Official Report, columns 30-31WS.

Ukraine: Politics and Government

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of governance structures in place in Ukraine; and if he will make a statement. [245146]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 18 December 2008]: An assessment of the effectiveness of Ukraine's governance structures can be found in the European Commission's review of Ukraine's progress against its European Neighbourhood Policy Action Plan:

http://ec.europa.eu/world/enp/pdf/progress2008/sec08_402_en.pdf

Ukraine has made some encouraging recent progress on democratisation, with three consecutive elections recognised as largely free and fair. But Ukraine must address a number of key issues if it is to consolidate these recent democratic gains, strengthen its democratic institutions and achieve greater domestic political stability. Key areas of concern are high levels of corruption, weak rule of law and ambiguities in the constitution. We are working closely with Ukraine on all of these issues, in particular through the European Union, the Organisation for Security and Co-operation in Europe and the Council of Europe.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps the Government has taken to monitor the political situation in Zimbabwe. [244986]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 12 January 2009]: We are following the situation in Zimbabwe very closely, including through our embassy in Harare, as well as our other missions in the region, which continue to monitor the situation. Ministers maintain a keen interest in developments and are regularly briefed on the political and humanitarian situation. We are continuing to work with states in the region and the wider international community to encourage a durable solution.

TREASURY

Child Benefit

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how long on average it took the Child Benefit Centre to process a (a) change of circumstances notification, (b) new application for benefit and (c) new application where the reason for the claim was other than a new birth in each of the last 12 months. [249025]

Mr. Timms: For information requested in (a), HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) aimed to process 95 per cent. of changes in circumstance within 10 working days in 2007-08. Performance results for January 2008 to March 2008 are as follows:

98.0 per cent. in January 2008

98.5 per cent. in February 2008

95.2 per cent. in March 2008

Performance information for 2008-09 will be available in due course. For information requested in (b) and (c), HM Revenue and Customs aimed to decide 69 per cent. of child benefit claims within five working days and 95 per cent. within 36 working days in 2007-08. Performance results for January 2008 to March 2008 are as follows:

> 71.9 per cent. within five working days and 93.9 per cent. within 36 working days in January 2008.
> 62.6 per cent. within five working days and 93.4 per cent. within 36 working days in February 2008.
> 60.4 per cent. within five working days and 90.7 per cent. within 36 working days in March 2008.

For the period from April 2008, I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Stroud (Mr. Drew) on 22 October 2008, Official Report, column 356W. Separate information is not available in the format requested.

Consolidated Fund: Fines

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 16 June 2008, Official Report, column 689W, on the Consolidated Fund: fines, which part of Government holds the information on the revenue received from fines. [250558]

Yvette Cooper: The Consolidated Fund does not separately identify revenue surrendered to the Exchequer relating to fines. Public bodies involved in the collection of fines will hold the information on their revenue and will publish accounts of their activities.

Departmental Databases

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 6 October 2008 to my hon. Friend the Member for Rochford and Southend East, (James Duddridge) Official Report, column 371W, on departmental databases, which aspects of financial exclusion MOSAIC and ACORN data were used to inform. [250425]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury used ACORN data to map the areas of financial exclusion reported in the Government's first financial inclusion strategy. MOSAIC data was used to map the demand for third sector affordable credit and to map and identify areas of high financial exclusion.

Economic and Monetary Union

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received in support of not taking the UK into the euro zone without a referendum. [248859]

Ian Pearson: Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

EU Grants and Loans

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what applications for approval of state aid made to the European Commission by his Department are awaiting determination; and on what date each such application was made. [250658]

Ian Pearson: There are currently five state aid applications made by HM Treasury, which are awaiting approval from the European Commission. They are as follows:

1. Venture Capital Trusts, notified on 15 May 2007.
2. Enterprise Investment Scheme, notified on 15 May 2007.
3. Corporate Venturing Scheme, notified on 15 May 2007.
4. Enterprise Management Incentives, notified on 31 June 2008.

Fraud

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which Government organisations and departments are responsible for investigating fraud; what the procedures are for (a) co-ordination of their activities and (b) taking decisions on which agency takes the lead in investigating particular cases; if he will make an assessment of the effectiveness of the system; and if he will make a statement. [250592]

Yvette Cooper: Each individual Government body is responsible for investigating fraud against that organisation.

The National Fraud Strategic Authority (NFSA), launched on 1 October 2008, was set up to help organisations (both public and private) to co-ordinate their activities and work better together to build a more hostile environment for fraudsters. HM Treasury provides leadership by: outlining the responsibilities of Government sector organisations in 'Managing Public Money' and publishing data about internal fraud against Departments and executive agencies in the Government Annual Fraud Report.

Fraud is usually discovered through the normal operation of control procedures in individual Government agencies or as a result of individuals reporting their suspicions of fraud (e.g. to hotlines operated by those agencies.) Individual agencies investigate the cases that they discover or are made aware of.

This arrangement allocates responsibility to those most immediately placed to deal with it. All Government organisations use their internal audit functions to alert them to fraud and to advise about the effectiveness of their internal control processes. Those bodies where fraud risk is highest (e.g. DWP, HMRC, MOD, NHS) employ dedicated experienced fraud experts.

Following the recommendations of the Fraud Review, the National Fraud Reporting Centre (NFRC) and National Fraud Intelligence Bureau (NFIB) will track all fraud against UK organisations including government bodies. The City of London police force plans for this new resource to start towards the end of 2010.

Government Procurement Card

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) minimum and (b) maximum value of transactions is that can be made using the Government Procurement Card. [250478]

Angela Eagle: The maximum single transaction value that can be made using the Government Procurement Card is equivalent to $500,000.

There is no minimum transaction value.

Such high value transactions would be subjected to an extremely high level approval process from the card issuing bank, before payments were made to suppliers.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to my right hon. Friend the Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) of 11 December 2008, Official Report, column 261W, on the Government Procurement Card, which are the card-issuing banks. [250479]

Angela Eagle: The Government Procurement Card service is headed up by Visa Europe together with six card issuing banks. These banks are:

Barclaycard Commercial

Royal Bank of Scotland (RBS)

NatWest Bank

Ulster Bank

The Cooperative Bank

Lloyds TSB

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to my right hon. Friend the Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) of 11 December 2008, Official Report, column 261W, on the Government Procurement Card, what bodies other than the card issuing banks hold data on card transactions. [250480]

Angela Eagle: The card issuing banks are the main bodies that store data for transactions made through the Government Procurement Card (GPC) service.

Some customer organisations will hold their own GPC transactional data, this being provided by the card issuing banks. Additionally some customer organisations may hand off GPC transactional data to third party service providers, to help streamline the purchase to pay process.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much additional revenue he expects to raise from the proposed 45 per cent. income tax band over the next three financial years. [250341]

Mr. Timms: The Exchequer effect for the next three tax years is shown in Table 1.2 of pre-Budget report, November 2008.

Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander: Isle of Man

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many UK citizens he estimates have lost their savings as a result of the collapse of Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander Isle of Man bank. [247847]

Ian Pearson: The UK Government and the Financial Services Authority do not hold such information.

Arrangements for depositors in banks in the Isle of Man are a matter for the Government of the Isle of Man.

Knowledge Network Project

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answers of 24 January 2008, Official Report, column 2134W, and 10 March 2008, Official Report, column 124W, on the Knowledge Network Project, if he will place in the Library a copy of the user manuals or guidance given to civil servants on using the Knowledge Network. [250543]

Angela Eagle: The user manuals or guidance on the Knowledge Network Project are produced by the owners, and not by OGCbuying.solutions, therefore copies are not held centrally.

Local Government: Waste Management

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the effects on local authorities' expenditure on landfill waste of reductions in recycling levels in the current economic situation. [247617]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

The effects of the current downturn in recycling markets on local authority expenditure depend on a number of factors and we have not yet made such an estimate. But according to the best available information, there has been no significant increase to date in the use of landfill, and I would like to congratulate local authorities and householders for the efforts they are making to keep recycling going in present circumstances. The Government will continue to monitor the situation closely in liaison with the Local Government Association, the Waste and Resources Action Programme, the Environment Agency, the waste management industry and others.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the letters of 16 October and 15 December 2008 from the hon. Member for Billericay on a constituent, Mr. Tony Lowe. [250722]

Mr. Timms: I replied to the hon. Member on 20 January 2009.

National Insurance

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many national insurance cards were reported lost or stolen in the last 12 months; and how many valid national insurance cards there were in that period. [250501]

Mr. Timms: A breakdown of the number of national insurance (NI) cards reported lost or stolen in the last 12 months is not held. It is also not possible to state how many valid NI cards are in circulation; controls are in place but as NI cards are purely for notification they are not treated as secure items.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people ineligible to purchase voluntary national insurance contributions in respect of tax years (a) 1996-97 and (b) 2001-02 were sent information on the schemes for those years. [251158]

Mr. Timms: HMRC sends this information to people it considers eligible. While some ineligible people will receive it inadvertently, no data are available on how many.

Stamp Duty

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has for the future of stamp duty; and if he will make a statement. [250662]

Ian Pearson: Stamp duty, like all other taxes, is kept under review.

UK Financial Investments

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the functions of UK Financial Investments are. [249911]

Ian Pearson: The overarching objectives for UKFI will be to protect and create value for the taxpayer as shareholder with due regard to the maintenance of financial stability and to act in a way that promotes competition. More details can be found in the letter dated 3 November from the Chancellor of the Exchequer to the Chair of the Treasury Committee which is available in the House of Commons' Library.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the budget of UK Financial Investments is for (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10; [249913]

(2) how many staff UK Financial Investments employs at each pay grade; and how many staff it plans to recruit in the next 12 months; [249914]

(3) which third party advisers have been contracted to advise UK Financial Investments on the management of its holdings in UK banks; [249915]

(4) what (a) business plan and (b) share management strategy has been put in place for UK Financial Investments; and if he will make a statement. [249969]

Ian Pearson: UKFI's annual accounts as well as HM Treasury's annual accounts will be laid before Parliament. In addition, the Chairman and Chief Executive of UKFI will make themselves available for scrutiny by the relevant parliamentary Committees.

UK Financial Investments Ltd.: Freedom of Information

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether UK Financial Investments Ltd. will be subject to the provisions of (a) the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and (b) the Environmental Information Regulations provisions; and whether it is a non-departmental public body. [250517]

Ian Pearson: As it is a publicly owned company, UK Financial Investments Ltd. (UKFI) is a 'public authority' as defined by s. 6(1) of the Freedom of Information Act and also as defined by regulation 2(2) (b) of the Environmental Information Regulations when read together with s. 3(1) (b) of the Freedom of Information Act.

UK Financial Investments Ltd.: Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many civil servants have been assigned to work for UK Financial Investments Ltd. [250516]

Ian Pearson: UK Financial Investments Ltd. is not part of the civil service, but a small number of civil servants (around five) are expected to be seconded into it.

VAT

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the amount of value added tax due to the Exchequer between the date of the reduction of the rate to 15 per cent. and the latest date for which figures are available. [250061]

Mr. Timms: Monthly VAT receipts are available from the VAT National Statistics Bulletin published at:

http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=bullvat.

VAT: Local Government

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the implications for his Department's policy of the European Court of Justice ruling on value added tax liability and local authority services. [250520]

Mr. Timms: The Government are aware of only one European Court of Justice ruling on VAT liability and local authority services. This concerns off-sheet car park charges. The Government are considering the implications of the European Court of Justice ruling in this case. However, the matter has now been referred back to the High Court for judgment, and it would not be appropriate for the Government to comment while litigation is continuing.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Informal Testing

10. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance his Department has issued on levels of informal pupil testing in schools. [250617]

Ed Balls: The use of informal tests is a matter for schools and, while advice and support is available, my Department does not issue formal guidance.

Testing and Assessment

11. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the testing and assessment regime for schoolchildren; and if he will make a statement. [250618]

18. Jeremy Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the educational testing and assessment regime. [250625]

Jim Knight: Ofqual monitors standards of qualifications and assessments. They reported in July that standards are being maintained.

Our recent decisions on assessment took full account of the Select Committee's recommendations. The Making Good Progress pilot is trialling new approaches to assessment. The Expert Group is taking views from a range of stakeholders before advising on improvements to assessment arrangements. We expect to respond shortly to Lord Sutherland's report, published on 16 December, and to implement the recommendations in full.

National Challenge

12. Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effects of transience on strategies for National Challenge schools. [250619]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I am aware that transience—or in-year pupil mobility—causes particular difficulties in some schools especially, but not exclusively, in seaside communities. The National Challenge is designed to tackle all the barriers to learning associated with deprivation, and therefore reduce low educational attainment. Individual schools are being supported with fresh resources under the National Challenge—each according to specific local need, including any problems of pupil transience.

19. Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent progress has been made on agreeing proposals for improvement plans in connection with the National Challenge; and if he will make a statement. [250626]

Jim Knight: We have worked closely with local authorities to develop their plans to support schools in the National Challenge. We have agreed plans for 91 local authorities amounting to £52 million of the £400 million National Challenge funding and we expect to agree plans for the remaining four local authorities shortly. In addition, City Challenge authorities in London, Manchester and the black country continue to work with their advisers to develop school improvement plans under existing arrangements.

Building Schools for the Future

13. Ms Barlow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has for the future of the Building Schools for the Future programme. [250620]

Jim Knight: Next month, I aim to publish the revised national programme for Building Schools for the Future, which prioritises the expressions of interest submitted in November by authorities, in line with our published criteria. This will include priority projects for 70 authorities not yet started in the programme, including Brighton and Hove. Partnerships for Schools will approach the most highly prioritised projects for evidence that they are ready to deliver and to join the programme.

15. Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he plans to announce the results of the latest round of bids for funding under the Building Schools for the Future programme. [250622]

Jim Knight: Next month, I aim to publish the revised national programme for Building Schools for the Future, which prioritises the expressions of interest submitted in November by authorities, in line with our published criteria. This will include priority projects for 70 authorities not yet started in the programme, including Stockport. Partnerships for Schools will approach the most highly prioritised projects for evidence that they are ready to deliver and to join the programme.

20. Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has for spending on the Building Schools for the Future programme in the next three years. [250627]

Jim Knight: Next month, I aim to publish the revised national programme for Building Schools for the Future, which prioritises the expressions of interest submitted in November by authorities, in line with our published criteria. This will include priority projects for 70 authorities not yet started in the programme, including Plymouth. Partnerships for Schools will approach the most highly prioritised projects for evidence that they are ready to deliver and to join the programme.

23. Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proposals he has to bring forward spending under the Building Schools for the Future programme. [250630]

Jim Knight: The Government are aiming to bring forward some of schools capital expenditure due in 2010-11 into financial year 2009-10, to stimulate the economy during the current economic downturn. However, because of the strategic planning that underpins Building Schools for the Future, it would be unsuitable for bringing forward in this way. BSF typically involves the design and build of entire new schools which are simply less suitable for bringing forward quickly for construction in a 12 month period.

Children's Services: Transparency

16. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to promote transparency in provision of children's services. [250623]

Beverley Hughes: Local authorities are required to publish—following consultation—a Children and Young People's Plan for all services affecting children, young people and families in a local area. They must also publish a Local Area Agreement setting out targets related to all the local priorities for the area, including for children, young people and families. The performance of the local area's services for children, young people and families is assessed by the relevant inspectorates, which report publicly.

Entrepreneurs and Schools

17. John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to encourage links between entrepreneurs and schools. [250624]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Government are investing £210 million in enterprise education from 2008-11, providing all secondary schools with the resource to help young people be creative and innovative, to take and manage risks. This investment also funds a network to support schools and Young Chambers which bring together chambers of commerce, businesses, teachers and young people to develop enterprise initiatives within schools. A National Skills Academy for Enterprise is being set up with the Peter Jones Foundation.

Children's Centres: Hastings and Rye

21. Michael Jabez Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding children's centres in Hastings and Rye constituency will receive in 2009-10. [250628]

Beverley Hughes: The funding allocated for children's centres for East Sussex local authority in 2009-10 is: £8,416,000 revenue and £1,456,000 capital.

East Sussex local authority is responsible for managing Sure Start children's centres performance across their area and will decide how much to allocate to centres in Hastings and Rye.

Secondary School Admissions

22. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent representations he has received on Government policy on admissions to secondary schools. [250629]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We undertook an extensive consultation last year on the revised School Admissions Code to strengthen the admissions system for primary and secondary schools and place children and parents at the centre of the process. We engaged with local authorities, faith groups and other key stakeholders prior to, and during the consultation, to seek their views on our proposals. The national consultation was well received with the majority of responses coming from parents. The full consultation report is available on the departmental website.

Child Poverty

24. Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on future legislation on child poverty. [250631]

Beverley Hughes: I have had regular discussions with the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, the Chief Secretary to the Treasury and other colleagues about the forthcoming legislation on child poverty. We will shortly be launching a consultation on our plans to enshrine in legislation our commitment to eradicate child poverty by 2020. We look forward to working with colleagues and stakeholders to ensure that tackling child poverty is a priority at every level of Government and that all parts of society play their part in achieving our historic goal to end child poverty.

Free School Meals

25. Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of levels of educational achievement of pupils eligible to receive free school meals. [250632]

Jim Knight: The attainment of children eligible to receive free school meals has improved substantially in each of the last five years. That improvement is faster than for the cohort as a whole, so the gap is narrowing between the proportion of such children who achieve nationally expected levels including both English and mathematics, and the proportion for the rest of the cohort. In the Children's Plan and the recent New Opportunities White Paper the Government have committed themselves to further actions to improve attainment for such children.

Child Protection

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the serious case review system in contributing to the protection of children. [250621]

Ed Balls: Lord Laming is preparing an independent report of progress nationally in safeguarding children, including on the effectiveness of serious case reviews. He will submit his report by the end of February and I will respond fully to it.

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many children on the Child Protection Register in each region had not been allocated a health visitor in each year between 1997 and 3 August 2007; and if he will make a statement; [241933]

(2) how many children on the Child Protection Register in each London borough had not been allocated a health visitor in each year between 1997 and 3 August 2007; and if he will make a statement; [241934]

(3) how many children on the Child Protection Register in each London borough had not been allocated a health visitor between 9 September 2008 and the latest date for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [241935]

(4) how many children on the Child Protection Register in each region had not been allocated a health visitor between 9 September 2008 and the latest date for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [241936]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance his Department has issued to local authorities on co-operation between children's services and housing authorities in relation to accommodation for vulnerable families with children; and if he will make a statement. [249583]

Beverley Hughes: In May 2008, the Department for Children, Schools and Families and Department for Communities and Local Government published guidance specifically relating to joint working between housing and children's services preventing homelessness and tackling its effects on children and young people, this can be found at:

> www.communities.gov.uk/publications/housing/goodpracticeguide

This was to help the managers of children's services and housing authorities in both single tier and two tier authorities to plan and deliver changes for children, young people and families. The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families will not be making a statement.

Children: Abuse

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 12 January 2008 to Question 244554, what the definition is of emotional abuse. [248677]

Beverley Hughes: Emotional abuse is defined in Chapter 1, paragraph 1.31 of "Working Together to Safeguard Children" 2006 as:

> The persistent emotional maltreatment of a child such as to cause severe and persistent adverse effects on the child's emotional development. It may involve conveying to children that they are worthless or unloved, inadequate, or valued only insofar as they meet the needs of another person. It may feature age or developmental inappropriate expectations being imposed on children. These may include interactions that are beyond the child's developmental capability, as well as overprotection and limitation of exploration and learning, or preventing the child participating in normal social interaction. It may involve seeing or hearing the ill-treatment of another, serious bullying, causing children frequently to feel frightened or in danger, or the exploitation or corruption of children. Some level of emotional abuse is involved in all types of maltreatment of a child, though it may occur alone.

Children: Day Care

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools in each local education authority area provide wraparound school care. [249393]

Jim Knight: We do not collect information centrally on the number of schools providing wraparound care. We do, however, have information on the number of schools providing access to the full core offer of extended services in England. This includes access to a varied menu of activities, combined with child care in primary schools, from 8 am to 6 pm and during school holidays where there is demand. The following table provides details of the number of schools in each local authority that are providing access to the core offer of extended services. This shows that at 6 January 2009 there were 15,199 extended schools which represents around 67 per cent. of all maintained schools.

There are many other schools which are already providing parts of the core offer, including child care and a varied menu of activities, and developing access to other services which are not yet included in these figures.

We want all schools to offer access to extended services by 2010.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the level of English spoken by staff in childcare settings. [249730]

Beverley Hughes: No recent assessment has been made. The framework for the Early Years Foundation Stage (EYFS) introduced in September 2008 requires staff to have the right language skills to support children from birth to five to develop communication skills in English and to help ensure that their welfare needs are protected. The requirements for providers working with older children set proportions for the number of staff required to hold level 2 and 3 qualifications in an area of work relevant to child care (and the Common Core Skills for the voluntary part of the Childcare Register). As part of the requirements candidates need to demonstrate competence in English. Ofsted inspects providers against these requirements. The requirements on settings are designed to help ensure effective standards of communication in settings and to enable parents to choose providers who also speak their home language.

Children: Human Trafficking

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent discussions his Department has had with the Department for International Development and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office on child trafficking. [247672]

Beverley Hughes: The UK Action Plan on Tackling Human Trafficking published in March 2007 and revised in July 2008 sets out the responsibilities of Departments, including the Department, the Department for International Development and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, and the actions they are taking. Implementation of the action plan is coordinated through the Interdepartmental Ministerial Group on Human Trafficking, which last met in November 2008. The Group ensures that all relevant Departments are fully engaged in tackling child trafficking.

Children: Mental Health Services

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he expects the final report on the review of child and adolescent mental health services to be published. [246998]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The final report of the independent review of child and adolescent mental health services, "Children and Young People in Mind", was published on 18 November 2008. The report of the review's findings and recommendations to Government is available on the Department for Children, Schools and Families website:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/CAMHSreview/.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health and my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, welcomed the report in the written ministerial statement on 18 November 2009, Official Report, columns 9-10WS, and set out their initial response to each of the review's 20 recommendations in a summary document that is available on the Department of Health and Department for Children, Schools and Families websites and the Libraries of both Houses of Parliament.

Children: Obesity

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent progress the Obesity Observatory has made towards meeting its objectives; and if he will make a statement. [246994]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The main functions of the Observatory are to: provide an authoritative source of data and evidence on obesity, overweight and their determinants; co-ordinate surveillance on obesity and overweight, including working towards the commitment to monitoring made in the World Health Organisation (WHO) European Charter on Counteracting Obesity; analyse surveillance and indicator data, and report on progress against the new ambition to reduce the proportion of overweight and obese children to 2000 levels by 2020 in the context of tackling obesity across the population; provide guidance on assessing and evaluating pilots and demonstration sites in England; gather information on international best practice and developing links to the International Obesity Task Force, WHO, and other supranational bodies; and provide technical support to the Government's expert panel on obesity.

In its first nine months of operation the Observatory has reviewed options for calculating child obesity prevalence in England; produced detailed analysis, commentary, guidance and data tools relating to the National Child Measurement Programme; and is developing a framework with supporting guidance and tools for use by primary care trusts and others in evaluating weight management interventions to enhance the evidence base. Reports published by the Observatory can be found on their website at:

www.noo.org.uk

Future plans include: making reports on obesity data sources and the availability of evidence; recommendations for improving data and evidence; wider evaluation support to practitioners; and further development of approaches to mapping obesity and its determinants building on work already undertaken.

The Observatory works with a range of organisations to support policy makers and practitioners involved in tackling obesity and related issues and will continue to consult and communicate with key audiences to shape objectives, deliverables and future work areas.

Departmental Responsibilities

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of his Department's performance against its Objective 1 to safeguard children and young people, to improve their outcomes and general well-being, and break cycles of deprivation in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [247466]

Beverley Hughes: Keeping children and young people safe and promoting their health and wellbeing are top priorities for this Government and my Department. We have a range of policies set out across the Children's Plan which contribute to these areas and have introduced a series of national indicators and success measures to monitor our performance.

The latest assessment of our performance, against Objective 1 is detailed in the Department's Autumn Performance Report 2008 (page 78 to 87), presented to the House in December 2008.

In addition, our progress against indicators and success measures in the Department's Public Service Agreements (which include PSA 10 to raise the educational achievement of all children and young people; PSA 11 to narrow the gap in educational achievement between children from low income and disadvantaged backgrounds and their peers respectively; PSA 12 to improve the health and wellbeing of children and young people; and PSA 13 to improve children and young people's safety) is monitored quarterly. The assessment of our performance against our PSAs is also given in the Department's Autumn Performance Report 2008.

Our approach to tackling child poverty, namely to break the cycle of deprivation, is set out in the Children's Plan and in the Child Poverty PSA (9). A key objective is to raise educational achievement for children and young people. The Child Poverty Unit (a joint unit sponsored by DCSF/DWP and the Treasury) was established to drive forward the delivery of the Treasury PSA: PSA 9 - to eradicate child poverty by 2020. Progress against PSA 9 is reported in the HM Treasury Autumn Performance Report.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many applications for the education maintenance allowance are awaiting processing; and if he will make a statement. [249929]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom, the LSC's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in both Libraries.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will estimate the amount of funds from the education maintenance allowance owed to students but not paid out as at 31 December 2008; and if he will make a statement. [249930]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom the LSC's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in both Libraries.

Education Maintenance Allowance: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what percentage of young people in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire have received a weekly (i) £10, (ii) £20 and (iii) £30 education maintenance allowance in each year since the scheme began; [249038]

(2) how many people in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire who were entitled to education maintenance allowance (EMA) did not receive any EMA payments in each year since its inception; and if he will make a statement. [249039]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom the LSC's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in the Libraries.

Foreign Languages: General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of pupils eligible to receive free school meals attained a GCSE in (a) German, (b) French and (c) Spanish in the latest year for which figures are available. [243100]

Jim Knight: The information available is given in the following table:

	Pupils in England eligible to receive free school meals who attained a GCSE in 2007 in the relevant language
	Number	Percentage
German	3,532	4.6

GCE A Level

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of pupils in (a) England and (b) South West Bedfordshire constituency achieved A level passes in 2008. [249628]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 20 January 2009]: In 2008, maintained schools and colleges in South West in Bedfordshire, of those 16 to 18-year-old candidates entered for a qualification at least equivalent in size to one GCE/VCE A level in the maintained sector, 86.2 per cent. achieved at least one A level pass—that is GCE/VCE/Applied A Levels or Double Awards only, not all A level equivalents.

For England as a whole, the corresponding figure (maintained sector only) was 75.3 per cent.

In all schools and colleges in England (including the independent sector) in 2008, of those 16 to 18-year-old candidates entered for a qualification at least equivalent in size to one GCE/VCE A level in the maintained sector, 77.6 per cent. achieved at least one A level pass—that is GCE/VCE/Applied A Levels or Double Awards only, not all A level equivalents.

GCSE

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many pupils achieved GCSEs grades A* to C including English and mathematics in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the north-east and (d) nationwide in each year since 1997; [249468]

(2) how many pupils achieved at least five GCSEs at grades A* to C in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the north-east and (d) nationwide in each year since 1997. [249469]

Jim Knight: The requested information for pupils achieving at least five GCSEs or equivalent at grades A* to C and at least five GCSEs or equivalent at grades A* to C including English and mathematics are provided in the following tables. Information about GCSE or equivalent attainment including English and mathematics for years prior to 2005 can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of pupils in (a) England and (b) South West Bedfordshire constituency who entered for one or more GCSE examinations entered for GCSE science at the end of Key Stage 4 in 2008. [249627]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 20 January 2009]: In 2008, in South West Bedfordshire, of those pupils in maintained schools who were at the end of their Key Stage 4 studies and who had been entered for one or more GCSE examinations, 97 per cent. had been entered for one or more science subjects at GCSE.

For England as a whole, the corresponding figure (maintained schools only) was 95 per cent.

In all schools in England (including independent schools) in 2008, of those pupils who were at the end of their Key Stage 4 studies and who had been entered for one or more GCSE examinations, 93 per cent. had been entered for one or more science subjects at GCSE.

Head Teachers: Qualifications

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the likely level of take-up of the National Professional Qualification for Headship. [247284]

Jim Knight: The current national professional qualification for headship (NPQH) is being phased out this year following the introduction of the redesigned NPQH in September 2008. Recruitment to the redesigned NPQH to the end of March 2009 is estimated to be 1,500, while 4,008 have already graduated from the current NPQH since April 2008.

The National College of School Leadership will estimate the level of annual recruitment required based on the level of headship vacancies and include an additional percentage to allow for unavoidable deferrals and withdrawals. This number will be between 2,000 and 2,500 each year.

Headteachers: Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in what circumstances Ofsted may be required to inspect a school in the event of a suspension of a headteacher or other senior staff. [248165]

Jim Knight: Ofsted is required to inspect all maintained schools on a three year cycle. Within the cycle, the timing of inspections is determined by Ofsted. Decisions on scheduling take account of a range of factors which may include the stability of school leadership. If parents have concerns about the leadership and management of their child's school, they may complain to Ofsted, which has powers to investigate. Such an investigation could lead to a school being inspected. The Chief Inspector has powers to inspect a school at any time and the Secretary of State has powers to require Ofsted to inspect a school.

Home Education

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 19 February 2008, Official Report, column 511W, on home education, and the subsequent establishment of the Elective Home Education Review, if he will collect information centrally on the number of children home educated in each local authority area. [250888]

Jim Knight: There are no current plans to collect information centrally about the number of home educated children. We will consider this and other aspects of our approach to home education after receiving the report of the recently commissioned review of home education.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to encourage positive home learning environments. [250441]

Jim Knight: The Department has announced an independent review of home education. The review will assess the effectiveness of the current arrangements to ensure that any concerns about the safety, welfare or education of home educated children are addressed quickly and effectively. It will also investigate whether local authorities are providing the right type, level and balance of support to home educating families to ensure that they are undertaking their duties to provide a suitable full-time education to their children. Where necessary, the review will also make recommendations for improvements. The review will conclude with a published report in May 2009.

The Department provides a range of guidance for all parents on helping their children learn outside the classroom. This can be found on the Department's website.

Improving Information Sharing and Management Programme

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Improving Information Sharing and Management Programme; and if he will make a statement; [247267]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of ContactPoint; and if he will make a statement; [247268]

(3) what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the operation of (a) the Integrated Children's and (b) the Client Caseload Information system; and if he will make a statement. [247269]

Beverley Hughes: The first IISaM survey which will establish the baseline is planned to take place later this year. It will include a section on ContactPoint, eCAF and ICS to be completed as appropriate by practitioners. Views will be sought from practitioners that use the system, based on their experiences of working with children, young people and families. The survey will be carried out annually and used with management information from the system to identify trends and track progress towards realising the benefits of each of the systems. The results of the survey will be collated at both national and local authority level.

ContactPoint has not yet been deployed. In August 2008, we announced that ContactPoint deployment would begin in January 2009. That remains the position and we are on track to deploy the first phase of ContactPoint before the end of January.

The full implementation of the Integrated Children's System (ICS) is not yet complete. 12 local authorities have not yet implemented phase 1B of ICS, and no authority has yet implemented the final component, which deals primarily with looked-after children and family court processes. This work is due to take place during 2009-10. We will also take account of any recommendations relevant to the operation of ICS that may arise from Lord Laming's report.

The effectiveness of the Client Caseload Information System (CCIS) was assessed by the National Audit Office in its study of the Connexions Service in 2004. The tracking capability of the CCIS system and its capability to generate robust management information was explored and subsequently commended as a key lever in the national strategy to tackle the issue of 16 to 18-year-olds in England not in education, employment or training.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he plans to reply to the letter of 17 November 2008 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mrs. R. Campion. [247866]

Beverley Hughes: The Department for Children, Schools and Families has received a great deal of correspondence since November when the Baby P case was widely publicised and there has inevitably been a delay in responding to some letters. The correspondence referred to was answered on 15 January 2009.

National Curriculum Tests

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what risks the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority has identified in Key Stage 2 test delivery in 2009; and if he will make a statement; [248150]

(2) what risks have been identified in Key Stage 2 test administration in 2009; and if he will make a statement [248015]

Jim Knight: The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) is responsible for the administration of the key stage 2 (KS2) national curriculum tests. The QCA has assessed the overall risks for the delivery in 2009. The QCA has engaged additional support to identify, categorise and mitigate as much as possible, operational risks as they arise. In line with Lord Sutherland's recommendations on risk management, the QCA has reviewed and strengthened its risk management and escalation processes to provide greater visibility not only of the cause and effect of risks, but active monitoring of the planning, implementation and effect of mitigations and contingencies.

The Department has also further strengthened its existing governance arrangements and will closely monitor delivery arrangements for the 2009 test cycle, ensuring that the Department is able to both challenge and support the QCA to secure successful delivery of the 2009 test cycle. The new supplier, Edexcel, has a strong track record in delivery of tests and exams. The Department will be publishing a full response to Lord Sutherland's report later this month.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of schools will be taking the Key Stage 3 tests in 2009; and on what date a communication was sent to schools asking them about their participation in the tests; and if he will make a statement. [249439]

Jim Knight: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families announced on 14 October 2008, Official Report, column 673, that Key Stage 3 (KS3) national curriculum tests would no longer be a statutory obligation. The Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) is responsible for the administration of the Key Stage 2 (KS2) national curriculum tests and for fulfilling orders for optional KS3 national curriculum tests.

At 19 January 2009, a total of 3,346 schools had ordered one or more KS3 national curriculum tests for 2009. A total of 4,158 schools ordered KS3 tests in 2008. The QCA has communicated the new arrangements to schools on five separate occasions from 17 October 2008 to 9 December 2008 via its test updates.

Performing Right Society

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what discussions (a) he and (b) his Department has had with the Performing Right Society (PRS) on (i) the way in which they contact organisations who may need a PRS licence and (ii) the effect on very small businesses of having to pay for PRS licences; and if he will bring forward proposals to establish an independent complaints procedure to govern the PRS's activities. [249658]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

As the Minister for Intellectual Property I have met the PRS, and my officials have frequent exchanges with the PRS, in which these matters have been covered. The PRS have confirmed that by the end of January they will publish a draft Code of Practice governing customer relations, and establishing an independent complaints procedure. I will continue to follow this closely, and will want to see how stakeholders respond to that draft. As regards small businesses, as explained on 12 November 2008, Official Report, column 917, it was suggested to the PRS that they reflect on the range and type of business which they licence.

Personal Income

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effects of low educational attainment on employability and life time income. [250444]

Jim Knight: There is strong evidence to show significant wage and employment benefits for young people achieving well at school, compared to young people who do not attain. These benefits persist throughout people's lifetimes. There are also clear benefits of higher skill levels to the economy and to society. There are a number of studies looking at wage and employment benefits of qualifications. For example, research by the Centre for the Economics of Education found that people with five or more GCSEs at A*-C earn on average around 9-11 per cent. more than those without and are around 3 percentage points more likely to be employed. People achieving one to four GCSEs at A*-C earn a positive wage return of around 5 per cent. and are around 1-2 percentage points more likely to be employed than those without.

The Department is committed to enabling as many young people as possible to achieve their potential. Raising the participation age (RPA) from 2013 will be a key lever to improve the attainment of young people as they enter the labour market. Independently verified research estimates the economic benefits of raising the participation age to be around £2.4 billion per year group over the course of their lifetime. This research was published alongside the introduction of the Education and Skills Bill to the House in November 2007.

For further details of the methodology and data sources used to estimate the economic benefits of RPA (and the magnitude of the benefits under alternative scenarios), the full report is accessible at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/research/data/uploadfiles/DCSF-RW026.pdf

The research has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Pre-School Education

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how frequently early years settings must apply for exemption from the early years foundation stage to sustain exempted status; [251044]

(2) how many early years settings have applied for an exemption from the early years foundation stage in the last 12 months. [251042]

Beverley Hughes: Providers can only apply for exemptions from the learning and development requirements of the EYFS (not the welfare requirements). Exemptions are time limited and vary between one and two years depending on the type of exemption granted. Further guidance on the exemption process and types of exemptions that can be applied are available on the QCA website. Since the introduction of the process in September 2008, one application for exemption has recently been received by the QCA.

Primary Education

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what research his Department has evaluated into factors which contribute to disparities in achievement and attainment between primary school children. [250442]

Jim Knight: The Department has commissioned and reviewed a wide range of evidence on the factors contributing to disparities in achievement and attainment at primary school. The main factors identified by research can be summarised as follows:

Family circumstances: Low family income has been shown to have an impact on children's outcomes at school, even when controlling for the effect of other factors associated with deprivation[1]. Similarly, family socioeconomic status is known to have a significant impact on cognitive outcomes[2]. The level of education achieved by parents is also strongly associated with their children's outcomes[3], as is parental involvement in education: in particular, the quality of the "home learning environment" varies between families[4] and has persistent effects during primary school[5].

The school effect: There is strong and robust evidence to suggest that regardless of the influence of family circumstances outlined above, schools are independently important for children's outcomes. However, some schools are more effective than others, or effective in different ways[6]. Analysis suggests that 17 per cent. of the unexplained variation in pupil value added scores between Key Stage 1 and Key Stage 2 can be explained by differences between schools[7]. The school effect is multifaceted and complex, but we know that both teaching quality and leadership are two key components[8].

Long-term impact of early learning experiences: children who attend higher quality pre-school settings perform better at primary school than similar pupils who attend a lower quality pre-school or no pre-school[9].

Health: low birth weight and early health or developmental problems can be a significant influence on cognitive outcomes[10].

English as an additional language: performance at primary school has been shown to vary according to whether children are eligible for support with English as an additional language[11].

Special educational needs: children identified as having special educational needs (SEN) or who are registered as School Action Plus during Key Stage 2 demonstrate lower Key Stage 2 performance compared to similar pupils with no identified SEN, even when prior attainment and other characteristics are taken into account[12]. Raw figures show that they are 52 percentage points behind children with no identified SEN on the national indicator of achieving Level 4 in both English and maths at Key Stage 2[13].

Mobility: on average, children who change school during Year 6 demonstrate lower Key Stage 2 performance compared to similar pupils who remain at the same school[14], even when accounting for prior attainment.

Pupils: English Language

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which primary schools in England have 70 per cent. or more of their pupils for whom English is not their first language; and how many and what proportion of pupils at each such school do not have English as their first language. [250823]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information has been placed in the Library.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding per pupil he expects his Department to have provided for education in (a) Northamptonshire and (b) England in 2008-09. [250730]

Jim Knight: The revenue funding figures per pupil for Northamptonshire and the England average for 2008-09 are provided in the following table. This covers all funded pupils aged three to 19. Figures are in cash terms.

2008-09 dedicated schools grant + grants per pupil

England	4,690
Northamptonshire	4,360

Note:

Price Base: Cash. Figures have been rounded to the nearest £10.

School Meals: Standards

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the updated regulations on food-based standards for school lunches have been implemented. [246995]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: All schools have to meet the food-based standards for school lunches which were introduced in September 2006 and, since September 2007, they have had to meet the food-based standards for other school food such as tuck shops, vending and breakfast clubs.

The School Food Trust has launched a web-based tool that helps schools assess whether the food and drink they provide at lunchtime and at other times of the school day meets the food-based standards. All schools in England are being encouraged to use the checklist to assess their own compliance with the food-based standards.

Nutrient-based standards were introduced for primary school lunches in September 2008 and will be introduced in secondary and special schools in September 2009.

Schools

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department spent on (a) primary and (b) secondary school buildings in (i) Hemel Hempstead, (ii) Hertfordshire and (iii) England in 2007-08. [250561]

Jim Knight: The Department allocates school capital funding on a local authority basis, which is then prioritised locally in accordance with asset management plans. Accordingly, records are held centrally on a local authority basis, and do not distinguish between primary and secondary schools. Allocations to Hertfordshire in 2007-08 amounted to £50.2 million. Budgeted expenditure for England in 2007-08, including PFI credits, amounted to £6.435 million.

Schools: Conditions of Employment

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will agree to include a no detriment clause within the agreement on assimilation in the National Pay and Conditions Framework for School Support Staff; and if he will make a statement. [250552]

Jim Knight: My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, intends to establish the new School Support Staff Negotiating Body (SSSNB) for school support staff pay and conditions through the forthcoming Children, Skills and Learning Bill which we intend to introduce to Parliament in the week commencing 2 February 2009. The detail of the proposed clauses will be published at that time.

Schools: Finance

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the schools budget of each local authority was for each of the last five years; and what proportion of that budget was delegated to schools in each case. [248863]

Jim Knight: The available information has been placed in both Libraries.

Schools: Fire Prevention

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which schools built under the Building Schools for the Future programme (a) have and (b) have not included sprinkler systems as part of the build. [248163]

Jim Knight: The decision to install sprinkler systems in new schools is one for local authorities to make, in accordance with government guidelines contained in Building Bulletin 100. I refer my hon. Friend to the reply given on 7 January 2008, Official Report, columns 200-01W, which gave information on the first seven schools built under Building Schools for the Future. Currently 50 schools have been opened and although we do not hold information on which of these schools have incorporated sprinkler systems, Partnerships for Schools plan to centrally record which schools have sprinkler systems in the next financial year. I will write to my hon. Friend when this is available.

Schools: Inspections

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the outcomes of the evaluation of reduced-tariff inspections of schools; and if he will make a statement. [247456]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 21 January 2009:

Parliamentary question number 247456: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, what assessment he has made of the outcomes of the evaluation of reduced-tariff inspections of schools; and if he will make a statement.

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

Reduced tariff inspections (RTIs) of maintained schools were introduced in April 2006. As a result of the evaluation of these initial reduced-tariff inspections, changes were made to our risk assessment and to the level of pre-inspection engagement with the school from September 2007.

All RTIs continue to be pilot inspections. The ongoing evaluation of these inspections is feeding into the current development of the new school inspection arrangements that will be introduced in September 2009. Further details of these can be found on Ofsted's website at http://www.ofsted.gov.uk/Ofsted-home/Publications-and-research/Browse-all-by/Documents-by-type/Consultations/A-focus-on-improvement- consultation-report.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt Hon Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Schools: North East

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department spent on (a) primary and (b) secondary school buildings in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside and (iii) the North East in 2007-08. [249661]

Jim Knight: Capital allocations are made on a local authority rather than on a constituency basis, and no data are kept centrally relating specifically to Jarrow. Expenditure is prioritised at local authority level, and records on the split of expenditure between primary and secondary school buildings are kept at local authority rather than departmental level. In 2007-08, capital allocations made by the Department to South Tyneside amounted to £4.6 million, and to the north east region £99.6 million.

In addition, Newcastle, Sunderland and Middlesbrough local authorities have commenced or will shortly commence Building Schools for the Future (BSF) projects with an estimated capital value of £425 million. Redcar and Cleveland is also currently planning its wave six BSF project, which has an estimated capital value of £100 million.

Social Services: Doncaster

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for what reasons Paul Gray has been appointed as Interim Director of Children's Services in Doncaster; what Mr Gray's job specification is; and if he will make a statement. [248695]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Dr. Paul Gray was recruited by Doncaster Metropolitan borough council in April 2008 to take up the position of Director of Children's Services on an interim basis to take lead responsibility for the Children's Services Authority's functions as set out in section 18 of the Children Act 2004 and section 4 of "Statutory guidance on the roles and responsibilities of the Director of Children's Services and Lead Member for Children's Services 2005".

Social Services: Haringey

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 18 December 2008, Official Report, column 1123W, on social services: Haringey, what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the inspections of Haringey undertaken by Ofsted. [248573]

Beverley Hughes: Ofsted is an independent non-ministerial Government Department and HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has responsibility for matters concerning the quality of Ofsted's inspections. It is not the proper role of the Department to assess inspections. The December 2008 report of the joint area review of Haringey services, led by Ofsted, clearly identified a number of serious concerns and made recommendations to address them. In light of the report, the Secretary of State has taken urgent action to secure improvements in Haringey's safeguarding services.

Special Educational Needs: Expenditure

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the planned net expenditure on the provision of education for pupils with special educational needs is in each local authority for 2008-09. [247861][1]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The available information for planned net expenditure on the provision of education for pupils with special educational needs in each local authority for 2008-09 is contained within the following table.

Notes:

1. Includes planned expenditure on the provision for pupils with statements and the provision for non-statemented pupils with SEN, support for inclusion, inter authority recoupment, fees for pupils at independent special schools and abroad, educational psychology service, local authority functions in relation to child protection, therapies and other health related services, parent partnership, guidance and information, the monitoring of SEN provision and inclusion administration, assessment and co-ordination. Also included is the funding delegated to nursery, primary and secondary schools identified as "notional SEN" and the individual schools budget (ISB) for special schools.

2. The ISB for special schools will include some general education costs for pupils with SEN in addition to those costs specifically for SEN while the figures recorded against "notional SEN" are only indicative of the amount that might by spent by schools on SEN. During 2008-09 local authorities in England also budgeted a further £552.6 million for SEN transport expenditure which is not included in the above table.

3. The data are drawn from Children, Schools & Families Financial Data Collection (Budget).

4. Budgeted net expenditure on the provision of education for children with special educational needs by local authorities in England 2008-09.

5. Figures are in cash terms.

6. Figures are rounded to the nearest thousand pounds and may not sum due to rounding.

Special Educational Needs: General Certificate of Secondary Education

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of pupils with (a) a statement of special educational needs and (b) unstatemented special educational needs achieved five A* to C grades at GCSE in each year since 1997, broken down by type of school. [249910]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 21 January 2009]: The requested information is only available from 2003 onwards. Changes to data collections and definitions over time mean that for 2003 to 2004 the figures cover pupils aged 15. For 2005 onwards, the figures cover pupils at the end of their key stage 4 studies. As the figures require details of pupil characteristics (i.e. SEN), they are only available for maintained schools.

Specialist Schools and Academies Trust

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding his Department has allocated to the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust in the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [247410]

Jim Knight: The Department funds the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust through a range of grants and contracts to support the Specialist Schools and Academies programmes and a range of other activities designed to raise pupil achievement. We estimate that total funding for SSAT through grants and contracts in 2008-09 will be £28,436,169. DCSF negotiates funding levels each year for individual grants and contracts. We are not in a position to estimate what the level of funding will be in future years—this will depend on our priorities at the time.

Teachers: Training

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many teachers took a primary (a) Bachelor of Education or Bachelor of Arts and (b) post-graduate certificate in education with a (i) language and (ii) mathematics specialism in each of the last three years for which figures are available; [249102]

(2) how many teachers took (a) a post-graduate certificate of education, (b) a Bachelor of Education or Bachelor of Arts, (c) a school-centre initial teacher training course and (d) another teacher training route at primary level with a specialism in (i) Mandarin, (ii) Japanese, (iii) Urdu, (iv) Italian, (v) French, (vi) Spanish and (vii) German in each of the last five years. [249232]

Jim Knight: The available information is given in the following table and shows recruitment to undergraduate and postgraduate primary modern foreign language initial teacher training (ITT) courses for the last five years for which data are available. Figures relating to 2008/09 are expected to be available by the end of January 2009. There are currently no primary ITT courses which specialise in mathematics; Mandarin; Japanese or Urdu.

Over the last five years nearly 4,000 trainees in total graduated through ITT courses in primary modern languages. More trainees will be funded for these courses, including a projected 900 in 2008/09.

The Training and Development Agency for Schools is also piloting this year, in partnership with 10 ITT providers, additional routes to boost the primary workforce teaching languages. A projected 3,000 trainees will go through these courses in 2008/09. Of these trainees, about one third are postgraduate trainees and two thirds are undergraduate trainees.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what is the cost to the public purse of training for teaching staff at schools in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland. [249818]

Jim Knight: The requested data are not collected centrally with the required breakdown. However, the total expenditure by local authority maintained schools on development and training for all staff employed at schools and the central local authority expenditure on teacher development for 2007-08 is contained within the following table.

	Expenditure by local authority maintained schools on development and training (E09) for all staff employed at school	Central local authority expenditure on teacher development

Teaching Methods: ICT

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding his Department provided for the Next Generation Learning campaign in the last 12 months; and what funding it has allocated to the campaign for the next three years. [247199]

Jim Knight: The Next Generation Learning campaign sponsored by Becta is designed to raise the awareness of parents or carers, employers and learners of the benefits of the use of technology in education and to drive greater demand for it. It demonstrates how greater engagement with parents or carers can increase a learner's potential, how effective use of technology can improve schools and colleges, and how to ensure children are safe online.

Becta funding for the campaign for the 12 months April 2008 to March 2009 was £3.1 million. Funding for 2009-10 and 2010-2011 has yet to be confirmed but Becta expect this to be in the region of £2.5 million per year. There is no commitment to fund the campaign beyond this period at this time.

Truancy

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of pupils have had (a) one, (b) two and (c) more than five unauthorised absences in the latest year for which data are available. [240614]

UK Council for Child Internet Safety

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on what date the UK Council for Child Internet Safety came into operation; and what funding his Department has allocated to the Council for each of the next three years. [247009]

Beverley Hughes: The UK Council for Child Internet Safety (UKCCIS) was launched by the Prime Minister on 29 September and the first meeting of the Council's Executive Board took place on 9 December. The UKCCIS secretariat is currently establishing working groups to take forward the programme of activity agreed by the Executive Board.

DCSF allocated up to £300,000 for the establishment of UKCCIS, although the implementation of the Byron Review relies on building digital safety into planned activities and services that are already funded. Longer term, UKCCIS goals will be achieved through working in partnership with Council members, such as the upcoming 'Know IT All' guide for primary teachers that is funded jointly by the DCSF, Becta and Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA).

Budget allocations for UKCCIS are still to be finalised for the forthcoming year.

Young People: Drugs

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the percentage of (a) males and (b) females under the age of 25 years who used Class A drugs in 2006-07. [247482]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I have been asked to reply.

There are two primary sources of statistics on the use of illicit drugs by young people: the British Crime Survey (which covers England and Wales) and the drug use, smoking and drinking survey among young people in England.

According to the 2006-07 British Crime Survey 10.6 per cent of males and 5.5 per cent. of females aged 16-24 reported using a Class A drug in the last year.

Figures from the most recent smoking, drinking and drug use survey, which was carried out in the autumn school term of 2007, show that 3.8 per cent. of male pupils and 4.2 per cent. of female pupils aged 11-15 years reported using Class A drugs in the previous 12 months.

Youth Services: South East

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the budgeted net expenditure on youth services was in the south east (a) by each local authority and (b) per young person aged between 13 and 19 years in each of the last eight years. [248839]

Beverley Hughes: The Government do not set a budget for spending on youth services. Local authorities receive funding from Government through the revenue support grant for youth services, but it is up to them to decide how much funding should be spent based on Government priorities and local needs. Tables set out the net expenditure for each local authority in the South East per year since 2001.

[1] Youth service includes the following items of planned expenditure on the Youth Service and youth work:
Employees
Staff Training
Premises related expenditure
Transport related expenditure
Supplies and services
Third-party payments
Support services
Youth work costs at residential and non-residential youth centres
Youth work costs at activity at outdoor and urban studies centres
Grant funding to the voluntary sector for youth work.
Financial data are drawn from local authorities' 2008-09 Children, Schools and Families Financial Data Collection (Budget) Statements and 2001-02 to 2007-08 Section 52 Budget Statements (Table 1) submitted to the DCSF.
[2] The 2001-02 and 2002-03 figures also include any Local Authority Youth Service provision that contributed to the delivery of the Connexions Service plus any Connexions Service specific funding.
[3] 2008-09 budget data remain provisional and subject to change by the local authority.
[4] Figures are rounded to the nearest thousand pounds and may not sum due to rounding.
[5] The figures for £ per pupil aged 13-19 are derived by dividing the total budgeted net expenditure on youth services by the total number of pupils aged 13-19 in all nursery, primary, secondary and special schools, pupil referral units, independent schools, city technology colleges and academies derived from the January School Census returns made by schools to the Department.

Youth Sport Trust

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding his Department has allocated to the Youth Sport Trust over the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [247411]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department is paying grant of £13,460,576 to the Youth Sport Trust for work in connection with the PE and Sport Strategy for Young People in 2008/09. Work in this area for 2009/10 and 2010/11 will be procured through a competitive tendering exercise, for which the Youth Sport Trust will be entitled to bid. Funding for this work will come from total Government funding of £782 million set aside to deliver the PE and Sport Strategy for Young People from 2008 to 2011.

JUSTICE

Antisocial Behaviour: Fixed Penalties

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what (a) minimum and (b) maximum fine may be imposed by a penalty notice for disorder for (i) possession of cannabis, (ii) being drunk or disorderly in a public place and (iii) using fireworks after curfew. [249534]

Maria Eagle: The penalty which may be imposed by a penalty notice for disorder for the offences of (ii) being drunk and disorderly in a public place and (iii) using fireworks after curfew, is fixed at £80. The penalty for possession of cannabis will also be £80 once the offence comes into force, subject to parliamentary approval.

If no payment is received or court hearing requested within the suspended enforcement period, a fine of £120, one and half times the penalty amount, is registered by the courts.

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of penalty notices for disorder which remained unpaid (a) six and (b) 12 months after issue in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [249537]

Maria Eagle: The total number and percentage of penalty notices for disorder (PNDs) which were not paid from 2004 to 2007 in England and Wales can be viewed in the table. It is not possible to break down the data further into those which remain unpaid at (a) six and (b) 12 months as this information is not held centrally.

PND data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[2] Penalty Notices for Disorder came into force in November 2004.

Cannabis: Penalty Notices

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the maximum quantity of cannabis of which an individual may be found in possession is before it would be considered appropriate to issue a penalty notice for disorder according to his Department's guidelines. [249535]

Maria Eagle: Penalty notices for disorder are not currently available in respect of possession of cannabis. When, subject to parliamentary approval, penalty notices for disorder become available for this offence, the Secretary of State will issue guidance under section 6 of the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 about their appropriate use.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when his Department's consultation on the use of penalty notices for disorder for cannabis possession offences was launched; and to whom the relevant consultation document was sent. [250890]

Maria Eagle: The proposal that cannabis possession should be added to the penalty notice for disorder scheme was made public in October 2008. There was no formal consultation document.

Corporate Manslaughter

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will make it his policy to bring into force immediately the remaining provisions of the Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Act 2007; and if he will make a statement. [249893]

Maria Eagle: With two exceptions, all provisions in the Act were commenced on 6 April 2008. The exceptions are:

Section 2(1) (d) which extends the offence to duties of care relating to those detained at a custodial institution or in a custody area at a court or police station; detained at a removal centre or short-term holding facility; being transported in a vehicle, or being held in any premises, in pursuance of prison escort arrangements or immigration escort arrangements; living in secure accommodation in which they have been placed; and detained patients. The Government are firmly committed to implementing this provision within three to five years from the time that the new offence was commenced. Where implementation can occur sooner with respect to certain organisations, we will put the necessary arrangements in place to achieve this and will keep Parliament updated of any developments in this regard. As stated in our first report to Parliament in July last year, all the custody providers in England and Wales, Northern Ireland and Scotland are working towards the provisions being commenced by April 2011.

Section 10 which provides for the court to require a publicity order. We will implement this section following the issue of a guideline from the Sentencing Guidelines Council since this is a new disposal where we felt it important for guidance to be in place from the outset.

Corporate Manslaughter: Prosecutions

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) charges and (b) convictions there have been in (i) Essex and (ii) England under the provisions of the Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Act 2007 since implementation of the Act. [249892]

Maria Eagle: The Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Act 2007 came into force on 6 April 2008 and only applies to offences committed after that date.

Charging data are not held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. Prosecution data are normally provided in lieu. Court proceedings data for 2008 will not be available until the autumn of 2009.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department and its agencies provides for staff. [249079]

Mr. Malik: HM Court Service has directly operated services for staff at two locations, Barnsley and Nottingham magistrates courts. There are no franchised catering outlets; all other catering provision is through primary catering service providers.

The Ministry of Justice has no franchised catering outlets, but has a number of contracted operations providing a variety of coffee bar, restaurant, hospitality and vending services at six of its headquarter buildings in London.

Similarly, National Offender Management Services (NOMS) has no franchised catering outlets. Contracted catering services are provided at 28 prisons and two headquarter buildings. Central records of directly operated catering outlets are not held. To obtain this information would be at a disproportionate cost as records at each establishment would need to be checked.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of contractors and suppliers to (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have reported that they are compliant with the Government's security standards following publication of the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government, and the accompanying document, Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action, on 25 June 2008. [245327]

Mr. Wills: The recommendations about data handling within Government that relate to contractors and suppliers are being taken forward in a number of areas across the Ministry of Justice (MOJ).

Cabinet Office were updated on 19 September about progress taking forward these recommendations and continuing work to review data security provisions within contracts and to seek the necessary assurances from contractors and suppliers.

The following action has been taken which updates the position reported to Cabinet Office:

> The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) carried out an analysis of their current non IT contracts following receipt of the data security directive. 519 contracts required inclusion of the additional clauses and letters were sent to all suppliers concerned requesting the integration of these new terms and conditions. To date, 66 contractors (13 per cent.) have responded and confirmed that the additional clauses have been integrated into their contracts. The work stream is being monitored on a monthly basis at senior management team level.
> The Office for Criminal Justice Reform (OCJR) has asked their suppliers to adopt an approach consistent with Ministry of Justice data handling and security requirements and has amended its Security Aspects Letters (SAL), which sets out these security requirements. To date, three of their four key suppliers have formally adopted the new protocols.
> Research unit has 10 contracts in place where suppliers have confirmed compliance with the new data security arrangements and two contracts have been awarded since June 2008 that already include the new security requirements.
> Democracy, Constitution and Law have one contract in place that complies with departmental data handling and information security requirements.

Work is continuing with suppliers responsible for non IT contracts awarded by ex DCA Procurement, which includes contracts negotiated for Access to Justice, to put in place a standard contract amendment based on OGC terms. IT suppliers to MOJ (excluding NOMS) have been written to, reminding them of their obligations under the Data Protection Act 1998 and specifically drawing their attention to the two issues that arose in the data handling review: one, the encryption of laptops, and two, restrictions on the use of removable media for transporting personal data. 31 suppliers were contacted and 59 per cent. of those suppliers have confirmed that they are compliant. This includes the two major IT providers.

NOMS ICT supplier contracts have been reviewed, and appropriate standard wording identified to address data security issues. Work is in hand to negotiate these changes with suppliers.

MOJ standard terms and conditions of contract are currently being reviewed and amended to address the data security issues raised by the Hannigan Report. The revised terms will be introduced shortly across the MOJ. In the meantime, standard wording addressing the data security provisions has been issued for inclusion in new contracts awarded prior to the adoption of the new standard terms.

Departmental Languages

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) Ministers and (b) civil servants in his Department received coaching in a foreign language in the last 12 months; what expenditure his Department incurred in providing such coaching; and in what languages such coaching was provided. [248077]

Mr. Malik: The Ministry of Justice does not provide coaching in foreign languages centrally, and does not hold any records on this matter. To obtain the information requested would involve identifying and contacting sources of information in many different locations and would thus incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Parliamentary Questions

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's internal guidance for officials on the drafting of answers to parliamentary questions. [250297]

Mr. Wills: Cabinet Office guidance for civil servants on drafting answers to parliamentary questions was updated on 25 November 2008. A copy of the guidance is in the Library of the House. It can also be found on the Cabinet Office website at:

> www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/propriety_and_ethics/civil_service/pq_guidance.aspx

The Ministry of Justice's internal guidance for answering parliamentary questions was updated and issued on the Department's intranet on 10 December 2008. I will send the hon. Member a copy and also arrange for it to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Drugs: Rehabilitation

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many forms are required to be completed by a practitioner supervising an individual on a drug rehabilitation requirement. [247564]

Mr. Hanson: Offender managers (OMs) are responsible for supervising offenders subject to a drug rehabilitation requirement (DRR) of a community order. While there are no nationally prescribed forms which they are required to complete, where orders include a DRR, OMs are required:

in accordance with national guidance and locally agreed protocols, to provide the contracted treatment provider, the prison Counselling, Advice, Referral, Assessment and Throughcare (CARATs) team, the local Criminal Justice Integrated Team (CJIT) and any other relevant authority, e.g. police with such information as is necessary to support the administration of justice, manage risk and ensure that the offender's needs are met; and where the DRR is subject to periodic review by the court responsible for the order, to complete and submit to the court prior to each review a written report on the offender's progress under the requirement, as specified in legislation, Probation National Standards and related guidance.

More generally, for the effective management of offenders under their supervision and in accordance with the requirements of Probation National Standards, OMs must:

keep an accurate and up to date record of the case, including a contact log, in their local case management system e.g. CRAMS, ICMS; undertake an Offender Assessment System (OASys) assessment and conduct periodic OASys reviews to assess and manage risk of re-offending and harm and inform sentence planning and risk management; complete, review and update a sentence plan, which specifies planned interventions and the order in which these will be undertaken, and risk management plan;

provide written information to the court, where an offender is deemed to be in breach of the order or the OM believes that, in view of circumstances which have arisen since it was made, the order should be revoked; and where appropriate and in accordance with the case transfer instructions (Probation Circular 25/2007), provide specific information, including a full transfer review of OASys, to the receiving probation area to facilitate transfer of the case and apply to the court for amendment of the order.

Medical practitioners providing treatment to or directing the treatment of an individual on a DRR are not required to complete any nationally prescribed forms. However, legislation requires that they provide the supervising officer with their views as to the treatment and testing of the offender and the results of all drug tests for inclusion in the supervising officer's written report on the offender's progress submitted to the court prior to each review of the requirement. Information which probation areas require from treatment providers, including on the offender's attendance, participation and motivation, should be specified in locally agreed protocols.

Drugs: Sentencing

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) custodial sentences, (b) fines, (c) community sentences and (d) cautions there were in respect of (i) drug use and (ii) drug dealing in Essex in each of the last five years. [249648]

Firearms: Convictions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have been convicted of firearms offences in each year since 1997. [247709]

Maria Eagle: Information on the number of persons found guilty at all courts for firearm offences in England and Wales 1997 to 2007 can be viewed in the table.

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Court proceedings data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

Number of persons found guilty at all courts for firearm offences in England and Wales, 1997 to 2007[1, 2, 3]

	Found guilty
1997	2,691
1998	2,750
1999	2,278
2000	2,080
2001	2,136
2002	2,169
2003	2,275
2004	2,453
2005	2,405
2006	2,613

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts, and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

Fraud: Prosecutions

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prosecutions for fraud were brought in each of the last five years, broken down by investigating agency; and how many such prosecutions brought by each investigating agency resulted in a conviction in each year. [249926]

Maria Eagle: Data from the Ministry of Justice Courts Proceedings Database showing the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts of offences relating to fraud, in England and Wales from 2003 to 2007 (latest available) are given, in the following table. Details relating to the investigating agency are not held centrally.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Freedom of Information

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 511W, on freedom of information, for what reasons the time taken by Freedom of Information Operation Team 5 to allocate to a complaints officer following receipt between April and September 2008 was 130 days compared to 64 for all Information Commissioner's Office cases. [249511]

Mr. Wills: 64 days is the average time taken for the allocation of any case received by the ICO to a complaints officer, and includes the cases handled by an initial case reception team. Less straightforward cases are passed on to more specialist operational teams.

Once the specialist teams receive a case, the team leader conducts an initial appraisal before it is placed in a queue to be handled by the next available caseworker. The 130 days referred to above is the average time taken between receipt in FOI Operational Team 5 to allocation to a complaints officer in that team.

This information has been provided by the ICO.

I will write to the hon. Member to arrange for more detail to be provided on the ICO's case allocation process.

House of Commons: Right of Search

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what meetings he has attended with Mr. Speaker on the arrest of my hon. Friend the Member for Ashford (Damian Green) and the search of his office; what was discussed; if he will place in the Library a copy of records held by his Department of such meetings; and whether he has received a request under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 from the hon. Member for North Essex for this information. [250887]

Mr. Straw: I have not attended any meetings with Mr Speaker on the arrest of the hon. Member for Ashford (Damian Green). On 16 January 2009 my Department received a request under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 from the hon. Member for North Essex (Mr. Jenkin) for this information which will be dealt with in the statutory deadline of 20 working days.

Human Trafficking

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what public services are available to people deemed to have been trafficked. [247523]

Maria Eagle: The Government fund the Poppy project to provide specialist support to adult victims of human trafficking. Victims are provided with unconditional intensive support for an initial four-week period, with longer-term term services provided in return for co-operation with a criminal investigation. Victims are offered support with resettlement and have access to compensation through the courts and the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme. It is also open to victims to apply for protection through existing humanitarian and immigration routes. Eligibility for non-third sector public services is in line with existing immigration policy.

The Government have ratified the Council of Europe Convention Action against Trafficking in Human Beings. This will enhance our existing measures by extending the reflection-period to a minimum of 45 days and introducing new renewable one-year residence permits for those co-operating with the authorities. The temporary residence permits will allow recourse to public funds. It will also remain open to victims to apply to stay using the existing human rights and immigration protection routes.

National Offender Management Service: Manpower

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many (a) former Probation Service and (b) former Prison Service staff by grade are working in the (i) Reducing Re-offending Operational Policy and Third Sector Partnership Group and (ii) Stakeholder Relations Group under the auspices of the Director of Commissioning and Operational Policy at the National Offender Management Service; [248619]

(2) how many (a) former Probation Service and (b) former Prison Service staff by grade are working in the (i) Mental Health Unit and (ii) Public Health Group under the auspices of the Director of Offender Health at the National Offender Management Service; [248620]

(3) how many (a) former Probation Service and (b) former Prison Service staff by grade are working in the (i) Offender Assessment and Management Group, (ii) Interventions and Substance Misuse Group, (iii) Commissioning Women's and Young People's Group, (iv) Offender Employment, Skills and Services Group and (v) Operational Policy Unit under the auspices of the Director of Commissioning and Operational Policy at the National Offender Management Service; [248772]

(4) how many (a) former Probation Service staff and (b) former Prison Service staff by grade are working in the (i) Public Protection Unit, (ii) Race Equality Advice and Action Group, (iii) Briefing and Casework Unit, (iv) NOMS Management Board, (v) Parliamentary and Correspondents Briefing Unit and (vi) Internal Communications Unit at the National Offender Management Service; [248773]

(5) how many (a) former Probation Service staff and (b) former Prison Service staff by grade are working in the (i) Children and Young Persons Group, (ii) Women's Health Programme Unit, (iii) Social Care Unit and (iv) Parliamentary Business and Communication Group at the National Offender Management Service; [248775]

(6) how many former (a) Probation Service staff and (b) Prison Service staff of each grade are working in the Budget Support Unit at the National Offender Management Service. [248776]

Mr. Malik: Information on the number of former probation and prison staff that are now employed by each directorate, headquarters group and the National Offender Management Service headquarters broken down by grade, is contained in the following tables.

The information includes a number of staff (792) who are employed in the units specified who were neither former Prison Service or Probation Service staff. These staff were previously employed in the former NOMS HQ.

The new NOMS HQ was formed from all staff from the National Probation Directorate and Prison Service headquarters, as well as staff from the former NOMS HQ. Inevitably the majority were former Prison Service staff. This is because the Probation Service headquarters was significantly smaller as many staff are employed in probation boards and trusts. What matters is that all employees in NOMS HQ recognise that they are now working for a new agency and whatever their past employment history they are focused on public protection and reducing re-offending through integrated offender management.

Notes:

1. Reducing Re-offending Operational Policy and Third Sector Partnership Group, Stakeholder Relations Group; NOMS Management Board and Parliamentary and Correspondents Briefing Unit are not recorded separately on the database. These staff are included within the Other Groups totals in the table.
2. Staff have been allocated as either Prison Service, Probation Service or former NOMS HQ based on their unit immediately prior to the creation of the new NOMS HQ No account is taken of experience before that, either in the Prison Service or Probation Service.

Prisoners Release

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when the pilot on the use of FP10 prescriptions for those leaving prison will be assessed; and when the Prison Service plans to introduce the use of FP10 prescriptions for those leaving prison on a prescription. [247565]

Mr. Hanson: The initial pathfinder sites for the use of FP10 prescriptions for prisoners leaving custody have been under continual review. Regional offender health teams have earlier this month been asked to nominate a further 12 sites to build experience in each region prior to national roll-out.

Prisoners: Women

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many female prisoners gave birth whilst in prison and subsequently (a) requested and (b) requested and were refused a place in a mother and baby unit in each of the last five years. [249509]

Mr. Hanson: The numbers of prisoners who have given birth while serving their custodial sentence since April 2005, when the Prison Service began collecting figures centrally, are as follows:

From June 2007 (the earliest date for which information is currently available) until March 2008, 221 applications were made for places in a mother and baby unit, and 10 of these applications were refused; and from April 2008 until December 2008, 178 such applications were made and 14 were refused. There is no available breakdown of these figures to show whether the baby in each case was born before or after the mother was received into prison. This information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many female prisoners (a) applied for and (b) were refused a place in a mother and baby unit for a baby born before they were received into prison in each of the last five years. [249510]

Mr. Hanson: While the National Offender Management Service keeps figures for the number of female prisoners who (a) applied for and (b) were refused a place in a mother and baby unit, there is no available breakdown of those figures to show whether the baby in each case was born before or after the mother was received into prison. This information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Prisons: Drugs

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what mechanisms the Prison Service has in place to ensure continuity of care for people on a methadone or other opiate substitution prescription leaving prison. [247566]

Mr. Hanson: Continuity of methadone or other opioid substitute treatments is initiated by prison-based healthcare professionals either directly with community colleagues or via the Drug Interventions Programme team. The Drug Interventions Programme includes access to rapid prescribing to avoid breaks in treatment.

Prisons: Wales

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many adult (a) male and (b) female prisoners there are detained in prisons in Wales. [250800]

Mr. Hanson: At 30 November 2008, the latest date for which figures are available, there were 2,259 adult male prisoners who were detained in prison establishments in Wales (Cardiff, Parc, Swansea and Usk/Prescoed). The figure provided excludes young adults aged 18 to 20 and those 21-year-olds who were aged 20 or under at conviction who have not been reclassified as part of the adult prison population.

There are currently no female prison establishments in Wales.

These figures are a reworking to allow for the request for adults only of those published in Table 4 of the publication 'Population in custody monthly tables November 2008 England and Wales', and can be found at the following website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/populationincustody.htm

This is updated monthly.

This figure has been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many places for adult (a) male and (b) female prisoners there are in prisons in Wales. [250802]

Mr. Hanson: There are 2,392 places for adult male prisoners in Wales and there are currently no places for adult female prisoners in Wales.

The Ministry of Justice has been actively seeking potential sites for new prisons in Wales and a shortlist of four possible sites has been drawn up. An announcement regarding the final decision on the location of the new prison is expected shortly

Probation Service: Voluntary Work

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether his Department has made an assessment for benchmarking purposes of the Japanese system of recruitment of volunteer probation officers; and if he will make a statement. [250588]

Mr. Hanson: No formal assessment of the Japanese system of recruitment of volunteer probation officers has been conducted. It is not the intention of the Government to adopt it.

Probation officers in England and Wales are required by law to be fully qualified to undertake the role of a probation officer. Currently this means that they undertake a two year training programme and work towards a Degree in Probation Studies.

Offenders: Rehabilitation

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he plans to take to increase awareness of the public and the judiciary of offender programmes in the community and prison which have the effect of reducing reoffending. [248667]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service will continue to provide information and advice to stakeholders including the police and judiciary about offender programmes. There is regular liaison between senior members of the judiciary and of the Ministry of Justice, including through the "National Sentencer Probation Forum", which promotes communication between sentencers and offender managers and at which there is an open exchange of knowledge, views and experience of what is effective and practical in helping to reduce crime. Work is also undertaken at a local level where liaison can prove particularly effective.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of reductions in reoffending that have been achieved by offender behaviour programmes among those in (a) the community and (b) custody. [247517]

Mr. Hanson: Reoffending is measured as a rate rather than in terms of numbers of offences or offenders. Frequency of reoffending per 100 offenders is now the main measure of reoffending.

(a) There are positive indications that offender behaviour programmes may be effective in reducing reoffending for offenders in the community. For example, Offender Management and Sentencing Analytical Services (OMSAS) conducted an analysis on accredited programmes in the community (Hollis, 2007). It compared actual reoffending rates in 2006 with rates predicted on the basis of 2004 data. The reoffending rate for all offenders who had undertaken interventions was 55 per cent., based on a two-year reconviction rate. Programme completers did statistically significantly better than those who did not start or who dropped-out of programmes. The rates were 38 per cent., 61 per cent. and 64 per cent. respectively. This analysis of management information, however, cannot determine whether these differences result from programme impact.

(b) There is considerable international evidence (Wilson et al. 2005; Washington State Institute for Public Policy, 2006) to support the effectiveness of cognitive behavioural programmes in reducing reoffending. However, UK research examining the effectiveness of programmes in prisons has produced mixed results (Friendship et al. 2002; Falshaw et al. 2003; Cann et al. 2003).

A recent prison-based study showed that the one-year reconviction rate for both adult men and young offenders who had completed enhanced thinking skills (ETS) and reasoning and rehabilitation (R+R) interventions in prison represented a positive 2.5 percentage points difference in reconviction for adult male completers (17.0 per cent. vs. 19.5 per cent.) and a 4.1 percentage point difference for young offender completers (31.4 per cent. vs. 35.5 per cent.) compared to matched comparison groups. There was no difference in reconviction rates between programme starters and comparison groups. See tables 3 and 4:

A study of female participants of ETS and R&R (Cann, 2006) found no statistically significant differences in one and two-year rates between offenders and a matched comparison group. See:

www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs06/r276.pdf.

The most robust evaluation of the Sex Offender Treatment Programme (SOTP) in England and Wales (Friendship et al, 2003) examined the impact of the prison-based programme. This compared two-year reconviction rates for prisoners who participated in the programme with those who did not. Findings indicated that the SOTP had an impact on reconvictions for sexual and/or violent offences (as a combined measure).

OMS Analytical Services and NOMS are working closely with the Correctional Services Accreditation Panel (CSAP) to develop further outcome evaluation study proposals.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of reductions in reoffending that have been achieved by the drug programme among those in (a) the community and (b) custody. [247518]

Mr. Hanson: Recent international reviews analysing large numbers of evaluations of drug treatment programmes have concluded that, on average, drug treatment programmes reduce reoffending[1].

(a) For offences committed on or after 4 April 2005, the Criminal Justice Act 2003 introduced the community order which replaced all previous community sentences, including community rehabilitation orders (CROs) and drug treatment and testing orders (DTTOs), for adult offenders. Under the Act, the court may impose a community order with a drug rehabilitation requirement (DRR). No robust assessment has been made to date of DRRs' effect on reducing reoffending, however research[2] concluded that DTTOs can reduce spending on drugs and reoffending, although it was not possible to determine to what extent these changes were due to the DTTO or whether other factors also contributed.

(b) The evaluations to date of drug treatment programmes in prisons in the UK is limited, but suggest that these programmes can reduce reoffending[3].

Prisoners who completed the 12-step RAPt programme had statistically significantly lower rates of reconviction after two years than a comparison group (40 per cent. versus 50 per cent.)—although there may be selection bias[4] here.

Sentencing

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average length of the (a) sentence handed down to and (b) period served in custody prior to being released on home detention curfew was by each prisoner sentenced for (i) murder, (ii) manslaughter, (iii) violence, broken down by specific offence, (iv) sexual offences, (v) robbery, (vi) burglary, (vii) theft and handling, (viii) fraud and forgery and (vix) drugs offences was in each year since 1999. [250391]

Mr. Hanson: The following tables show the average determinate sentence length for custodial sentences given in each year from 1999 to 2007 by offence group. These figures exclude those serving indeterminate sentences (which includes all those sentenced for murder). Prisoners serving indeterminate sentences are not eligible for HDC.

Details on the period served in custody prior to release on home detention curfew (HDC) could be provided only by examining individual prisoner records at disproportionate cost. However information is available on the number of prisoners released on HDC in each year from 1999 to 2007 by offence group, as shown in the following tables. These figures can be found in Prison Statistics England and Wales, 1999 to 2002 and Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2003 to 2007, copies of which can be found in the House of Commons Library, and also on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/prisonandprobation.htm.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

The most serious violent offenders and all sexual offenders are either statutorily excluded or are presumed unsuitable for release on HDC.

85 per cent. of those released have completed their period of HDC successfully. Only 4 per cent. of the total number of offenders released onto HDC over the entirety of the scheme has re-offended while on HDC.

Young Offender Institutions

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the consequences of the absence of lock-out times in the juvenile estate, with particular reference to its effect on the number of late arrivals at young offender institutions. [247747]

Mr. Hanson: "Latest Reception" and "Reception Closing" times are locally agreed by all Prison Governors and Area Managers—including those in the juvenile estate—and communicated to escort contractors. Contractors incur performance measures for failing to deliver prisoners before receptions close. These performance measures can translate into financial payments if contractors are unable to demonstrate that the reasons for the failure are outside their control. Generally, the minority of young people who arrive later than the agreed time are nonetheless admitted to the establishment because of the emphasis placed on the primary need to safeguard vulnerable young people.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Brazil: Overseas Investment

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the monetary value of direct foreign investment by UK companies in Brazil has been for each year since 2001. [250122]

Mr. Thomas: The Office for National Statistics estimates of net UK foreign direct investment flows to Brazil are shown in the following table:

	£ million
2001	352
2002	17
2003	786
2004	386
2005	48
2006	354
2007	721

The ONS estimated that the book value of net UK direct investment in Brazil was worth about £3,789 million at the end of 2007.

Electronic Equipment: Waste Disposal

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions his Department has had with representatives of EU institutions on the introduction of targets relating to the provisions of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment Directive; and if he will make a statement. [248843]

Ian Pearson: BERR officials have had informal discussions with European Commission officials regarding the proposed amendments to the waste electrical and electronic equipment (WEEE) directive. It is anticipated that the Commission's Working Group negotiations will begin during the Swedish presidency in the second half of 2009. We will be consulting with UK stakeholders in the near future on the range of proposals being presented.

Manufacturing Industries: Government Assistance

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will review the Government's manufacturing strategy to increase support to manufacturing industry in light of the current financial situation; and if he will make a statement. [248844]

Ian Pearson: The Government launched their new Manufacturing Strategy in September last year. It focuses on what the sector needs for success in the long-term—including seizing the opportunities of the low carbon economy, supporting skills, realising overseas opportunities, and improving the perception and understanding of manufacturing.

It builds on existing areas of support such as R and D tax credits, the Technology Programme, and the Manufacturing Advisory Service (MAS). MAS is monitoring the situation for small manufacturing companies and responding flexibly with suitable advice to help companies. We are also piloting increased support for MAS in the west midlands.

The Government are also taking steps to help businesses through the current economic downturn to boost capital and liquidity in the market. Key measures include the reduction in VAT, the introduction of a new Enterprise Finance Guarantee to support up to £1.3 billion of bank lending, a separate £10 billion guarantee facility to support further working capital bank lending, a £75 million Capital for Enterprise Fund to convert businesses' debt into equity, and £25 million of regional funds.

In the longer term, we are ensuring that the policies within the Manufacturing Strategy work to bolster UK manufacturing and deliver the foundations of 21st Century success such as world-leading R and D and a highly skilled work force.

New Businesses

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many newly incorporated (a) hotels, (b) restaurants, (c) bars and (d) bed and breakfast establishments were registered with Companies House in each of the last five years. [240652]

Ian Pearson: The number of hotels, restaurants and bars incorporated each year since 2003 is shown in the following table. The figures are based on the Standard Industrial Classification code shown on the annual return. No figures are available for companies incorporated in 2008, as they have not yet filed their first annual return. There is no SIC code for bed and breakfast establishments.

Wines

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what measures his Department is taking to promote the production and commercial sale of English wines. [249516]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

The area of vines planted in England is increasing in response to market demand. However, this increase is not yet being reflected in a substantial increase in English wine production due to the time lag for newly planted vines to become productive, and also because the wet weather of the past two summers has resulted in a lower production from existing vines.

In the recent reform of the common agricultural policy (CAP) regime for wine, the UK successfully negotiated a derogation that will allow the English wine sector to continue to expand without the threat of our plantings being capped by the controls that exist in the main EU wine production countries. This outcome was warmly welcomed by the English wine industry. The reform also provides for the UK to establish a national programme to assist the development of our domestic wine industry. After consulting with the industry, further funding is being provided through the Rural Development Programme for England (RDPE) to establish training programmes to help upskill this rapidly developing sector. The English wine industry is also able to access funds from the RDPE for a range of other activities and a number of applications have already been approved.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Carbon Emissions: Lighting

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the likely effect on UK carbon dioxide emissions of replacing all UK household lightbulbs with compact fluorescent lamps. [242481]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

DEFRA's Market Transformation Programme estimates that by using only compact florescent lamps (CFLs) UK homes could yield annual savings in the order of just under 3 $MtCO_2$, some 2 per cent. of the total CO_2 emissions from UK households in 2006.

European member states agreed on 8 December 2008 a draft measure under the Eco-design of the Energy-using Products Directive to set mandatory efficiency requirements on light bulbs that will result in a phase out of incandescent lamps by September 2012 and removal of the least-efficient halogen lamps by 2016. After this date, only the most efficient halogen lamps, CFLs and lamps based on emerging light emitting diode technologies will remain.

The European Commission is developing a further measure to set efficiency requirements on directional spot lamps commonly used in UK homes.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change which (a) food and (b) drinks companies have supplied his Department since its inception; and how much was paid to each of those suppliers. [248796]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DECC staff in 3-8 Whitehall Place, Atholl House and temporary accommodation in 1 Victoria street and Ergon House at present make use of the BERR and DEFRA catering services in these premises, the arrangements for which will be covered in BERR's and DEFRA's answers to this question.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department provides for staff. [249073]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) was formed on 3 October 2008. Catering arrangements for DECC premises have not yet been determined. DECC staff in 3-8 Whitehall Place, Atholl House and temporary accommodation in 1 Victoria street and Ergon House at present make use of the BERR and DEFRA catering services in those premises.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many special advisers were employed in his Department at each pay band on 30 November 2008; and what his Department's total expenditure on special advisers has been since its inception. [243575]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend, the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 870W.

Departmental Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes since its inception. [248719]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department of Energy and Climate Change has not made any expenditure on staff reward and recognition schemes since its inception on 3 October 2008.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many bonuses have been awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department in each year since its inception; and what was spent on such bonuses. [249854]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: No bonuses have been awarded to senior civil servants working at the Department of Energy and Climate change since the Department's inception on 3 October 2008.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department's central media and communication unit has spent on public surveys since its inception. [247915]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: None.

Energy

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will assess the merits of a joint initiative undertaken by Kettering Borough Council and E.ON to reduce domestic energy consumption and the potential for a national scheme. [250490]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 22 January 2009]: I welcome the initiative by Kettering borough council and E.ON, which involves trialling smart meters with the aim of reducing energy consumption.

The Government have made clear that they support the provision of smart meters as a means not only of reducing energy consumption but also of providing benefits to consumers and energy markets. We therefore announced on 28 October 2008 an intention to mandate the provision of smart meters to all households.

Energy Supply: EU Action

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent discussions he has had with his European Union counterparts on the liberalisation of the energy market in the European Union. [250699]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: My right hon. Friend attended the Energy Council in Brussels on 10 October which agreed a Common Position on the texts of the legislation proposed in the Commission's third liberalisation package. The package is currently undergoing a Second Reading, with discussions taking place within the Council at official level. The third package is expected to be adopted by the middle of the year.

Heating: Housing

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) if he will estimate the percentage of fuel above that required to heat a house in Bristol which is required to heat identical houses in (a) Edinburgh, (b) Glasgow, (c) Aberdeen, (d) Dundee, (e) Lerwick, (f) Braemar and (g) Stornoway; and if he will make a statement; [247875]

(2) how much fuel above that required to heat a typical semi-detached house in Bristol with (a) gas central heating and (b) non-white meter electronic heating it takes to heat a similar house in (i) Braemar, (ii) Lerwick, (iii) Aberdeen, (iv) Edinburgh, (v) Dundee, (vi) Glasgow and (vii) Stornoway, using the data contained in the climatic severity index. [247876]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 15 January 2009]: No data are available at the required level of detail but the BREDEM model (which estimates domestic energy consumption and is produced by the Building Research Establishment) provides a more general comparison.

According to this model, it requires around 25 per cent. more fuel to heat a house to equivalent internal temperature in Eastern Scotland, compared with an identical home in the Severn region.

Housing: Insulation

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what funding is available to people between the ages of 60 and 70 years to help them insulate their homes; for what reasons 70 is the age at which people can claim the maximum level of such funding; and if he will make a statement. [248484]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Warm Front is the Government's main scheme for tackling fuel poverty in the private sector in England for vulnerable householders. It is administered and managed by Eaga plc. on behalf of the Government. The scheme provides grants for specified heating and insulation measures up to £2,700 in value (£4,000 where the work includes installation of an oil fired central heating system). Pensioners in receipt of qualifying benefits (such as pension credit) are eligible to full assistance under the scheme.

Under the carbon emissions reduction target (CERT), energy suppliers are required to offer substantial discounts for key insulation measures, such as loft insulation and cavity wall insulation. Subject to survey of a property, suppliers are currently offering all households without insulation at least 50 per cent. discount from the Energy Saving Trust guide price for insulation measures.

For reasons of equity, we oblige suppliers to meet 40 per cent. of their CERT in a priority group of vulnerable and low-income households. This means anyone over 70 years, or those in receipt of qualifying benefits (e.g. income, pension benefit) including those over 60 years. To meet their targets, suppliers currently offer priority groups such measures at little or no cost, subject to survey. People over 70 years are statistically shown to be increasingly at risk of falling into fuel poverty, and are therefore included in the priority group definition.

Industrial Diseases: Compensation

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much the Government has spent on legal fees relating to claims made by miners with osteoarthritis of the knee caused by their work in mines in each of the last five years. [248518]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department's legal fees in respect of claims made by miners for osteoarthritis of the knee are shown in the following table.

	Cost (£)
2004	157,866
2005	388,735
2006	1,111,367
2007	1,009,225
2008[1]	1,407,676
Total	4,074,871

[1] Figures are up to November 2008.

Members: Correspondence

John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he plans to reply to the letters of 14 October 2008 and 28 November 2008 from the hon. Member for Weston-super-Mare on behalf of his constituent, Mrs. Marion Woore. [248006]

Joan Ruddock: I replied to the hon. Member on 20 January 2009 and apologised for the delay.

Natural Gas

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the average number of days of gas supply in storage in December of each year since 2005. [249094]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The amount of gas supply in storage at a given point in time cannot meaningfully be assessed in terms of days as stored gas is not used on its own to meet GB demand.

The following table summarises the average stock level of gas in GB storage sites in December of each year since 2005.

	Average December stock level (Billion cubic metres)
2005	3.3
2006	3.9
2007	3.5
2008	3.5

Source:
National Grid.

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many days of gas supply were added to gas stocks by gas storage projects which became operational in (a) 2008 and (b) 2007; and how many days of gas supply he expects to be added to gas stocks by gas storage projects planned for 2009. [249309]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The amount of gas supply in storage at a given point in time cannot meaningfully be assessed in terms of days as stored gas is not used on its own to meet UK demand.

13 mcm (million cubic metres) of capacity were added as part of an expansion to the Hole House Farm facility in 2007. No new storage facilities became operational in 2007 and 2008.

In 2009, the first stages of the Aldbrough facility are expected to become operational. The total new capacity at the site is expected to be 370 mcm.

Renewable Energy

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much electricity has been generated from renewable sources in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [248437]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Electricity generation from renewable sources in each of the last 10 years is given in the following table:

	Electricity generation (GWh)
1998	8,648
1999	9,616
2000	9,914
2001	9,549
2002	11,127
2003	10,600
2004	14,147
2005	16,940
2006	18,116
2007	19,664

Source:
Digest of UK Energy Statistics 2008, Table 7.4

In the first four years of this period, before the Renewables Obligation was introduced in 2002, growth was at an average annual rate of 6.5 per cent. Over the next five years the average annual rate of growth was almost double this at 12.1 per cent.

Renewable Energy: Domestic Waste

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent assessment he has made of the potential contribution of energy generation from domestic waste towards meeting the UK's renewable energy targets. [247903]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: In its consultation on a renewable energy strategy, published in June 2008, the Government reported that an estimated 9 million tonnes of waste food, and 6 million tonnes of waste wood, were landfilled each year, with a combined energy value of 42 TWh. Very approximately half of the food waste and one fifth of the wood are thought to come from household sources.

Renewables Obligation: Plastics

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent representations he has received on the full inclusion of plastics in the Renewable Obligations Certificate system. [247902]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: There is no record of any such representations.

Warm Front Scheme

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what percentage of the rebate for contractors participating in the Warm Front Scheme is withheld for administration costs. [248314]

Joan Ruddock: The rebate scheme, which began in 2006, provides pensioners who do not qualify for assistance under the Warm Front Scheme with a £300 voucher which may be used for heating work. All installers must be registered with Eaga plc., who administer the scheme on DECC's behalf.

Each voucher comprises a £50 administrative charge which will be deducted from the payment made to the installer when they submit a voucher for payment.

Wylfa Power Station

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he expects Wylfa nuclear power station to cease to generate electricity. [249981]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 21 January 2009]: The current closure date for generation at Wylfa is April 2010. However, I am advised by the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority that there are improving prospects of running the nuclear power station beyond its scheduled closure date. The NDA's current planning assumption is that the plant will be able to generate until December 2010 and they expect shortly to seek the appropriate regulatory approval to extend generation to this date. I am further advised that there may be opportunities to extend generation beyond this date and that the options are being studied closely to ensure that this opportunity is maintained.

HEALTH

AIDS: Screening

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will introduce an oral swab for diagnosing acquired immune deficiency syndrome to effect rapid diagnosis. [250128]

Dawn Primarolo: Testing for HIV antibodies using oral swabs is available in England as a point of care test, used in particular outside health care settings. Results are not as reliable as tests using blood, and any individual testing positive using an oral swab test would be referred for confirmatory testing in a genito-urinary medicine clinic.

Ambulance Services: Standards

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average recorded ambulance response time for (a) the town of Bridlington and (b) England was in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [250725]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on average ambulance response times is not collected centrally. Data on performance against ambulance response time targets at ambulance trust level are published annually by the Information Centre in the statistical bulletin Ambulance Services England. The latest bulletin, "Ambulance Services, England 2007-08", has already been placed in the Library and is available at the following link:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/audits-andperformance/ambulance/ambulance-services-england-2007-08

Aphasia

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of people with aphasia in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) the Tees Valley and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland. [249846]

Ann Keen: We have made no estimate of the number of people with aphasia.

Asthma

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what information his Department holds on the incidence of (a) asthma and (b) asthma in children; and if he will publish details of the incidence of asthma by parliamentary constituency; [249780]

(2) what information his Department holds on the incidence of asthma at (a) council ward level, (b) polling district and (c) other level of disaggregation; and if he will make a statement. [249781]

Ann Keen: Information on the incidence of asthma is not collected centrally.

Back Pain: Medical Treatments

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to ensure that manual therapies recommended in draft guidance issued by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence for the treatment of lower back pain are available on the NHS. [249551]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has not yet published its final clinical guideline on the acute management of patients with chronic (longer than six weeks) non-specific low back pain. In the absence of NICE guidance, we expect local national health service organisations to decide which treatments they will fund based on the available evidence.

Cancer: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the national communication campaign to improve the public's understanding of units of alcohol in relation to cancer risk factors; and how much longer he expects the campaign to continue. [248456]

Dawn Primarolo: The national communications campaign to improve the public's understanding of units of alcohol, launched in May 2008, featured two phases. The campaign messages were delivered across television, press, outdoor, radio and online channels. Phase 1 focused on improving people's knowledge of how many units of alcohol are in the alcoholic drinks they consume, while phase 2 focused on improving people's understanding of the link between their alcohol consumption and their health.

Initial assessment of the campaign shows that there is an increased agreement, from 77 to 82 per cent. that we tend to drink more than is good for us. This has clearly been influenced by the campaign as for those aware of the campaign, this figure rises to 85 per cent., while for those not aware of the campaign, this figure is 72 per cent.

The second wave of campaign tracking will be available shortly and may provide more information on how the campaign has improved the public's understanding of alcohol-related health risks.

We intend that this campaign should be sustained over a number of years. The units campaign will continue in 2009-10, with the key tasks to optimise the units messaging and to communicate the health harms associated with drinking to higher risk groups.

Care Quality Commission: Public Consultation

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many copies of the consultation document have been downloaded from the website of the Care Quality Commission since its consultation on proposals for reviews in 2009-10 was launched. [248563]

Mr. Bradshaw: The chair of the Care Quality Commission has informed us that the software supporting the operation of the commission's interim website does not support the monitoring of the number of downloads. It is therefore not possible to provide this information at present. The commission is exploring a wide range of mechanisms including the website to provide these data for 2009-10.

Dementia

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease and dementia in each year from 2000 to 2008. [249419]

Phil Hope: The National Audit Office report "Improving services and support for people with dementia" estimated that approximately two thirds of people with dementia do not receive a formal diagnosis or have contact with specialist services at any time in their illness.

The Department does not have data on the number of people diagnosed with Alzheimer's and dementia in each year from 2000 to 2008. However, for 2006-07 and 2007-08 the General Practitioner Quality and Outcomes Framework (QOF) has recorded the number of people with a diagnosis of dementia but this does not distinguish between Alzheimer's disease and other forms of dementia.

The publication "Revisions to the GMS Contract 2006-07", produced by NHS Employers, states that Alzheimer's disease accounts for 50-75 per cent. of cases of dementia so the count of patients with dementia gives an indication of the number with Alzheimer's disease.

In 2006-07, there were 212,794 and in 2007-08, there were 220,246 people with a diagnosis of dementia, as recorded on practice disease registers in England.

Dental Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many occasions in the last 12 months each of his Department's Ministers visited (a) an NHS dentist, (b) a private dentist and (c) an optometrist as part of their official duties. [246792]

Mr. Bradshaw: As part of their official duties, departmental Ministers visit a wide variety of health centres and practices meeting a number of dental and optical professionals. The following visits occurred during the period January-December 2008.

Visits by each Minister to dental practices or centres in the last 12 months are shown in the following table.

Minister		Visit	Date
Alan Johnson	NHS	Deeplish NHS LIFT Health Centre	20 September 2008
	NHS	Goyt Valley Medical and Dental Practice (NHS), Whaley Bridge	10 October 2008
Ben Bradshaw	NHS	Peninsula College of Medicine and Dentistry	7 March 2008
	NHS	Bexley, Bromley and Greenwich LIFTco	7 July 2008
	NHS	Old Market Dental Practice Newton, Dorset	19 June 2008
Phil Hope	NHS	Bristol Dental Hospital, University Hospitals Bristol NHS Foundation Trust	20 October 2008
Ann Keen	NHS	University of Central Lancashire Dental Education Centre, Morecambe	21 August 2008
	Opticians	Opticians practice (Brentford) as part of event to raise awareness of importance of eye tests	5 July 2008
Dawn Primarolo	—	—	—
Lord Darzi	—	—	—

Note:
NHS contract holders often provide both private and NHS dental care.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children have received dental treatment under the NHS in each primary care trust in England in each of the last 12 months. [250175]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested. Information is available on the number of child patients seen by a national health service dentist in the previous 24 months in England is available in table D7 of annex 3 of the NHS Dental Statistics, Q1 2008-09 report. Information is provided by primary care trust and strategic health authority. Information is available as at quarterly intervals, from 31 March 2006 to 30 June 2008.

This report has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dentalstats0809q1

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS dentists there were per head of population in (a) England and (b) each region in each year since 1997. [250176]

Ann Keen: The number of persons per national health service dentist in England as at 31 March, 1997 to 2006 is available in annex F of the "NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report, England: 31 March 2006" report. Information is available by strategic health authority (SHA) and primary care trust (PCT).

This measure relates to the number of NHS dentists recorded on PCT lists as at 31 March each year. This information is based on the old contractual arrangements which were in place up to and including 31 March 2006. This report has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dwfactivity

Information on population per NHS dentist and NHS dentists per 100,000 population, during the years ending 31 March, 2007 and 2008 is available in table G1 of annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2007/08" report. This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements. This report has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0708

The count of dentists is based on a revised methodology and therefore supersedes previously published workforce figures relating to the new dental contractual arrangements. It is not comparable to the information collected under the old contractual arrangements. The revised methodology counts the number of dental performers with NHS activity recorded via FP17 claim forms in each year ending 31 March.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of the population was treated by a dentist under the NHS in each primary care trust area in each strategic health authority in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008. [250306]

Ann Keen: Under the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006, patients do not have to be registered with a national health service dentist to receive NHS care. The closest equivalent measure to 'registration' is the number of patients receiving NHS dental services ('patients seen') over a 24-month period. However, this is not directly comparable to the registration data for earlier years.

The number of patients seen in the previous 24 months in England, as at quarterly intervals, from 31 March 2006 to 30 June 2008 is available in Table D3 of Annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics, Q1 2008-09" report. Information is provided by primary care trust and strategic health authority.

This report has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dentalstats0809q1.

Dentistry: Education

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many students (a) started and (b) graduated from dentistry courses in England in each year since 1997. [250160]

Ann Keen: Information for 'home fee' students is provided in the following table.

Academic year	Admissions	Dental graduates
1996-97	685	504
1997-98	631	542
1998-99	603	563
1999-2000	600	554
2000-01	623	591
2001-02	626	566
2002-03	665	524
2003-04	672	548
2004-05	674	565
2005-06	848	560
2006-07	854	593
2007-08	888	656

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many members of staff in his Department have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones belonging to his Department in each year since 1997. [248247]

Mr. Bradshaw: In the past two years, no member of the Department's staff has been investigated, suspended or dismissed for losing departmental information technology equipment or confidential information.

Prior to April 2006, the human resources records of the Department were not held centrally and it would incur disproportionate cost to establish the information requested. Policy and procedures on security are constantly reviewed. Data held on the Department's laptops and portable media devices, including memory sticks are encrypted to minimise the risk of confidential data being compromised should the devices be lost or stolen.

The Department has strict rules on data protection and security of its assets which the Department is expected to adhere to. Its policy and procedures are constantly reviewed and cases of losses or thefts are investigated. All mobile equipment reported as lost or stolen is registered on the police mobile equipment national database to aid recovery.

Security cables have been purchased and supplied to mobile workers to secure valuable portable assets to furniture where practicable to reduce risks. The Department marks its portable equipment with an invisible forensic dye called Smartwater. The Department's security and assurance unit continues to raise security awareness and physical protection of IT equipment among its staff.

Mobile phones and Blackberrys are deactivated centrally if reported lost or stolen.

Disciplinary action where staff are in breach of the Department's rules for data protection and security of its assets (including negligent loss of equipment) are as follows:

Written reprimand;
Dismissal without notice;
Dismissal with notice;
Disciplinary transfer;
Withdrawal or withholding performance-related pay;
Levying of financial penalty;
Ban on applying for posts; and Demotion.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248413]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not employ any permanent staff paid at an hourly rate. Since July 2008 temporary clerical and administrative workers are supplied from agencies to the Department under the Home Office Framework. The supplying agencies are selected by fair competition on the basis of value for money. The Department contracts with the supplying agencies and not their temporary employees.

The Department cannot interfere in the commercial relationship between an agency and its employee and so cannot ensure parity in the rates paid by the agency to its employee as compared with the Department's own employees.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248710]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department operates a Long Service Award scheme—a reward of either a monetary nature or special leave, which is given to staff in recognition of having served for more than 20 years. The figures available for the monetary payments are presented as follows. The information about leave taken instead of payment is not held centrally and would incur disproportional cost to establish.

Period covered	£	Number
2006-07	3,200.00	16
2007-08	3,000.00	15
2008-09 to December	2,200.00	10
Total	8,400.00	41

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249141]

Mr. Bradshaw: Separate records of these occasions are not kept.

Eyesight: Testing

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the proportion of privately-funded eye examinations paid for by an individual's employer. [250755]

Ann Keen: The General Ophthalmic Services Activity Statistics for England and Wales for the year ending March 2008, published by the Information Centre, estimated that of the 16 million sight tests undertaken during 2007-08 5 million of these were privately funded sight tests. The Department does not collect statistics on privately funded sight tests and as a consequence has made no estimate of the proportion of those funded by employers.

Food: Research

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many public food analyst laboratories his Department operated in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008. [250822]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department does not operate public analyst laboratories.

As central competent authority for food safety and standards, the Food Standards Agency has a responsibility to ensure United Kingdom food control bodies have access to analytical services to enable them to carry out statutory functions. Statutory provisions require local authorities to appoint a 'public analyst'. These public analysts operate independently and are not part of central Government. Information on these appointments is not held centrally. However at the end of 2008 there were 21 public analysts laboratories in the UK, 22 at the end of 2007, and 23 at the end of 2006.

General Practitioners

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information (a) his Department and (b) NHS agencies collect on the number of patients not registered with a GP. [249507]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department collects figures on the numbers of patients registered with general practitioner (GP) practices. Information on the number of patients not registered with a GP is derived from periodic survey of the population as no data are collected routinely on those people who are not registered with a GP.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the GP patient survey has cost in each year since its inception; how much it is costing this year; how many surveys were sent out in each year and how many responses were received; if he will list the new (a) questions and (b) answer options which were added this year; and who chooses the questions. [249785]

Mr. Bradshaw: Budgets for the GP patient survey project were £11 million in 2006-07, £10 million in 2007-08 and £8 million for 2008-09. It is not appropriate to provide costs paid to the survey provider, Ipsos Mori, as that is commercially sensitive information.

The number of surveys issued to patients in each year and the number of responses received are provided in the following table.

	GP patient survey	Number sent out	Number of responses
2006-07	Access	5.2 million	2.3 million
	Hospital Choice	2.0 million	267,440
2007-08	Access	4.9 million	2.0 million
	Hospital Choice	2.0 million	283,400
2008-09	New	5.7 million	[1]—

A sample copy of the 2008-09 questionnaire has been placed in the Library. All questions and answers listed here are new with the exception of key demographic questions 37, 38, 39, 44, 46 and 47.

Questions have been developed and chosen through a systematic review process undertaken by a Joint Review Group comprising independent primary care research experts, independent survey experts and officials from the Department. This process also included engagement with a range of stakeholder representatives.

Genito-Urinary Medicine

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of people who were unable to obtain an appointment at a genito-urinary medicine clinic on the day they presented at the clinic in the last 12 months. [250168]

Dawn Primarolo: No such estimate has been made.

Data on access to genitourinary medicine (GUM) clinics are collected on the number of people seen within two normal working days and the number of people offered an appointment within two normal working days. Data for November 2008 shows that 86.6 per cent. of people were seen within two working days and 99.7 per cent. were offered an appointment within two working days. This compares with 80.6 per cent. of people seen within two working days and 92.7 per cent. offered an appointment within two working days in November 2007.

Health Services: Elderly

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many elderly people have received services under the quality care and support system in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in each of the last five years. [250555]

Phil Hope: Information about the number of elderly people who have received services under the quality care and support system in Hemel Hempstead in each of the last five years is not available.

However, the NHS Information Centre for health and social care collects and publishes information on the number of people receiving local authority funded social care in a domiciliary or residential setting in England. Information is collected from Councils with Adult Social Services Responsibilities (CASSRs). Data are not collected centrally at constituency level.

The following table shows the number of individuals in Hertfordshire aged 65 and over who received domiciliary or residential care funded wholly or in part by councils with adult social services responsibilities as at 31 March of each year.

Health Services: Reciprocal Arrangements

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much money has been claimed from the NHS by each other EU member state through the European Health Insurance Card and its predecessors in each of the last 11 years. [249786]

Dawn Primarolo: The following table shows the amounts claimed by other European Economic Area (EEA) member states for each of the last seven calendar claim years. Comparable information prior to 2002 is not available. The amounts are combined claims for temporary visitors (via European Health Insurance Cards), posted workers (via E106 forms) and referrals for treatment in other EEA countries (via E112 forms) as, due to the nature of the claims system between member states, it is not possible to disaggregate this data. The figures in the table reflect the fact that EEA medical costs are typically submitted by EEA member states (including the United Kingdom) one to three, and sometimes more, years in arrears.

Health Services: Stroud

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress is being made in the provision of a new health facility in the Cam and Dunley area in Stroud constituency; and whether he plans to re-use the Berkeley Hospital site. [247935]

Mr. Bradshaw: The provision of services is a matter for the national health service locally to resolve by working in partnership with the communities that they serve.

We have been advised by the South West strategic health authority that the Gloucestershire primary care trust is continuing to work with the local community to develop new ways of delivering health and social care services to provide care closer to home. This includes looking at health needs, patient and carer benefits and service developments that are effective and make maximum use of new technology and staff skills.

Heart Diseases

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what role the National Service framework has played in helping to reduce the number of deaths from heart disease; and if he will make a statement. [250756]

Hip Replacements

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS trusts performed between one and 24 revision hip replacements in the latest year for which figures are available, as recorded by the Hospital Episodes Statistics database. [249253]

Ann Keen: The following table contains a list of the national health service trusts performing between one and 24 (inclusive) revision hip replacements. The count of revision hip replacements is defined as a count of finished consultant episodes with a mention of a revision hip replacement procedure.

Notes:
1. A finished consultant episode (FCE) is defined as a continuous period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. FCEs are counted against the year in which they end.
2. The figures do not represent the number of different patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the same stay in hospital or in different stays in the same year.

HIV Infection

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the number of people with acquired immune deficiency syndrome in England. [250727]

Dawn Primarolo: There were 11,529 individuals reported as ever having been diagnosed with AIDS who were resident in England and who had accessed HIV-related care in the United Kingdom in 2007. Most of these will have been diagnosed with AIDS before 2007 and will have received treatment to enable reconstitution of their immune systems so that they are no longer at high risk of developing a further AIDS-defining illness.

HIV Infection: Drugs

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the average annual cost to the NHS of treating a HIV positive patient with antiretroviral medication. [250726]

Dawn Primarolo: The estimated annual treatment costs to the national health service for a patient with HIV vary according to the severity of the disease. The estimated average annual costs to the NHS of treating an HIV positive patient with combination antiretroviral drugs is £14,000.

Home Care Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people received publicly-funded home care during the September sample week during each of the last 11 years; and at what cost in each of those years. [249789]

Phil Hope: I understand from the NHS Information Centre for health and social care that the number of people in receipt of publicly funded home care during the September sample week for each of the last 11 years, and the associated costs, are as shown in the following tables.

The figures for the estimated number of adult service users receiving home help or home care have decreased. This is because councils are prioritising those with the highest levels of need who otherwise may have had to enter residential care and thereby lose their independence. Consequently a more intensive service is being delivered to fewer people. In addition, some home care is now purchased through direct payments and such services are not included in the figures. Direct payments were introduced for adults of working age in April 1997, through the Community Care (Direct Payments) Act 1996. Direct payments were extended to older people in 2000.

Gross expenditure for home care is increasing year on year, because the proportion of those supported intensively to live at home independently has continued to increase.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish the most recent HH1 returns. [249790]

Phil Hope: I understand from the NHS Information Centre for health and social care that it collects and publishes information on people receiving Home Care during a sample week in September via the Home Help Return (HHI).

The results from the 2007 HHI returns were published with its corresponding tables, in Community Care Statistics 2007: Home Help/Care Services for adults, England. The publication and tables have been placed in the Library.

The results from the 2008 HHI returns are expected to be published in spring 2009.

Hospitals: Capital Investment

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans he has to increase capital expenditure on hospitals as part of the Government's plans to create up to 100,000 new jobs through public works; [248744]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of jobs that will be created by increased funding for hospital projects in (a) 2009, (b) 2010 and (c) 2011 under the Government's plans to create up to 100,000 new jobs through public works; and what proportion of these jobs he estimates will go to British workers. [248746]

Mr. Bradshaw: The figure of 100,000 is based on initial estimates provided to the Treasury from all Government Departments about the potential employment impact in 2009-10 of the total public capital resources available to them as announced in the 2008 pre-Budget report, including the fiscal stimulus. The Department has made initial estimates that continuing work on new, centrally recorded public capital funded hospital and other health care schemes will sustain and create over 7,500 construction jobs in 2009-10. These figures do not include construction jobs which will be sustained and generated under minor works programmes or the Department's public-private partnership building programmes such as the private finance initiative, which are financed by national health service bodies from revenue budgets.

Hospitals: Waiting Lists

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average number of NHS patients on waiting lists in Gloucestershire was in (a) 1997, (b) 2001, (c) 2005 and (d) 2007, broken down by category of patient. [248223]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information is not available in the format requested. The following tables show the total number of patients waiting broken down by speciality for the acute trusts in the Gloucestershire area for the periods 1997, 2002, 2005 and 2007.

In 1997, people could wait longer than 18 months for an operation in hospital. By October 2008, the median wait for in-patient treatment has fallen to 8.2 weeks from 18.8 weeks in 1997. Waits were much longer if you include the 'hidden waits' for diagnostic tests. Since data were first collected in April 2006, the average wait for a diagnostic test has fallen from 6.1 weeks to just 1.6 weeks in November 2008.

1. 2002-03 saw the merger of Gloucestershire Royal NHS Trust with the acute services arm of East Gloucestershire NHS Trust. The newly created organisation was Gloucestershire Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust.
2. The figures used show a 'snap-shot' of the in-patient waiting list as at 31 March of each year. They are not cumulative figures.
3. Data relating to General medicine were collected as a patient speciality until September 2007.
4. The figures are a snapshot of the waiting list on the day of the data collection therefore the numbers will naturally fluctuate.

Injuries: Offensive Weapons

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many finished admission episodes there were for injuries from assaults by a sharp object, including knives, in each NHS trust where the patient was aged (a) under 10, (b) 10 to 15, (c) 16 to 18, (d) 19 to 25, (e) 26 to 35, (f) 36 to 45 and (g) 46 years and older in each of the last 10 years. [246822]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information is collected on the number of finished admission episodes to hospital. A finished admission episode is the first period of in-patient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Admissions do not represent the number of in-patients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

Tables which provide information for the clinical code 'X99'—assault by sharp object, have been placed in the Library. The code 'X99' includes cases where someone has been attacked using a sharp object (including but not exclusive to knives). The tables provide data which are broken down by each strategic health authority. It is not possible to provide a response to this question for each national health service trust as the numbers involved are mostly very small and many of them would need to be suppressed in order to preserve confidentiality.

It is important to refer to the footnotes and clinical codes when interpreting the data.

King's College Hospital

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the new designated space at King's College Hospital for the former emergency clinic of Maudsley Hospital will be completed. [250308]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is a matter for King's College Hospital NHS Foundation Trust. We have written to Michael Parker, Chair of King's College NHS Foundation Trust, informing him of my hon. Friend's inquiry. He will reply shortly and a copy of the letter will be placed in the Library.

Knee Replacements

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS trusts performed between one and 14 revision knee replacements in the latest year for which figures are available, as recorded by the Hospital Episodes Statistics database. [249255]

Ann Keen: The following table contains a list of the national health service trusts performing between one and 14 (inclusive) finished consultant episodes with a mention of a revision knee replacement procedure in 2006-07.

Note:

A finished consultant episode is defined as a continuous period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. They are counted against the year in which they end. The figures do not represent the number of different patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the same stay in hospital or in different stays in the same year.

Lung Diseases

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information his Department holds on the incidence of (a) respiratory diseases and (b) cardiovascular disease; and at what levels of disaggregation these statistics are available. [249767]

Ann Keen: Information on the incidence of different respiratory diseases and cardiovascular disease is not collected centrally.

Maternity Services

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 2094W, on maternity services, if he will place in the Library a copy of the letter sent by his Department to strategic health authority chief executives on 22 August 2008. [249470]

Ann Keen: The letter has been placed in the Library.

Medicine: Education

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many students (a) started and (b) graduated from medical degree courses in England in each year since 1997. [250174]

Ann Keen: The number of students starting and graduating from medical degree courses in England in each year since 1997 is given in the following table.

Academic year	Actual intake	Graduate output
1997-98	3,749	3,261
1998-99	3,735	3,097
1999-2000	3,972	3,373
2000-01	4,300	3,286
2001-02	4,713	3,280
2002-03	5,277	3,522
2003-04	6,030	3,734
2004-05	6,294	3,935
2005-06	6,298	4,376
2006-07	6,401	4,904
2007-08	6,264	5,569

Mental Health Services

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department plans to (a) promote the use of cognitive stimulation therapy and (b) provide assistance to the cognitive help and therapy community-based initiative. [248467]

Phil Hope: The Department has no plans to promote the use of cognitive stimulation therapy. The responsibility for the provision of all national health service services rests with primary care trusts (PCTs), and decisions about whether or not to use specific treatments are made by each PCT.

It is also for each PCT to decide upon spending levels for specific health care treatments and services, and to commission these services.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the adequacy of supply of mental health services to meet demand for such services over the last 12 months. [250436]

Phil Hope: Since 2001-02, real terms investment in adult mental health services increased by 44 per cent. (or £1.7 billion) putting in place the services and staff needed to transform mental health services. The national health service spent £5.53 billion on these services in 2007-08 alone. This is why we now have over 740 new community mental health teams offering home treatment, early intervention, or intensive support for people who might otherwise have been admitted to hospital, and now have 64 per cent. more consultant psychiatrists, 71 per cent. more clinical psychologists and 21 per cent. more mental health nurses than in 1997. In addition we are rolling out a programme to give more access to psychological therapies to people with depression and anxiety. The provision of all NHS services, including mental health treatments, ultimately rests with commissioning trusts and it is for primary care trusts, in conjunction with their strategic health authorities, to plan and develop services according to the needs of their local communities.

Musculoskeletal Disorders

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) emergency and (b) elective hospital admissions for musculoskeletal conditions were recorded by the Hospital Episodes Statistics database in each year since 1997-98, broken down by age group. [249245]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are unable to provide the information as requested because the classification system of diseases (ICD-10) that is used to categorise the hospital episode statistics does not allow us to accurately collate admission data for people with diseases of the musculoskeletal system alongside people with other conditions that have musculoskeletal symptoms, or musculoskeletal implications.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many episodes of care entailed (a) a shoulder replacement, (b) an ankle replacement, (c) an elbow replacement and (d) a scoliosis correction procedure there were in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by provider organisation. [249259]

Ann Keen: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Unfortunately we are unable to provide data for 'a scoliosis correction procedure' as we cannot identify which procedures this term includes.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the (a) mean and (b) median waiting time has been since 1997-98 for an inpatient appointment with a diagnosis of pain associated with musculoskeletal conditions, as recorded in the Hospital Episodes Statistics database, broken down by area of commissioning responsibility; [249260]

(2) how many (a) emergency and (b) elective hospital admissions for pain associated with musculoskeletal conditions there have been in each year since 1997-98, as recorded by the Hospital Episodes Statistics database, broken down by strategic health authority area. [249267]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does collect information related to admissions for musculoskeletal conditions. However, these are not classified by their association with pain.

Musculoskeletal Disorders: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the annual cost to the NHS of treating musculoskeletal conditions. [249347]

Ann Keen: Estimates of national health service expenditure on problems of the musculoskeletal system are available from programme budgeting returns, which can be found in the "Department of Health: Departmental Report 2008", a copy of which has been placed in the Library, and show for the 2006-07 financial year, the latest for which figures are available, estimated NHS expenditure on problems of the musculoskeletal system was £3.5 billion. Musculo skeletal system expenditure which falls under general medical services and personal medical services is not included in this figure.

Musculoskeletal Disorders: Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of changes in demand for NHS musculoskeletal services over the next 10 years; what proportion of NHS bed days he estimates will be occupied by people with musculoskeletal problems in each of the next 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [249244]

Ann Keen: The Department has not made any specific assessment of changes in demand for national health service musculoskeletal services over the next ten years nor the proportion of bed days will be occupied by people with musculoskeletal problems. It is the responsibility of primary care trusts in working with providers of services to plan for future demand using all available sources of information. To support primary care trusts in undertaking this work, the 18 weeks programme has developed a range of orthopaedic commissioning pathways on for example Hip Pain, Knee Pain, Shoulder Pain, Chronic Pain Back pain and Carpal Tunnel Syndrome. A further pathway is planned for arthritis and is currently under development.

Musculoskeletal Disorders: Surgery

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) primary total hip replacements, (b) revision total hip replacements, (c) primary total knee replacements and (d) revision total knee replacements there have been in the NHS in each year since 1997-98; and if he will break down the data by primary care trust area for the latest year for which figures are available. [249257]

Ann Keen: The requested information has been placed in the Library.

Musculoskeletal Disorders: Waiting Lists

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of (a) admitted and (b) non-admitted patients were treated within 18 weeks following GP referral in each month since January 2007 in the (i) orthopaedic and (ii) rheumatology specialty, broken down by strategic health authority area; and what the (A) mean and (B) median length of time from referral to treatment was for a patient in the (1) orthopaedic and (2) rheumatology specialty in each month since January 2007, broken down by strategic health authority area. [249247]

Ann Keen: The data have been placed in the Library.

Figures have been provided on a commissioner basis, as this is the basis against which the national referral to treatment targets are being measured. Figures on mean waiting times have not been calculated as the distribution of waits in the final time band is not known.

NHS Litigation Authority

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the gross value of the provisions held by the NHS Litigation Authority was for each category for which provisions were made in each of the last 10 years. [249799]

Ann Keen: The information requested in the following table and was provided by the NHS Litigation Authority (NHSLA).

Provisions recorded by the NHSLA by year and by scheme

NHS Treatment Centres

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which primary care trusts have awarded contracts to private companies to operate walk-in centres; and which company has been awarded the contract in each case. [250574]

Mr. Bradshaw: With regard to which primary care trusts (PCTs) may have locally commissioned private sector companies to operate national health service (NHS) commuter walk-in centres (CWICs), this information is not held centrally.

The Department holds information about six NHS CWiCs procured as part of the centrally funded independent sector treatment centre (ISTC) programme.

These centres are operated by the following providers:

Centre location	Provider	Opened
Manchester Piccadilly walk-in centre	Atos Origin, IT Services UK Ltd.	17 November 2005
London Liverpool Street walk-in centre	Walk-in Health Ltd.	19 December 2005
London Canary Wharf walk-in centre	Atos Origin, IT Services UK Ltd.	21 April 2006
Newcastle Central walk-in centre	Care UK Clinical Services Ltd.	17 May 2006
London Victoria walk-in centre	Care UK Clinical Services Ltd.	11 December 2006
Headrow walk-in centre, Leeds	Netcare Healthcare UK Ltd.	1 February 2007

NHS: Billing

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 169W, on NHS: finance, what proportion of undisputed invoices for goods and services (a) were paid and (b) were not paid by NHS trusts within contract terms or within 10 days where no terms had been agreed since 31 October 2008. [249806]

Mr. Bradshaw: National health service prompt payments to suppliers' performance information, is collected on a quarterly and on an annual basis against a 30 day target.

The latest information available is for the period 1 April 2008 to 30 September 2008. For this period NHS trusts recorded an 84.5 per cent. achievement against the 30 day payment target for non-NHS payments leaving 15.5 per cent. outside of the target. This compares to an achievement over the first two quarters of 2007-08 of 82.6 per cent., an improvement over the whole year.

David Nicholson, NHS Chief Executive, wrote to all NHS Trust Chief Executives on 21 October asking them to examine and review existing payment practices and payment performance and to move as closely as possible to the 10-day payment commitment that has been set for Government Departments wherever practical. Bill Moyes, Executive Chair, Monitor, has written similarly to all foundation trusts.

However we do not currently collect performance data of total NHS bills paid within 10 days because no specific requirement has yet been placed on NHS bodies to meet this target.

NHS: Buildings

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Sutton and Cheam (Mr. Burstow) of 10 December 2008, Official Report, column 164W, what the (a) actual and (b) risk-adjusted backlog maintenance was for each NHS trust in 2007-08. [249845]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Public capital expenditure in the national health service has risen every year since 1999-2000 and will rise from £4.7 billion in 2008-09 to a record peak of £5.6 billion in 2009-10; at the same time 76 hospital schemes funded under the Private Finance Initiative have opened worth £5.3 billion. These record levels of capital investment in the national health service estate have resulted in a quarter of the estate occupied by NHS trusts being replaced since 1997, and the proportion of the estate that predates the establishment of the NHS itself has fallen from 50 per cent. in 1997-98 to less than 20 per cent. in 2007-08.

NHS organisations are responsible for the provision and maintenance of facilities to support the delivery of high quality clinical services. Therefore, the NHS will locally prioritise investment to reduce backlog maintenance based on risk assessment, reconfiguration planning and available resources. The majority of backlog maintenance relates to low priority work, which trusts will undertake through maintenance programmes. Where higher risks are present, work will be undertaken as a priority. While levels of backlog maintenance vary across the NHS, it is estimated that around 75 per cent. of the total costs to eradicate backlog maintenance is concentrated in 20 per cent. of organisations.

The Department collects data on backlog maintenance and risk adjusted backlog maintenance annually from NHS trusts through its Estates Returns Information Collection (ERIC). The data provided are not amended centrally and the responsibility for its accuracy lies with the contributing NHS organisations.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Sutton and Cheam (Mr. Burstow) of 10 December 2008, Official Report, column 164W, on NHS: buildings, when he plans to publish backlog data for 2008-09. [250913]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department collects data on backlog maintenance annually from national health service trusts through its Estates Returns Information Collection (ERIC). The data are published at the end of October each year on the Health Estates Facilities Statistics website. The 2008-09 data will be available by the end of October 2009.

NHS: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people have been convicted of abusing NHS staff on (a), one, (b) two, (c) three and (d) four or more occasions in each of the last three years. [251064]

Ann Keen: The information is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Since 2004-05, the number of criminal sanctions reported by national health service bodies in England in cases of physical assaults against NHS staff has been collected annually by the NHS Security Management Service. This information is shown in the following table:

	Number
2004-05	759
2005-06	850
2006-07	869
2007-08	992

Criminal sanctions include:

cautions and conditional cautions;

community rehabilitation or punishment orders;

imprisonment (including suspended sentences);

conditional discharges; and fines.

NHS: Disclosure of Information

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what powers he has in existing legislation to make directions requiring NHS bodies to publish information relating to the quality of NHS services which they provide; and if he will make a statement. [250892]

Mr. Bradshaw: Section 8 of the National Health Service Act 2006 provides that the Secretary of State may give directions to certain NHS bodies about the exercise of any of their functions. The Secretary of State may use the powers in section 8 to require the publication of information by these bodies. This power covers NHS bodies in public ownership, but does not allow the Secretary of State to make directions for other bodies providing NHS healthcare services.

The quality accounts provisions in the Health Bill published on 16 January seek to establish a requirement for anyone providing NHS healthcare services to publish information about the quality of those services, regardless of the status of the provider, as set out in the report of Government's review of the future of the NHS, "High Quality Care for All".

NHS: Safety

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what provision there is for exempting NHS organisations from full compliance with (a) fire safety standards and (b) health and safety standards in respect of patient-occupied floor areas; and what measurement his Department makes of such exemptions (i) nationally and (ii) locally. [250881]

Mr. Bradshaw: The NHS and Community Care Act 1990 removed Crown immunity from national health service premises. Since then, the NHS has been required to comply with all fire safety and health and safety legislation.

NHS: Standards

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in piloting integrated care organisations as referred to in his Department's NHS next stage review, "High Quality Care for All", published 30 June 2008. [249155]

Mr. Bradshaw: Following the announcement that the Department would launch a pilot programme to test and evaluate clinically-led models of integrated care, and an initial event to engage with the national health service and social care organisations, the Department published a prospectus setting out the scope of the programme and process for selection, and inviting applications, in October 2008. Over 100 applications were received by the deadline of November 2008.

These initial applications were shortlisted down to 37 sites to go forward to the final stage of the selection process during December 2008. This stage will involve further analysis of written information from sites, as well as a series of site visits.

The aim is for the final pilot sites to be selected by the end of March 2009.

The pilot programme will run for two years, with the evaluation taking place over three years.

Orthopaedics

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many finished episodes of care for elective orthopaedic surgery there were in each year since 1997-98. [249274]

Mr. Bradshaw: The number of elective finished consultant episodes for trauma and orthopaedics in each year from 1997-98 to present is shown in the following table.

	Finished admission episodes
2006-07	634,488
2005-06	596,001
2004-05	565,735
2003-04	552,560
2002-03	512,732
2001-02	473,979
2000-01	469,388
1999-2000	458,267
1998-99	458,946
1997-98	421,815

Note:

1. HES data cannot distinguish orthopaedic episodes only. Data have been provided where the consultant's main specialty is trauma and orthopaedics.
2. Count of elective finished admission episodes where the consultant's main specialty is trauma and orthopaedics in 1997-98 to 2006-07.
3. Activity in English NHS Hospitals and English NHS commissioned activity in the independent sector.

Hospital Episode Statistics (HES), The NHS Information Centre for health and social care.

Osteoporosis

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospital admissions for (a) all osteoporosis-related conditions and (b) osteoporotic fractures there have been in each year since 1997-98, as recorded by the Hospital Episodes Statistics database. [249269]

Ann Keen: The total number of hospital admissions where there was a primary diagnosis for osteoporosis, an osteoporosis-related conditions, and osteoporotic fractures, for the years 1997-98 to 2006-07 is given in the following table.

	Total finished admission episodes
	Osteoporosis and osteoporosis-related conditions	Osteoporotic fractures
2006-07	13,218	3,837
2005-06	12,949	4,034
2004-05	11,971	3,924
2003-04	10,422	3,642
2002-03	9,958	3,661
2001-02	10,759	3,311
2000-01	10,420	3,462
1999-2000	9,452	3,292
1998-99	8,915	3,390
1997-98	7,987	3,105

Note:

A finished admission episode is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Finished admission episodes are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Admissions do not represent the number of inpatients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

Pain: Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the proportion of pain management services provided by the NHS which offer individual psychological therapy; and if he will make a statement. [249264]

Ann Keen: The Department has made no such estimate. It is the responsibility of primary care trusts to decide which services and treatments it will provide to meet the needs of its population.

The Department does recognise that the effects of chronic pain on quality of life can be considerable, and that the treatment of pain is less successful when psychological components of pain are not addressed through an integrated pain management programme. The Department has published an 18-week patient pathway for chronic pain which provides commissioners with the support they need to commission services appropriately. A copy has been placed in the Library. NHS Choices has also provided information that will raise the awareness of chronic pain and treatments, including psychological components.

In addition, the Department has established an Expert Patients programme (EPP) to help patients manage their long-term conditions through programmes that address issues such as healthy eating, dealing with pain and extreme tiredness, relaxation techniques and coping with feelings of depression, including a "Persistent Pain programme". The EPP has helped more than 30,000 patients since it was established in April 2002.

Patient Choice Schemes

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of hospital appointments were made in each primary care trust using choose and book in the last period for which figures were available. [250167]

Mr. Bradshaw: The proportion of general practitioner (GP) referrals to a first consultant-led out-patient appointment made in each primary care trust using Choose and Book for November 2008 is shown in the following table.

Post-mortems

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many post mortems were held in each of the last 10 years; and how many of those followed deaths (a) in hospital, (b) in care homes and (c) under the care of a surgeon. [249787]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many post mortems were held in each of the last 10 years; and how many of those followed (a) deaths in hospital, (b) deaths in care homes and (c) deaths under the care of a surgeon. (249787)

The attached table provides the estimated number of deaths where a postmortem was carried out for the years 1998 to 2007 (the latest year available), and how many of these deaths (a) occurred in a hospital and (b) occurred in a care home.

It is not possible to provide figures for the number of deaths where a postmortem was carried out and the person was under the care of a surgeon, as this information is not recorded at death registration.

These figures should be treated with caution, as changes from year to year may reflect known issues of incomplete reporting and operational factors affecting the recording of postmortems at death registration.

Table 1. Estimated number of deaths where a post-mortem was carried out, by place of death[1] 1998-2007[2]

			Postmortems (persons)
	Care home	Hospital	Other	Total
1998	8,469	57,260	56,302	122,031
1999	9,168	58,128	57,444	124,740
2000	9,919	61,312	57,490	128,721
2001	9,640	57,846	55,940	123,426
2002	9,523	56,040	53,871	119,434
2003	9,832	55,351	54,601	119,784
2004	9,158	53,532	52,910	115,600
2005	9,004	51,504	53,099	113,607
2006	8,272	49,743	52,200	110,215
2007	7,835	48,511	52,027	108,373

[1] 'Care home' includes private nursing homes (NHS and non-NHS), and residential homes (private and local authority). 'Hospital' includes NHS and non-NHS hospitals, or multifunction sites. Deaths occurring in all places not defined above, including hospices and private residences, are included in the 'other' category.

[2] Figures are for deaths registered in each calendar year.

Prescriptions

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 19 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1202-3W, on prescriptions, what reporting process for an error involving a controlled drug in a care establishment is required by the Commission for Social Care Inspection; to which individual services such reports are made; and if he will publish the reports made of such events occurring in the last 12 months. [250894]

Phil Hope: Care homes registered with the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) must provide a report of serious incidents to CSCI. The CSCI retains these reports in the service record and the information is used during a key inspection process when the care service star rating and inspection frequency is determined. CSCI does not inform any other agency and the content of serious incident notifications is not published.

CSCI does not receive notification if a controlled drug error was made by the general practitioner who prescribed the controlled drug or by the community pharmacist who supplied the controlled drug. When errors relating to prescribing and supply of medicines occur within the national health service, primary care trusts are encouraged to have a procedure to report the errors to the National Patient Safety Agency (NPSA). But there is no current mechanism for social care services to make similar reports to NPSA about medicine administration errors.

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether there is a regulatory requirement for a patient to be examined before a prescription for a controlled drug is issued to that patient. [250915]

Phil Hope: In general, a patient will be assessed by their prescriber before a prescription, including one for a controlled drug, is issued. However, there is no requirement in regulation for the patient to be examined. The decision as to whether an examination is required is a clinical one made by the prescriber.

Rheumatology

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many rheumatology admissions to hospital there were in each year since 1997, as recorded by the Hospital Episodes Statistics database, broken down by whether the admissions were (i) ordinary and (ii) day-case. [249263]

Ann Keen: The total number of ordinary, and day case admissions, to hospital where the main consultant specialty is recorded as rheumatology is given in the following table.

	Day case	Ordinary
2006-07	62,707	31,577
2005-06	56,938	32,277
2004-05	53,183	31,530
2003-04	49,003	31,440
2002-03	41,003	32,279
2001-02	33,041	34,056
2000-01	30,331	35,524
1999-2000	27,275	37,033
1998-99	24,045	36,968
1997-98	20,496	38,976
1996-97	17,538	40,053

Note:

A finished admission episode is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one health care provider. Finished admission episodes are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Admissions do not represent the number of inpatients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

Tobacco

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many times (a) he and (b) Ministers in his Department have met (i) tobacco companies and (ii) representatives of and lobbyists acting on behalf of tobacco companies in the last three months. [250654]

Dawn Primarolo: There have been no such meetings.

Wheelchairs: Waiting Lists

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how long on average existing wheelchair users wait for a chair with different specifications in (a) Southend Hospital Trust, (b) Essex and (c) England; and if he will make a statement; [250073]

(2) what the average waiting time for a replacement wheelchair after assessment is for existing permanent wheelchair users in (a) Southend Hospital Trust, (b) Essex and (c) England; and if he will make a statement. [250074]

Phil Hope: Information about waiting times for wheelchair users is not held centrally. The collation of wheelchair information that may assist commissioning decisions is for local determination.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether the Higher Education Minister received briefing from departmental officials before his television appearance on Celebrity Mastermind. [249569]

Mr. Lammy: I received no official briefing from the Department prior to my appearance on Celebrity Mastermind.

My appearance was in the spirit of charity and raised £2,750 for Action Aid, an international NGO which helps people in the developing world to fight hunger and disease.

Foundation Degrees

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people enrolled on a foundation degree course in each year since its inception; and what the drop-out rate has been in each year. [249106]

Mr. Lammy: The information is as follows.

Table 1 shows the number of enrolments in foundation degrees since 2001/02.

Table 1: Home, EU and overseas enrolments on foundation degrees English higher education institutions and further education colleges academic years 2001/02 to 2007/08

Academic year	Enrolments
2001/02	4,320
2002/03	12,310
2003/04	23,945
2004/05	37,820
2005/06	46,780
2006/07	60,580
2007/08	71,915

Note:

The numbers of overseas entrants for 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08 are estimated by assuming they represent the same proportion as for the other years, that is 4.6 per cent. for full-time and 5.5 per cent. for part-time. 2001-02 student numbers include some continuing students from 2000-01 which were marketed as foundation degrees but which may not have had all the attributes described in the HEFCE foundation degree prospectus.

[1] Institution type refers to the institution the student is registered with.

[2] Study in the following year includes students registered for any FE or HE study in HEIs in the UK, and students registered for any HE or FE study in FECs in England. Any study outside this coverage is not included and the students will be categorised as 'not studying'.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what proportion of those who have received a foundation degree have gone on to enrol on an honours degree course since the inception of such degrees, broken down by (a) year and (b) type of honours institution; and what proportion of such enrolment was into (i) pre-1992 and (ii) post-1992 university. [249112]

Mr. Lammy: The latest available information published by the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) is shown in table 1. This information is not available by type of honours institution, or pre/post 1992 university.

The available information on Foundation Degree (FD) qualifiers from the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) who went on to study a first degree in the following academic year only is shown in table 2. The figures were derived from the destinations surveys, which collect information about the destinations of qualifiers six months after qualification. Figures for 2007/08 will be available in July 2009.

The available information is limited to qualifiers who went on to study for a first degree in the year immediately following qualification: it does not cover those who chose to progress to a first degree at a later stage.

For a number of reasons, it is difficult to draw reliable conclusions about the trends in the numbers of FD qualifiers who went on to study for a first degree in the following academic year. FDs were only introduced in 2001/02 and until 2004/05 there were relatively low numbers of qualifiers, which makes the figures inherently more volatile. It is also important to note that FD qualifiers tend to be older than qualifiers from other levels of study. Older qualifiers are less likely to go on to study for a first degree in the year immediately following qualification, because they are often already employed and tend to have other financial and domestic commitments. They may therefore be more likely to proceed to further study at a later date.

The academic subject classification (JACS) is not always well suited to describing foundation degrees. The new HESA record being collected for 2007-08 will facilitate the identification of courses and it is hoped that future reports will be able to describe foundation degree provision in ways that will be more recognisable to stakeholders.

Graduates: Employment

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what discussions he has had with higher education institutions on levels of graduate employment in the current economic situation; and what representations he has received on proposals for (a) reskilling and (b) upskilling courses for graduates preparing for employment. [250712]

Mr. Lammy: DIUS Ministers have met groups of university vice-chancellors, representatives of university careers services and graduate employers to discuss the prospects for graduate employment and the contribution of universities to helping individuals and businesses in the economic downturn. Universities' contributions to skills, training and workforce development are exemplified in the leaflet "Standing together—universities helping business through the downturn" available at:

http://www.universitiesuk.ac.uk/Publications/Documents/StandingTogether.pdf

In addition, the Secretary of State announced plans to increase the availability of internship places as a contribution to improving the skills of graduates preparing for employment.

Graduates: Government Assistance

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills with reference to the Prime Minister's plans to introduce a Government-funded intern scheme for university graduates, whether the scheme will be restricted to or targeted at particular socio-economic or demographic groups of recent graduates. [250466]

Mr. Lammy: As part of its overall package to support individuals through the economic downturn, the Government are developing proposals to increase the number of internships places for graduates who are unemployed next summer. We expect to offer graduates the opportunity to spend three months with an employer in either the private, public or third sector to apply their learning in the workplace and build the work-ready skills they will need for permanent employment. It is still early days and the details will be carefully worked out in collaboration with all the relevant stakeholders.

Higher Education

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what information his Department holds on the work of British higher education institutions in promoting transnational educational partnerships; and if he will make a statement. [247755]

Mr. Lammy: Transnational education—the delivery of the courses and qualifications of one country in another one—brings great benefit to the individual higher education institutions (HEIs) involved as well as to the country as a whole. It makes a major contribution to the high reputation enjoyed by UK higher education in other parts of the world. The overall value of transnational higher education to the UK is estimated to be some £200 million per annum. A recent study commissioned by the Department and published by Sheffield Hallam University in May 2008 found that our institutions are well-engaged in making their high quality programmes and expertise available in other countries. The report, entitled "Transnational education and higher education institutions: exploring patterns of HE institutional activity", is available on the research and analysis pages of the Department's website. As part of the second phase of the Prime Minister's Initiative for international education (PMI2), £4 million has been allocated in 2007-08 to supporting HEIs in developing international partnerships and expanding their successful transnational education strategies to further improve the visibility of UK higher education on the international stage. Some 189 projects are being supported which involve UK HE institutions collaborating with institutions overseas.

Higher Education Funding Council: Consultants

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much and what proportion of the Higher Education Funding Council for England's budget was spent on the employment of management consultants in the last financial year. [249109]

Mr. Lammy: The Higher Education Funding Council for England spent £145,000 in 2007-08 on management consultancy activities. This represents 0.002 per cent. of its budget for that year.

Higher Education: Admissions

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when he expects to meet the target of 50 per cent. participation rate in university education for young people aged 18 to 30 years. [248911]

Mr. Lammy: Over half of young people from all social backgrounds aspire to go to university. We are helping them to fulfil that aspiration. The latest UCAS figures show that acceptances from England are up by 7.4 per cent. (22,764) on the same point last year and this year's figures are the highest ever. Increasing initial participation in higher education towards 50 per cent. of those aged 18 to 30 is challenging but is an essential investment in our future prosperity. The high level skills acquired through university education help individuals and businesses to innovate and thrive. Our interim target is 42 per cent. for 2010/11 and we achieved 40 per cent. in 2006/07.

Higher Education: Finance

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what information his Department holds on which universities and higher education institutions have received over £50,000 from (a) a donor and (b) a foundation that had investments in the Madoff scheme; [250546]

(2) what information his Department holds on which universities and higher education institutions that had investments in the (a) Fairfield Greenwich, (b) Tremont Capital, (c) Union Bancaire Privée, (d) Access International, (e) Santander, (f) Gabriel Capital, (g) Fortis, (h) Kingsgate, (i) Normura, (j) Bank Medici, (k) Picower, (l) Union Bancaire, (m) Aozora, (n) Maxam, (o) Dexia, (p) HSBC, (q) Pioneer AL, (r) MR, (s) BNP, (t) Reliance, (u) BBVA, (v) Nativis, (w) Reichmuth, (x) credit mutual, (y) EIM and (z) Yeshim University hedge funds in 2008; [250547]

(3) what information his Department holds on which universities and higher education institutions had investments in the (a) MAN, (b) Unicredit, (c) Hadassah, (d) UBI, (e) Great Eastern and (f) fixed hedge funds in December 2008; [250548]

(4) what information his Department holds on which universities and higher education institutions invested in (a) Bernard Madoff investment securities and (b) hedge funds that invested in the Madoff scheme; and how much money was lost in each case. [250549]

Mr. Lammy: Higher education institutions are responsible for their own banking and investment decisions and we have no data on the individual decisions they have taken. But the total level of annual income from all such investments is about 2 per cent. of the total income institutions now generate each year. The Higher Education Funding Council for England will keep the situation under review but has concluded that no institution is at risk as a result of any investment decisions it has taken. There is therefore no reason for students, prospective students, businesses or charities to reconsider their dealings with universities and other higher education institutions.

National Centre for the Replacement, Refinement and Reduction of Animals in Research

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what relevant specialist qualifications the head of the National Centre for the Replacement, Refinement and Reduction of Animals in Research holds; where the post was advertised; how many persons applied for the post; how many were short-listed for interview; and if he will make a statement. [245073]

Mr. Lammy: The National Centre for the Replacement, Refinement and Reduction of Animals in Research (NC3Rs) was established in 2004. It built upon and replaced the work of the Medical Research Council's (MRC) Centre for Best Practice for Animals in Research. Dr. Vicky Robinson, the chief executive of the NC3Rs was appointed by the MRC as head of the MRC Centre in 2002 following a competitive appointment process. The position was advertised in the New Scientist and called for relevant postdoctoral research, medical or veterinary qualifications as well as previous research/clinical experience. Dr. Robinson holds an honours degree in Biology and a PhD in Development Biology, and prior to her appointment was a research scientist with considerable experience of the 3Rs, including having worked for the RSPCA Research Animals Department for three years.

Overseas Students: Finance

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what proportion of non-UK EU domiciled students who graduated from an English university in (a) 2004, (b) 2005, (c) 2006 and (d) 2007 have started repaying their student loan. [illegible]

Mr. Lammy: Non-UK EU students commencing courses in 2003/04, 2004/05 and 2005/06 are eligible for a tuition fee grant, but not eligible for a student loan. Those commencing courses in 2006/07, who are the first students to be eligible for a loan, would not be expected to graduate until summer 2009 at the earliest, so figures are therefore unavailable at present.

Research: Standards

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether his Department proposes that multi-disciplinary research should be assessed in the Research Excellence Framework using the same procedures as mono-disciplinary research. [illegible]

Mr. Lammy: The Research Excellence Framework (REF) is being developed by the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) in consultation with the higher education sector.

No decisions have been made on methods of assessing multi- and mono-disciplinary research within the REF. HEFCE will announce any such decisions in due course.

Student Numbers: Newcastle Upon Tyne

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what records he holds of the number of Newcastle-based further education students who are at university in the city. [244128]

Mr. Lammy: It is not possible to answer the question precisely in the way it has been asked on the basis of the data which are collected centrally. However, there are now 48,470 higher education students at providers of higher education in Newcastle which represents an increase of 12,845 compared with 1997. Our policies are designed to help local students progress from further to higher education in order to increase and widen participation.

Students: Admissions

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what percentage of UK students admitted to universities in England left university before completing their course in each of the last five years. [251029]

Mr. Lammy: The latest available figures for the percentage of full-time first degree entrants not continuing in higher education after their first year are shown in table 1. These figures are also referred to as non-continuation rates. Comparable figures for the 2006/07 academic year will be available in June 2009.

Table 1: Percentage of full-time first degree entrants not continuing in HE after their first year, English higher education institutions, academic year 2001/02 to 2005/06

Academic year	Percentage
2002/03	9.1

The latest available figures for the percentage of full-time first degree starts expected to neither obtain an award nor transfer are shown in table 2. These figures are also known as non-completion rates. Comparable figures for the 2006/07 academic year will be available in June 2009.

Table 2: Percentage of full-time first degree starters expected to neither obtain an award nor transfer to another institution, English higher education institutions, academic year 2001/02 to 2005/06

Performance Indicators in HE, published by Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA)

We are maintaining very good completion rates for first degrees with the latest statistics from the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development showing that the UK ranks 3rd of the 27 countries reporting data in this area. This has been achieved and maintained during a period when higher education has been opened up to both increased numbers and a greater diversity of students.

Students: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what percentage of pupils eligible for free school meals progressed to higher education in the last year for which data are available. [251296]

Mr. Lammy: Currently only one data point is available (for 19-year-olds in 2005/06) and this shows that, at a national level, 13.6 per cent. of young people who were in receipt of free school meals (FSM) at age 15 in 2001/02 had progressed to HE by age 19 by 2005/06. The equivalent figure for non-FSM pupils was 33.0 per cent., leaving a gap of 19.4 percentage points between the two groups.

Percentage of children aged 15 in maintained schools in England by FSM status in 2001/02, who attended an HEI in the UK (or studied HE in an FEI college in England) by the age of 19 in 2005/06

	Population	Number of children progressing to HE	Percentage
Children in receipt of FSM	79,700	10,800	13.6
Children not in receipt of FSM	475,200	156,700	33.0
All children	556,600	167,900	30.2
Gap in participation by FSM status	—	—	19.4

Note:
Due to rounding (to the nearest 100 children), components may not sum to totals.

Work is currently in progress to obtain matched data that will allow DIUS analysts to extend the progression rate analysis to higher education entry by age 20 and this will be available in the next few months.

Students: Fees and Charges

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he has taken to establish a mechanism for annual review of the new funding regime for equivalent or lower qualifications. [250711]

Mr. Lammy: The Secretary of State established when he finalised this policy in January 2008 that the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) should conduct an annual review on its impact. I wrote to HEFCE earlier this month setting out the terms of reference for the review. A copy of this letter has been placed in the House of Commons Library. HEFCE has started work on the review and plan to report later in the year.

Letter from David Lammy to Tim Melville-Ross (HEFCE), dated 7 January 2009:

Redistributing funding for equivalent and lower level qualifications

1. In January 2008 the Secretary of State, John Denham, wrote to you about the Government's policy on the redistribution of institutional funding for students doing equivalent and lower level qualifications (ELQs). Your redistribution of ELQ funding began at the start of the 2008/09 academic year, and is then set to scale up over time. In his letter John said that the impact of the policy should be reviewed annually by the Council, and the Council should be prepared to act on the findings of these reviews to improve the implementation of the policy.

2. We have always been aware that the scope of this first annual review, scheduled for December 2008, would inevitably be limited. We are only in the first year of the new arrangements, only a minority of the overall redeployment of funds have taken place and limited data regarding 2008-09 entry will be available at this point in time. One role of this initial investigation is therefore to provide a baseline for future reviews, but this should not rule out appropriate changes, if they are justified by the evidence.

3. I am, however, also conscious that the economic climate has changed since John announced the Government's new policy on ELQ funding in September 2007. In an economic downturn it is more important than ever that individuals and businesses have access to high quality, affordable educational provision to improve competitiveness and to enable workers to enter growth areas in the labour market.

4. As you review the implementation of ELQs, I would like the Council to consider whether there is evidence that any modification to the approach decided on earlier this year will help universities respond more effectively to the challenges of the economic downturn. The review should not, however, lead to a significant net increase in the overall number of ELQ students studying exempt or protected subjects because we will continue to give priority for public funding to those who have not yet obtained a first higher education qualification.

5. As part of the review, I would like the Council to investigate whether there is any evidence available of changes in the flow of students as a result of ELQ policy. If there is concrete evidence of a large fall in demand at national level for a subject of national strategic importance, I would like the Council to advise us on:

a. the scope to increase demand for that subject from those without an equivalent or higher level qualification

b. whether there is adequate provision of Foundation Degrees—as the hallmark vocational qualification—in that subject

c. the scope for labour market demand for graduates in that discipline to translate into increased employer funding to support students in that discipline; and only then

d. whether there is a case for exempting entrants to the subject who have an ELQ from the general ELQ funding rule or protecting it in other ways.

6. In any such cases, the Council should also advise on the scope for removing exempted or protected subjects from the list. We will then work with you to agree any changes to the subjects that are exempted or protected.

7. It is, of course, for the Council to decide on the best way of conducting this review but I would like it to take an evidence-based approach. I imagine the review will exclude Strategically Important and Vulnerable Subjects because the health of these disciplines rightly falls under the remit of your new Strategically Important Subjects advisory group, chaired by Peter Saraga. And, given your additional support for SIVS, it would be difficult (if not impossible) to establish a baseline for the review that would be comparable with other subjects. You will, no doubt, work with Peter's group as and when it is necessary.

8. I am very grateful to the HEFCE Board and its officers for their work on the implementation of the policy and I look forward to continuing to work closely with the Council on this and other issues.

Students: Finance

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the cost of writing off unpaid student loans has been in each year since such loans were introduced. [248912]

Mr. Lammy: The information is as follows:

Amount of public loan debt written off by financial year (UK and EU domiciled students)

Financial year	Loan write off amount (£ million)
2007-08	11.1
2006-07	6.9
2005-06	5.6
2004-05	3.0
2003-04	3.2
2002-03	2.6
2001-02	1.4
2000-01	1.1
1999-2000	1.2
1998-99	0.9
1997-98	1.0
1996-97	0.9
1995-96	0.5
1994-95	0.3

There are two types of student loan—those taken out before 1 September 1998 ('mortgage style loans') and those taken out after 1 September 1998 (income contingent repayment loans).

Excluding those in arrears, loans are written off when, in the case of those who entered higher education before 1 September 2006, the borrower reaches the age of 65; or, in the case of those who entered higher education from 1 September 2006, 25 years after their statutory repayment due date.

Loans are also written off if a borrower dies, or receives a disability benefit and because of the disability is permanently unfit for work.

The significant rise on write offs for the financial year 2007-08 is due to £3.2 million of backdated write offs for individual voluntary arrangements (IVAs) and bankruptcy, which the Student Loans Company did not have the functionality to process until that year. Since the Higher Education Act 2004 came into force, borrowers declaring themselves bankrupt have still been liable for their student loan debt.

The steady rise in the amount of public loan debt written off each year also reflects the growing maturity of the student loan book. In other words, there has been a year-on-year increase in the total number of loans which have been issued since the schemes began.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what his latest estimate is of the amount overpaid in student loan repayments in the last 12 month period for which data are available. [248553]

Mr. Lammy: The data are not available in the form requested.

On 31 March 2008, the loan accounts of 30,091 borrowers were in credit by over £5.00, at an average of £210 per borrower. These amounts are refunded with interest by the Student Loans Company when borrowers' accounts are reconciled at the end of the financial year.

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent representations he has received on the difference between market interest rates and the interest rate charged on student loans; and if he will make a statement. [250203]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 22 January 2009]: In the last three months, Members have tabled five questions on this subject. The Department has also received representations from members of the public and the press.

The legislative provisions for income contingent repayment student loans require that the rate of interest must: (i) be no higher than is necessary to maintain the value of the loan in real terms; and (ii) not exceed 1 per cent. above the highest of the base rates of a specified group of banks[1] (the 'low interest cap').

The interest rate is normally set every September to equal the retail prices index for the previous March—currently 3.8 per cent. Following the reduction in the Bank of England base rate by the Monetary Policy Committee on 4 December 2008, all the specified banks reduced their base rates to 2 per cent. and the low interest cap came into play. The Student Loans Company (SLC) therefore reduced the interest rate for income contingent loans from 3.8 per cent. to 3 per cent. with effect from 5 December 2008.

Following the latest reduction in the Bank of England base rate on 8 January 2009, all the specified banks have now reduced their base rates to 1.5 per cent. The SLC therefore reduced the interest rate for income contingent loans from 3 per cent. to 2.5 per cent. with effect from 9 January 2009.

The SLC published this information on their website and in national newspapers.

The interest rate for loans taken out before 1998 (known as 'mortgage style loans') is not affected as these loans are governed by different legislation.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Corruption

Norman Lamb: To ask the Solicitor-General what meetings officials from the Attorney-General's Office have had with (a) business organisations and (b) individual companies on retaining the provision for the Attorney-General's consent for prosecution of corruption offences involving national security and international relations in the last 12 months; on what dates such meetings were held; and who attended each meeting. [251067]

The Solicitor-General: There have been no such meetings in the last 12 months. A public consultation was held on the role of the Attorney-General from July to November 2007, and the results were published in March 2008.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Solicitor-General (1) what representations the Attorney-General's Office has received from (a) the Confederation of British Industry, (b) the Society of British Aerospace Companies and (c) the International Chambers of Commerce on retaining the provision for the Attorney-General's consent for prosecution of corruption offences involving national security and international relations in the last 12 months; and if she will place in the Library a copy of each such representation; [251068]

(2) from which (a) companies and (b) individuals the Attorney-General's Office has received written representations on retaining provision for the Attorney-General's consent for prosecution of corruption offences involving national security and international relations in the last 12 months; and if she will place in the Library a copy of such representation. [251073]

The Solicitor-General: No such representations have been received in the last 12 months. A public consultation was held on the role of the Attorney-General from July to November 2007, and the results were published in March 2008.

CPS Merseyside: Witnesses

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Solicitor-General what research has been undertaken on witnesses' opinions of their treatment by Merseyside Crown Prosecution Service. [251342]

The Solicitor-General: There has been no specific research on witnesses' opinions of their treatment by Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) Merseyside. However, data is available to all the criminal justice agencies in Merseyside from the Witness and Victim Experience Survey (WAVES) commissioned by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform.

The WAVES survey has been designed to measure local and national victim and witness satisfaction with the Criminal Justice System (CJS). The survey involves telephone interviews with a number of victims and witnesses from each of the 42 local criminal justice board (LCJB) areas and provides important information to drive improvements to services and support for victims and witnesses.

In addition to the WAVES survey, the LCJB in Merseyside is proposing to commission its own victim and witness survey, which will provide additional local information for the various CJS agencies to act upon.

Serious Fraud Office: Recycling

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Solicitor-General how much and what proportion of waste by volume the Serious Fraud Office has recycled in each of the last five years. [248872]

The Solicitor-General: The following table shows the volume of material sent for recycling by the Serious Fraud Office (SFO) in each of the last five financial years:

Financial year	Total volume recycled (tonnes)
2003-04	41.62
2004-05	59.13
2005-06	57.94
2006-07	75.34
2007-08	42.90

The only type of waste recycled by the SFO for the financial years 2003-04 to 2006-07 was paper. In May 2007, the SFO began the collection and recycling of cardboard, plastic, aluminium and glass. The figure of 42.90 tonnes for the financial year 2007-08 includes these types of waste.

The total volume of waste produced by the SFO in the financial year 2007-08 was estimated at 70.99 tonnes. The proportion of waste recycled by volume is therefore 60.43 per cent. This far exceeds the sustainable operations target of 40 per cent., set in June 2006.

The SFO does not have accurate data for the total waste produced for the financial years 2003-04 to 2006-07, so it is not possible to calculate the proportion of waste recycled by volume for these years.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Parliament: Heating

Mr. Amess: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many complaints have been made about heating facilities in the offices of hon. Members and staff in (a) 1 Parliament Street, (b) Norman Shaw North, (c) Norman Shaw South, (d) the Palace of Westminster, (e) 7 Millbank and (f) Portcullis House in each of the last three years for which information is available. [248139]

Nick Harvey: The number of requests for maintenance to heating and air conditioning in each of the last three years is as follows:

2006

Building	Number requests
1 Parliament Street	325
Norman Shaw North	113
Norman Shaw South	77
Palace of Westminster	1243
7 Millbank	147
Portcullis House	198
Total	2103

2007

Building	Number requests
1 Parliament Street	322
Norman Shaw North	179
Norman Shaw South	207
Palace of Westminster	1255
7 Millbank	126
Portcullis House	305
Total	2394

2008

Building	Number requests
1 Parliament Street	299
Norman Shaw North	169
Norman Shaw South	167
Palace of Westminster	1277
7 Millbank	89
Portcullis House	265
Total	2266

We do not record how many of these requests for maintenance were complaints.

Parliament: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Amess: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what programme of preventative maintenance has been established for 1 Parliament Street. [248232]

Nick Harvey: Since 1 Parliament Street was opened in 1991, planned preventative maintenance contracts (PPMCs) have been established for all major plant, equipment and systems to maintain the property. The largest PPMC covers the operation, repair, and planned preventative maintenance for all the major plant, equipment and systems, including catering equipment, and is inclusive of all minor day to day repairs found necessary to maintain the property.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMISSION

Public Sector: Pensions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chairman of the Public Accounts Commission pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 16 December 2008, Official Report, columns 111-112WS, on guaranteed minimum pension contributions, what the timetable is for the National Audit Office review. [250333]

Mr. Alan Williams: The National Audit Office is currently developing terms of reference for its review of the causes of the incorrect pension payments. It plans to publish the findings of the review in the early summer.

WALES

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the (a) original expected cost, (b) original expected delivery date, (c) actual cost incurred and (d) actual delivery date was of each ICT project undertaken and completed by his Department in each year since its inception; who the contractors for each project were; what the (i) initial estimated and (ii) outturn payment to each contractor was; and if he will make a statement. [251141]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office is provided with its IT services by the Ministry of Justice. Consequently, the Department does not directly undertake IT projects.

Departmental Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the cost of his Department's contracts with public relations consultancies was in each of the last five years. [251531]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Nil.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in his Department attended at least one such training course. [252236]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Nil.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons the latest available figures on the number of antisocial behaviour orders issued in England and Wales relate to the period to December 2006; and when data on antisocial behaviour orders issued after that date will be published. [250111]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The data on antisocial behaviour order (ASBO) is based on information supplied to the Home Office by courts. This information is compiled by the Ministry of Justice (MoJ) for the Home Office.

ASBO data undergo extensive checking and a rigorous quality assurance process to verify the accuracy and completeness of the data they contain. Since December 2006 ASBO data has been published together with data on all the antisocial behaviour tools and powers collected from Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships (CDRPs) in an annual survey. The publication date of the ASBO data is determined by the complexity of this exercise and timing it to coincide with the CDRP survey.

Data for 2007 are expected to be available shortly.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many anti-social behaviour orders were issued to men aged 18 to 25 years in each of the last five years. [250115]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The latest available information on the number of ASBOs issued goes up to 31 December 2006. ASBO data is broken down by age group 10 to 17 and adults aged 18 and over, and by gender. The available information is shown in the following table.

Number of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) issued to males aged 18 and over, at all courts in England and Wales in each year, 2002-06

	Issued
2002	127
2003	574
2004	1,751
2005	2,078
2006	1,371

Notes:

1. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

2. Prepared by OCJR Evidence & Analysis Unit.

As reported to the Home Office by the Court Service.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Hillingdon

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders have been (a) issued and (b) breached in (i) Uxbridge constituency and (ii) the London borough of Hillingdon since 1 January 2005. [250781]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Centrally collected data on the numbers of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) issued and breached are not compiled below criminal justice system area level.

Arrests: Disclosure of Information

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what procedures are in place to ensure that police officers receive sufficient information from regulatory authorities to allow officers to judge whether an arrest is necessary for an alleged regulatory offence; [247093]

(2) what procedures are in place to ensure full disclosure of information by regulatory authorities to the police when they ask the police to arrest an individual. [247094]

Mr. Coaker: Under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act (PACE) 1984 a police officer may only arrest a person if they suspect their involvement or attempted involvement in the commission of a criminal offence and the officer reasonably believes that arrest is necessary against the criteria defined in section 24 of the Act and the 'Code of Practice for the Statutory Power of Arrest by Police Officers' (PACE Code G).

A decision to arrest a person under PACE is at the operational discretion of the individual officer concerned. The disclosure of information provided by regulatory authorities to the police is an operational matter for the individual authority and the police.

Asylum: Appeals

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many appeals against decisions not to grant asylum have been upheld in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [248433]

Mr. Woolas: Information on the number of asylum appeals upheld is published quarterly and annually. Copies of asylum statistics publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research Development and Statistics website at:

www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html.

The most recent publication available is Control of Immigration: Quarterly Statistical Summary, United Kingdom - Third Quarter 2008.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what access asylum seekers who are appealing against the decision not to grant them asylum have to (a) legal, (b) medical and (c) housing services; and if she will make a statement. [248434]

Mr. Woolas: A person who is appealing against the Secretary of State's decision not to grant them asylum is entitled to legal aid provided they satisfy the means test and can also show that the merits of their case justify public funding. The tests are set out in the Legal Services Commission's Funding Code.

A person who is appealing against the Secretary of State's decision not to grant asylum is eligible for NHS medical treatment.

The UK Border Agency provides support to asylum seekers who need it to avoid destitution from the time they arrive in the UK until their claim is fully determined (appeal rights exhausted). Support includes the provision of housing, if required. A person who had submitted an appeal against the Secretary of State's decision not to grant asylum and who had qualified for accommodation support whilst their asylum claim was still under consideration would continue to receive that support while the appeal remained outstanding.

Asylum: Deportation

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of failed asylum seekers were returned to their homeland in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [248432]

Mr. Woolas: The following table shows the number of asylum cases, including dependants, who were removed, departed voluntarily or left under assisted returns from the United Kingdom to their country of nationality between January 2004 and September 2008, along with the percentage of total asylum cases removed, departed voluntarily or left under assisted returns from the United Kingdom to their country of nationality.

The figures are rounded to the nearest five and data since 2007 are provisional.

Published statistics on immigration and asylum are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html.

Removals, voluntary departures and assisted returns[1] of asylum cases[2], by destination, January 2004 to September 2008

					Number of removals[3]
Period	2004	2005	2006	2007[4]	Jan-Sep 2008[4]
Total asylum cases removed	14,915	15,685	18,280	13,705	9,070
Of which:
Removed to country of nationality	11,380	12,175	14,545	11,235	7,250
as percentage of total asylum cases removed	76	78	80	82	80

[1] Includes enforced removals, port asylum removals which have been performed by enforcement officers using port powers of removal (and a small number of cases dealt with at juxtaposed controls), persons departing voluntarily after enforcement action had been initiated against them, persons leaving under assisted voluntary return programmes run by the International Organisation for Migration and since January 2005 persons who it has been established have left the UK without informing the immigration authorities.

[2] Persons who had sought asylum at some stage, including dependants.

[3] Figures are rounded to the nearest 5 (- = 0, * = 1 or 2) and may not sum to the totals shown because of independent rounding.

[4] Provisional figures.

Asylum: Eritrea

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many Eritrean asylum-seekers have returned voluntarily to Eritrea in the last year; how many have been granted asylum in the last five years; what plans she has to enforce the return of those who are not granted asylum; and how many are in receipt of section 4 support. [248999]

Mr. Woolas: There is no policy precluding the return of unsuccessful asylum seekers to Eritrea. Each case is considered on its individual merits against the background of the latest available country information and relevant case law. Individuals found not to be in need of international protection by the asylum decision making process and the independent appeals process are expected to leave the UK voluntarily. If they do not leave voluntarily they may have their return enforced.

For the period January to September 2008 there were five assisted voluntary returns to Eritrea from the UK. Additionally, for the same period, there were 260 enforced removals of Eritreans including further voluntary departures after enforcement action had been initiated. All removals statistics are for principal applicants only, excluding any dependants who were also removed. Figures relating to the period October to December 2008 will not be available until 24 February 2009.

Information concerning grants of asylum to Eritrean nationals from 1998-2007 is published in table 3.1 (cases granted asylum) of Asylum Statistics United Kingdom 2007 (bulletin 11/08). Quarterly data for the period January to September 2008 have also been published. This is available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html.

As at 11 January 2009, there were 902 Eritreans receiving section 4 support. This figure is taken from management information, which is provisional and subject to change.

Asylum: Malawi

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedures are in place to monitor the welfare of asylum seekers who have arrived in the UK using Malawian passports but who claim to be Zimbabweans after they have been returned to Malawi. [248731]

Mr. Woolas: Unsuccessful asylum claimants are returned to Malawi only if they are entitled to reside there, and only when the decision making and independent appeals system have found that this would be consistent with our obligations under the Refugee Convention and the European Convention on Human Rights. Among many other factors, decision makers and the courts take full account of any risk that the claimant would be removed from Malawi to a country where they could be at risk.

The UK Border Agency does not routinely monitor the treatment of individual unsuccessful asylum claimants on return to their country of origin. They are, by definition, foreign nationals who have been found as a matter of law not to need the UK's protection and it would be inconsistent with that finding for the UK to assume an ongoing responsibility for them when they return to their own country.

The UK Border Agency does constantly strive to obtain the best information to inform the asylum decision making process. It works closely with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, including the British embassy in Harare and the British high commission in Lilongwe, who will pass to the UK Border Agency any relevant information they receive regarding the treatment of unsuccessful asylum seekers returned from the UK.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what co-operation her Department receives from the Malawian High Commission and the Malawian Ministry of Home Affairs in connection with establishing the entitlement to Malawian citizenship of asylum seekers who arrive in the UK using Malawian passports but claiming to be Zimbabweans. [248732]

Mr. Woolas: Information received from asylum seekers for their asylum claim is treated in confidence and the details of their asylum claims are not disclosed to the authorities of the country or countries they fear being returned to. The nationality or entitlement of an applicant to reside in a country is determined by looking at and weighing up all of the available documentary and oral evidence. Where a person holds a genuine Malawian passport or other identity document issued by the Malawian authorities, this would normally be enough to show that the holder is entitled to reside in Malawi.

Where claims are unsuccessful, limited disclosure of information may be made to foreign authorities, including the Malawian authorities where we are returning an individual to Malawi, if it is necessary for travel documentation purposes.

No reference is made to the fact the individual has claimed asylum in the UK.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what co-operation her Department receives from the Malawian High Commission and the Malawian Ministry of Home Affairs in confirming as genuine the Malawian passports of asylum seekers who arrive in the UK using Malawian passports but who claim asylum as Zimbabweans. [248733]

Mr. Woolas: Information received from asylum seekers for their asylum claim is treated in confidence and the details of their asylum claims are not disclosed to the authorities of the country or countries they fear being returned to. The nationality or entitlement of an applicant to reside in a country is determined by looking at and weighing up all of the available documentary and oral evidence. Where claims are unsuccessful, limited disclosure of information may be made to foreign authorities, including the Malawian authorities where we are returning an individual to Malawi, if it is necessary for travel documentation purposes.

No reference is made to the fact the individual has claimed asylum in the UK.

Asylum: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers resident in Peterborough constituency were in receipt of section 4 support as at 1 November 2008; and if she will make a statement. [249284]

Mr. Woolas: Asylum seekers who would otherwise be destitute are supported under section 95 of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999. Unsuccessful asylum seekers may be eligible for support under section 4 of the 1999 Act if they are destitute and there is a temporary barrier to leaving the UK. On 9 November 2008, the nearest date for which figures are available, there were 22 people, excluding dependants, in receipt of section 4 support in the Peterborough constituency.

The figure provided is management information, not national statistics, which is provisional and subject to change.

Borders: Personal Records

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent progress has been made on the e-Borders programme; and if she will make a statement. [250052]

Mr. Woolas: Since contract award in November 2007, the legislation which requires carriers to provide e-Borders with the required data has been put in place.

Significant progress has been made in taking forward the design and delivery of the e-Borders solution, the first phase of which is currently being tested. In addition to this, a site in the North-West has been secured for the new operational base, the National Border Targeting Centre.

Since Project Semaphore, the operational prototype to test the e-Borders concept was trialled in 2005; over 79 million passenger movements have been monitored.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions her Department has had with the Department for Transport on the role of registered traveller programmes in enhancing airline security and contributing to the e-borders programme. [250064]

Mr. Woolas: Ministers and officials from the Home Office and the Department for Transport have had several discussions concerning the use of "registered traveller" and automated border controls and the contribution they can make to border and passenger security. Both Departments are committed to working together, with airport operators, to introduce new technology to ensure that travel to and from the UK, and the crossing of the border, is quick and safe for all passengers.

There are currently two automated border control systems in operation: The Iris Recognition Immigration System (IRIS) and the Automated Clearance Service (ACS).

IRIS is a pre-enrolment scheme for frequent travellers and is in operation at 10 major airports around the UK. ACS is a scheme for UK and European e-passport holders, currently in trial at Manchester and Stansted airports only. It does not require pre-enrolment—passengers simply present their e-Passport as evidence of identity and entitlement to entry. The aim of both schemes is to help low-risk passengers cross the UK Border more quickly. While they are not a formal component of aviation or maritime security policy, both schemes ensure that only passengers who are entitled to cross our border are able to do so.

In the future, ACS deployment will be fully integrated with the e-Borders system.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had with (a) airline operators, (b) airport operators and (c) the Department for Transport on the introduction of authority to carry; and when she expects these discussions to be completed. [250096]

Mr. Woolas: The e-Borders programme officials meet regularly with concerned partners. I have recently met with members of the British Air Transport Association, including representatives from British Airways, Virgin and bmi.

Discussions continue to take place with carrier and port representatives both on an individual level and at regular working groups. In addition the e-Borders programme is represented at the 'Facilitation Stakeholders Forum', organised by the Department for Transport. These meetings provide an opportunity for all e-Borders issues to be discussed, including the Authority to Carry scheme.

The introduction of an Authority to Carry Scheme will only be brought forward for parliamentary approval, once the full 12 week consultation period with all stakeholders has taken place.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the average annual cost of applying checks to each individual passenger movement under the e-Borders programme. [250097]

Mr. Woolas: The total gross cost of the e-Borders programme will be £1.4 billion over 10 years from 2007.

The gross cost to Government is £1.2 billion over that period. The global figure for carriers is £242 million over the same 10-year period, which includes the set-up and running costs.

The average cost per passenger movement was estimated at 14p when the regulatory impact assessment was prepared in 2006, however we expect this figure to drop considerably and the average to go down as carriers modernise their systems.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent progress has been made in discussions with the European Commission on the EU's passenger name record proposals; and if she will make a statement. [250099]

Mr. Woolas: In November 2007 the European Commission published draft legislation on the use of EU passenger name records (PNR) for law enforcement purposes. The UK Government believes that the EU PNR proposal presents an important opportunity to share data in the fight against terrorism and organised crime, and facilitate legitimate travel to the UK.

Significant progress was made on the EU PNR dossier during the French presidency, especially in increasing technical expertise on the draft instrument. Furthermore, the dossier was raised in the July, October and November Justice and Home Affairs Councils. The UK's objective is for the instrument to be compatible with UK domestic initiatives, specifically e-Borders. We are seeking a flexible EU instrument allowing member states to address the different threats they face whilst minimising the burdens on industry. Negotiations will continue during the Czech presidency.

British Nationality

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many exemptions from the requirement for applicants for British citizenship to attend a citizenship ceremony have been granted on the grounds of ill health. [247154]

Mr. Woolas: Section 42 of the British Nationality Act 1981 (the Act) sets down the requirement that persons of full age (being 18 years) should not be registered or naturalised as a British citizen or British overseas territories citizen unless they have made the relevant citizenship oath and pledge at a citizenship ceremony.

Discretion may be exercised under section 42(6) of the Act to disapply the requirement to attend a citizenship ceremony in the special circumstances of a particular case.

The following table provides a breakdown of figures since commencement of this requirement in 2004 of those who have not attended a citizenship ceremony.

Children are exempted in law from the requirement to attend a citizenship ceremony and this is also represented in the table.

In total, 465,595 persons of full age, who were therefore required to attend a citizenship ceremony, were registered or naturalised as a British citizen between 2004 and 2007. A total of 650, equating to 0.14 per cent. of this total were exempted from the requirement to attend a citizenship ceremony as a result of the exercise of discretion by the Secretary of State during this period. Final figures for 2008 are not yet available.

Exemptions are only granted in exceptional circumstances; for example, when a requirement to attend a ceremony would have national security implications or when an applicant cannot attend due to chronic illness or disability. Further breakdown of the figures to distinguish between exemptions on the grounds of national security and chronic illness or disability would require examination of individual files at disproportionate cost.

Nationality grants and exemptions from ceremonies, excluding ceremony attended

		Ceremony overseas (exemption)		Grant		Total grants over 18 (excluding minors)
Outcome year	Total not attended a ceremony	Over 18	Under 18	Over 18	Under 18	Over 18	Percentage not attended

Notes:

1. Figures have been rounded to the nearest five.
2. Ceremonies were introduced on 1 January 2004, therefore only application dates post 1 January 2004.

Christmas

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department spent on (a) Christmas parties and (b) staff entertainment in each year between 1993 and 1996. [250735]

Mr. Woolas: I am afraid the Department's accounting system does not hold information for the financial years 1993-96.

Crimes of Violence: Research

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research her Department has undertaken on trends in the level of violence towards street-based sex workers. [250082]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office has commissioned a number of research studies which have considered issues relating to the risk of violence towards those involved in street prostitution. These studies include; For Love or Money: Pimps and the Management of Sex Work (May, T, Harcopops, A, Hough M (2000)); Vulnerability and involvement in drug use and sex work Cusick, L, Martin, A, May, T (2003) and Tackling Street Prostitution: Towards an holistic approach (Hester, M and Westmarland, N (2004)).

In addition to this work the Government's "Paying the Price": a consultation paper on prostitution and A Co-ordinated Prostitution Strategy took account of a range of independent research relating to the levels of violence towards those involved in street prostitution. A review of the existing literature on tackling the demand for prostitution and a study of prostitution in nine different countries was also commissioned, last year, to inform the development of policy.

Departmental Air Travel

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much air mileage incurred through departmental and associated agency travel was offset in 2007-08, broken down by (a) domestic, (b) short-haul and (c) long-haul travel. [250093]

Mr. Woolas: The following table provides a breakdown for how much (a) domestic, (b) short haul and (c) long haul air mileage incurred by the Department and associated agencies through 2007-08 was offset:

	Miles
Domestic air travel	3,115,863
Short-haul air travel	1,626,114
Long-haul air travel	3,980,766

The data cover some business areas that are now part of Ministry of Justice.

The Home Office participates in the Government carbon offsetting fund which is co-ordinated by DEFRA. This ensures the Department offsets carbon dioxide emissions from its official air travel.

All official travel is carried out in accordance with the requirements of the civil service management code.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in the last five years; how much has been spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248798]

Mr. Woolas: As records are not held in the breakdown requested the following table gives the total cumulative figure across all three categories requested drawn from available financial records for the last four years.

Financial year	£
2004-05	18,142,000
2005-06	21,461,000
2006-07	19,324,000
2007-08	13,610,000

The aforementioned figures in this table do not include maintenance costs within outsourcing contracts including PFIs. There is no record of any expenditure on wallpaper. Figures for 2003-04 are held in historic format and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost. Plans for spending in 2009-10 and future financial years which may include decoration works are not yet finalised.

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 281W, on departmental consultants, how many passes were issued in the most recent month for which records are available. [250354]

Mr. Woolas: For the period 1-31 December 2008, where records are available, 22 passes were issued to consultants working in the Home Office HQ.

Departmental Data Protection

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many officials in her Department and its agencies are authorised to access electronic files and databases relating to an individual's (a) immigration status, (b) asylum application and (c) passport application; and if she will make a statement. [243147]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 16 December 2008]: The information requested is not held centrally. As such, it is not possible to answer the PQ within the time and cost limits of the PQ process.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many freedom of information requests have been received by her Department in 2008 to date; and how many have been (a) granted and (b) rejected. [244037]

Meg Hillier: The Department received 1,489 requests between January and September 2008. Where a response has been provided, information was held in 627 of cases. Responses to 414 requests resulted in information being disclosed in full, 103 requests resulted in partial disclosure, and 110 requests resulted in information being withheld. A request was also refused on 323 occasions where the department did not hold the information, on six occasions where the request was considered vexatious and seven as they were considered to be repeat requests. A response was refused on 191 occasions where it was estimated that the cost limit would be exceeded, and advice and assistance was provided in response to 164 requests.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 4 November 2008, Official Report, columns 336-37W, on Government Departments: information and communications technology, which IP addresses are used by (a) her Department and (b) computers in the offices of its (i) Ministers, (ii) communications officials and (iii) special advisers. [241953]

Mr. Woolas: To help defend against electronic attack, it is standard good information security practice for corporate IT systems, not to publish internal IP addresses.

Departmental Security

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) security passes and (b) identity cards of her Department and its agencies were reported (i) lost and (ii) stolen in the calendar year 2008. [250525]

Mr. Woolas: The number of Home Office security passes and identity cards reported lost or stolen (broken down where known) in the calendar year 2008 is as follows: 246 security passes were lost and 30 stolen; 15 identity cards have been reported lost and six stolen (warrant cards are included in this figure as for some business areas they are the same document).

Departmental Telephone Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many telephone numbers for which callers are charged at the rate applicable to 0845 numbers are used by (a) her Department and (b) its executive agencies for public access to services. [246978]

Mr. Woolas: There are currently 11 0845 numbers being used by the Home Office and its agencies. The following table outlines these numbers and their purpose.

Number	Purpose	Type
0845 121 0046	Passport Office Authentication by Interview (ABI) Booking Line	Phone

Deportation: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many residents of Peterborough constituency are appealing against decisions not to grant them indefinite leave to remain; and if she will make a statement. [249215]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 20 January 2009]: Information on the number of residents in the constituency of Peterborough who are appealing against decisions not to grant them indefinite leave to remain is not available.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 13 January 2009 to question 246149, in what format and at what location, information on individuals awaiting determination in respect of applications for indefinite leave to remain in Peterborough is held; and if she will make a statement. [249311]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 20 January 2009]: When an application for indefinite leave to remain is received into UK Border Agency, both a paper file and an electronic record are raised at the same time.

Our electronic database is called the case information database (CID) and management information is extracted using fixed datasets at any given point in time.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 13 January 2009 to question 246149, what her estimate is of the cost of ascertaining how many individuals in Peterborough have been awaiting determination of their applications for indefinite leave to remain since May 2005; and if she will make a statement. [249312]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 20 January 2009]: Producing retrospective management information reports on previous outstanding work in progress is not possible, as the data will have changed as cases are received and cleared. In order to provide this information each individual record would have to be manually identified and analysed before producing a summary report at a disproportionate cost.

Deportation: Religious Hatred

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her policy is on the repatriation to their country of origin of non-UK nationals who fear persecution on religious grounds following their return. [247933]

Mr. Woolas: The United Kingdom is a signatory to the 1951 United Nations Convention relating to the Status of Refugees ("Refugee Convention"). Each claim for asylum is considered on its individual merits by specially trained caseworkers to determine whether the applicant has demonstrated a well-founded fear of persecution in his or her country of nationality or habitual residence for one of the reasons set out in the Refugee Convention. These are reasons of race, religion, nationality, membership of a particular social group or political opinion.

The UK is also a signatory to the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms, commonly referred to as the European Convention on Human Rights (ECHR). This precludes the UK from removing certain people to another country, where for example, removing them would expose them to a real risk of torture or inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Applicants who engage our protection obligations are granted leave to remain in the UK. Individuals whom the asylum decision-making process, and the independent appeal process where a suspensive appeal right exists, have found not to need international protection and who do not have the right to remain in the United Kingdom are expected to leave the UK voluntarily. If they fail to do so, the UK Border Agency will seek to enforce their return where it is satisfied that it is safe to do so.

The UK Border Agency may return an asylum seeker to a country other than their country of origin where the provisions of the Dublin Convention apply. In addition, the United Kingdom is signatory to a number of bilateral and European Community Readmission Agreements. In certain circumstances these agreements can be utilised to affect the removal of an illegal migrant to a signatory state that a person can be proven to have transited directly en route to the UK, rather than their country of origin. The United Kingdom would, however, be obliged to consider any claim for international protection under the Refugee Convention before that person could be removed to the transit country, except in cases where they qualified to be removed under the Dublin Convention.

Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what reservations her Department is seeking in relation to the ratification of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities; and if she will make a statement. [248193]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Office will lodge a reservation to the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities to protect the primacy of domestic immigration legislation and enable differential treatment on health grounds and related issues. The reservation is necessary primarily to protect public health. Immigration functions are and will remain subject to domestic legislation in regard to disability discrimination, and the reservation will have no effect on existing provisions.

Driving Under Influence

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what percentage of drivers who were breath-tested failed the test during January in each year since 2004. [251339]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested on breath tests and the number and percentage positive/refused covering 2004 to 2006 (latest available) is provided in the following table.

Data for 2007 are due to be published in April 2009.

Screening breath tests and number and percentage positive or refused in January of each year, England and Wales 2004-06[1]

	Total tests	Positive/refused	Percentage positive/refused
2004	46,256	8,405	18
2005	48,442	8,404	17
2006	50,165	8,788	18

[1] Following a comparison between the number of positive breath tests reported by each police force in 2006 and the number of court proceedings for drink/driving related offences, it became clear that there was under-reporting in a number of forces. As a result Essex, Humberside, Lancashire, Norfolk, Northumbria, Staffordshire, Dyfed-Powys, Gwent and South Wales court proceedings figures have been substituted for the positive breath test figures. Similar adjustments were also made to various forces data between 1998 and 2005.

Drugs: Crime

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been prosecuted for (a) possession of and (b) dealing in ecstasy in each of the last 10 years. [248646]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Data provided by the Ministry of Justice, showing the number of persons proceeded against at magistrates' courts for the possession of and dealing in Ecstasy in England and Wales from 1998 to 2007 (latest available) are given in the following table.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts for the possession of and dealing in Ecstasy[1], England and Wales, 1998 to 2007[2, 3]

Offence	1998	1999	2000	2001	[2]2002[2]	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007
Possession	810	1,369	2,064	2,626	2,277	2,156	1,921	1,765	1,618	1,693
Possession with intent to supply	410	693	1,081	1,352	1,064	947	726	649	582	592
Supply	308	408	545	528	399	306	261	245	207	217

[1] Methylenedioxymethamphetamine or MDMA is most commonly known as Ecstasy.
[2] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.
[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[4] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates' courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

Entry Clearances: China

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many visa applicants from mainland China have had their applications refused in each of the last three years; of those how many have appealed; how many such appeals have succeeded; and how many decisions have been withdrawn prior to determination of the appeal. [247907]

Mr. Woolas: The following provides requested statistics received in mainland China at our embassy in Beijing and the Consulate-Generals in Shanghai, Chongqing and Guangzhou. The number of appeals received in each year does not directly correspond to the number of determinations received as the appeal process takes time and results are received in subsequent years.

The number of determinations received and the results of those determinations are included to give a more accurate representation of decisions on appealed cases.

UK Border Agency—Determinations and appeals from Mainland China

	2006	2007	2008
Total applications refused	1,0969	1,4234	1,8091
Applications with right of appeal	5350	7275	1,1200
Number of appeals received	1,318	1,090	2,270
Appealed applications withdrawn prior to determination	395	250	389
Determination received successful appeals	614	300	370
Determination received dismissed appeals	477	469	571
Total determinations received (successful + dismissed)	1,091	769	941

European Convention on Cybercrime

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects the UK to ratify the Council of Europe Convention on Cybercrime. [251017]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government are currently following the process for ratification of treaties and we believe that the ratification of the Council of Europe Convention on Cybercrime will be completed by April 2009.

Extradition: USA

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been extradited to the United States since 2003; and for what alleged offences they have been extradited. [250080]

Meg Hillier: 63 persons have been extradited from the United Kingdom to the United States since 2003.

The offences for which those persons were sought are as follows:

	Number
Drugs	20
Fraud	18
Sexual offences	6
Murder	4
Theft	3
Money laundering	3
Child pornography	2
Satellite signal theft	2
Child abduction	1
Grievous bodily harm	1
Terrorism	1
Forgery	1
Obtaining property by deception	1

Fishburn Hedges

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what expenditure her Department and its agencies has incurred in hiring Fishburn Hedges in the last 36 months; and for what purposes. [250461]

Mr. Woolas: The Department made no payments to Fishburn Hedges during the financial years 2005-06, 2007-08 and 2008-09; for 2006-07 the Department made six payments totalling £149,620.

The payments related to the publicity of Home Office activities, including the promotion of the Tackling Drugs Changing Lives strategy; and delivery of an internal communications programme in the Serious Organised Crime Agency.

For the Department's agencies, Identity and Passport Service and Criminal Records Bureau have not made any payments.

Identity Cards: Contracts

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to my right hon. Friend the Member for Horsham (Mr. Maude) of 10 December 2008, Official Report, column 196W, on public sector contracts, whether general break clauses have been included in the contracts for (a) national identity cards and (b) the National Identity Register. [250275]

Meg Hillier: Contracts being procured for the national identity scheme contain provisions for termination. These contracts cover replacement of and enhancements to existing Passport and UK Border Agency capabilities, as well as to support identity cards in the future. Termination provisions are based on Office of Government Commerce guidance for IT contracts and include terms for ending a contract in the case of poor performance or where a decision is made to terminate early (for 'convenience').

Illegal Immigrants: Employment

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Hertsmere (Mr. Clappison) of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1976W, if she will place in the Library a copy of the letter from the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State to the hon. Member. [249467]

Mr. Woolas: I can confirm that a copy of the letter dated 14 January 2009 to the hon. Member for Hertsmere has been placed in the Library of the House.

Immigration

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps the Government have taken to reduce illegal immigration. [249477]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 22 January 2009]: We are delivering the biggest shake-up of Britain's border security and immigration system in a generation.

Last year we launched the UK Border Agency. With a combined budget of £2 billion, a staffing complement of 25,000 and a presence in 135 countries world-wide, Britain's border security is now among the toughest in the world.

Since the launch of the UKBA our officers have seized over 800 million cigarettes, representing a potential loss of over £149 million in tax revenue, £260 million worth of illegal drugs and have taken 4,800 dangerous weapons, including firearms, stun guns and hundreds of knives, off the streets. For the same period, over 809,000 freight vehicles have been searched at our juxtaposed controls and we stopped over 21,000 attempts to cross the Channel illegally.

The new points based system and the continuing ban on non-EU low skilled migrants we are controlling migration to ensure that only those the UK needs can come to work and study. This allows us to attract and keep people with the skills our economy needs: maximising the benefits to Britain.

Anyone applying for a visa—three quarters of the world's population—now has their fingerprints checked against UK databases. So far we have enrolled over 3.6 million sets of fingerprints detecting over 5,200 identity swaps.

Airline Liaison Officers have assisted in preventing nearly 210,000 people from boarding planes over the last five years. That is equivalent to about two jumbo jets a week.

We have also introduced ID cards for foreign nationals and a hi-tech electronic borders system, the e-Borders Programme, which will be fully rolled out by March 2014 and will enable us to count people in and out of Britain. The pilot scheme for the Government's electronic borders system has already checked over 75 million passenger journeys before arrival in the UK, leading to over 2,700 arrests.

Immigration Controls

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what Government-authorised exchange schemes for nationals of non-EEA countries under tier 5 of the points-based immigration system are in operation; and what plans she has for the future of such schemes. [249802]

Mr. Woolas: The organisations that have registered under the Tier 5: Government Authorised Exchange category are as follows:

British Council (IAESTE Programme);
British Council Northern Ireland;
IEPUK Ltd.; and
The University of Sheffield.

There are no current plans to amend the policy framework for Tier 5: Government Authorised Exchange, however, the points-based system will be subject to a post-implementation review that will assess the success of the system as a whole. This will include an assessment of Tier 5: Government Authorised Exchange.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 2257-58W, on genetics: databases, when she plans to write to the hon. Member for Beaconsfield. [241670]

Mr. Alan Campbell: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary wrote to the hon. Member on 19 January 2009.

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to reply to the letter of 8 December 2008 from the hon. Member for Walsall North on a constituent, reference M4848/7. [248180]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 15 January 2009]: The UK Border Agency wrote to the hon. Member on 16 January 2009.

Olympic Games 2012: Security

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what date she signed off the costed security plan for the 2012 Olympic games; and if she will make a statement. [250270]

Mr. Coaker: A draft costed security plan was delivered to Home Office Ministers in November 2008 and made available to Ministers across Government and the London Mayor. Following consultation with other Government Departments, the Greater London authority, the police, the Olympic delivery authority and the London organising committee for the Olympic games, it was agreed that the costed security plan would be augmented with an integrated Olympic safety and security strategy and associated concept of operations. This suite of documents will be presented to the Cabinet sub-committee on National Security, International Relations and Development (Protective Security and Resilience), which is chaired by the Secretary of State for the Home Department, on 25 February 2009.

Passports

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps the Government has taken to reduce waiting times for the issue of new passports. [249480]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 22 January 2009]: The current waiting times for passports are reasonable and realistic and there are no plans to reduce the published turnaround times further.

The Identity and Passport Service (IPS) has undertaken to deliver 99.5 per cent. of straightforward online, partner and postal adult renewal and first-time child applications within 10 working days and to see 95 per cent. of callers to their public counters and interview offices within 20 minutes of their appointment time.

The Tiered Application System (TAS) guarantees to turnaround premium counter applications within four hours and fast-track counter applications within one week.

Latest available figures show that IPS has consistently met and often exceeded these targets, which are constantly monitored.

Passports: Fraud

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people granted a passport were subsequently found to have made their application fraudulently in each year since 2003. [250079]

Meg Hillier: Information on the number of fraudulently obtained passports for each of the years since 2003 is not available as the Identity and Passport Service (IPS) does not routinely collate information on the year of issue of passports found later to have been issued as result of fraudulent applications. Furthermore, IPS is not always informed when fraudulent passports are identified, seized and taken out of circulation by other agencies in the UK and abroad.

Passports: Lost Property

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many passports were reported lost or stolen in the last 12 months; and how many valid passports there were in that period. [250524]

Meg Hillier: In 2008, the Identity and Passport Service (IPS) processed 296,018 reports of lost and stolen passports. There were 249,261 reports of lost passports, 38,120 stolen with the balance of 8,637 in the 'other' category. 'Other' includes passports reported as damaged or destroyed.

The latest estimate of the number of passports issued by IPS and currently valid is 47,282,000 (an exact figure cannot be given because lost and stolen passports may not be replaced immediately).

Passports: Photographs

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many passport applications were rejected in each of the last five years because the frames of glasses worn by the applicant covered their eyes in the accompanying photograph; [248701]

(2) how many passport applications were rejected in each of the last five years because of reflection or glare in glasses worn by the applicant in the accompanying photograph. [248572]

Meg Hillier: If the photograph sent with a passport application does not meet the requirements of the standards agreed through the International Civil Aviation Organisation, the applicant is asked to send new photographs but because of the way in which data on this is stored it is not possible to provide an annual breakdown of reasons for rejection without incurring disproportionate cost. A check of manual records in July 2007 showed that in 17.5 per cent. of applications in which photographs were rejected, the reason was that the eyes were obscured for various reasons, including wearing glasses and glare.

During 2008-09 the Identity and Passport Office have worked with customers and the photo industry to reduce rejection rates which currently are 3.8 per cent. of all applications containing photographs do not meet the standards, again these include wearing glasses and glare. It is necessary for the eyes to be visible in passport photographs in order for facial recognition technology to work. The Identity and Passport Service therefore advises applicants to remove spectacles so that there will be no risk of the eyes being obscured by the frames or reflections on the lenses.

Police National Computer

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many records were held on the police national computer in each of the last five years for which records are available. [250456]

Mr. Coaker: The number of records held on the police national computer (PNC) in each of the last five years is not held centrally. As an operational tool, the PNC always reflects the current situation and it is not possible to produce figures for a specific historical date unless they were obtained on that date.

The PNC contains records from a number of separate information databases. The following table shows the number of records held on the PNC, broken down by the various information databases as at 13 November 2008, the latest date for which figures are available. These figures are not mutually exclusive; for example, the same record may be included in more than one database.

	Number
Vehicles	58,161,658
Names	9,172,689
Drivers Licenses	51,901,851
Property	97,978
Crimelink	621
National Firearms Certificate Holders Register (NFCHR)	1,390,920

Police Stations: Health Services

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police stations have fully-qualified medical staff on duty at all times. [251487]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not held centrally. The management of the police estate and allocation of resources are matters for each police authority and chief constable, who are responsible for assessing local needs.

Police: Administration

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the average proportion of police time spent on clerical or paper work in England. [249876]

Mr. Coaker: In 2007-08 21.6 per cent. of police officer time was spent on paper work in police forces in England. This excludes data from Staffordshire, which are unavailable, and relates to foot/car/beat patrol, CID and traffic officers.

Police: Security

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the adequacy of current procedures for assessing the risks to the personal safety of senior police officers; and what arrangements are in place for review of such procedures. [250819]

Mr. Coaker: Risk assessment processes are based on individual forces' circumstances and any specific intelligence at that time.

The responsibility for risk assessment lies with each chief police officer.

Police: Stop and Search

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how long on average a police officer took to (a) make an arrest, (b) issue a caution and (c) conduct a stop and search procedure in England in the latest period for which figures are available. [249875]

Mr. Coaker: There are no centrally held data on the time taken to (a) make an arrest, (b) issue a caution and (c) conduct a stop and search procedure in England. This will vary greatly depending on the circumstances of the case and the amount of investigation that precedes these procedures.

Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 4 March 2008, Official Report, column 2479W, on the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre: Government Departments, what the purpose was of each of her Department's conferences organised by R Glasgow and Associates Public Relations Ltd and held in the Conference Centre. [248998]

Mr. Woolas: Based on the information we hold centrally in the Home Office, between September 2007 and February 2008, we commissioned Glasgow's to support us with the event management of three Home Office events at the QEII Conference Centre. Two were leadership events for senior civil servants (half-day events for 150 delegates at each conference) and one was an AGM for the Network—a staff support group for BME staff—a full-day event for 400 staff.

Glasgow's is on the Home Office list of agreed suppliers who have expertise in delivering events.

Registration of Births Deaths Marriages and Civil Partnerships

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance her Department provides to registrars on ensuring that lack of out-of-hours registrars' service does not prevent prompt burials or cremations required for religious purposes, particularly over periods of closure of services; and if she will make a statement. [248535]

Meg Hillier: The Registrar General has issued guidance to registrars of births and deaths in England and Wales to comply with any reasonable request to deal with urgent registration business outside their advertised hours of attendance. If their office is to remain closed for two or more consecutive days, or if special facilities have to be provided in the area, they must exhibit a notice explaining what arrangements have been made to deal with any urgent matter which might arise. The law and administrative arrangements governing the registration of deaths in Scotland and Northern Ireland are different.

More generally, in accordance with the national Good Practice Guide for the delivery of the registration service, local authorities are encouraged to consult on customer needs and provide an accessible registration service which takes into account the local community's needs and expectations.

Vetting: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1877W, on vetting: fees and charges, whether those people undertaking unpaid voluntary activity which requires them to be monitored are required to pay a registration fee to the Independent Safeguarding Authority. [251924]

Meg Hillier: Individuals in paid employment will pay a fee of £64 when applying for registration with the Independent Safeguarding Authority (ISA). This fee will not apply to those undertaking unpaid voluntary activity regulated by the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006.

Work Permits

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many skilled non-EU workers were given leave to remain under the work permit system in (a) each year since 2005 and (b) each of the last four quarters for which figures are available, broken down by occupation. [249169]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The following table provides information on the number of non-EU nationals who were granted extension of leave to remain as work permit holders for the period 1 January 2005-31 December 2007, including a quarterly breakdown for 2007. The information requested about occupation is not held in the format requested.

Non-EU nationals granted extension of leave to remain—work permit holders for the period 1 January 2005-31 December 2007

Year and quarter	Number of cases
2005	61,690
2006	50,625
2007	44,685
2007 Q1	12,035
2007 Q2	9,870
2007 Q3	11,780
2007 Q4	11,005

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to nearest five.
2. Because of rounding figures may not add up to totals shown.
3. The figures quoted for 2007 by quarter are not provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

Caveats:

The data presented excludes dependents of principal applicants, 'in-line' dependents, EU and Swiss nationals. The UK Border Agency is unable to comply with the request to provide data pertaining to occupation breakdown.

TRANSPORT

Humber Bridge

7. Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he expects to receive the report of the public inquiry into the Humber Bridge tolls. [250993]

Paul Clark: The public inquiry will begin on 3 March 2009. Following the inquiry the inspector will submit a written report to the Secretary of State for Transport, for final decision.

Sleeper Rail Services

8. Mr. Charles Kennedy: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has for spending on sleeper services between London and Scotland; and if he will make a statement. [250994]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have no plans for spending on Anglo-Scottish sleeper services. The specification and funding of ScotRail services, including its sleeper trains, is a matter for the Scottish Executive.

High Speed Rail Network

9. Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the statement of 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 356, on transport infrastructure, if he will bring forward proposals to connect Sheffield and other cities in Yorkshire and the East Midlands to a new high speed rail network. [250995]

Mr. Hoon: As I announced to the House on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 356, a new company, "High Speed Two", has been formed to develop the case for high speed services between London and Scotland.

As a first stage, the company is expected to bring forward detailed proposals for Britain's second new high speed line, between London and the West Midlands, and to consider the potential for new lines to serve the North of England and Scotland.

Motorway Traffic Flow

10. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with the police on improving traffic flow on motorways. [250996]

Paul Clark: Ministers have not had any recent discussions with the police in relation to improving traffic flow on motorways. However, the Highways Agency has regular liaison meetings with police forces and the Association of Chief Police Officers to discuss matters relating to the strategic road network.

Taxi Drivers

11. Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will bring forward legislative proposals on the maximum number of hours that can be worked by taxi drivers. [250997]

Paul Clark: We have no plans to introduce legislation regulating the hours which taxi drivers can work. We are, however, willing to consider carefully any new representations or evidence put to us on this issue.

Transport Infrastructure

12. Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his policy is on the construction of transport infrastructure to serve proposed residential and commercial developments. [250998]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport supports the Government's aims of increasing the supply of housing, and promoting national competitiveness and growth. Well-planned, sustainable infrastructure can play a key role in achieving these ambitions. Specific infrastructure development proposals should be consistent with local and regional strategies, and with national planning policy and guidance.

Heathrow

13. Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the effect of a third runway at Heathrow on local levels of nitrogen oxides. [250999]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Our modelling shows that nitrogen oxides in the area are set to fall by 49 per cent. by 2030, compared to 2002, even with a fully utilised third runway; and that EU limits for nitrogen dioxide (the critical pollutant) will be met in 2020 even with a third runway operating at the level we have approved, namely 605,000 annual movements.

The detailed figures can be found in the Heathrow consultation document and associated technical reports on the Department for Transport's website.

Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation

14. Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he will announce the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation target for 2009-10; and if he will make a statement. [251000]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government recently consulted on proposals for future obligation levels up to 2013-14 under the renewable transport fuel obligation. The consultation closed on 17 December and the Government are considering the responses received. An announcement on the outcome will be made shortly.

Commuting Times

16. Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he has commissioned or evaluated research on the effect of commuting times on levels of well-being. [251002]

Paul Clark: Yes. Research into people's willingness-to-pay for travel time savings suggests that, on average, commuters value travel time at a rate of £5.04 per hour. This value is ordinarily used to aid decision making on infrastructure investments because many of the benefits reflect reduced delays for commuters. However it also provides an indication of the importance that people place on the time taken to commute to work.

Rolling Stock Plan

17. Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent representations he has received on the timetable for his Department's rolling stock plan. [251003]

Paul Clark: 423 of the 1,300 additional vehicles announced in the rolling stock plan have already been ordered. The Government have recently announced the accelerated procurement of 200 diesel multiple unit vehicles to speed up the process further. It is currently in discussion with train operators on the deployment of additional vehicles announced in the plan. Announcements will be made only after deeds of amendment to train operators' franchise agreements have been concluded.

West Coast Main Line

18. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent representations he has received on the reliability of services on the West Coast Main Line. [251004]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has received a small number of representations over changes to timetables introduced in December 2009. These have related almost entirely to minor aspects of the planned timetable, rather than the reliability of actual services.

East Anglia: Road Network

19. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he next expects to meet representatives of local authorities in East Anglia to discuss improvements to trunk roads in that area. [251005]

Paul Clark: We currently have no plans to meet local authorities in East Anglia to discuss trunk road improvements.

Southport-Manchester Line

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of the additional trains announced in November 2008 will be available for the Northern franchise's Southport to Manchester line to replace class 142 railbus units. [251001]

Paul Clark: The additional trains are to provide extra capacity, rather than replace existing vehicles. The Government are in discussion with train operators on where best to deploy the vehicles to achieve the greatest benefit. Announcements will be made only after deeds of amendment to train operators' franchise agreements have been concluded.

Accessibility and Equalities Directorate

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has for the future of the Accessibility and Equalities Directorate; and if he will make a statement. [251108]

Mr. Hoon: The Permanent Secretary is responsible for the effective management of staff and resources to achieve all departmental goals, including the promotion of greater equality of opportunity for all citizens. Various options fort he management of the Department's business, within available budgets, are being considered as part of the current business planning round.

Allen Lane

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what functions the company Allen Lane carries out for his Department. [251053]

Mr. Hoon: The Department uses Allen Lane Ltd to provide temporary financial and accountancy staff.

Bus Services: Concessions

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with (a) ministerial colleagues, (b) the Welsh Assembly Government and (c) the Scottish Executive on harmonisation of the concessionary bus pass schemes in England, Scotland and Wales. [250652]

Paul Clark: The Secretary of State has not had any discussions with ministerial colleagues, the Welsh Assembly Government or the Scottish Executive on the harmonisation of the concessionary bus pass schemes and nor have I. Discussions are taking place at official level with the devolved Administrations about how reciprocal arrangements for cross-border concessionary travel could work. However we have no immediate plans to introduce such an arrangement at this time.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in the last five years; how much has been spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248058]

Mr. Hoon: The requested information, where recorded, has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251447]

Mr. Hoon: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members' correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it is ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

Information about average response times for replying to correspondence from members of the public cannot be provided within disproportionate costs limits, however, the Department for Transport aims to respond to all written correspondence within 20 working days.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [247918]

Mr. Hoon: The information requested is as follows:

2005-06	599,867
2006-07	1,155,007
2007-08	1,043,916

Driving Under Influence: Death

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many people were killed in drink-driving related incidents in (a) England and (b) Leicester in the last year for which figures are available. [251743]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In England, it is estimated that 490 people were killed in 2006 in reported personal injury road accidents where one or more motor vehicle drivers or riders involved was over the legal alcohol limit.

Estimates of the number of drink-drive accidents or casualties are not available below Government office region level.

Heathrow Airport

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many additional aircraft movements arising from the construction of a third runway at Heathrow Airport he expects there to be in each of the years from 2020 to 2030. [250801]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 26 January 2009]: We have made clear that our support for a third runway is subject to an aggregate limit of 605,000 annual movements, to be reviewed in 2020. Any further increase in capacity would depend on the outcome of that review and planning requirements. The review would take into account developments such as the operation of the compliance mechanism for noise and air quality, progress with public transport access, the levels of resilience being achieved at the airport and advice from the Committee on Climate Change on progress towards meeting the UK's carbon reduction targets.

Motorways: Repairs and Maintenance

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what assessment he has made of the likely effects of implementing the proposals for hard shoulder running on the (a) M1, (b) M25, (c) M6, (d) M62, (e) M3 and (f) M4 on the Highways Agency's budget for the Programme of Major Schemes in (i) 2009-10, (ii) 2010-11, (iii) 2011-12, (iv) 2012-13 and (v) 2013-14; [250918]

(2) whether funds in excess of the proposed Highways Agency Programme of Major Schemes budget will be allocated to meet the cost of proposals for additional miles of motorway lanes. [250920]

Paul Clark [holding answer 26 January 2009]: On 15 January 2009 in "Britain's Transport Infrastructure: Motorways and Major Trunk Roads" we announced the Highways Agency's programme of national major schemes that we expect to enter construction by 2015, and that up to £6 billion had been allocated to fund this work.

In developing this programme of schemes part of the assessment undertaken to determine the timing and priority of schemes related to affordability and deliverability within expected budgets. An element of over-programming has been included to allow for uncertainty over the individual delivery programmes for schemes at an early stage in their development and the scope for the Highways Agency to realise efficiencies through technology and procurement developments. Allowing for over-programming the programme and the funding envelope announced on 15 January are consistent.

Budgets for the Highways Agency are set on an annual basis but they will be consistent with the overall figure given above.

Oxford-Cambridge Railway Line

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make an assessment of the merits of reopening the Oxford to Cambridge railway line; and if he will make a statement. [250975]

Paul Clark: The proposal to reopen the railway line between Oxford and Cambridge is being promoted, developed and assessed by a consortium of local authorities and regional bodies.

The Department for Transport maintains dialogue with the consortium and is prepared to consider railway reopening proposals which meet wider objectives, represent value for money and for which funding can be identified.

Parking: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions his Department has had with (a) the Department for Communities and Local Government and (b) HM Treasury on workplace parking charges in the last 12 months. [250750]

Paul Clark: Colleagues in other Departments, including Communities and Local Government and HM Treasury, were given the opportunity to comment on our proposals for regulations for workplace parking levy schemes, before we launched the consultation I announced on 11 December 2008.

Railways: Ashchurch

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make representations to Network Rail to reinstate the direct service from Ashchurch railway station to Birmingham New Street. [251973]

Paul Clark: Already, there are direct services from Ashchurch railway station to Birmingham New Street operated by Cross Country. Monday to Friday there are five services from Ashchurch to Birmingham New Street and three services in the opposite direction. Saturdays there are four services from Birmingham New Street and two in the opposite direction. There are no services on Sundays.

Railways: Bus Services

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much his Department has spent on subsidising rail replacement bus services between Ealing Broadway station and Wandsworth Road station in the last five years; [247298]

(2) how many of the rail replacement bus services funded by his Department are not advertised to the public. [247300]

Paul Clark: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W.

Mindful of the requirements of relevant legislation, the Department for Transport is currently funding a rail replacement bus service between Ealing Broadway station and Wandsworth Road station. This service, which is a temporary measure until the Department can arrange a replacement rail service in this area, has been operating since 14 December 2008 at a four-weekly cost of £1,880 to the Department for Transport.

The Department intended the bus to be advertised from 14 December 2008. Following a contractual delay, the bus service has been advertised from the beginning of this week at the stations it is contracted to call at which are Ealing Broadway, Kensington Olympia and Wandsworth Road.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the cost has been of so-called ghost buses for replacement rail transport in each of the last five years. [247426]

Paul Clark: Rail replacement bus services have been operated as a temporary substitute for train services over sections of track between:

(1) Ealing Broadway and Wandsworth Road on a weekly basis since 14 December 2008 at a four-weekly cost of £1,880.

(2) Kensington Olympia and London Waterloo on a weekly basis between May and December 2004. The bus service was procured by the Strategic Rail Authority. The Department for Transport does not hold information on the cost of the bus service.

Rail replacement bus services have also been operated as a temporary substitute to:

(1) All train services to Barlaston, Wedgewood and Norton Bridge since May 2003.

(2) All train services to Stone between May 2003 and 13 December 2008.

(3) Some train services to Atherstone between May 2003 and 13 December 2008.

(4) Most train services to Polesworth between May 2003 and 13 December 2008.

The costs for these are not specifically identified as they are part of the overall subsidy payment for the London Midland franchise.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many rail replacement bus services have operated in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [247427]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold information on the number of rail replacement bus services operated because of engineering works.

Additionally, rail replacement bus services have been operated as a temporary substitute to train services over sections of track between:

(1) Ealing Broadway and Wandsworth Road on a weekly basis since 14 December 2008.

(2) Kensington Olympia and London Waterloo on a weekly basis between May and December 2004.

Rail replacement bus services have also been operated as a temporary substitute to:

(1) All train services to Barlaston, Wedgewood and Norton Bridge since May 2003.

(2) All train services to Stone between May 2003 and 13 December 2008.

(3) Some train services to Atherstone between May 2003 and 13 December 2008.

(4) Most train services to Polesworth between May 2003 and 13 December 2008.

Railways: Fares

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with train operating companies on recent increases in rail fares; and if he will make a statement. [247082]

Paul Clark: Ministers and officials meet regularly with train operating companies, and with the Association of Train Operating Companies (ATOC) to discuss a range of issues relating to the railways, including fares.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the average rise in regulated rail fares from Chelmsford Station to London was in each year since 1997. [249977]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold the information in the form requested.

The Office of Rail Regulation publish data about the annual average increases in fares in National Rail Trends, which is available from their website at:

www.rail.reg.gov.uk

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent representations he has received on the effects on rail passengers of increases in regulated fares. [251091]

Paul Clark: The Secretary of State has not recently received any formal representations from any passenger representatives or user groups on this subject. There has been a nominal amount of individual correspondence, but only at volumes normally received just after the annual January increases.

Railways: Members

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been spent on subsidising parliamentary trains within the meaning of the Railways Act 1844 in each of the last 10 years. [247302]

Paul Clark: No funds have been spent in the last 10 years. Section 6 of the Railway Regulation Act 1844 was repealed by the Cheap Trains Act 1883.

Road Traffic: Tyne and Wear

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much has been paid to local authorities in Tyne and Wear for pilot projects designed to tackle congestion under the Transport Innovation Fund; under what budgetary headings those payments were made; and whether a final report on the outcome of each such pilot has been submitted to his Department. [250848]

Paul Clark: Tyne and Wear authorities received a total of £1.7 million pump priming funding from the Department for Transport's Transport Innovation Fund. Payments were made under section 31 of the Local Government Act 2003. This funding was provided to assist in assessing the congestion problems and the role that demand management, including road pricing, alongside better public transport could play in tackling them and, if appropriate, to develop a TIF business case. We are awaiting the outcome of Tyne and Wear's work.

Roads: Accidents

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent estimate his Department has made of the incidence of accidents on roads in the vicinity of schools where the speed limit is (a) 20mph and (b) 30mph. [251943]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Road Casualties Great Britain, published in September 2008, shows that there were 541 children aged 16 or under killed or seriously injured on journeys to or from school in 2007. This equates to one seventh of children aged 16 or under killed or seriously injured on our roads in 2007.

These statistics do not, however, specify whether the incident took place in the vicinity of a school.

Roads: Death

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road fatalities were caused by drivers alleged to be over the legal blood alcohol limit during the period of the Government's Christmas and new year anti-drink-drive campaign in 2008-09. [251034]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not available. Provisional estimates of drink drive accidents and casualties for 2008 will be published in August 2009. Final results will not be available until a year later due to coroners' data being available a year later than the main road collision data. Therefore final estimates can only be made eighteen months in arrears.

Roads: Salt

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research his Department has (a) evaluated, (b) commissioned and (c) undertaken on an alternative to sodium chloride for managing the effects of ice on roads. [251023]

Paul Clark: Sodium chloride is a cost-effective treatment for the prevention of ice forming and treatment of snow and ice. The Highways Agency has considered other approaches used elsewhere in the world, but there is little evidence to suggest there are cost effective alternatives suitable for the UK that would warrant research.

Alternatives, such as potassium acetate, are used on some major structures to reduce the potential for corrosion. However, such treatments are over 50 times more expensive than sodium chloride and so are not suitable network wide.

Recognising that the use of salt has environmental implications the Highways Agency's research is focussing on reducing the amount of salt spread. Increasing use is being made of pre-wetted salt, which results in less loss of salt allowing spread rates to be reduced by up to 25 per cent.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to increase British military participation in restoring security within Kabul. [249209]

Mr. Hutton: There are no plans to increase UK troop levels in Kabul. Security for Kabul remains the responsibility of Regional Command (Capital), which is currently led by French forces and supported by the Afghan National Security Forces.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) establishment and (b) strength is of each of the three battalions of the Parachute Regiment; and if he will make a statement. [250455]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The current strength of 2nd Battalion the Parachute Regiment and 3rd Battalion the Parachute Regiment is 506 and 507 respectively. The establishment of both Regiments is 556. It is not our policy to release corresponding data for 1st Battalion the Parachute Regiment.

These figures relate to Infantry soldiers at Regimental Duty and are the battalions' established strength rather than its deployable strength.

Armed Forces: Fire Services

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's policy is on the provision of emergency fire cover by armed forces in the event of a (a) local and (b) national fire strike. [252436]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 1 September 2008, Official Report, columns 1440-41W.

Armed Forces: Housing

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many requests for repair call-outs were received by Modern Housing Solutions in each of the last 12 months. [251105]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 26 January 2009]: The number of requests for repair call outs received by Modern Housing Solutions (MHS) is not separately identifiable, however, the number of repair jobs raised in 2008 was as follows:

Month	Number of repair jobs raised
January	23,462
February	18,548
March	19,358
April	18,359
May	17,225
June	16,823
July	18,230
August	17,657
September	20,197
October	21,225
November	19,762
December	17,628
Total	228,474

MHS provides a comprehensive repair and maintenance service to occupants of Service Family Accommodation in England and Wales. Repair requests range from emergencies such as burst water pipes to routine tasks associated with the everyday wear and tear of domestic occupation. Figures also include work orders raised in relation to communal areas, children's playgrounds and other facilities managed by MHS.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the Answer of 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1264W, on departmental housing, how many houses owned by his Department were rated as grade (a) one, (b) two, (c) three and (d) four in (i) 2005, (ii) 2006 and (iii) 2007. [251695]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Officials are working to identify what information can be provided. I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Asbestos

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the most recent estimate is of the number of his Department's offices which contain asbestos. [251715]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Defence: Military Aircraft

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what stage negotiations on procurement contracts have reached in respect of the (a) Airbus A400M military transport aircraft, (b) future strategic air tanker, (c) third tranche Eurofighter, (d) joint strikefighter, (e) defence training review, (f) future aircraft carrier, (g) Apache block three upgrade and (h) Tornado capability upgrade strategy (pilot); [250086]

(2) what financial penalties for (a) full cancellation and (b) reduction in numbers ordered would fall to be paid by his Department to the prime contractor under the contract for (i) A400M, (ii) Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft, (iii) 3rd Tranche Eurofighter, (iv) Joint Strike Fighter, (v) Defence Training Review, (vi) CVF, (vii) Apache block 3 upgrade and (viii) Tornado Capability Upgrade Strategy (Pilot) project; and at what procurement stage they would fall to be paid in each case for each project. [250687]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Information regarding the current stage of negotiations for each of the projects listed is as follows:

(a) A400M

A contract for the development and production of the A400M aircraft was signed with Airbus Military on 27 May 2003 by the Organisation for Joint Armaments Co-operation (OCCAR) on behalf of participating nations (Germany, France, Spain, Belgium, Luxembourg, Turkey and the UK). Airbus has recently proposed a new approach for the A400M programme. OCCAR and the Partner Nations are not in negotiation with Airbus in relation to the contract.

(b) Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft (TSTA)

Contract negotiations with AirTanker Ltd. were successfully concluded on 6 June 2007, Official Report, column 21WS, and the contract was formally signed in March 2008, Official Report, column 31WS.

(c) Tranche 3 Eurofighter

Negotiations with partner nations and industry are continuing.

(d) Joint Strike Fighter

Negotiations for production contracts for JSF are conducted annually. UK participation in the forthcoming negotiations remains subject to formal departmental approval.

(e) Defence Training Review

Package 1, which aims to deliver technical training, is currently near the end of the Assessment Phase. A Final Clarification and Confirm ('FC&C') exercise is now ongoing. The Metrix Consortium's revised proposals have been received and are being evaluated.

Package 2, to deliver specialist training for Logistics and Personnel Administration and Policing and Guarding (both Military and MOD Police), has just started a two year Assessment Phase.

(f) Future Aircraft Carrier

The manufacture contract was signed on 3 July 2008 but further negotiations to agree a way forward are now underway with the Aircraft Carrier Alliance following the recent announcement of the intention to delay the in-service dates of HMS Queen Elizabeth and HMS Prince of Wales by between one and two years.

(g) Apache Block III

We have had early discussions with the US Army about their Block III upgrade programme but, to date, have not made any decisions about whether to adopt elements of the Block III programme as part of our own plans to sustain UK Apache capability through-life.

(h) Tornado Capability Upgrade Strategy (Pilot)

The contract for the Design, Development and Integration stage was awarded on 21 December 2007.

I am withholding information relating to the detail of any financial remedies that may be incurred as its disclosure could prejudice the commercial interests of the contractors and the Department.

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence against what timetable and in what instalments expenditure on the (a) future strategic air tanker and (b) Airbus A400M military transport aircraft will be incurred. [250087]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft (FSTA) service is planned to begin in 2011 with the full service being available by 2016. The MOD will not pay instalments but will pay for the service as it is used.

Expenditure on the A400M programme is allocated separately to development and production activities. Development is funded in instalments by all partner nations against an agreed profile that started in 2003 and is on-going. Production is funded as a series of six payments against each individual aircraft, with the final payment occurring on actual delivery.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the estimated cost is of extending further the lives of the C-130K aircraft; [250459]

(2) what steps are being taken further to extend the lives of the C-130K aircraft; [250460]

(3) what assessment he has made of the cost-effectiveness of further extending the lives of the C-130K aircraft; and if he will make a statement; [250462]

(4) what the current out-of-service date is for the C-130K aircraft. [250463]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I refer the hon. Member to my answer on 24 November 2008, Official Report column 903W. No steps have been taken to extend the out of service date of the C130K fleet as work to assess the cost-effectiveness of options to mitigate any potential capability gaps that might arise as a result of delays to the A400M programme is ongoing.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many C-130K aircraft are to be retired in the current financial year. [250461]

Mr. Quentin Davies: We expect to retire one C130K aircraft before the end of the current financial year.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what options there are for bridging the potential capability gap if the A400M programme experiences further delays. [250464]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Following the announcement of delays by Airbus Military on the A400M programme, we are considering a number of options as a contingency to mitigate any potential capability gaps that may arise. These include an extension to the life of the C-130K fleet and leasing or procurement of additional C-17 and C-130J capacity.

Departmental Fuels

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps his Department took in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08 to reduce its use of fuel derived from petroleum; and if he will make a statement. [249633]

Mr. Quentin Davies [holding answer 26 January 2009]: The Ministry of Defence has been working on alternative energy sources for several years. The RAF has led on examining fuel efficiency and alternative fuel sources, including the wider application of biofuels across the land, sea and air environments. In 1999, RAF aircraft were among the first in the world certified to fly on up to 50 per cent. non-crude oil derived synthetic fuel. Since 2008, RAF aircraft, excluding the Battle of Britain Memorial Flight and a few small training aircraft have been certified to use 100 per cent. synthetic fuel.

The MOD is also working with industry to develop ideas to achieve reduced dependency on fossil fuels.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent on the banner stands bearing his image and title placed in his Department's main building; and how many such stands have been purchased. [250883]

Mr. Hutton: Two pictures were purchased for a total cost of £381. Pictures of this type are routinely produced by the Department for new Secretaries of State as a part of the internal communications process. The stands were already owned and there was no cost involved in their use.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much capital expenditure has been brought forward in response to the economic downturn by his Department, its agencies and non-departmental public bodies to (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; from which years such expenditure has been brought forward; and if he will make a statement. [251401]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No Ministry of Defence capital expenditure has been brought forward in response to the economic downturn.

Guided Weapons

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the current in-service date is for the Meteor missile. [249719]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Following a major review of the programme during 2007-08, the Meteor In-Service Date has been redefined to reflect a two-stage approach to delivering the capability:

> a fully developed missile standard ready for delivery and platform integration in August 2012; and > the first front-line Typhoon unit declared Meteor-capable in July 2015.

The review of the Meteor programme was made in light of changes to the perceived threat and to seek benefit from aligning integration of Meteor with other planned major Typhoon enhancements.

Joint Rapid Reaction Force

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which brigade forms the Joint Rapid Reaction Force (JRRF); whether it is fully equipped; whether the present JRRF is deployed; and when the future JRRF will take over from the present JRRF. [249740]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Joint Rapid Reaction Force (JRRF) is a high readiness contingency capability which is deployed in support of the UK's foreign and security policy objectives. Each deployment is tailored to meet the operational requirements of the mission, and can draw from a pool of highly agile and adept units.

JRRF commitments currently held at high readiness are the Spearhead Land Element (SLE) and Small Scale Contingent Battle Group (SSCBG). The SSCBG is provided by 3rd Battalion, The Parachute Regiment until December 2009 and the SLE is based on 1st Battalion, The Royal Anglian Regiment until 31 July 2009.

For non-discretionary JRRF tasks, equipment holdings exist to ensure mission success. However, some equipment might need to be re-apportioned from other activities depending on the task, to ensure that appropriate quantities are available in the short term to meet the emergent need.

No JRRF Brigade is currently deployed.

Military Aid: Belize

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) joint manoeuvres and (b) other military co-operation there has been between the UK and Belize in each of the last 20 years. [250737]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Substantial British support has been provided to the Belizean Defence Force (BDF) since Belize's independence in 1981.

The British Army Training Support Unit Belize (BATSUB), formed in 1994, co-ordinated joint training activities and military co-operation initiatives but details of these for the last 20 years are not recorded.

Examples of joint manoeuvres and military cooperation in the last three years, and activities which we expect to continue, include:

> The BDF has provided an opposing force for numerous exercises, in particular for six battlegroup size exercises;
> BDF personnel have participated on three six-week jungle courses;
>
> The UK Civil Military Cooperation group has provided comprehensive disaster relief training for the BDF during an exercise in 2006;
> The BDF provide opposing forces for The Infantry Battle School (IBS) final exercises and the IBS reciprocates by providing one free place for a BDF junior officer on each of its three platoon commanders battle courses in the UK;
> British helicopter support is provided free to the government of Belize and the BDF for approx 10 hours per month. Furthermore, emergency Forward Aero Medical Evacuation to hospital is provided by BATSUB for BDF soldiers if injured;
> Where the BDF lacks the equipment or resources to repair facilities if BATSUB has the expertise or the equipment to assist it will. Occasionally it is deemed appropriate to fund repairs if there is joint utility for BATSUB. A recent example is the replacement of a failed lighting system in the BDF's ammunition compound;
> Where British Army equipment becomes beyond economical repair, authority is sought from the MOD UK to gift the equipment to the BDF. A recent example is 30 x 4 ton Bedford trucks;
> Joint civic events are held throughout the year, e.g. Remembrance Day parades, a military and police tattoo and a BDF open day;
> In 2008 the government of Belize authorised a British recruiting team to spend a month in Belize testing and evaluating over 700 Belizean applicants for the British Army in UK. Approx 130 were successful and some are already undergoing training in the UK.

Military Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required and (b) actual level of spare part availability is for each aircraft type in the Royal Air Force. [249704]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The required level of spares for RAF aircraft is included in contractual agreements with industry, or is set by the Front Line Command. The achieved level of available spares is measured as part of these agreements.

The following information for the required and achieved level of spares is provided as at 30 November 2008 unless otherwise stated. Although not used as a performance indicator as part of a contract with industry, the off the shelf satisfaction rate (OTSSR) is also measured for some aircraft types, and is therefore included in the table. The OTSSR is defined as the percentage of demands for spares satisfied direct from MOD stock.

Aircraft	Requirement	Achieved	Percentage OTSSR
Typhoon	80	76	76
Tornado GR4	Provided under an aircraft availability contract with industry; spares availability is not measured.		95
Tornado F3	As above		98
Harrier GR7/GR9/T10/T12	85% of spares to be delivered within the required delivery date	86	96
Nimrod MR2/R1	Provided under an aircraft availability contract with industry; spares availability is not measured

Aircraft	Requirement	Achieved	Percentage OTSSR
Tristar	85	83	74
VC10	80	87	—
Sentry	90	95	—
Sentinel	75, 95 and 95% of [1]spares to be delivered within the required delivery date	[2]81, 73 and 71	—
Hercules C-130J/K	Provided under an aircraft availability contract with industry; spares availability is not measured.
C-17	As above
BAE 146	Spares availability is not measured[3]
BAE 125	As above
Sea King 3/3a airframe[4]	Less than 5% operational days lost due to lack of spares	0.1% operational days lost in Oct-Dec 2008	96[5]
Sea King engines[6]	95	95	[5]95
Dominie	Spares availability is not measured.		85
HawkT1/T2	Provided under an aircraft availability contract with industry; spares availability is not measured.		86
Tucano	As above		95
Vigilant Glider	Spares availability is not measured.		95
Viking Glider	As above		95

[1] 75% figure is for mission non-critical spares, 95% is for mission critical spares and 95% is for consumables.
[2] This was for the period October-December 2008.
[3] These aircraft are military derivatives of civil aircraft. Spare parts are procured on a "just-in-time" basis from the civil market to supplement minimum stock holdings held at the main and forward operating bases.
[4] The Sea King Mk 3/3a is used by the RAF in the Search and Rescue role.
[5] As at 31 October 2008.
[6] These figures include the Sea King Mk4, Mk5 and Mk7 operated by the Royal Navy.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent on helicopter (a) procurement and (b) maintenance in each year since 2001. [249706]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The amount spent on helicopter procurement in each financial year since 2001 is shown in the following table.

	£ million
2001-02	710
2002-03	470
2003-04	250
2004-05	110
2005-06	160
2006-07	190
2007-08	490

In addition, sums in the region of £500 million have been spent on maintenance and support of in-service helicopters in each financial year since 2001-02. This includes equipment support, some stock consumption and manpower costs, along with the costs associated with the repair, maintenance, overhaul and associated Post Design Services. Other maintenance costs elsewhere, such as at the Front Line Commands, have not been included as these figures are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by his Department, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250131]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Ministry of Defence has two lease agreements in place for the provision of the majority of non-operational cars (white fleet vehicles). It does not therefore own such vehicles under these arrangements. As at 31 December 2008 there were 8,701 cars leased under the UK and British forces Germany white fleet contracts. The engine sizes are broken down as follows:

Class	Size	Number
Motor Vehicle Registration System (MVRIS) Class B	Supermini (1000-1400 cc)—e.g. Ford Fiesta/Vauxhall Corsa	1,885
MVRIS Class C	Lower Medium (1300-2000 cc)—e.g. Ford Focus/Vauxhall Astra	4,907
MVRIS Class D	Upper Medium (1600-2800 cc)—e.g. Ford Mondeo/Vauxhall Vectra	1,300
MVRIS Class H	Dual Purpose 4x4 Vehicles (2500 cc)	55
MVRIS Class I	People Carriers (1800-2000 cc) e.g. Ford Galaxy/ Renault Espace	554

MVRIS is a motor industry system which provides data on the registration of new vehicles in the UK.

The MOD also hires vehicles as and when required. This amounted to approximately 185,000 last year for the UK mainland. This can be broadly broken down as follows:

MVRIS class B 24 per cent.; class C 60 per cent.; class D 14 per cent.; class I 12 per cent.

MOD agencies such as the Defence Support Group, Met Office and the Defence Science and Technology Laboratory and overseas dependencies are outside of the White Fleet contract and have separate local arrangements. These details are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Information on the small number of cars owned by Ministry of Defence for use on operations is being withheld as its disclosure could prejudice operational capability.

Pakistan: Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what matters relating to Pakistan's nuclear weapons and their impact on security in the subcontinent were discussed on his recent visit to Pakistan. [250157]

Mr. Hutton: These matters were not discussed.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Secondment

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on how many occasions (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his Department have (i) met and (ii) spoken on the telephone to representatives of (A) Anglo American plc, (B) BHP Billiton plc, (C) Rio Tinto plc, (D) Vedanta plc and (E) Xstrata plc since April 2007; and how many staff from each such company have been seconded to his Department in that period. [245890]

Mr. Thomas: The following table shows the number of meetings and consultations by telephone which Ministers have had with the five companies since April 2007.

	Minister
Contact since April 2007 between DFID and	phone	meeting
Anglo-American	1	4
BHP Billiton	0	0
Rio Tinto	0	1

The information requested on meetings and calls between officials and these five companies cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

No staff from these companies have been seconded to the Department for International Development (DFID) since April 2007.

OLYMPICS

Departmental Cooperation

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister for the Olympics on what dates since June 2008 she has met (a) the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, (b) the Director General of the Government Olympic Executive, (c) the Chancellor of the Exchequer and (d) Treasury officials to discuss the budget for the 2012 Olympics. [250266]

Tessa Jowell: I have frequent meetings with a wide variety of colleagues to discuss all aspects of the 2012 Olympic programme. Naturally, many of these discussions include the budget.

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Alan Simpson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what proportion of materials delivered to the Olympic park have adhered to the Olympic Delivery Authority's target of 95 per cent. to be transported by sustainable methods. [250420]

Tessa Jowell: The Olympic Delivery Authority's sustainable development strategy set an aspiration to transport 50 per cent. of construction materials (by weight) by sustainable means. This target is reflected in the planning obligations for the Olympic park. As at November 2008, 57 per cent. of construction material has arrived by rail and/or water.

Olympic Games 2012: Contracts

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Minister for the Olympics who is responsible for assessing the business continuity plans of contractors working at the Olympic site. [250568]

Tessa Jowell: Contractors' business continuity plans are assessed by the Olympic Delivery Authority to ensure that they are able to perform their contractual requirements.

Olympic Games 2012: Hadleigh

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what her plans are for Hadleigh's fishing lakes and ponds in the context of preparation of the facilities for the Olympic mountain bike events. [251062]

Tessa Jowell: The detailed planning on the course layout and the temporary facilities required to support the venue at Hadleigh Farm is scheduled to take place this year. As part of the town planning process technical studies will be undertaken later this year to determine the environmental and ecological impacts which need consideration, this will include consideration of the impacts on the existing fishing lakes and ponds. Furthermore the London Organising Committee will commence public engagement with the local community to understand those issues which require further consideration during the design development and planning phase.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Members: Allowances

Mr. Maude: To ask the Leader of the House with reference to my hon. Friend the Member for Chichester (Mr. Tyrie) of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1579W, on Members: allowances, what methodology is used to estimate the date upon which Members are deemed to incur costs; and whether hon. Members may spend against the communications allowance in the period between the announcement of a general election and the dissolution of Parliament in circumstances where the invoice for such expenditure is dated of a day upon which Parliament has been dissolved. [250035]

Chris Bryant: In general, the invoice or purchase date denotes when a Member has incurred a cost to be met from the allowances.

The rules relating to the Communications Allowance, as given in the 'General Election Arrangements—Rules for Members', state that > "claims from the Communications Allowance which relate to the period after the date the House is dissolved will not be met".

Therefore, an invoice for goods or services dated after the date of Dissolution will not be paid. In addition, material paid for from the Communications Allowance cannot be distributed in any form after Dissolution irrespective of when the invoice was raised or the costs settled.

John Mann: To ask the Leader of the House how many hon. Members have employed domestic staff using the additional costs allowance in the last three years for which information is available. [250303]

Chris Bryant: Members cannot employ staff from their additional costs allowance, although they may be reimbursed for services provided such as cleaning and garden maintenance. Typically this is done on a self-employed basis, but it would not be easy to determine precisely how many Members claim this way without incurring disproportionate cost.

Members: Offices

John Mann: To ask the Leader of the House what recent estimate she has made of the number of hon. Members renting office accommodation from political parties (a) in total and (b) who are paying in excess of £5,000 per year in rent. [250321]

Chris Bryant: Sample figures collated for the Members Estimate Committee report Review of Allowances (HC 578-II) suggest that about 26 per cent. of Members rent office accommodation from political parties. About one-third of these pay more than £5,000 per year, although a proportion of this number have additional services such as telephones and photocopiers within the total cost.

Members: Staff

John Mann: To ask the Leader of the House how many hon. Members employ staff who are also employed by a political party. [250324]

Chris Bryant: This information is not held by the House although some information applying to parliamentary passholders only is available in the Register of Interests of Members' Secretaries and Research Assistants. There are no rules which prevent Member's staff having a second employment.

Ministerial Corrections

Mr. Maude: To ask the Leader of the House pursuant to the Ministerial Correction of 11 December 2008, Official Report, column 72W, correcting the answer of 11 November 2008, Official Report, column 1129W, what role she personally played in (a) issuing the original answer and (b) issuing the correction. [250343]

Chris Bryant: My right hon. Friend is responsible for all parliamentary questions and written ministerial statements issued in her name.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which 10 individuals or organisations in England received the highest payments in sterling terms under subsidies available under the Common Agricultural Policy in 2007-08. [249830]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 20 January 2009]: The following list gives the 10 individuals and/or organisations that received the highest subsidies available under the common agricultural policy for the European financial year 2008, which runs from 16 October 2007 to 15 October 2008.

Individual/organisation

K G Growers

G's Growers

Farmcare Limited

The Berryworld Producer Organisation

Strutt and Parker Limited

The National Trust

Sir Richard Suttons Settles Estate

Lilburn Estates Farming Partnership

Blankley Estates Ltd

Fruition Producer Organisation Limited

Air Pollution

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which cities and towns in England were in breach of air quality laws on PM10 in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008; what estimate he has made of when PM10 levels will fall within the legal limit in each case; and if he will make a statement. [249756]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Under EU legislation, the UK is required to monitor the air continuously for levels of particulate matter (PM$_{10}$) and to report to the European Commission on an annual basis. The UK also reports modelled data, in accordance with the legislation.

For the purposes of implementing EU legislation the UK is divided up into 43 agglomeration zones (areas with a contiguous population of over 250,000 as specified by the air quality directives) and non-agglomeration zones. There are 23 agglomeration zones in England and eight non-agglomeration zones; the latter are based on Government office regions in England.

As a result of improvements over many years the limit values are met across more than 99 per cent. of the country, delivering significant health benefits. The few remaining areas where we have reported exceedences are small. The list of agglomeration and non-agglomeration zones where there were breaches of the limit values for PM$_{10}$ in 2005, 2006 and 2007 is summarised as followed; provisional information for 2008 is also given as the fully ratified data are not yet available:

London, Bradford[1], Brighton (monitored)

Birmingham, Stoke, Eastern, Yorkshire and Humberside, West Midlands zone (modelled)

2006

London, Bradford[1], Brighton, Scunthorpe (monitored)

Birmingham, Sheffield, Nottingham, Leicester, Stoke, Coventry, Southampton, Eastern (modelled)

2007

London, Brighton (monitored)

Birmingham, Southampton (modelled)

2008 Provisional (monitored only)

London

[1] Bradford experienced local building work.

A new council directive on ambient air and cleaner air for Europe (2008/50/EC) was adopted in June 2008. Among other things it allows member states to exclude from their assessments particulate matter from natural sources (given that this cannot be controlled). This reduces the number of agglomeration and non-agglomeration zones in exceedence between 2005 and 2008 to six (plus one each in Scotland and Wales):

Greater London urban area

West Midlands urban area

West Yorkshire urban area

Brighton/Worthing/Littlehampton

Eastern England zone

Yorkshire and Humberside zone

In light of the challenges faced by nearly all member states in meeting the limit values by the 2005 attainment date, the directive allows member states to apply for a time extension until 2011, subject to meeting strict conditions and assessment by the European Commission. A consultation on a UK application for such a time extension will be published shortly which will demonstrate that the limit value will be met at all locations by 2011.

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what notification he has received from the European Commission regarding the Government's legal obligations in respect of the air pollutant PM_{10}; and if he will make a statement. [illegible]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Last June the European Commission wrote to all member states that reported exceedences of particulate matter (PM_{10}) limit values in 2006—all member states had exceeded values except the Republic of Ireland. They asked for information by the end of September on the steps being taken in response to breaches of PM_{10} limit values reported in 2006 to achieve compliance.

In light of the difficulties faced by most member states in achieving full compliance with the PM_{10} limit values by the attainment date (2005), council directive 2008/50/EC on ambient air quality and cleaner air for Europe, which was adopted in June 2008, provides for a notification procedure for member states to apply for an exemption from the obligation to apply the PM_{10} limit value until 2011.

The directive must be transposed into national legislation by June 2010 and does not contain any deadline for submitting any notification. Nevertheless, the Commission in their letter also stated that in the absence of a notification in accordance with article 22 of council directive 2008/50/EC by 31 October, they intended to propose pursuing legal enforcement action in relation to the reported breaches of the PM_{10} limit values.

The UK Government replied to the Commission by the end of September setting out the UK's continuing efforts to meet limit values in as short a time as possible and the UK timetable for submitting our article 22 notification to the Commission. EU limits for PM_{10} are met across 99 per cent. of the UK and the few remaining areas where the UK has reported exceedences at some point since 2005 are small. Our actions to improve air quality are set out in our National Air Quality Strategy, published in 2007:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/airquality/strategy/

We expect to publish our consultation on the UK draft notification shortly.

Bees: Research

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the written ministerial statement of 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 14WS, on a new science agency, whether the Food and Environment Research Agency plans to (a) undertake and (b) commission research into bee health; and if he will make a statement. [250884]

Jane Kennedy: The Food and Environment Research Agency (FERA), is a new Executive agency of DEFRA which will come into being on 1 April 2009. Overall policy responsibility for bee health, including management of any research funding, will transfer into the agency. The National Bee Unit (NBU) (which will also be part of FERA) currently delivers DEFRA's bee health programme and undertakes research in support of the programme and will continue to so as part of FERA. The NBU will also continue to apply for funds from DEFRA and other organisations to carry out projects on other bee issues.

DEFRA has recently announced additional funding for bee health research. £400,000 added to the existing c. £200,000 provision for each of the next five years. £500,000 per annum of this will be transferred to a new research programme which will consider the wider problems facing pollinators. The details of the research programme are still being negotiated with other potential funders and collaborators. We will announce further details once these negotiations are complete.

Biofuels

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the levels of emissions of (a) particulates and (b) polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons which would arise if the UK were to achieve its targets for the usage of biomass as a fuel as set in the UK Renewable Energy Strategy Consultation 2008. [249621]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The consultation on a Renewable Energy Strategy, published in June 2008, set out a variety of ways in which biomass could be used as fuel. In terms of the pollutants mentioned, those uses which are subject to regulation by the Environment Agency and others, such as large scale electricity generation, are not thought likely to contribute significantly to any emissions increase. However, research by the Government and others has shown that the uptake of biomass for heating purposes, specifically the use of wood as a heating fuel, could under certain circumstances have significant impacts on air quality.

DEFRA has undertaken an analysis of the likely impacts on air quality of achieving the levels of biomass uptake set out in the consultation. This analysis used a number of assumptions about the locations and types of units likely to be used, and about the effect this has on the use of other fuels, including coal, oil and natural gas. Given that the UK is starting from a very low level of biomass use, it has been assumed that the growth in biomass heat will be achieved by the use of modem equipment, whose emissions are relatively much lower than those of existing plant.

The evidence base used to inform this analysis suggests that, for modern, efficient units, the emission of Polycyclic Aromatic Hydrocarbons (PAH) is minimal. Therefore no significant increase in emissions or ambient concentrations of PAH is expected as a results of meeting the specified levels of biomass heat.

In terms of particles, analysis of the "baseline" scenario, i.e. the emissions we would expect with no change in biomass heat uptake but assuming all other policies operate as expected, shows that the emissions of particulate matter (as PM10) drop from 18.3 ktonnes in 2006 to 13.2 in 2020. Under the most likely uptake scenario for biomass heat, emissions fall to 14.5 ktonnes in 2020, a difference of 1.3 ktonnes. This analysis is very sensitive to the type of plant used and its location. In particular, the analysis assumed that the majority of uptake, especially in the early phase, is off the gas grid, and that the fuels it displaces are mainly coal and oil used for heating purposes.

Birds

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken on DNA sampling of those bird species at most risk of being taken illegally from the wild for commercial purposes. [250653]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DNA testing carried out by the Animal Health Agency relating to Schedule 4 birds will be conducted on a risk-based and intelligence led approach. Similarly, risk-based decisions will be taken to conduct inspections using the following three main risk factors:

1. Priority keepers
2. Priority species
3. Priority inspection types

New processes have been introduced to improve operational effectiveness and to help implement the move away from traditional routine visits to a more directed and targeted inspection effort. This will enable more consistency and coordination between Animal Health and enforcement agencies and has already resulted in the development of a current DNA-related prosecution case, which is the first involving a Schedule 4 bird of prey for 10 years.

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to publish the proposed Game Bird Welfare Code; and whether he plans to consult on the code. [250696]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The working group currently drafting the code of practice on the welfare of game birds aims to publish a draft available for public consultation by July 2009.

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Cheltenham (Martin Horwood) of 1 April 2008, Official Report, column 726W, on birds: trade, which organisation has been contracted by his Department to assess the effects of the prohibition on the importation of wild birds into the EU; when the contract was let; what the stipulated date of completion of the contract is; how much the contract has cost his Department to date; and when he expects a report on the assessment to be published; [250697]

(2) when he expects the report on the effects of the prohibition on the importation of wild birds into the EU to be published; and if he will make a statement. [250698]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The contract was let on 13 December 2006 to the United Nations Environment Programme World Conservation Monitoring Centre (UNEP-WCMC). The initial completion date for the work was 1 September 2007 but because of difficulties experienced by UNEP-WCMC in making contact with some countries their investigations were extended. An initial report was subsequently received on 18 January 2008. Uncertainties about some of the content of the report have delayed its finalisation, but it is now expected to be published in time for it to be presented to the next EU CITES Management Committee on 13 March. The cost of the contract has been £70,000.

Birds of Prey

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his Department's policy is on reintroducing golden eagles to northern England. [250124]

Huw Irranca-Davies: We are committed to conserving our native species and habitats and it is important to use our resources wisely for this purpose. We would support the reintroduction of species if justified on environmental and sustainability grounds, but any proposal would have to be very carefully considered.

I am not aware of any current proposals to reintroduce golden eagles to northern England. A reintroduction project for this species would require a full feasibility study and a formal assessment against internationally accepted guidelines produced by the International Union for the Conservation of Nature (IUCN) before it could commence. No such feasibility study or IUCN assessment has been undertaken or commissioned by Natural England.

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his Department's policy is on population levels for the hen harrier in England; and what recent steps it has taken to preserve hen harrier populations. [250125]

Huw Irranca-Davies: My Department has implemented a number of initiatives recently to address the conservation of birds of prey, including the hen harrier:

> The hen harrier was included in the list of species and habitats of principal importance for the conservation of biodiversity in England, published on 22 May 2008, under section 41 of the Natural Environment and Rural Communities Act 2006. The listing means that Government must take reasonable steps to further their conservation or promote the taking of such steps by others.

Natural England is looking to improve the conservation of the hen harrier by examining the feasibility of reintroducing this species to the lowland part of its former range.

On the basis of the work carried out by the National Wildlife Crime Unit, hen harrier persecution is a UK wildlife crime priority. The inclusion of hen harrier persecution as a wildlife crime priority for two years running demonstrates how seriously the Government take this issue.

The wildlife incident investigation scheme (WIIS) investigates the deaths of wildlife throughout the UK where there is evidence that pesticide poisoning may be involved. WIIS is supported by the Campaign Against Illegal Poisoning (CAIP), which aims to protect some of Britain's rarest birds of prey and wildlife from accidental and illegal poisoning by pesticides, and was relaunched in July 2008. Over the next three years activities under CAIP will include preventing poisoning and improving detection of poisoning cases.

To emphasise the Government's concern about persecution of birds of prey, on 23 October 2008, I publicly signed a pledge with a number of conservation and shooting interest organisations that recognised the importance of raptors in England and that there is no place for the illegal killing of these species.

Bluetongue Disease: Vaccination

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what information his Department holds on the effects of bluetongue vaccination on fertility in bulls. [R] [250724]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 26 January 2009]: Responsibility for licensing veterinary medicines in the UK, including bluetongue vaccine, rests with the Veterinary Medicines Directorate (VMD). In licensing a product, the VMD assesses data on safety, quality and efficacy and establishes that the advantages of the product outweigh any risks before issuing a marketing authorisation. Once a product has been marketed, the VMD monitors its safety and efficacy through reports of suspected adverse reactions.

There is no evidence from the data assessed prior to issuing a marketing authorisation or field use that bluetongue vaccination has any effect on fertility in bulls.

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247360]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA does not hold this information centrally. The Department's grant programmes are administered by a wide range of delivery bodies.

To collect the information centrally would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department and its agencies provides for staff. [249072]

Huw Irranca-Davies: From information held centrally, the Department has 37 directly-operated catering outlets and no franchised catering outlets.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of the IT systems in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies are fully accredited to the Government's security standards. [245385]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA and its agencies have over 1,000 discrete application systems of varying size, complexity and age. The build and management of IT systems is subject to a number of over-arching security controls that apply across the DEFRA IT estate. A joint project with DEFRA's IT service provider is under way to review all existing systems. Those continuing to meet an operational requirement will be subject to a formal accreditation procedure. For new systems, the accreditation process defined in the new Government Security Policy Framework (SPF) will be embedded into the system development life cycle.

While it is not possible to provide an accurate assessment of the percentage of IT systems accredited to Government security standards across DEFRA and its agencies it is a fact that the DEFRA IT network infrastructure is accredited to Government standards required for the processing of protectively marked information. Work is currently in hand to ensure that the network fully meets the standards now defined in the SPF.

In addition the Central Science Laboratory (CSL) network is fully accredited to Government standards, while the Veterinary Medicines Directorate (VMD) systems are accredited to ISO27001 standard.

Departmental Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and how much was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [249866]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The following table shows the paybill costs of bonuses paid in 2007 and 2008 pay awards and the number of bonuses paid.

	£	Number
2007	1,438,261	136
2008	1,435,476	132

Non-consolidated cash payments, otherwise known as bonuses, reward in-year performances in relation to agreed objectives, or short-term personal contribution to wider organisational objectives. Bonuses are paid in addition to base pay increases and do not count towards pension.

Bonuses are allocated by Departments from a 'pot' expressed as a percentage of the SCS salary bill, which is agreed centrally each year following the SSRB recommendations. The intention is that bonus decisions should be differentiated in order to recognise the highest achievers.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what use (a) his Department and (b) service providers under contract to his Department make of (i) 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration his Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if he will make a statement. [247341]

Huw Irranca-Davies: From information held centrally, the Department has identified 38 0845 telephone numbers, which are used as common national numbers for helplines and enquiry lines covering elements of the Department's business. None of the numbers is revenue sharing. No 0844 numbers have been identified. Information on what use service providers under contract to the Department make of 0844 and 0845 numbers could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The Department is considering the introduction of 03-prefixed telephone numbers as part of its review of common national numbers.

Dredging: River Thames

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will hold a public consultation on the effects of dredging of the Thames for the Thames Gateway Port on (a) the local fishing industry, (b) the local ecology and (c) Canvey Island sea defences; and if he will make a statement. [250075]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Harbour Authority, London Gateway Port Ltd, has set up a Marine Ecological Advisory Group that will assess any impacts from the dredging operation. The group includes representatives from the Environment Agency, Natural England, the Marine and Fisheries Agency, Port of London Authority as well as the Kent and Essex Sea Fisheries Committee.

Maintaining navigational safety within the tidal Thames is the responsibility of the Port of London Authority.

Environment Protection: Lighting

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to reduce the effects on the environment of the use of mercury in low-energy light bulbs. [249873]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The UK and the European Union are committed to reducing the use of mercury and exposure to mercury of humans and the environment. This includes restricting usage where it is unnecessary; for example in new measuring instruments and in the chlor-alkaki industry. In cases where there are no alternatives and mercury usage is unavoidable, limits on mercury content are set.

Energy efficient compact fluorescent lamps (CFLs) offer 75-80 per cent. in energy savings when compared with traditional incandescent lamps while in use, and also last much longer. CFLs contain an amount of mercury in order to operate and in the EU this is limited to 5 mg under the restriction of hazardous substances directive.

There is increasing evidence that if the life times of CFL and incandescent lamp types are compared, CFLs will produce less mercury. This is due to the fact that mercury is emitted from power stations during electricity generation and, as CFLs are more energy efficient, they require less electricity overall.

That said, CFLs should be disposed of responsibly. The European waste electrical and electronic equipment directive places a responsibility on manufacturers to ensure that these bulbs are disposed of in a safe manner.

In June 2008 the European Lamp Companies' Federation pledged to limit the amount of mercury in lamps to below the legal requirement of 5 mg per lamp.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has undertaken on the proportion of domestic lighting fittings which have the capacity to take low-energy fluorescent bulbs. [249877]

Jane Kennedy: Since they were first introduced in the 1980s, compact fluorescent lamps (CFLs) have significantly decreased in size to match the size of old-fashioned incandescent bulbs and are therefore now available for virtually all standard household Edison bayonet and screw fittings.

In 2007, through its Market Transformation Programme, DEFRA jointly commissioned, with the UK Lighting Association, a survey of household lighting stock and consumer attitudes. When asked, less than 3 per cent. of those interviewed said that they would not buy CFLs because they thought they might not fit their light fittings.

UK homes commonly use fittings other than standard Edison fittings, including spot lamps, fluorescent tubes and novelty fittings. Many fittings are also controlled by dimmer switches and, while dimmable CFLs are now increasingly available on the market, standard CFLs cannot be used with these controls.

In those instances where CFLs cannot be used, halogen 'look-alike' bulbs can be substituted: these are now on the market and are fully dimmable. However, these do not offer the same level of energy savings as CFLs.

Fishing: Licensing

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate the cost to (a) boat owners and (b) recreational sea anglers of obtaining a licence under the proposals in Article 47 of the Commission's proposal for a Council Regulation establishing a Community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy, COM(2008) 721 final. [250838]

Huw Irranca-Davies: As part of the process of negotiating the proposal for a council regulation establishing a community control system for ensuring compliance with the rules of the Common Fisheries Policy, we shall be seeking clarification from the EU Commission on a number of issues relating to Article 47. Until then, it is difficult to accurately assess its potential impact in the areas referred to in this question.

DEFRA shall be seeking stakeholders' views on these points which will be considered in more detail in the Impact Assessment that my officials are drafting, and which we shall publish as part of the formal consultation procedure.

Flood Control: Voluntary Organisations

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he plans to take to involve voluntary sector organisations in the implementation of the action plan set out in the Government's response to the Pitt Review of the summer 2007 floods. [249607]

Huw Irranca-Davies: A number of steps have already been taken to involve the voluntary sector in the implementation of the action plan. This is largely though local flood response planning and response arrangements. For example, numerous local resilience forums now have Memorandums of Understanding with voluntary agencies to provide assistance to vulnerable people during flooding incidents and in providing care and support during recovery from flooding.

The Government recognise and acknowledges the significant contribution that voluntary organisations can make. We will continue to provide guidance to response agencies on how voluntary sector groups can best be utilised during incidents and in the ongoing implementation of the action plan.

DEFRA is also committed to helping the National Flood Forum to work both with and through third sector organisations to provide advocacy and voice on the issue of flood risk; and to encourage property owners to take action which improves their resilience to flooding.

Floods

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of regular local flooding on the sustainability of communities; and if he will make a statement. [248200]

Huw Irranca-Davies: There has been no single piece of research which addresses the sustainability of communities after a flood event. However the impacts of flooding are known from individual case studies. These studies show how some communities resist adapting to flooding following an event and wish to return to a pre-flood status. Conversely, some communities, often in rural or suburban areas, establish flood groups and take affirmative, adaptive action to increase the resilience of the community to floods. These studies have also shown that the sustainability of communities can be negatively affected by flooding.

The long-term adaptation of communities to increasing flood and coastal erosion risk is being considered under the ongoing cross-government 'Making Space for Water' programme. In respect of new development, Planning Policy Statement 25 Development and Flood Risk provides the policy framework for local planning authorities to avoid, manage and reduce flood risk towards delivering appropriate sustainable development in the right places.

Floods and Water Bill

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will take steps to ensure that the draft Floods and Water Bill contains the measures on (a) abstraction and (b) water metering and charging, outlined in Future Water, Cm 7319. [249498]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Government intend to publish their draft Floods and Water Bill in the spring. Its content is not yet finalised.

However, and as set out in Future Water, the Government will shortly consult on proposed changes to the abstraction licensing system. Household water charging and metering are the subject of an ongoing independent review led by Anna Walker, which is due to report in the summer.

Floods: Canvey Island

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations the Environment Agency has received on the waiving of controls on development in flood risk areas of Canvey Island in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [250033]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency has not received representations as described. The Environment Agency advises local authorities, which make decisions on planning applications within flood risk areas.

Floods: Pickering

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of properties at risk of flooding in Pickering, North Yorkshire. [250855]

Huw Irranca-Davies: An extensive study of the flood risk in Pickering carried out by the Environment Agency indicates that 52 residential and 13 commercial properties are considered to be at risk from a one-in-100-year flood.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the feasibility of creating upstream retention dams to protect against flooding of Pickering, North Yorkshire; and what estimate he has made of the cost of the project. [250856]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Durham university led a project with the local community, the local authority and the Forestry Commission to look at ways of managing floods in Pickering. The results of this study have been made available to the Environment Agency.

The Environment Agency is now considering the technical issues associated with the creation of upstream storage above Pickering (including costs) from data supplied by Durham university. The technical appraisal will involve the local community throughout.

The Environment Agency is supporting the Forestry Commission in a bid for a pilot project to look at other ways of reducing flood risk. The outcome of this bid will be known at the end of January.

Floods: River Ouseburn

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the strategic co-ordination group set up by the Environment Agency to investigate measures to reduce flood risk in the Ouseburn catchment is expected to report; and on what dates it has met. [250847]

Huw Irranca-Davies: A professional partnership consisting of Newcastle city council, the Environment Agency and Northumbrian Water Ltd. was formed to co-ordinate activities exploring flood risk alleviation opportunities across the city.

The group has met three times since September 2008, most recently on 21 January 2009. At the end of 2008, the group held its first full public meeting, chaired by the leader of the council and attended by over 100 residents. The group expects to report further in March 2009.

Floods: West of England

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the percentage change in the incidence of flooding in the west of England has been during the last five years. [249872]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In order to collate instances of flooding that have taken place in the west of England over the last five years the consideration of a number of factors and definitions at a large number of locations would be required. These cannot readily be interpreted into a percentage.

Factors such as comparison between years, the sources of flooding, flood warnings for tidal and fluvial flooding, the number of properties flooded and daily flow and rainfall records would need to be collated and analysed which would incur disproportionate cost.

Food From Britain

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will take steps to abolish his Department's non-departmental public body, Food from Britain; how much was spent by his Department on Food from Britain in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [250226]

Jane Kennedy: The Secretary of State announced the Government's intention to close down Food from Britain (FFB) in a written ministerial statement on 26 March 2008, Official Report, column 9WS. The process of closing down FFB is already underway and it will cease operations as planned on 31 March 2009, though a small number of staff will remain until the end of June 2009 to prepare FFB's 2008-09 annual report and accounts. The close down is taking place in anticipation of FFB's formal dissolution in law which will happen as soon as a suitable legislative vehicle can be found.

The amount of funding provided to FFB by DEFRA in each of the last 10 years is shown in the following table:

	DEFRA funding (£)
2008-09	4,000,000
2007-08	6,025,400
2006-07	6,014,095
2005-06	6,419,642
2004-05	6,427,472
2003-04	6,413,955
2002-03	5,902,602
2001-02	7,923,999
2000-01	5,582,663
1999-2000	5,464,084

Notes:
1. Data from the years 1999-2000 to 2007-08 is taken from Food from Britain Annual Report and Accounts 1999-2000 to 2007-08.
2. Data for 2007-08 and for 2008-09 was provided by DEFRA

Forestry Commission: Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 19 November 2008, Official Report, column 476W, on public relations: Forestry Commission, which (a) external public affairs and (b) external public relations firms hired in that period; and how much was spent on each firm. [250301]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Public affairs and public relations firms engaged by the Forestry Commission deal with a range of activities. These include the promotion of the public forest estate, including advertising and marketing of events and the promotion of visitor facilities and attractions. Other work includes the production and distribution of publicity resources (for example literature, video, display material), support for the regional distribution of Commission news releases, and strategic consultancy, for example preparation of communications plans.

Some of the expenditure is on externally funded projects in which the Forestry Commission is a partner. A common feature of many of these projects is the focus on community engagement where communications plays a significant role.

Horses

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the merits of microchipping of equidae. [250188]

Jane Kennedy: A new Commission regulation introducing compulsory microchipping of foals and older horses that have not previously been identified comes into force on 1 July 2009.

The regulation is directly applicable throughout the United Kingdom. DEFRA are currently consulting on implementation of the legislation in England. This consultation will come to an end on 2 February. Further information is available on the DEFRA website.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the establishment of a national database of equidae in England. [250189]

Jane Kennedy: The National Equine Database (NED) is a joint initiative between DEFRA and the horse industry designed to be of benefit to both parties. It contains information about every equine born or resident in the United Kingdom with a UK passport. It is used by Government to monitor horse passport compliance, aid disease control and surveillance and by the industry to improve quality of horses thus enhancing their value.

Inland Waterways Interdepartmental Working Group

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Interdepartmental Working Group on Inland Waterways last met; what its agenda was; and how often the Working Group meets. [250769]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Interdepartmental Working Group on Inland Waterways last met on 5 November 2008. Agenda items were: engagement with regional development agencies (with a presentation from the East Midlands Development Agency on regeneration projects linked to waterways); the review of Waterways for Tomorrow; the EFRA report on British Waterways and the Government's response; and the prioritisation of restoration projects. The group plans to meet three or four times a year.

Lighting: Waste Disposal

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what facilities are available for the safe disposal of light bulbs; and if he will make a statement. [248324]

Jane Kennedy: Certain types of lighting fall within the scope of the Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) Regulations. These include the most common type of energy saving light bulbs: Compact Fluorescent Lamps (CFLs). A list of designated collection facilities which take back CFLs and other types of waste electrical and electronic equipment is available at:

http://www.valpak.co.uk/dts/page1734la.aspx

Retailers have a responsibility to tell their customers where they can take waste CFLs. Some retailers take back CFLs when they sell customers a new bulb.

Under the WEEE Regulations, producers (manufacturers or importers) fund the treatment and recycling of equipment once it becomes waste. The regulations require that mercury is removed from CFLs and that at least 80 per cent. by weight of the materials be recycled or recovered. The producer responsibility requirements of the WEEE regulations have been in force since 1 July 2007.

We are not aware of specific facilities for disposal of incandescent bulbs. These will be phased out across the EU by September 2012 because of their poor energy efficiency.

Marine and Coastal Access Bill

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs from which areas of his Department's budget he expects the cost of implementing proposals in the Marine and Coastal Access Bill to be met. [251031]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The cost of implementing this important legislation will be taken into account along with all the Department's other objectives when prioritising and allocating resources.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the steps necessary to (a) implement and (b) enforce the provisions of the Marine and Coastal Access Bill in respect of activity undertaken in the area between the 12 and 200-mile limits. [250908]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Marine and Coastal Access Bill provides a new legislative framework for our marine area, and much of the detailed implementation of the Bill will be through secondary legislation. Further cost-benefit analysis, impact assessments and consultation, both within Government and with the public, will be necessary for many elements of the Bill. These will be undertaken prior to the introduction of secondary legislation and accompanying guidance.

Effective enforcement is essential to ensure that the rules and regulations designed to manage the marine area are followed. Under the Bill, we are consolidating and modernising existing inspection and investigation powers to provide a core set of common enforcement powers for sea fisheries, marine licensing and nature conservation. These will make it simpler for those being inspected to know what powers inspectors have.

The impact assessment published alongside the Bill on 4 December 2008 provides our assessment of the key impacts to date of the provisions contained in the Bill. This includes those relating to the implementation and enforcement of sea fisheries, and nature conservation and marine licensing legislation between the 12 and 200 nautical mile limits.

Discussions with the devolved Administrations continue on an official and ministerial level on those provisions in the Bill for which they have responsibility in the 12-200 nautical mile limit.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to be able to provide a substantive reply to the hon. Member for Hyndburn's letter of 12 August 2008 on behalf of his constituent, Mr. M. Saunders. [250468]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Ministers have received a range of representations about the move from charging based on rateable value to site area charging for surface water drainage. The Government are aware of the affordability issues faced by some customers as a result of the switch and are currently reviewing their position. While the issue is under consideration, letters will continue to be acknowledged, and I will respond in full as soon as possible.

Nature Conservation

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which of the recommendations made by the Joint Nature Conservation Council in its Review of Schedule 4 of the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1984, published in December 2004, were accepted; and what progress has been in implementing such recommendations. [250649]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Joint Nature Conservation Committee made seven recommendations in 2004 which formed part of the consultation on the review of the bird registration scheme in 2006. The recommendations related to the future management and implementation of the bird registration scheme. The following progress has been made with the implementation of the recommendations:

On future reviews and the consequences of removing species from schedule 4, it would be possible to add species to the schedule if the evidence supported such a move. Otherwise I do not envisage a further review of the schedule for at least five years.

With respect to better provision for maintaining a UK database, the National Wildlife Crime Unit now collate all intelligence relating to wildlife crime submitted by governmental and non-governmental organisations. This intelligence database forms the basis for identifying priorities for wildlife crime.

The adoption of standard nomenclature for registering species is not currently considered to be a priority.

On the need to register all hybrids that have a schedule 4 species in their recent lineage, the requirement to register hybrids was removed on 1 October 2008 as these birds did not meet the criteria for schedule 4:

> "the wild population is so small that even the taking of a very few individuals would have a detrimental impact on the conservation of the wild population".

On the recommendation of DNA testing prior to the removal of any species from the schedule, Animal Health did not carry out DNA testing prior to species being removed from schedule 4. DEFRA had no evidence to suggest that the population of birds that were listed on schedule 4 were other than from legitimate sources. The costs of DNA testing the whole captive population would have been prohibitively expensive and would not have been justified by any possible enforcement or conservation benefit. Any DNA testing to be carried out by Animal Health Agency will be based on a risk and intelligence led approach.

On the need for a uniform approach to any changes to schedule 4, my Department has pressed for this with the devolved Administrations. In England new regulations came into force on 1 October 2008. I understand Wales and Scotland are to amend schedule 4 in a similar way in the near future.

Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many former prisoners are employed by his Department; and what his Department's policy is on employing former prisoners. [246346]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Although information on the criminal history of candidates is collected as part of the recruitment process, this information is not held electronically for members of staff and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Within our recruitment process we carry out character reference checks and undertake security vetting and we request information on criminal records and convictions as part of both processes. When deciding whether or not to confirm an appointment on the basis of the vetting information received, we apply the criteria set out under the Rehabilitation of Offenders Act 1974.

Redundancy

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many of his Department's staff who left under (a) an involuntary and (b) a voluntary exit scheme in each year since 2005-06 received a severance package of (i) up to £25,000, (ii) £25,001 to £50,000, (iii) £50,001 to £75,000, (iv) £75,001 to £100,000 and (v) over £100,000; and if he will make a statement. [242247]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In the three years since 2005-06 a total of 897 people have left on voluntary exit schemes and 33 people have left on involuntary exit schemes. These figures are broken down as follows:

2007-08 saw a number of wide-ranging internal schemes within DEFRA to ensure we were making the most effective use of our resources and deliver efficiency savings imposed across Whitehall. Schemes pre-2007-08 were designed to achieve Treasury-agreed headcount reductions. The latter schemes were based on a Treasury-approved Business Case that expect to achieve savings of £21 million to £28 million over a five year period.

Rights Of Way

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 18 March 2008, Official Report, column 948W, on rights of way, how many further rights of way have been restored by local authorities since March 2008; and what the cost to the public purse of the Discovering Lost Ways programme has been to date. [250542]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Discovering Lost Ways Project has now closed. The total cost incurred by the Countryside Agency and latterly Natural England in preparing for, establishing, running and ending the project was £5.2 million. The 26 cases referred to in the answer on 18 March 2008 continue to be considered by the local authorities concerned. Details of a further 201 cases were passed to relevant authorities at the time of project closure.

The project was closed because Natural England formed the view that constraints on the ability of highways authorities to process claims and place newly identified historic rights of way on the definitive map within a reasonable timeframe would render the effort and expense of identifying such rights nugatory.

Accordingly Natural England has now formed a Stakeholder Working Group to bring together key interests nationally to agree a package of strategic reforms, including any it considers would improve the system for processing claims and reduce unnecessary delay and bureaucracy. The Group is expected to report by the end of the year.

South Downs National Park

David Lepper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many postcards his Department has received since 1 December 2008 in support of a South Downs National Park as proposed by the Countryside Agency in 2002. [250311]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA has received around 16,000 postcards supporting the proposed South Downs National Park since 1 December 2008.

United Utilities

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will meet representatives of United Utilities to discuss the effects of their pricing policies on voluntary sports clubs; and if he will make a statement. [250553]

Huw Irranca-Davies: It is for Ofwat as independent economic regulator of the water industry to approve water company charges schemes. The Government are aware of the problem of affordability faced by some customers as a result of the switch to site area charging for surface water drainage and are looking at what can be done.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many councils have bid to participate in pilots for charges for the collection of household waste; what plans he has to invite further bids for pilots; and if he will make a statement. [251620]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member for Meriden to the written statement on Household Waste Incentives on 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 40WS.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will bring forward legislative proposals to repeal the provisions in the Climate Change Act 2008 for charges for the collection of household waste. [251621]

Jane Kennedy: The provisions in the Climate Change Act 2008 were made following requests from local government for these powers to enable incentive schemes to be developed that would improve recycling.

There are currently no plans to repeal the provisions so recently provided, although no local authority has brought forward a proposal to use the powers.

Water Charges

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the effect on community sports clubs of increased costs arising from the new system of surface water charges. [250154]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Government are aware of the problem of affordability faced by some customers as a result of the switch to site area charging for surface water drainage and is looking at what can be done.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rurai Affairs whether his Department or its agencies have carried out an assessment of the effect of the new system of water rates on (a) churches, (b) scout huts and girl guide huts and (c) sports clubs. [250505]

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what economic and financial impact assessments on the effects of the increase in charges for surface water management on (a) churches and (b) community sports clubs have been undertaken; and what conclusions such assessments reached; [250909]

(2) what consideration was given to alternative forms of charging for surface water management in respect of (a) churches, (b) voluntary groups and (c) charities; and what criteria were taken into account in determining the form of charges; [250910]

(3) if he will delay the introduction of amended charges for surface water management in order to assess the financial and economic effect of the charges on those less able to pay. [250911]

Huw Irranca-Davies: One of Ofwat's duties, as the economic regulator of the water and sewerage sector in England and Wales, is to approve water and sewerage company charging schemes. It is for the individual companies, as private bodies, to set their own charging policy. But these must adhere to company licensing agreements, which Ofwat checks and monitors.

In September 2003, Ofwat provided guidance (RD35/03) to companies on charging non-households for surface water drainage by site-based area. It said that companies which are thinking of introducing site-area charging need to assess possible impacts on all customers' bills. In particular, companies will need to take into account the scale and speed of any bill changes to see if they are reasonable and acceptable to customers.

Water Supply: South East

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the availability of water supplies for (a) Essex and (b) the south-east during the next 20 years; and if he will make a statement. [249891]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Water companies have statutory duties to maintain adequate supplies of water.

In April 2007, it became a statutory requirement for water companies to prepare and maintain water resources management plans. These plans look 25 years ahead and include projections of current and future demands for water, and describe how the companies will meet this demand, in order to meet their water supply obligations.

These plans are regularly updated, and must take account of relevant factors, such as the most up-to-date information available on housing numbers, population forecasts and climate change.

Last summer, companies' water resources management plans were subject to public consultation for the first time. Water companies, including those in Essex and the south-east, are now considering the comments received and will shortly prepare statements of response. Finalised plans will come into effect on 1 April 2010.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Arrest Warrants

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many outstanding warrants have been received from the (a) Garda Siochana and (b) Ministry of Justice of the Irish Republic in respect of persons in Northern Ireland; to what alleged offence or offences each warrant relates; and if he will make a statement. [251204]

Paul Goggins: That is an operational matter for the Chief Constable. I have asked him to reply directly to the hon. Member, and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in the last five years; how much has been spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248060]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office is responsible for the repair, maintenance and improvement of a number of sites in various locations across both Northern Ireland and Great Britain. All costs covering the categories requested would be met under the budget for maintenance and minor works. Identifying costs for each of the categories mentioned would be possible only at disproportionate cost.

The following table shows the NIO's expenditure, excluding Agencies and Executive NDPBs, on maintenance and minor works in the last five years:

	Expenditure (£000)
2007-08	1,792
2006-07	2,600
2005-06	2,234
2004-05	2,728
2003-04	2,057

These figures include expenditure such as furniture, professional fees, labour and material costs. There is no departmental budget allocation specifically for decoration.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many members of staff are employed in his Department's media and communications team; when each member of staff was recruited; what the responsibilities of each member of staff are; and what the salary of each member of staff is. [248517]

Mr. Woodward: There are currently nine members of staff employed as press officers in the Northern Ireland Information Service. Based on monthly salaries, the total amount for 2008 was £314,684.88. The recruitment of staff is based on an assessment of business needs. The responsibility of each member of staff is to communicate Government information and policy on all issues relating to non-devolved matters.

Departmental Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and how much was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [249859]

Mr. Woodward: Bonuses for senior civil service (SCS) staff are calculated on the basis of the Government's response to the recommendations of the Senior Salaries Review Body. Individual bonus recommendations are made by line managers and these are moderated by a number of remuneration committees with the involvement of a non-executive Director.

In 2007, 40 members of the SCS received an end year non-consolidated bonus totalling £298,650. In 2008, 42 SCS staff received an end year non-consolidated bonus totalling £317,200.

Human Rights: Cross Border Co-operation

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will hold discussions with the Minister of Justice of the Republic of Ireland on initiatives for co-operation between the Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission and the Republic of Ireland Human Rights Commission. [248488]

Mr. Woodward: Joint Committee meetings are held quarterly between the two Commissions. As the Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission remains independent of Government, my hon. Friend may wish to write to them directly should he wish to explore this matter further.

Community Relations: Islam

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what meetings Ministers in her Department have had with groups of British Muslims on the possible effects of events in Gaza since 27 December 2008 on community cohesion; and what the names were of the individuals who attended each meeting. [252095]

Mr. Khan: Since 27 December the following meetings have been held:

On 6 January I and Bill Rammell, Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs met a range of representatives and individuals from a number of organisations including but not limited to the Quilliam Foundation, Muslim Council of Britain, British Muslim Forum, the Sufi Muslim Council, the Al Khoei Foundation, the UK Ismaili Council and the Ithna Asheri Khoja Shia World Federation.

On 8 January I and Bill Rammell, Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, met members of the National Muslim Women's Advisory Group (NMWAG).

On 10 January I met the Young Muslims Advisory Group (YMAG) at their YMAG residential meeting.

On 12 January the Communities Secretary, the Foreign Secretary and I met representatives and individuals from a number of organisations including but not limited to the Quilliam Foundation, Muslim Council of Britain, British Muslim Forum, City Circle, the YMAG, British Muslims for a Secular Democracy, the Sufi Muslim Council, the Al Khoei Foundation, the UK Ismaili Council and the Ithna Asheri Khoja Shia World Federation.

On 13 January I and Bill Rammell, Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, met members of the YMAG.

On 15 January the Communities Secretary and the Home Secretary met representatives and individuals from a number of organisations, including the Sufi Muslim Council, Al Khoei Foundation, the NMWAG, the Ithna Asheri Khoja Shia World Federation, Association of Muslim Social Scientists, the Muslim Cultural Heritage Centre, Active Change Foundation, and Quilliam Foundation.

On 15 January I met members of the Mosques and Imams National Advisory Board.

On 15 January I also met front line providers and deliverers to hear their concerns.

Council Housing: East of England

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many people were on local authority housing waiting lists in the East of England in each of the last 10 years, broken down by local authority area. [250816]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on local authority housing waiting lists is collected in respect of households rather than individuals. The number of households on the local authority housing waiting lists in the East of England in each of the last 10 years, broken down by local authority area is given in the following table.

Further information on the number of households on the local authority housing waiting lists for England, can be found in the statistical release "Local Authority Housing Statistics England: 2007-08: Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA) and Business Plan Statistical Appendix (BPSA)" This was published on 22 January 2009 on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/corporate/statistics/lahousing200708

Additionally, information on the number of households on local authority housing waiting lists broken down by Government office region and for every local authority, including the percentage of households this represents, is published on the Communities and Local Government website in Table 600 at:

Copies of the statistical release and live table have been deposited in the Library.

Local authorities in England report the numbers of households on their housing waiting list as at 1 April in their annual housing strategy statistical appendix returns. Not everyone on the waiting list is necessarily in urgent housing need. The waiting list includes those who consider social housing as their preferred or one of a number of housing options, and those who decide to get onto the waiting list ladder before they need or want to move house—particularly where the priority system is heavily based on waiting time. The size of the waiting list is not an indicator of absolute need, it is only useful as a broad indicator of housing demand in an area.

Council Housing: South West

Dan Norris: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households were on the (a) Bath and North East Somerset Council, (b) North Somerset Council, (c) Bristol City Council and (d) South Gloucestershire Council housing register at 1 April in each of the last 10 years. [250820]

Mr. Iain Wright: The number of households on the local authority housing waiting lists in (a) Bath and North East Somerset Council, (b) North Somerset Council, (c) Bristol City Council and (d) South Gloucestershire Council at 1 April for the past 10 years is given in the following table:

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many members of staff in her Department have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones belonging to her Department in each year since its inception. [248245]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 17 December 2008, Official Report, columns 786-87W.

Departmental Furniture

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much expenditure her Department incurred under general ledger account number 10006 (furniture and fittings at cost) in the last year for which audited figures are available. [251789]

Mr. Khan: Expenditure of £462,000 is shown in Note 13 (on page 56) of the audited Departmental Resource Accounts for 2007-08 (HC 791) published on 21 July 2008.

Departmental Standards

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what projects sponsored by (a) her Department and (b) the Government Office for London, were subject to gateway reviews in each of the last four years; what status each project was assigned under such reviews; how much her Department spent on gateway reviews in each such year; and if she will make a statement. [250889]

Mr. Khan [holding answer 26 January 2009]: The projects sponsored by Communities and Local Government which have undergone gateway reviews over the last four years are listed as follows. There have been no gateway reviews relating to Government Office for London projects.

National Register of Social Housing
Sustainable Communities Summit Franchise
Leeds Regional and Town Co-location Review
Electronic Electoral Services Procurement

Planning Casework Project
Euro Preparation Programme
e-planning

Gateway reviews are conducted on a confidential basis for the senior responsible owner (SRO) of the project. The final report including its associated RAG (red, amber or green) status is confidential to the SRO. This approach promotes an open and honest exchange between the project and review teams during the review and ensures the review delivers maximum added value.

The cost to the Department for conducting reviews in 2007-08 was £28,000 (excluding value added tax). Prior to that, costs for reviews were met centrally by the Office of Government Commerce.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the policy of her Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if she will make a statement. [252039]

Mr. Khan: Staff working outside their normal working pattern can agree with their line manager a suitable alternative time to take off any accumulated hours subject to the work flows and reasonable demands of the office.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) her Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252040]

Mr. Khan: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Fire Services

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what efficiency savings have been made by the fire and rescue service in England in each region since 2003; and what such savings have been made by each fire and rescue authority over the same period. [250702]

Mr. Khan: The Government did not set an efficiency target for the English fire and rescue service prior to 2004.

The fire and rescue service was set a national target to achieve £105 million in cash-releasing efficiency savings across the period 2004-08. They exceeded the target and achieved approximately £197 million. The efficiency savings achieved by each fire and rescue authority are listed in the following table.

Fire and rescue authority	Total (£)
Avon	5,460,000
Bedfordshire	1,170,000
Buckinghamshire	1,197,000

West Yorkshire	10,347,000
Wiltshire	843,000

[1] Devon and Somerset fire and rescue authorities were merged in April 2007 therefore reported individually on efficiency savings achieved prior to this date.

The efficiency savings achieved by each region from 2004-08 were:

Region	Total (£)
South West	13,642,511
South East	23,269,000
London	33,457,000
East of England	11,448,000
East Midlands	12,091,000
West Midlands	13,767,000
Yorkshire and Humberside	19,885,000
North West	54,576,000
North East	15,384,000

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which regional control centres for the Fire Service have been completed; on what date each was completed; and what estimate has been made for planning purposes of the date upon which her Department will become liable for the running costs of each fire regional control centre which remains to be completed. [251150]

Mr. Khan: All regional control centres except London have now reached Practical Completion. London is expected to reach Practical Completion in early 2010 as planned. Once Practical Completion is completed, CLG becomes liable for running costs. The Practical Completion dates for the new Regional Control Centres are as follows:

Practical completion date	Region
29 June 2007	North East
29 June 2007	East Midlands
15 August 2007	South West

Fire Services: Bed and Breakfast Accommodation

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) enforcement notices and (b) prohibition notices have been issued by fire and rescue services to bed and breakfast premises under the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 since 1 October 2006; and if she will make a statement. [250821]

Mr. Khan: Available information is for the period 1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008, in which the fire and rescue services reported issuing 947 enforcement notices and 71 prohibition notices to hotels. These may include bed and breakfast premises.

Separate information on enforcement activity on bed and breakfast premises is not centrally held.

Fire Services: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the expenditure her Department will incur in meeting the rental and other building costs on buildings housing fire service regional control between the first scheduled cut-over date and the last scheduled cut-over date, broken down by region. [251148]

Mr. Khan: The estimated cost to the Department between first and the last cut over is as follows.

Region	Estimated cost to the Department between first and last cut over (£)
North East	370,000
South West	1,240,000
East Midlands	590,000
West Midlands	920,000
South East	670,000
North West	450,000
Yorks and Humber	310,000
East of England	340,000
London	0
Total	4,890,000

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much central funding was provided to each regional fire management board in the most recent year for which figures are available. [251789]

Mr. Khan: No central funding has been provided to the fire and rescue service regional management boards. Regional management board running costs are expected to be met from within the constituent fire and rescue authorities' existing budgets.

Fire Services: Pay

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average salary of a chief fire officer was in (a) 2003 and (b) the latest year for which figures are available; and what the average was in each (i) fire authority area and (ii) region in each year. [250705]

Mr. Khan: This information is not held centrally.

Fire Services: Working Hours

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Beckenham of 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 563W, on fire services: Working Time Directive, what assessment she has made of the effect of proposed changes to the Working Time Directive on the ability of retained duty system firefighters to work more than 48 hours a week in primary and secondary employment; and if she will make a statement. [251933]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson) on 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1076W.

FireGuard

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the role of Firebuy was in the FireGuard project. [252183]

Mr. Khan: Firebuy, the national procurement body for the English fire and rescue service, undertook the procurement for the Fireguard project at the request of 33 fire and rescue authorities, led by the Chief Fire Officers' Association.

Fires: Injuries

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many of the (a) injuries and (b) deaths caused by domestic fires occurred in domestic fires attributable to (i) the absence of a smoke alarm and (ii) smoking materials in the latest period for which figures are available. [250829]

Mr. Khan: Statistics concerning the number of deaths and injuries in dwelling fires, attended by Fire and Rescue Services in England, from 2003 to 2007, that were caused by (i) smokers materials and (ii) that occurred in fires where a smoke alarm was either absent or did not operate are set out in the following tables. Figures for 2007 are provisional.

Table 1. Casualties from fires in dwellings, by presence and operation of smoke alarms, England 2003-07[1]

Group 4 Securicor

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what dates (a) Ministers and (b) officials in her Department met representatives of Group 4 to discuss the provision of services in the last 12 months; where each such meeting took place; and what the outcomes were. [251149]

Mr. Khan: No Ministers or officials in the Department of Communities and Local Government have met representatives of Group 4 to discuss the provision of services.

Home Information Packs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to issue further guidance on home information packs consequent upon the recent revision of the regulations affecting such packs. [251774]

Margaret Beckett: The Department will be preparing and communicating advice to help consumers and industry understand and plan for the changes to the home information pack regulations that will come into force on 6 April 2009.

Housing

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 28 October 2008, Official Report, column 955W, on housing, when she plans to publish the Housing Reform Green Paper. [251960]

Margaret Beckett: As per my answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 28 October 2008, Official Report, column 955W, I am currently considering the content and timing of the Green Paper.

Housing: Low Incomes

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many homes have been bought in each region through the National Clearing House; [250193]

(2) how much has been spent by the National Clearing House on purchasing unsold homes for affordable housing; [250194]

(3) whether (a) housing associations and (b) local authorities are able to purchase empty land using the National Clearing House. [250195]

Mr. Iain Wright: In May, the Government announced a plan to take advantage of market opportunities to bring private sector developer stock into the affordable housing sector by providing £200 million of funding through the Housing Corporation's national affordable housing programme (AHP) for the purchase of homes from house builders. These funds are not being used to purchase empty land.

To help facilitate this, the Housing Corporation set up the National Clearing House to streamline initial assessment of national packages of at least 250 units from private sector house builders. Housing Corporation investment partners, mainly registered social landlords, wishing to buy smaller numbers of units from developers could bid for funding directly to the corporation in the normal way.

To the end of December over £160 million had been allocated from the initial £200 million. The following table shows the distribution of these allocations by region and social rent and low cost home ownership.

	Social rent		LCHO
Region	Total grant (£ million)	Number of homes	Total grant (£ million)	Number of homes
East	10.9	276	2.2	172
East Midlands	19.8	506	1.5	160
London	14.3	424	1.3	51
North East	2.9	56	0.7	29
North West	12.7	338	1.6	89
South East	21.4	397	3.9	278
South West	41.1	892	1.9	219
West Midlands	20.0	524	3.6	364
Yorks and Humber	4.3	159	0.1	15
Total	147.4	3,572	16.8	1,377

Local Government Finance

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the data contained on the second advance subsidy form submitted to her Department by each local authority in each year since 1997. [250650]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Local Government Services

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the contribution of the Minister for Local Government of 15 October 2008, Official Report, column 841W, on local government, what the timetable is for the production of the forthcoming Green Paper on local government provision of social care. [251906]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

The Government will publish a Green Paper on care and support reform in spring 2009.

The reaction from stakeholders and the public to various key questions was tested during an engagement process from May until November 2008. The comments received then will help inform the Green Paper and a report of the findings will be published with it.

Planning Permission: Berwick-Upon-Tweed

Sir Alan Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what date it was decided that determination of the three wind farm planning appeals in the Borough of Berwick-upon-Tweed would be made by the Secretary of State; and when community groups with rule six status were notified of this change. [250773]

Mr. Iain Wright: The decision to link and recover these appeals for the Secretary of State's decision was made on 26 August 2008. The recovery letters are sent only to the local planning authority and the appellants, rule 6 parties were not notified. It is not normally general practice to send recovery letters to other interested parties, as the fact that the decision will be made by the Secretary of State does not affect their case in any way.

Repossession Orders

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many home repossessions there were in (a) England, (b) the Greater London area, (c) the London Borough of Hillingdon and (d) Uxbridge constituency in (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008 to date. [250779]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are two independent sources of data on actual numbers of mortgage possessions: The Council of Mortgage Lenders and the Financial Services Authority. However both are only available for the United Kingdom as a whole.

The Council of Mortgage Lenders latest press release on this subject is on their website at:

http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/media/press/1999

The Financial Services Authority data is available on their website at:

http://www.fsa.gov.uk/pages/Doing/Regulated/Returns/IRR/statistics/

Supporting People Programme

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much is being spent on the Supporting People initiative in 2008-09. [250473]

Mr. Iain Wright: The indicative national budget allocation for the Supporting People programme is £1.686 billion, £1.666 billion, £1.636 billion for 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 financial years respectively.

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the criteria for eligibility for assistance under the Supporting People initiative are. [250474]

Mr. Iain Wright: While the Government set the national framework for the provision of Supporting People services, administering authorities have responsibility for developing, delivering and monitoring the programme locally, based on local needs and priorities in relation to the provision of housing support, which develops and sustains an individual's capacity to live independently in their accommodation, as set out in each local authority's Supporting People five-year strategy.

Each local authority is responsible for setting their own eligibility criteria based on local needs and priorities, which then determines who can access services that are funded from the Supporting People Grant (SPG).

Yorkshire and Humber Regional Assembly

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what changes are planned in the governance arrangements of the Yorkshire and Humberside Regional Assembly from March 2009. [251794]

Mr. Khan: The Yorkshire and Humber Assembly will cease to exist from 1 April 2009.

The Assembly, Local Government Yorkshire and Humber and Yorkshire Forward responded positively to the Sub-National Review and took the decision to move to new streamlined governance structures by April 2009.

From 1 April, a Joint Regional Board made up of eight LA leaders and eight Yorkshire Forward Board members will be supported by five thematic, advisory boards (Work and Skills, Transport, Planning, Regeneration and Housing and Independent/Challenge). The exact membership and remit of each board is still being worked up.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts Council England: Internet

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much Arts Council England has spent on its website in each of the last five years. [249814]

Barbara Follett: Arts Council England has advised that it has spent the following amounts on hosting and administrative support costs for the Arts Council England and Own Art websites as well as media streaming costs for the Arts Council England website:

2003-04	6,487.50
2004-05	6,487.50
2005-06	6,487.50
2006-07	5,887.50
2007-08	6,787.50

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many (a) hits and (b) unique visitors Arts Council England's website received in each of the last five years; [249815]

(2) how many (a) hits and (b) unique visitors the Arts Council England's website received in each of the last five years. [250264]

Barbara Follett: Arts Council England has advised that its website has received the following hits and unique visitors in each of the last five years.

	Hits	Unique visitors
2004	25,961,462	575,222
2005	40,205,728	675,582
2006	47,773,873	922,989
2007	54,871,141	1,116,031
2008	96,473,086	1,213,853

Casinos: Licensing

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether he plans to put into effect the conclusions of the availability to play consultation in respect of the casino licence tendering process for casino operators and local authorities. [250849]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 January 2009]: The consultation on 'availability to play' regulations, formerly known as the 'casino premises licence regulations' under section 172(6) of the Gambling Act 2005, has not yet taken place.

I am considering proposals for the consultation document and the public consultation process will follow in due course.

Casinos: Newham

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the process of procuring a casino in Newham. [250850]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 26 January 2009]: In inviting and determining applications for casino premises licences, licensing authorities must comply with the statutory provisions in the Gambling Act 2005 and related secondary legislation.

In February 2008, the Secretary of State also published a code of practice on the procedure to be followed by a licensing authority in respect of inviting and determining applications for casino premises licences. Although the Secretary of State maintains an overview of the legislative framework governing the casino premises licence process, he has not made an assessment of the process of procuring a casino licence in Newham.

Convergence Think Tank

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the (a) total and (b) staffing cost of the Convergence Think Tank and its seminars was. [247438]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 14 January 2009]: The estimated total cost of the Convergence Think Tank, including seminars, was £375,800, of which staff costs for the Department for Culture, Media and Sport and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform were approximately £249,300.

Estimated staff costs include employer's national insurance and pension contributions. The figures exclude preparatory work carried out by DCMS staff prior to the commencement of the project, as this was not recorded separately.

Cultural Heritage: Training

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the adequacy of (a) the number of trainees and (b) training programmes for acquiring skills required for the preservation of the cultural heritage; and if he will make a statement. [248920]

Barbara Follett: English Heritage undertakes an annual programme of labour market research to assess the supply of historic environment skills. Support for trainees is addressed in several ways, including: English Heritage's Professional Placements in Conservation and Historic Environment Traineeships; the Heritage Lottery Fund's investment of £7 million in training bursaries; and the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council's provision of £500,000 for apprenticeships.

All of these organisations work closely with a range of bodies to tailor training initiatives to market need and are involved in a number of programmes. These include the Heritage Lottery Fund's awards of more than £446 million to over 1,300 projects that include elements of support for people to learn heritage skills. The Museums, Libraries and Archives Council advises that it is working closely with stakeholders in the development of the national occupation standards for the cultural heritage sector and in the introduction of foundation degrees to support skills and learning in the cultural heritage sector.

Cultural Heritage: World War II

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his policy is on the preservation of pillboxes and other defences from the Second World War; and if he will make a statement. [250575]

Barbara Follett: Pillboxes and other Second World War defences form an important aspect of England's military history. English Heritage has undertaken a series of research projects to improve our understanding of them in the context of the many other sites that represent our defence heritage. Options for preservation include statutory designation, although it would not be appropriate to designate all of the many thousands of surviving pillboxes; careful selection is necessary.

Alternatively, many of these structures have local significance and their recording on historic environment records is another way of improving understanding and protection.

Culture East Midlands: Parking

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what arrangements Culture East Midlands is making for payment by its staff of the workplace parking levy to be introduced by Nottingham City Council in respect of offices located within the zone where the levy will apply. [252477]

Andy Burnham: On 2 July 2008 the Department for Culture, Media and Sport announced its decision to wind up the Regional Cultural Consortia. This process will have been completed well before 2010 when any workplace parking levy for Nottingham is expected to begin.

Culture: Liverpool

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much financial support the Government provided to Liverpool's Capital of Culture year; and if he will make a statement. [251716]

Andy Burnham: DCMS and Arts Council England (ACE) committed £10 million over the period 2005 to 2009 to support Liverpool's European Capital of Culture year. In addition Liverpool received a grant of £1,200,000 from the Urban Cultural programme. In 2008 DCMS and ACE contributed an additional £509,000 to support delivery of the remaining arts programme. The Northwest Regional Development Agency has provided £3.4 million since 2005-06.

I am delighted that Liverpool's European Capital of Culture year was such a magnificent success generating an £800 million boost to the regional economy and one which leaves an exciting cultural and physical legacy.

Departmental Expenditure

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer of 26 November 2008, what the status is of the funding announced by his Department's press release of 1 April 2005 and referred to in his Department's Five Year Plan as a £6 million Quality and Innovation Fund. [248603]

Barbara Follett: Money for the proposed Quality and Innovation Fund was re-allocated to other pressing priorities. However, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport has continued to support a range of work originally identified with the fund, including new audiences, young talent and a cultural offer for children and young people through initiatives such as Free Theatre, Creative Partnerships and Find Your Talent.

Departmental Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248714]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport awards special bonuses to reward staff members who have made an outstanding contribution in a particularly demanding task or situation. The following table shows the total amount paid in special bonuses in each of the last three years.

	Total of special bonuses (£)
2005-06	53,436
2006-07	69,565
2007-08	68,350

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much capital expenditure has been brought forward in response to the economic downturn by his Department, its agencies and non-departmental public bodies to (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; from which years such expenditure has been brought forward; and if he will make a statement. [251397]

Andy Burnham: Currently no capital expenditure has been brought forward in response to the economic downturn by either the Department, its agencies or its non-departmental public bodies.

Departmental Public Service Agreements

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of his Department's progress in meeting the targets set by public service agreement 3 in the 2004 spending round; and if he will make a statement. [249808]

Andy Burnham: Four out of the 20 targets that make up the overall PSA3 target have been assessed as achieved.

We always knew these would be very challenging targets, and we remain committed to increasing participation in culture and sport across all sectors of the community. Our programme of research is helping us to better understand and address the barriers to participation. The results should help us in giving more people the opportunity to take part.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of each of the datasets from his Department's Taking Part survey in each year since 2005; [247333]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of each year's dataset from his Department's Taking Part survey. [249413]

Barbara Follett: Data from the Taking Part survey are made available via the UK Data Archive. The 2005-06 dataset has been deposited, and the 2006-07 and 2007-08 datasets are being processed for deposit and will be uploaded shortly. To access the 2005-06 dataset, visit:

http://www.data-archive.ac.uk/search/searchStart.asp

and search using Study Number 5717

There are no plans to deposit the raw data in the Library. However, all National Statistics based on the survey outputs are published on the Department's website at:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/reference_library/research_and_statistics/4872.aspx.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of people responding to his Department's Taking Part survey said that they had (a) visited a museum or gallery, (b) visited a library, (c) attended an arts event and (d) visited an historic environment site event during the preceding 12 months in each year since 2005. [249358]

Barbara Follett: The 'Taking Part' survey is a continuous household survey providing national data on participation in culture, leisure and sport by adults aged 16 and over.

The following table shows annual adult engagement with museums and galleries, libraries, arts events and historic environment sites in the 12 months prior to interview.

Attendance at cultural events by adults (16 and over)

Percentage

	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Attended a museum or gallery	42	42	44
Attended a library	48	46	45
Attended an arts event	67	66	67
Attended an historic environment site	70	69	71

These figures are survey estimates. For further information about the methodology and full definitions of attendance, see the latest published annual report at:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/reference_library/publications/5396.aspx

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what sampling method is used for his Department's Taking Part survey. [249416]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Between 2005-06 and 2007-08 the Taking Part survey was primarily designed to yield a representative annual sample of around 28,000 adults aged 16 and over who are normally resident in England. For practical purposes, residents of institutional accommodation (armed forces barracks, student halls of residence, hospitals, care homes, prisons etc.) were excluded.

The survey contractor used the small-user postal address file (PAF) as the sample frame. This provides a list of almost all private residential addresses in the UK and is the most comprehensive frame available. Because it lists addresses, not individuals, interviewers were required to randomly select one respondent from among those eligible.

Primary sampling units (PSUs) were designed to be equal to postal sectors except where these contained fewer than 500 delivery points (addresses) on the small-user postal address file (PAF). These sectors were combined with their nearest neighbour to form a 'super-sector'. Before use, the list of PSUs was stratified using the following factors:

1. Region
2. Population density
3. Occupational distribution

This meant 160 strata in total. Each stratum was further sorted by the proportion of residents aged 65 plus.

PSUs were selected with a probability proportionate to size (number of delivery points/addresses) using the method of random start and fixed interval.

Further details on the sampling methodology for Taking Part are available in the technical report that accompanies the 2005-06 dataset, available from the UK Data Archive at

http://www.data-archive.ac.uk/search/searchStart.asp

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the average (a) standard and (b) probable error was in each year in which his Department has carried out its Taking Part survey. [249417]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The term 'standard error' refers to the standard deviation of the sampling distribution of a statistic—that is, it indicates how well a statistic reflects the population from which the sample was drawn. Standard errors can be calculated for individual estimates (statistics) from Taking Part, rather than the overall dataset.

Confidence intervals are derived from the variance and the sample design, and are published for all Taking Part estimates. All survey data contain a margin of error, and the confidence intervals indicate the range in which true percentages could fall.

To see an example, please refer to the latest report at:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/reference_library/publications/5653.aspx

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people have responded to his Department's Taking Part survey in each year since 2005. [249422]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The following tables show the number of adults (aged 16 and over) and children (aged 11-15) that have responded to the Taking Part survey since it began:

Table 1: Sample size for Taking Part adult survey (aged 16 and over)

Survey year	Sample size
2005-06	28,117
2006-07	24,174
2007-08	25,720

Note:
Fieldwork for the main adult survey began in July 2005 and runs on a July to June cycle.

Table 2: Sample size for Taking Part child survey (aged 11-15)

Survey year	Sample size
2006	2,918
2007	2,454

Note:
Fieldwork for the child element began in January 2006 to and runs on a January to December cycle.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of people who responded to his Department's Taking Part survey said that they had attended an arts event during the preceding 12 months in each year since 2005 expressed in terms of (a) a mean average and (b) a median average. [249792]

Barbara Follett: The 'Taking Part' survey is a continuous household survey providing national data on participation in culture, leisure and sport by adults aged 16 and over.

The following table shows annual adult attendance at arts events in the 12 months prior to interview. Respondents were asked whether they had attended various types of arts events in the previous year, to which they answered 'yes' or 'no'. These responses were combined to produce an overall estimate of the percentage of adults who had been to at least one event.

The terms 'mean' and 'median' are both measures of central tendency: that is, they indicate a typical (or average) number in a set of data. A mean or median would normally be calculated from a range of numbers that can be summed and/or put in order. Variables such as attendance at arts events are classed as 'categorical' because the values that the variable can take are categories—in this case 'yes' or 'no', but other examples of categorical variables would be gender or eye colour. As these responses cannot be summed or put in any meaningful order, it is not appropriate to calculate an average.

Attendance at arts events by adults (16 and over)

	Percentage
2005-06	67
2006-07	66
2007-08	67

These figures are survey estimates. For further information about the methodology and a full definition of attendance, see the latest published annual report at:

Departmental Training

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Fareham of 16 June 2008, Official Report, columns 657-8W, on departmental training, which organisations provided the training for the courses on (a) team away days and (b) stress management. [250050]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is as follows:

(a) Team away days

Information relating to all organisations, who have provided training for all team away days in DCMS, referred to in the answer to the hon. Member for Fareham of 16 June 2008 is not fully available and a complete answer cannot be given at this time.

(b) Stress Management

Stress management training courses, referred to in the answer to the hon. Member for Fareham of 16 June 2008, have been provided by the following organisations for DCMS staff in the last 12 months:

National School of Government (NSG)
Hemsley Fraser Group Ltd.
Reed Business Information Ltd.

English Heritage: Assets

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what non-heritage (a) buildings and (b) land is owned by English Heritage; and what estimate has been made of the value of those assets. [249809]

Barbara Follett: English Heritage owns one building which is not part of its historic properties portfolio. The building, Brooklands in Cambridge, which is owned freehold, was last valued during the year ending 31 March 2006 and the net realisation value was £2.46 million. English Heritage does not own any land which is not in its historic properties portfolio.

English Heritage: Visits

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many free educational visits to English Heritage properties there were in each region in each year since 1997. [249811]

Barbara Follett: English Heritage advises that the number of free educational visits to its properties in each region in each year since 1997 is set out in the following table. This includes visits to properties managed through Local Management Agreements.

Galleries and Museums: VAT

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many university museums and galleries reclaim value added tax under his Department's free access policy. [248323]

Barbara Follett: All university museums and galleries that reclaim VAT under my Department's free access policy are set out in SI 2001/2879—Value Added Tax (Refund of Tax to Museums and Galleries) Order 2001.

Gifts

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many members of staff in his Department have received gifts valued at £100 or higher in the course of their duties in each of the last three years; what these gifts were; and from whom they were received. [242018]

Barbara Follett: No members of the Department's staff have recorded receiving gifts valued at £100 or higher in the course of their duties during the last three years.

The rules and guidance on receipt of gifts by civil servants are set out in the civil service management code, and in departmental staff handbooks.

Heritage Lottery Fund: Property

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what non-heritage (a) buildings and (b) land are leased by the Heritage Lottery Fund; and what estimate has been made of the value of these assets. [250259]

Barbara Follett: The Heritage Lottery Fund advises that it does not own any buildings or land and therefore does not lease any out. Because of this, no valuation has been conducted.

Local Press: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will meet a delegation from local newspapers in Essex to discuss the contribution of local newspapers to local society. [249645]

Barbara Follett: The contribution of the press to our society, and the current economic difficulties of newspapers—particularly at the local level—is an area being taken forward as part of the Digital Britain project. I would therefore appreciate the opportunity to hear from a delegation from local newspapers in Essex.

Museums, Libraries and Archives Council: Property

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what non-heritage (a) buildings and (b) land are leased by the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council; and what estimate has been made of the value of these assets. [250261]

Barbara Follett: The Museums, Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) has advised that it does not own the freehold or leasehold on any land or buildings.

Olympic Games 2012: Manpower

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will make an assessment of the likely effects of the London 2012 Olympics on staffing levels in his Department in the period up to 2012. [250906]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The last spending review made provision for the staffing of the Department both within the Government Olympic Executive and for Olympic-related projects elsewhere within the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) up to 2010-11. This will enable Government Olympic Executive staffing of up to about 90 full-time equivalent (FTE) by 2010-11 in addition to about eight FTE employed elsewhere in DCMS. Provision for staffing in 2011-12 and beyond will be determined in the next spending review.

Sports: Manpower

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many community sports coaches there were in each year since 2002. [248322]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Community Sports Coach Scheme was initially established in April 2003, and implemented from April 2004. The headline objectives were to generate 3,000 paid professional coaches working at a local level and to increase the number and range of coaching opportunities by 2006, according to strategic and local need.

In each year since 2004 there has been the following number of community sports coaches:

	Coaches
2004-05	859
2005-06	2,978
2006-07	3,335
2007-08	3,063

Sports: Private Sector

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many private sector companies have joined the Medal Hopes scheme; what financial contribution each such company is making in each region to the scheme; what estimate he has made of the revenue the scheme will raise in the next three years; what targets his Department has set for scheme revenue; and what contingency arrangements his Department has made for circumstances where such targets are not met. [250795]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State announced in December 2008 an additional £50 million of public funds would be available to UK Sport's elite programme. This consists of additional Exchequer funding of £29 million to UK Sport over the four years to 2012 plus a projected uplift in lottery income of £21 million. This means that for the London cycle the elite sport system will receive the highest level of public funding ever made available over a four-year Olympic/Paralympic cycle—an increase over the Beijing cycle and an unprecedented package of support for elite athletes.

We are still determined that there should be a long-term investment stream in elite sport from the private sector and UK Sport is currently working with Fast Track and others towards this end, including on the proposals currently being drawn up under the Medal Hopes brand.

Negotiations are ongoing with various potential private sector partners and to release further information regarding those negotiations at this time would prejudice commercial interests.

Sports: Young People

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent estimate he has made of the number and proportion of young people who cease regular participation in sport upon leaving school. [250794]

Mr. Sutcliffe: During the ages of 16 to 19, the period when young people leave school, sport participation[1] drops by 7 percentage points, (or the equivalent of 42,000 participants) from a participation rate of 37.4 per cent. at age 16, to a participation rate of 30.4 per cent. at age 19.

[1] Participation is defined as the percentage of the adult population participating in at least 30 minutes of sport, to at least moderate intensity at least three times a week.

Age	Percentage	Number of participants
16	37.41	251,370
17	34.60	230,829
18	31.14	208,625
19	30.40	209,368

St. George's Day

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on (a) St. George's Day, (b) St. Patrick's Day, (c) St. David's Day and (d) St. Andrew's Day celebrations in each year since 1997. [247742]

Barbara Follett: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport flew the St. George's Flag on 23 April in 2007 and 2008; it did not fly the flag before 2007. The cost of flying the flag is set out in the table.

The Department has not spent anything on St. Patrick's Day, St. David's Day and St. Andrew's Day celebrations since 1997. It has ordered St. David's and St. Andrew's Flags, which it will fly on those saints' days from 2009 onwards. There is no official St. Patrick's Flag; the Union Flag is the official flag of Northern Ireland.

Cost of flying the St. George's Flag on St. George's Day

2007	114
2008	116

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will hold discussions with (a) the Royal Society of St. George and (b) Celebrate England on marking St. George's Day. [248358]

Barbara Follett: I have no plans to hold discussions with the Royal Society of St. George and Celebrate England on marking St. George's Day.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department plans to spend to promote St. George's Day 2009. [248359]

Barbara Follett: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport will promote St. George's Day by flying the St. George's flag on 23 April 2009. This will be at minimal cost.

Taking Part Survey

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment his Department has made of the statistically significant differences between the results of his Department's most recent Taking Part survey and the previous such survey. [247352]

Barbara Follett: The Taking Part survey has been used to measure progress against the Department's SR04 PSA3 target.

Baselines for this target were published in December 2006 using data from the first year of the survey (2005-06). The final assessment was published on 11 December 2008, and compares the baseline estimates with final estimates collected during the third year of Taking Part (2007-08). Full details of the assessment can be found at:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/reference_library/publications/5653.aspx

VisitBritain: Property

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what non-heritage (a) buildings and (b) land is owned by VisitBritain; and what estimate has been made of the value of these assets. [250254]

Barbara Follett: VisitBritain have advised that they do not own any buildings or land and as such no valuation has been conducted.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what non-heritage (a) buildings and (b) land are leased by VisitBritain; and what estimate has been made of the value of these assets. [250262]

Barbara Follett: VisitBritain have advised that they currently lease space to two third parties in their New York office. The annual rent received is £16,407 per annum (net of VAT).

VisitBritain also lease space to a number of partners at the Britain and London Visitor Centre in Regent Street. The total income from tenants is £356,000 per annum (net of VAT).

TREASURY

Banks: Finance

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of the Government's policy on bank recapitalisation on the stability of the pound. [248132]

Ian Pearson: The recapitalisation scheme was designed to ensure the stability of the financial system and to protect ordinary savers, depositors, businesses and borrowers. The action taken by the Government in October prevented the collapse of the banking system. Flexible exchange rates fluctuate, and respond to a wide variety of factors on a minute-by-minute basis. In today's economic climate, in the face of what the IMF describe as "the most dangerous shock in mature financial markets since the 1930s", it is to be expected that the world's major currencies are prone to fluctuation.

Bradford and Bingley

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when his Department's plans to take Bradford and Bingley into temporary public ownership were first drawn up; when he took the decision to take Bradford and Bingley into temporary public ownership; and for what reason. [250809]

Ian Pearson: The Treasury, the Financial Services Authority, and the Bank of England monitor the financial system on an ongoing basis. There are regular discussions between the FSA, the Bank and the Treasury about individual institutions and contingency planning.

Following turbulence in global financial markets, Bradford and Bingley had found itself under increasing pressure as investors and lenders lost confidence in its ability to carry on as an independent institution. The FSA determined on 27 September 2008 that the firm no longer met its threshold conditions for operating as a deposit taker under the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 and FSA rules.

The Government, on the advice of the FSA and the Bank of England, acted immediately to maintain financial stability and protect depositors, while minimising the exposure to taxpayers. It worked over the weekend to bring about the part public, part private solution which best met those objectives.

Children's Tax Credit

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many awards of children's tax credit were made for 2001-02; and what estimate he has made of the number of families who were eligible for the credit in that year. [251939]

Mr. Timms: The number of families receiving children's tax credit for 2001-02 are not readily available.

It is estimated that for the financial years 2001-02 and 2002-03, 4.6 million families were eligible for children's tax credit. However a separate estimate of eligible families for the financial year 2001-02 is not readily available.

Cox Review

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many of his Department's staff provided support for the Cox Review of creativity in business. [248923]

Angela Eagle: The Cox Review of creativity in business was a DTI review, for which the Treasury provided two members of staff.

Departmental Languages

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) Ministers and (b) civil servants in his Department received coaching in a foreign language in the last 12 months; what expenditure his Department incurred in providing such coaching; and in what languages such coaching was provided. [248072]

Angela Eagle: The total number of (a) Ministers that received coaching in a foreign language in the period April 2007 to March 2008 is zero.

The total number of (b) civil servants that received coaching in a foreign language in the period April 2007 to March 2008 was 26. This included:

16 French language students
Nine Spanish language students
One English language student
One Japanese language student
One Slovenian language student

Total expenditure for this coaching was £32,460.32.

Departmental Pay

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many non-pensionable bonuses have been awarded to staff in his Department in each year since 1997. [251659]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answers given by the former Financial Secretary (John Healey) to the hon. Member for Twickenham (Dr. Cable) on 20 June 2007, Official Report, column 1879W and 7 November 2006, Official Report, column 1039W.

Economic Growth

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what forecast he has made of growth in the economy in each of the next 12 months. [251665]

Ian Pearson: The Government set out their latest assessment of UK economic developments and prospects in the 2008 pre-Budget report (Cm 7484). They will produce updated forecasts in the Budget as normal.

Intellectual Property Review

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many of his Department's staff provided support for the Gower Review of Intellectual Property. [248898]

Angela Eagle: Andrew Gower's Review of Intellectual Property was an independent review funded by the Treasury. The number of full-time staff provided to support the review was seven, during the course of 12 months.

Manufacturing Industries: Government Assistance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to increase lending to manufacturing industry through those banks he has capitalised. [250786]

Ian Pearson. On 8 October this year the Government announced a comprehensive package of measures to support stability of the financial system, protect ordinary savers, depositors, businesses and borrowers, and to safeguard the interests of the taxpayer.

As part of their investment, the Government have agreed with the banks supported by the recapitalisation scheme a range of commitments. Details are available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/press_105_08.htm.

These include commitments to maintain, over the next three years, the availability and active marketing of competitively-priced lending to home owners and small businesses at 2007 levels.

Members: Correspondence

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Northavon of 5 December 2008 on late payment of tax, reference 1/64635/2008. [251940]

Angela Eagle: I have replied to the hon. Member.

Non-domestic Rates: Sports

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of community amateur sports clubs in (a) England, (b) Scotland and (c) Wales received relief from national non-domestic rate liability at 100 per cent. in 2007-08. [250749]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not readily available.

By the end of 2008, over 5000 community amateur sports clubs were registered with HMRC, and entitled to receive 80 per cent. rates relief. It is not known, however, how many have taken up this relief, nor how many of these have received the additional 2 per cent. relief which local authorities have discretion to provide. There is no readily available breakdown of the clubs between the nations of the UK.

HMRC do have data on the number of payments that exceeded the £30,000 threshold and were reported through self-assessment for 2006-07—the most recent year available. They are set out in Table 1.

The limited information we have on payments below £30,000 suggests that a large majority of payments are covered by the tax-free threshold.

Table 1: Number of termination payments over £30,000 that were reported via self assessment in 2006-07

	Number of payments
Total SA	8,000
England	7,000
South East	2,000

Note:

Public Expenditure: Ministry of Defence

Dr. Fox: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to paragraph B75 of the pre-Budget report, Cm 7484, what the reasons were for the reclassification of £1.4 billion of Ministry of Defence expenditure in financial year 2007-08 from current to capital expenditure. [245202]

Yvette Cooper: Net investment by the Ministry of Defence in 2007-08 was revised up by £1.2 billion following the Budget 2008 forecast. Most of this adjustment related to a revision of the treatment of certain capital spending which had previously been regarded as solely for military use and therefore considered as current spending for national accounts purposes.

Redundancy Pay

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) mean and (b) mode redundancy payment was in (i) England and (ii) the South East in each of the last five years; and how many and what proportion of redundancy payments have been above the tax free threshold of £30,000 since the threshold was set at that level. [250686]

Mr. Timms: This specific tax exemption applies to redundancy payments and some other forms of termination payment. Where a payment of this kind is not exempt, HMRC collects the tax due through self-assessment and PAYE.

However, only information about non-exempt payments via self-assessments is recorded. HMRC therefore does not have comprehensive data on payments below the £30,000 threshold or what proportion relate to redundancy payments.

Welfare Tax Credits: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many individuals in Peterborough constituency have been overpaid tax credits (a) once, (b) twice and (c) three or more times since 1 April 2005; and if he will make a statement; [250764]

(2) how many individuals in Peterborough constituency have been underpaid tax credits (a) once, (b) twice and (c) three or more times since 1 April 2001; and if he will make a statement. [250765]

Mr. Timms: Child and working tax credits were not introduced until April 2003. The information requested is not available. However the following table provides a snapshot of information on the number of families in the Peterborough constituency with one, two and three or more underpayments or overpayments of tax credits between 2003-04 and 2006-07. This is based on families who had a 2006-07 tax credit award and lived in Peterborough as at 31 August 2006.

(b) Twice	1.0	1.9
(c) Three or more times	0.2	0.7

JUSTICE

Care Proceedings: Children

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many child care proceedings have been heard in courts in each court district in each of the last five years. [250159]

Bridget Prentice: Information on the number of care and supervision orders made in each area for county and high courts in England and Wales for 2004 to 2007, and in each region for family proceedings courts in England and Wales for 2007, is shown in the following table.

Data on this basis are available from 2004 onwards and are not yet available for 2008.

Cemeteries

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidance his Department provides to local authorities on ensuring that lack of out-of-hours service for burials or cremations does not prevent prompt burials or cremations required for religious purposes, with particular reference to periods of closure of services; and if he will make a statement. [248534]

Bridget Prentice: Guidance published in 2006 encouraged burial ground managers to explore the local demand for out-of-hours working, especially where required for religious reasons, and to ensure that every effort was made to deal with individual applications.

We have not issued similar guidance to cremation authorities but understand from their representative bodies that authorities will provide for religious and cultural requirements wherever possible. Each authority should have local arrangements in place to cater for the needs of their particular community. We will, however, consult the representative bodies and members of our faith forum on whether it would be helpful to issue general guidance on this issue.

Courts: Fees and Charges

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the effect on the number of child care proceedings of the recent rise in court fees. [250161]

Bridget Prentice: Our assessment is that the new court fees have had no effect on local authorities fulfilling their statutory obligations to protect children at risk. There was a reduction in the number of applications for care orders issued by local authorities following introduction of the new statutory guidance to local authorities and Public Law Outline introduced on 1 April 2008, a month before the new fees were implemented. Since the initial drop in April and May 08, volumes have been increasing. We will continue to monitor the number of applications being issued.

Cremation

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether his Department has considered legalising the process of promession for the disposal of human remains; and if he will make a statement. [250302]

Bridget Prentice: We are aware that there is some interest in the disposal of bodies by promession, as an alternative to cremation. The process does not involve the burning of human remains, however, so falls outside the Cremation Act 1902. Making it lawful would thus need either a new Act or an amendment to the 1902 Act. There are no plans to amend the law at present.

Debt Collection

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent assessment he has made of the effects of the use by bailiffs of powers under the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004; and if he will make a statement. [251853]

Bridget Prentice: The Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004, provided bailiffs with powers of search and forced entry to premises when executing warrants to recover fines.

The contracts Her Majesty's Courts Service have with private bailiff companies requires these companies to report monthly on the use of search and forced entry powers to Her Majesty's Courts Service.

The report provides details on the execution rate of warrants, training undertaken by contractor staff and any complaints received by the contractor on action taken by their staff. A component of the report requires contractors to provide the number of warrants where search and entry was used under the Domestic Violence, Crime and Victims Act 2004.

Additionally, a complaints section of the report records any complaints received by the contractor from defaulters on the use of forced entry. Specific entries include alleged damage to property, threats of violence and actual violence. The use of search and entry and its application would be detailed in these sections of the report.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he plans to release the redacted parts of magistrates' court guidance to bailiffs on procedures for breaking in to properties as a last resort. [251854]

Bridget Prentice: The Information Commissioner agreed with the proposed redactions when the guidance was first released under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 on 9 December 2008 and the Government have no plans to release the redacted parts.

Departmental Databases

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 109W, on departmental databases, which policy areas the ACORN data have been used to inform. [250842]

Mr. Malik: ACORN data have been used by Ministry of Justice staff in analysis related to the means testing of criminal legal aid in the magistrates courts, and to the potential recovery of some criminal defence costs from defendants in the Crown court.

Departmental Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and how much was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [illegible]

Mr. Straw: End of year bonus payments in the Ministry of Justice have been paid to high performing staff to reflect their individual contribution during the previous performance year.

For members of the senior civil service, bonuses have been allocated by the Departmental Pay Committees in accordance with guidelines issued by Cabinet Office each year following Senior Salaries Review Body recommendations. Within the overall policy agreed across Government, Ministers are not involved in anyway in the determination of bonuses to individual civil servants.

As pay determination is retrospective, 2008 was the first year in which the Ministry of Justice paid awards to SCS staff following the creation of the Ministry in 2007. In 2008, 159 bonuses were paid to members of the senior civil service in the Ministry of Justice at a total cost of £1,648,000.

In 2007, pay determination was undertaken by the Departments that existed prior to the creation of the Ministry. For the former Department of Constitutional Affairs, 116 bonuses were paid to members of the senior civil service at a cost of £866,500. Staff from the Home Office who transferred to the Ministry of Justice upon its creation in May 2007 will be included in the answer provided by the Home Office.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what use (a) his Department and (b) service providers under contract to his Department make of (i) 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration his Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if he will make a statement. [illegible]

Mr. Wills: From the central records available, the following information is provided.

The Land Registry use fourteen 0844 telephone numbers for public access to their services. The Land Registry no longer operate revenue sharing numbers and since February 2008 customers are charged only the local call rate from land lines for using the 0844 numbers. However, calls from mobile phones may cost more as the Department cannot control charges levied by individual service providers to their customers.

Details of the revenue generated to Land Registry in earlier years is as follows:

2004-05	0
2005-06	247,467
2006-07	221,543
2007-08	164,787
April to June 2008	[1]40,026

[1] This is a rebate figure from previous service providers which has been paid into this year's financial accounts.

In addition, the Department, and its service providers, but excluding Land Registry, operate forty-nine 0845 numbers to provide a range of services to the public, including customer service enquiries and IT online support. Eighteen of these numbers, which are used by Her Majesty's Courts Service Bulk Payment Centre, have generated some revenue. At the time the numbers were introduced, calls from anywhere in the UK were charged at a local rate, making it no more expensive for people to access the service using the 0845 rather than the exchange number. The Centre now publish alternative numbers on their web pages giving customers a choice, as depending on the enquirer's call plan, 0845 may not now be the cheapest option. Details of income generated from these 0845 numbers is available for the last four years, and is as follows:

2004-05	745.91
2005-06	6543.76
2006-07	7684.14
2007-08	8075.97

Revenue sharing 0870 numbers have also been used for recruitment campaigns. However, it has been decided that these numbers will no longer be included in campaign advertising, and they are expected to be discontinued shortly when a new system is introduced. The income generated from these numbers, since their introduction in February 2004, is £25,503.69. There is no annual breakdown available.

03 prefix telephone numbers are charged in the same fashion as 01 and 02 prefix numbers, but the call receiver does not receive revenue sharing. The Department, and its service providers, are considering switching to 03 prefix numbers.

Driving Offences

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many (a) males and (b) females aged (i) 17 to 24, (ii) 25 to 30, (iii) 31 to 35, (iv) 36 to 40 and (v) over 40 years old were (A) prosecuted and (B) convicted for stopping in a box junction in (1) the Essex Police area, (2) the Metropolitan Police area and (3) England and Wales in each of the last three years; [250224]

(2) how much revenue has been raised from penalties issued for stopping in a box junction in (a) the Essex Police area, (b) the Metropolitan Police area and (c) England and Wales in each of the last three years. [250225]

Maria Eagle: The offence of 'contravening a box junction', under the Road Traffic Act 1988 and Traffic Signs Regulations and General Directions 2002, can be dealt with by way of court proceedings or the issuing of a fixed penalty notice.

Centrally collected data held on the Ministry of Justice court proceedings database, and by the Home Office on fixed penalty notices (FPNs), do not separately identify the number of prosecutions, convictions, or FPNs issued for the offence of 'contravening a box junction' from other offences of neglect of traffic directions.

Economic and Monetary Union

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 60W, on economic and monetary union, what the timetable for his Department's updating of its euro changeover plan is. [250045]

Mr. Malik: The former DCA had a detailed euro changeover plan in place by the end of 2004 and this was last revised in 2006.

Plans for the former Home Office activities (prisons and probation services; Office for Criminal Justice Reform), which transferred to the newly created Ministry of Justice in 2007, were included in the Home Office Plan.

There are no plans to place a copy of the MOJ plans in the Library.

Information Commissioner

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many times the Information Commissioner's Office (a) has been requested to intervene and (b) has taken further action when a data controller has not met the 40-day deadline on a subject access request in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available; [250450]

(2) what sanctions the Information Commissioner's Office can impose when a data controller does not met the 40-day deadline for a subject access request; [250451]

(3) what guidance the Information Commissioner's Office provides to data controllers who are unable to meet the 40-day deadline for a subject access request; [250452]

(4) what representations he has received from members of the public who have been affected by a data controller's inability to meet the 40-day deadline for a subject access request under the Data Protection Act 1998. [250453]

Mr. Wills: The following table shows the number of requests received by the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) to intervene in connection with complaints about subject access requests that had allegedly not been completed in accordance with the Data Protection Act 1998 (DPA). It is not possible to separate out those cases where the reason for the request to intervene was as a direct result of failure to comply with the 40-day timescale for response.

Month	Number of requests to intervene (subject access)
January 2008	476
February 2008	406
March 2008	367
April 2008	328
May 2008	244
June 2008	298
July 2008	327
August 2008	273
September 2008	265
October 2008	507
November 2008	411
December 2008	293

If a data controller does not meet the 40-day deadline, the ICO can serve an Enforcement Notice under section 40 of the DPA. An Enforcement Notice requires a data controller to take the action specified in that notice to ensure full compliance with the DPA. Non-compliance with an Enforcement Notice is a criminal offence.

The DPA also provides the right to private redress and compensation through the court system for damage and/or distress caused as a result of non-compliance with any requirement of the DPA.

The advice offered by the ICO to data controllers unable to meet the 40-day deadline for a subject access request will depend on the reason for a data controller's breach of the DPA.

Common advice offered may include providing better training for employees; devoting greater resource to a data controller's DPA responsibilities; and contacting the ICO for advice earlier in the process if there is uncertainty about how to respond to a request concerning the DPA.

The ICO also produces and maintains good practice guidance on compliance with subject access requests. These good practice guidance notes are available on the ICO's website and via its customer service help-line.

The Ministry does not hold a central record of the representations it has received concerning failure to comply with the 40-day deadline for subject access requests.

Life Imprisonment

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners whose minimum terms have been completed are serving automatic life sentences pursuant to section 109 of the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000 (a) in its original form and (b) as subsequently amended by the provisions of chapter 5 of Part 12 of the Criminal Justice Act 2003; and for what offences each such prisoner was convicted. [252081]

Mr. Straw: The provisions for automatic life sentences for a second serious offence were introduced under the Crime (Sentences) Act 1997 and came into force on 1 October 1997. The provisions were consolidated in section 109 of the Powers of Criminal Courts (Sentencing) Act 2000. 615 prisoners sentenced under these provisions are recorded as having completed their minimum term.

The following table gives a breakdown of the offences committed.

	Number
Robbery	75
Unlawful Sexual Intercourse	1

	Number
Aggravated Burglary	3
Armed Robbery	1
Arson	7
Assault	3
Attempted Murder	18
Attempted Rape	10
Attempt to Pervert Justice	1
Attempted Burglary	1
Attempted Robbery	2
Buggery	5
Burglary	2
Conspiracy to Commit Robbery	4
Conspiracy to Commit Murder	4
Conspiracy to Supply Drugs	1
False Imprisonment	5
Other Sexual Offences	1
Other Offences	4
GBH	97
Kidnapping	7
Manslaughter	23
Possession of a Weapon	1
Possession of a Firearm	68
Rape	105
Wounding	156
Sexual Assault	1

The automatic life sentence was repealed and replaced by the indeterminate sentence of Imprisonment for Public Protection for offences committed on or after 4 April 2005.

This figure comes from the NOMS public protection unit database. As with any large scale recording system, it is subject to possible errors arising from either data entry or processing.

Magistrates: Standards

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he has taken to monitor the level of compliance of (a) magistrates, (b) HM Courts Service fines officers and (c) bailiff companies with the national standards for enforcement agents on vulnerable situations. [250926]

Bridget Prentice: The National Standards for Enforcement Agents are intended for use by enforcement agents rather than magistrates or Her Majesty's Courts Service fines officers. However both magistrates and Her Majesty's Courts Service fines officers routinely consider the circumstances of defendants and defaulters as part of their decision-making process. Where issues of vulnerability are made known to them, these will be taken into account.

Her Majesty's Court Service contracts place a specific obligation on its private enforcement agents in respect of vulnerable members of society. This requires them to adhere to and implement these standards while engaged on enforcement activities on behalf of Her Majesty's Courts Service. They are instructed not to take any action to levy distress without prior reference to the court where the individual falls into one of categories deemed as vulnerable. Complaints by members of the public about the conduct of the contractor must be reported to Her Majesty's Courts Service regional contract managers, together with details of how those complaints have been dealt with and resolved. These are reviewed as part of the contract management process.

The contract requires AEAs to provide a monthly management report to HMCS regional contractor managers on contractor performance. The report provides details on the execution rate of warrants, training undertaken by contractor staff and any complaints received by the contractor on action taken by their staff. Contractors must report any circumstances and situations where a complaint or issue is raised by defaulters who consider the enforcement of the warrant has been undertaken inappropriately or incorrectly. These will include any situations involving those in the vulnerable person categories.. Any complaints or correspondence received by contractors must be investigated. In addition Her Majesty's Court Service regional management will investigate the complaint to determine that the bailiff took the correct action or if the situation requires further investigation.

Further reporting protocols in new proposed contracts will strengthen the control and monitoring arrangements available to HMCS on contractor performance. This includes quarterly and six-month assurance reporting. There is also a requirement for each contractor to make an annual operation report reviewing their management of the contract. Combined, these reports form the basis for the HMCS Director of Enforcement to make an annual report covering the operation of all regional contracts.

The reports received as the six month and yearly stages of the contract would be reviewed and reported on to the HMCS Compliance and Enforcement and main HMCS Management Boards as part of this report. It is expected that the contractor will detail its procedures and processes and the agreed authorisation methods with each HMCS region and area within these reporting requirements.

Members: Correspondence

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he will reply to the hon. Member for Edinburgh West's correspondence of 16 October and 4 December 2008 with regard to his constituent, Mr Terry Cooper. [251714]

Bridget Prentice: I will write to the hon. Member shortly. I apologise for the delay in responding.

Offenders: Learning Disability

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the merits of (a) community-based offender management programmes and (b) substance misuse programmes developed for use with offenders with (i) learning difficulties and (ii) learning disabilities; and if he will make a statement. [250940]

Mr. Hanson: Offending behaviour and substance misuse programmes can meet a broad range of offender needs and are successful in reducing reoffending. Reasonable adjustments are made to ensure programmes are accessible to all those who could potentially benefit. Participation will depend on the assessment and degree of capability. Further work may be possible to prepare an individual; however, there will be some offenders who are unable to participate due to the intensive nature and cognitive focus of the programmes. If a programme is not suitable then one to one work may be considered. If an individual is still unsuitable then other interventions or activities will be considered to meet their needs, including a range of less intensive drug treatment options.

Office for Criminal Justice Reform

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many members of his Department's staff are employed in the Office for Criminal Justice Reform. [247820]

Mr. Straw: The Office for Criminal Justice Reform (OCJR) has 265 full-time equivalent staff currently in post and a headcount of 312. OCJR reports trilaterally to the Home Office, Ministry of Justice and Attorney-General's Office and is hosted as an organisation by the Ministry of Justice (MOJ). Most of its staff are employed by the MOJ, with 11 staff seconded or on loan from other Government Departments or organisations (including one from the Home Office), and 20 people from other organisations. This reflects the position as at 15 January 2009.

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by his Department, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250140]

Mr. Malik: The information requested is shown in the following tables. They outline the number of owned and leased cars used by the Ministry of Justice, including the number of cars hired within the course of the last year.

Vehicles owned

	Cars
	1000 to 1400 cc	1401 to 1700 cc	1701 to2200 cc
Prison Service	2	49	329
MOJ/Access to Justice	40	58	67

Vehicles leased

	Cars
	1000 to 1400 cc	1401 to 1700 cc	1701 to2200 cc
Prison Service	—	—	35
MOJ/Access to Justice	74	262	245

Vehicles hired

	Cars
	1000 to 1400 cc	1401 to 1700 cc	1701 to2200 cc
Prison Service	48	45	119
MOJ/Access to Justice	1,276	782	564

The level of usage of hired cars is necessitated by the size and structure of the Ministry of Justice. The decision to hire cars is taken locally by operational managers when faced with finding the most cost-effective means of delivering the Department and its agencies business.

Operational considerations within HMPS often require the movement of staff, equipment and prisoners over long distances. Vehicle specification has to take into account the need to accommodate both prisoners and escorts in the rear compartment, without discomfort. For this reason medium sized cars with diesel engines with a cubic capacity of 1701 to 2200 cc are frequently specified for pool and official use, including hire.

Parole Board: Referrals

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many referrals to the Parole Board took place after the due date in each of the last five years; and what proportion of referrals were such late referrals in each of those years. [250586]

Mr. Malik: There is no single data collection system which can provide this information at the present time. Using the different systems in place which does record this information, we are able to collect most of the data requested. Once this work is completed, I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of the letter in the Library of both Houses.

Political Impartiality

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer of 14 January 2008, Official Report, columns 948-9W, on Political Parties Elections and Referendums Act 2008, what the nature of the offence was that resulted in the individual being referred to a youth offender panel for a breach of the Act. [250545]

Mr. Straw: The data to which the hon. Member refers show that between 2000 and 2006 two people were referred to youth offender panels for offences under the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000.

The information held centrally by the Department does not identify which specific offences under PPERA were involved.

Prisoners: Speech Therapy

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many speech and language therapists have been employed in each (a) prison and (b) young offender institution in each year since 2000. [251229]

Mr. Malik: There is no central information available on the number of language therapists engaged in the Prison Service. To gather the information would entail scrutinising a large number of individual records, which would incur disproportionate cost.

Prisons: Public Consultation

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what procedures he plans to adopt to ensure that public consultations on the location of proposed Titan prison facilities result in an accurate reflection of public views on the matter; and if he will make a statement. [250974]

Mr. Hanson: Once sites have been identified, we intend to follow the normal planning route and will make an application for planning permission to the appropriate local planning authority.

Before we submit any planning application, Department officials will hold pre-application consultations with planning officers, local councillors and other interested parties on the detail of the proposed prison development in the usual way. This will include a public exhibition to explain the proposals and give local people the opportunity to comment.

Repossessions: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many court orders have been issued for the repossession of homes in South East Cambridgeshire constituency for each of the last 12 months. [250240]

Bridget Prentice: Although figures for the South East Cambridgeshire constituency are not available, the following table shows the number of mortgage and landlord possession orders made in Cambridge county court from October 2007 to September 2008.

The civil procedure rules state that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, Cambridge county court covers areas other than South East Cambridgeshire and therefore not all possession actions at this court relate to this constituency.

Figures from October 2008 are yet to be released by the Ministry of Justice as National Statistics on 20 February 2009.

Court level statistics on mortgage and landlord repossession actions from 1987 to 2007 are available on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/mortgatelandlordpossession.htm.

These figures do not indicate how many homes have actually been repossessed. Repossessions can occur without a court order being made, while not all court orders result in repossession.

Mortgage[1] and landlord[2] possession orders made[3] [4] in Cambridge county court, October 2007 to September 2008

	Cambridge
	Mortgage possession	Landlord possession[5]
October 2007	31	56
November 2007	45	91
December 2007	21	69
January 2008	39	66
February 2008	25	81
March 2008	36	65
April 2008	32	57
May 2008	72	50
June 2008	37	56
July 2008[6]	44	71
August 2008[6]	23	41
September 2008[6]	39	74

[1] Mortgage possession data include all types of lenders whether local authority or private.

[2] Landlord possession data include all types of landlord whether social or private.

[3] Includes outright and suspended orders, the later being where the court grants the claimant possession but suspends the operation of the order. Provided the defendant complies with the terms of suspension, which usually require the defendant to pay the current mortgage or rent instalments plus some of the accrued arrears, the possession order cannot be enforced.

[4] The court, following a judicial hearing, may grant an order for possession immediately. This entitles the claimant to apply for a warrant to have the defendant evicted. However, even where a warrant for possession is issued, the parties can still negotiate a compromise to prevent eviction.

[5] Includes landlord orders made through both standard and accelerated procedures. Landlord actions via the accelerated procedure enables the orders to be made solely on the basis of written evidence and shorthold tenancies, when the fixed period of tenancy has come to an end.

Residence Orders: Applications

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many applications for residence orders have been applied for by extended family members since 1 April 2008. [248906]

Bridget Prentice: Figures on the number of applications, counted by child, by the applicant relationship to the child for private law residence orders since 1 April 2008 in county and high courts in England and Wales are given in the following table. Public law applications (few in number) are not included. Figures for family proceedings courts are also not provided as comprehensive information on applicant relationships is not available. Please note that the figures are provisional.

In 1,080 of 25,064 applications there was more than one applicant relationship specified for the application. This could happen for a number of reasons. It could be that the applicant has a different relationship with each of the children in the case, that the application is made by more than one person or there may be counter applications made by two or more people. Where this happens the application will be counted more than once within the total of 26,261 applicant relationships.

Applications made, counted by child, 1 April 2008 to 30 November 2008

	Applications
Father	11,231
Mother	10,828
Grandparent	2,744

Applications made, counted by child, 1 April 2008 to 30 November 2008

	Applications
Stepfather	116
Stepmother	118
Special Guardian	13
Other	1,211
Total applicant-to-child relationship	26,261
Total applications	25,064

Notes:
1. The data are taken from the HMCS FamilyMan system.
2. In 792 cases of 25,064 applications there were applications made in two different months. This may be because the case was transferred or because a second applicant made a counter application in a later month. Where this occurs the application will be counted twice within the 25,064 total.
3. The figures include transfers from other courts.

Suicide: Prosecutions

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the likely effect of the implementation of the Government's proposed amendments to the Suicide Act 1961 contained in the Coroners and Justice Bill on the number of prosecutions of people who (a) encourage suicide and (b) assist the suicide of a mentally competent terminally ill adult who travels abroad to have an assisted death in a jurisdiction where it is legal. [250342]

Maria Eagle: The decision to prosecute in individual cases for an offence under the Suicide Act 1961 is a matter for the Crown Prosecution Service. The proposed amendments to the Suicide Act will simplify and modernise the law in this area. They will not make liable to prosecution anyone who was not liable before.

Television: Licensing

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost of prosecuting suspected television licence fee evaders was in each of the last five years. [249831]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 20 January 2009]: I have been asked to reply.

The Ministry of Justice has informed me that the estimated cost to Her Majesty's Courts Service based on the estimated time TV licence cases take to be heard in the magistrates court is as follows:

2003	923,320
2004	1,046,611
2005	1,209,116
2006	1,279,612
2007	1,333,892

The BBC is independent of Government and prosecutions are a matter for TV Licensing, which is a trading name used by companies contracted by the BBC to administer the collection of television licence fees and enforcement of the television licensing system. Details of the prosecutor's costs are not gathered or held by my Department.

Tribunals Courts and Enforcement Act 2007

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to make regulations under the Tribunals Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 in relation to the use of force by bailiffs. [250928]

Bridget Prentice: The enforcement provisions in the Tribunals, Court and Enforcement Act 2007 are far reaching reforms. The provisions have recently undergone a comprehensive reassessment by Ministers to ensure that they remain appropriate. This assessment has now been concluded and a statement will be made shortly.

Young Offenders

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many young offenders held on the prison estate completed the Duke of Edinburgh's Award scheme at (a) bronze, (b) silver and (c) gold level in each of the last five years; [251750]

(2) how many young offenders at Feltham Young Offender Institution completed the Duke of Edinburgh's Award scheme at (a) bronze, (b) silver and (c) gold level in each of the last five years; [251751]

(3) how many young offenders at Portland Young Offender Institution completed the Duke of Edinburgh's Award scheme at (a) bronze, (b) silver and (c) gold level in each of the last five years; [251752]

(4) how many young offenders at Glen Parva Young Offender Institution completed the Duke of Edinburgh's Award scheme at (a) bronze, (b) silver and (c) gold level in each of the last five years; [251753]

(5) how many young offenders at Aylesbury Young Offender Institution completed the Duke of Edinburgh's Award scheme at (a) bronze, (b) silver and (c) gold level in each of the last five years. [251754]

Mr. Hanson: Information provided by the establishments, which is not collected centrally, is that set out in the following table. All the awards in the table are at bronze level.

	Feltham	Portland[1]	Glen Parva	Aylesbury
2005	0	0	0	2
2006	0	0	0	8
2007	0	0	0	8

[1] Portland have enrolled six prisoners this year to undertake bronze level.

The information on the rest of the young offender estate is being collated and I will write to the hon. Member when this is complete.

Young Offenders: Reoffenders

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Government has taken to reduce re-offending among juvenile offenders. [250832]

Mr. Hanson: I refer my hon. Friend to my response of 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1614W.

There has been an 18.7 per cent. reduction in the frequency rate of youth reoffending between 2000 and 2006. The Youth Crime Action Plan, published in July 2008 details the cross Government approach to reducing youth crime, including youth reoffending. It sets out a 'triple track' approach of enforcement and punishment where behaviour is unacceptable, non-negotiable support and challenge where it is most needed, and better and earlier prevention. The Youth Justice Board leads on the target of a 10 per cent. reduction by 2011 of the frequency rate of youth reoffending against the 2005 baseline, and is working, with Departments, to influence the key services to ensure young people have access to mainstream, and specialist services before, during and after justice.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Pensioner Poverty

7. Bob Spink: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what estimate she has made of respective levels of poverty among female and male pensioners. [250982]

Maria Eagle: Through targeted support, and over £13 billion extra funding, the proportion of pensioners in relative low income has fallen by around a third from 29 per cent. in 1998-99 to 19 per cent. in 2006-07. Over this period the proportion of male pensioners in relative low income has fallen from 26 per cent. to 17 per cent. and the proportion of female pensioners from 30 per cent. to 20 per cent.

Violence Against Women

8. Angela Watkinson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality whether she plans to meet the Secretary of State for the Home Department to discuss a cross-Government strategy to tackle violence against women. [250983]

Maria Eagle: The Home Secretary confirmed to the Home Affairs Select Committee that the Government have accepted its recommendation to adopt a cross-government violence against women strategy on 13 November 2008.

A consultation on violence against women and women's safety will be launched later this year. Feedback from the public and stakeholders will be used to inform the strategy. This Government are proud of their achievements in dealing with violence against women, but we are not complacent—which is why we want to ask people about what more we should be doing to tackle violence against women.

Equality Bill

9. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what assessment she has made of the effect on businesses of proposals in the forthcoming Equality Bill; and if she will make a statement. [250984]

Maria Eagle: The Bill will help business by simplifying and harmonising discrimination law. This will make it easier for employers and employees to know their rights and responsibilities through clearer and simpler guidance. We continue to refine our impact estimates, working with stakeholders including business. Their views will be reflected when we publish the impact assessment that accompanies the Equality Bill.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Colombia: Detainees

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Colombian Government on the extradition of Niall Connolly, James Monaghan and Martin McCauley. [251133]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 26 January 2009]: None.

Colombia: Political Prisoners

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Colombian Government on political prisoners being held for long periods in Colombian jails without having been convicted of any crime. [250088]

Gillian Merron: With the Colombian authorities in London and through our embassy in Bogota we have raised specific cases of concern of people who have been detained for long periods without trial on the charge of rebellion.

We are aware of serious allegations that people in Colombia are being imprisoned or charged with offences because of their political views or activities, and held for long periods.

It is for the Colombian judicial system to assess any such cases, including exercise of the right of habeas corpus. We are working to facilitate improvements in the Colombian criminal justice system by supporting a project with prominent civil society organisations and the UN development programme.

Community Relations: Religion

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which places in the UK he visited in 2008 in connection with the Government's Preventing Violent Extremism strategy; on what dates he undertook the visits; what the estimated cost of such visits was for 2008; which towns or cities in the UK he plans to visit in 2009 in connection with Preventing Violent Extremism; what the cost is expected to be; and if he will make a statement. [249585]

Bill Rammell: During 2008 my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited the following areas:

28 May, Tower Hamlets;

25 July, Birmingham;

8 September, Birmingham;

21 November, Bradford.

The cost of these visits was £24,802.78

In January the Foreign Secretary will visit Manchester. Further visits are being planned.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East, of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 220W, on departmental public relations, which firm provided the secondment; and to which division in his Department the secondee was assigned. [249381]

Gillian Merron: The member of staff referred to is seconded from Ofcom to the Communications Directorate of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East, of 13 November 2008, Official Report, column 1406W, on departmental public relations, to which external public relations and public affairs firms departmental staff are currently on secondment; and what the (a) purpose and (b) duration is of each secondment. [250316]

Gillian Merron: Of the seven Foreign and Commonwealth Office members of staff referred to in the previous answer, six remain on secondment to the organisations and positions listed below for the periods indicated.

Programme Director, Wilton Park: August 2007 - February 2009

Growth Manager, Think London Ltd: August 2007 - February 2009

Business Director, Africa Matters Ltd: June 2005 - June 2009

Director Construction and Asia Pacific, British Expertise: June 2005 - March 2009

Senior Partner, International, at Ofcom: June 2008 - February 2009

Director Trade and Government Relations, The Middle East Association: October 2006 - October 2009

Eritrea: Djibouti

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department has taken to resolve the disputes between Eritrea and Djibouti. [249351]

Gillian Merron: Since June 2008, when the current border dispute between Eritrea and Djibouti arose, we have lobbied both in the UN and Eritrea and Djibouti bilaterally to seek to resolve their dispute peacefully through dialogue.

We supported the UN Security Council (UNSC) presidential statement of 12 June 2008 condemning Eritrea's incursion and urging both sides to show maximum restraint.

During a visit to the region in June, my right hon. Friend the Minister for Counter Terrorism and Immigration, (Mr. McNulty) discussed the issue with President Guelleh of Djibouti and Foreign Minister Mahamud Ali Youssouf. On his return to the UK, the Minister also met with the Eritrean ambassador to express his concern over the dispute urging both parties to seek a peaceful resolution. In December my noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, also met the Eritrean ambassador to discuss this. Foreign and Commonwealth officials have raised their concerns with the Eritrean ambassador in London and their interlocutors in Djibouti and Asmara.

We supported the UN Security Council 1862, adopted on 14 January 2009, which urged Djibouti and Eritrea to resolve their border dispute peacefully, quickly and in a manner consistent with international law.

Iran

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his EU counterparts on recent incidences of (a) stonings, (b) public executions, (c) torture of political and other prisoners and (d) other human rights violations in Iran. [249293]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 22 January 2009]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had any recent discussions with EU counterparts on human rights issues in Iran. However, regular discussions take place at official level, and the EU fully shares the UK's concerns about the human rights situation in Iran, as can be seen by the large number of EU representations and declarations on this issue. The most recent EU declaration, made on 13 January 2009, condemned the stonings which took place in Mashhad on 21 December 2008, and urged the Iranian authorities to end the practice of execution by stoning and remove stoning from the Iranian penal code. On 19 December 2008, the EU made a declaration expressing concern about a mass execution on 26 November 2008, pressure on women's rights activists including Esha Momeni, and the situations of Hussein Derakhshan, an Iranian blogger, and the trade unionist Mansour Ossanlou.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to his Iranian counterpart on recent instances of (a) stoning, (b) public executions, (c) torture of political and other prisoners and (d) other human rights violations in Iran. [249294]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 22 January 2009]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not met or spoken with his Iranian counterpart since April 2008, and last met the Iranian Deputy Foreign Minister in September 2008.

In September 2008, the Permanent Under Secretary of the Foreign Office raised the issue of the death penalty, including juvenile executions, with the Iranian Deputy Foreign Minister. On 20 November 2008 I met the Iranian ambassador, and raised our concerns about human rights issues including the death penalty, the continued execution of juveniles, and the draft penal code, which would impose a mandatory death sentence for apostasy. I followed up this meeting by writing to the Iranian ambassador on 5 December 2008 giving details of our concern about juvenile executions. The Iranian ambassador replied denying that any juvenile executions have taken place in Iran since the head of the judiciary issued a decree against the practice in early October 2008. However, we have heard reports of two juvenile executions since the decree—on 29 October 2008 and 30 December 2008.

The UK made 40 representations to the Iranian authorities about human rights in 2008, bilaterally and through the EU. The most recent EU declaration, made on 13 January 2009, condemned the stonings which took place in Mashhad on 21 December 2008, and urged the Iranian authorities to end the practice of execution by stoning and remove stoning from the Iranian penal code. On 19 December 2008, the EU made a declaration expressing concern about a mass execution on 26 November 2008, pressure on women's rights activists including Esha Momeni, and the situations of Hussein Derakhshan, an Iranian blogger, and the trade unionist Mansour Ossanlou.

Israel: EU External Trade

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the human rights sub-committee set up under the EU-Israel Trade Association Agreement is next due to meet; and if he will request a special meeting of the sub-committee to consider Israel's recent human rights record in Gaza. [249636]

Bill Rammell: The proposed human rights sub-committee is part of a package of measures to be encompassed in next EU-Israel European Neighbourhood Policy Action Plan which has not yet been finalised. There are therefore no immediate plans for a meeting.

The EU has raised its concerns relating to the situation in Gaza at the highest level with the Government of Israel.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the relevance of Article 2 of the EU Israel Trade Association Agreement to actions by Israel in Gaza. [248407]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 19 January 2009]: EU-Israel relations are an important part of our engagement with Israel which has at its core the goal of achieving lasting peace in the middle east. Current discussions on the EU-Israel relationship include enhancing discussion of human rights issues.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has received reports of the use of British-supplied military vehicles by Israel in its invasion of Palestinian territories in Gaza. [248785]

Bill Rammell: We have received no such reports.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the state of Israel concerning reports of Israel's alleged use of white phosphorus and cluster bombs in their military operation in Gaza. [249088]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 20 January 2009]: We are very concerned about reports of white phosphorus ammunition being used by the Israeli Defence Force in Gaza. We have made this clear directly to both the Foreign Ministry and Defence Ministry in Tel Aviv.

I have also made clear to the House that Gaza is an exceptionally densely populated area where white phosphorus used as an air burst is liable to cause particularly horrific injuries to non-combatants. We consider such use in these circumstances unacceptable.

We are not aware of allegations that cluster bombs have been used in Gaza.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions the Government had with the Governments of (a) Syria, (b) Lebanon, (c) Turkey, (d) Egypt, (e) Jordan and (f) Saudi Arabia on the situation in the Middle East between 28 December 2008 and 5 January 2009. [249172]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary spoke at least once to his counterparts in all those countries between 28 December 2008 and 5 January 2009.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions the Government had with Quartet Middle East Envoy Tony Blair on the situation in the Middle East between 28 December 2008 and 5 January 2009; and on what date the first such discussion took place. [249174]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has been in regular contact with the Quartet Envoy throughout this crisis.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what common policy positions were taken by EU members in relation to Israel's military action against Gaza between 28 December 2008 and 5 January 2009. [249198]

Bill Rammell: European Union Foreign Ministers met on 30 December 2008 and agreed a statement setting out the EU's stance on the conflict. The EU presidency also issued a number of statements on behalf of the Union.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he was first informed of Israel's intention to launch (a) an aerial and (b) a ground attack on Gaza; and whether the Government of Israel provided such information. [249199]

Bill Rammell: The increasing tension between Israel and Hamas was very clear in early December 2008. With rocket attacks increasing and the Hamas declaration that it would not renew the ceasefire on 19 December 2008, there was clearly a risk of Israeli military action. We did not however have specific prior warning of Israel's intention to launch the aerial operation.

Similarly, while we were well aware of the likelihood of an Israeli ground operation to follow up the Israeli air operation, we were aware of preparations being made and we were discussing the conflict frequently with the Israeli authorities in our efforts to secure a ceasefire, we had no specific prior warning of Israel's intention to launch the ground operation.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what formal representations he has made to the Government of Israel on the proportionality of its use of force in Gaza between 28 December 2008 and 5 January 2009. [249202]

Bill Rammell: As I told the House on 15 January 2009, Official Report, column 396: "the Israeli action has been disproportionate". We have consistently urged Israel to avoid civilian casualties and from the outset have called in public and private for an immediate and sustainable ceasefire.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps the Government has taken to encourage the establishment of a Palestinian State. [249513]

Bill Rammell: We are at the forefront of international effort to support peace negotiations and build the institutions of a future Palestinian state. We have pledged £243 million over three years to support the Palestinian Authority and people.

Matthew Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many letters his Department has received from members of the public on the conflict in Gaza. [249520]

Bill Rammell: The number of letters received from members of the public increases constantly and is now approaching 1,000. We have already replied to over 600 letters of these letters.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the principles of the Quartet are; which countries in the Middle East have agreed to them; and if he will make a statement. [250221]

Bill Rammell: The Quartet Principles are recognition of Israel, acceptance of previous Palestinian Liberation Organisation agreements with Israel and rejection of violence. We support the Quartet in asking these things of Hamas as a basis for engagement.

Mustafa Abdel Dayem

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the trial of the Saharawi Mustafa Abdel Dayem in Morocco; and if he will make a statement. [249352]

Bill Rammell: The Government are aware of the trial of Mustafa Abdel Dayem, which was discussed during a European Union meeting in Rabat on 16 January. The trial will be discussed again at the European Union Heads of Mission meeting in Rabat on 28 January 2009. We will continue to monitor developments alongside our European Union colleagues.

People's Mujahedeen Organisation of Iran

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment the Government has made of the implications of the judgement of the European Court of First Instance annulling the proscription by the EU of the People's Mojahedin Organisation of Iran; if he will make it his policy to vote against the continued inclusion of the group on the EU list of proscribed groups at the next relevant meeting of the Council of Ministers; and if he will make a statement. [248860]

Bill Rammell: We have made clear that we believe the Council of Ministers should respect the judgment of the Court of First Instance annulling the listing of the People's Mujahedeen Organisation of Iran when conducting its current review of the EU list of terrorist organisations.

We expect a decision on a new list by the end of January 2009.

Somalia: Politics and Government

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Somalia; and if he will make a statement. [250457]

Gillian Merron: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 13 January 2009, Official Report, columns 126/7.

Sri Lanka

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Sri Lankan counterpart on the humanitarian and security situation in northern Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [250411]

Bill Rammell: [holding answer 22 January 2009]: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister raised these issues with President Rajapakse when they last met in September 2008. The Prime Minister also wrote to President Rajapakse in January 2009. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary set out the UK's position on Sri Lanka in a written ministerial statement on 21 January 2009, Official Report, columns 30-31WS.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his most recent assessment is of the security and humanitarian situation in northern Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [250412]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 22 January 2009]: I refer the hon. Member to my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary's written ministerial statement on Sri Lanka, 21 January 2009, Official Report, columns 30-31WS.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Sri Lankan Government following the killing of the chief editor of the Sunday Leader on 8 January 2009. [250413]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 22 January 2009]: We welcome the stated commitment of the Sri Lankan Government to investigate the killing of The Sunday Leader's chief editor on 8 January 2009. The UK has been clear that it is vital for the perpetrators of such reprehensible acts to be brought to justice following a thorough and independent investigation. Our high commission officials in Colombo have emphasised this to President Rajapakse.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations his Department has made to the (a) UN, (b) EU and (c) Commonwealth to encourage the establishment of a ceasefire in northern Sri Lanka. [250414]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 22 January 2009]: Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials are in regular contact with the EU, Commonwealth and UN about the situation in Sri Lanka. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has made clear that the UK wants to see an end to the conflict.

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Government of Sri Lanka to call a ceasefire in its operations against Tamil forces in the north and east of the country. [249090]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 20 January 2009]: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has made clear that we must see an end to the conflict and a new drive for a lasting political solution. He wrote to President Rajapakse in January to express our concerns. We continue to engage with all political parties across all communities in Sri Lanka to support progress in this direction. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary set out the UK's position on Sri Lanka in a written ministerial statement on 21 January 2009, Official Report, columns 30-31WS.

Western Sahara

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 381W, on the Western Sahara, if he will make representations on Morocco's continued occupation of Western Sahara to the Moroccan Ambassador to the UK. [249643]

Bill Rammell: The Government continue to engage in regular discussions with all the parties to the western Sahara dispute, including Morocco.

We continue to urge the parties to make progress towards a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution providing for the self-determination of the people of western Sahara, negotiated under the auspices of the UN. We therefore welcome the recent appointment of Christopher Ross as the UN Secretary-General's new personal envoy to western Sahara and hope his appointment will lead to renewed engagement by all the parties.

Western Sahara: Exports

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) reports and (b) representations he has received on the purchase of goods from occupied Western Sahara by UK companies, with particular reference to the legality of such purchases. [248471]

Bill Rammell: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has not received any reports or representations from UK companies regarding the purchase of goods from Western Sahara or the legalities of such purchases.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Mid Norfolk of 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 866W, what recent discussions have been held (a) at the United Nations and (b) in the EU on direct intervention in Zimbabwe to secure the removal of Robert Mugabe and his regime. [250857]

Gillian Merron: We have not had discussions with any international organisations on direct intervention in Zimbabwe to remove Robert Mugabe from power. Those working for change and reform in Zimbabwe are not calling for military intervention. Their, and our, focus is foremost on the humanitarian situation and doing what can be done to alleviate suffering. We do, however, regularly discuss with the UN and EU non-military options for encouraging a resolution to the crisis. On 26 January 2009, my right hon. Friend, the Foreign Secretary, met EU Foreign Ministers to discuss the extension of EU targeted sanctions.

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many alcohol-related emergency admissions to hospitals of (a) men and (b) women there have been in the London borough of Hillingdon in each year since 1997, broken down by age of patient. [250780]

Dawn Primarolo: These data are collected and published by the NHS Information Centre for health and social care. The following table shows the number of alcohol-related finished emergency admissions for residents of the London borough of Hillingdon for the years 2002-03 to 2006-07 has been placed in the Library. Data for earlier years are not available. 2006-07 is the latest year for which data are available.

Notes:

1. Includes activity in English national health service (NHS) hospitals and English NHS commissioned activity in the independent sector.

2. Small numbers: To protect patient confidentiality, figures between one and five have been suppressed and replaced with "*" (an asterisk). Where it was possible to identify numbers from the total due to a single suppressed number in a row or column, an additional number (the next smallest) has been suppressed.

3. Alcohol-related admissions: The number of alcohol-related admissions is based on the methodology developed by the North West Public Health Observatory (NWPHO). Following international best practice, the NWPHO methodology includes a wide range of diseases and injuries in which alcohol plays a part and estimates the proportion of cases that are attributable to the consumption of alcohol. Details of the conditions and associated proportions can be found in the report Jones et al. (2008) 'Alcohol-attributable fractions for England: Alcohol-attributable mortality and hospital admissions'.

4. Figures for under 16s only include admissions where one or more alcohol-specific conditions were listed. This is because the research on which the attributable fractions are based does not cover under 16s. Alcohol-specific conditions are those that are wholly attributed to alcohol - that is, those with an attributable fraction of one. They are:

Alcoholic cardiomyopathy (I42.6)
Alcoholic gastritis (K29.2)
Alcoholic myopathy (G72.1)
Alcoholic polyneuropathy (G62.1)
Alcohol-induced pseudo-Cushing's syndrome (E24.4)
Degeneration of nervous system due to alcohol (G31.2)
Mental and behavioural disorders due to use of alcohol (F10)
Accidental poisoning by and exposure to alcohol (X45)
Ethanol poisoning (T51.0)
Methanol poisoning (T51.1)
Toxic effect of alcohol, unspecified (T51.9)

5. Number of episodes in which the patient had an alcohol-related primary or secondary diagnosis: These figures represent the number of episodes where an alcohol-related diagnosis was recorded in any of the 14 (7 prior to 2002-03) primary and secondary diagnosis fields in a Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) record. Each episode is only counted once in each count, even if an alcohol-related diagnosis is recorded in more than one diagnosis field of the record.

6. Finished admission episodes: A finished admission episode is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Finished admission episodes are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. Admissions do not represent the number of inpatients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

7. Emergency admissions: Includes all types of emergency admission (Method of admission codes 21-28).

8. Primary diagnosis: The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 14 (7 prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the HES data set and provides the main reason why the patient was in hospital.

9. Secondary diagnoses: As well as the primary diagnosis, there are up to 13 (six prior to 2002-03) secondary diagnosis fields in HES that show other diagnoses relevant to the episode of care.

10. Data Quality: HES are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts in England. Data are also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Ambulance Services: Bridlington

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many deaths of residents of Bridlington have occurred while they were in ambulances in each of the last 12 months. [251269]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not collected centrally. You may wish to contact your local NHS for further information.

Angelman Syndrome: Research

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has undertaken into Angleman's syndrome; and if he will make a statement. [250129]

Dawn Primarolo: Neither the Department's National Institute for Health Research nor the Medical Research Council (MRC) is currently supporting research on Angelman syndrome.

The MRC has a large portfolio of genetic research, some of which may have relevance to the condition. For example, the MRC funds research on the genetic factors related to learning disorders that has identified a number of candidate genes contributing to learning disability.

Angina

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps are being taken to provide care to those with refractory angina. [250063]

Ann Keen: The national service framework for coronary heart disease (March 2000) sets a 10-year framework for action to prevent disease, tackle inequalities, save more lives, and improve the quality of life for people with heart disease. Chapter 4 of the CHD NSF covers stable angina. This chapter sets out how primary care teams and specialists can best help people with angina or suspected angina to relieve their symptoms and reduce their risk of suffering a major cardiovascular event.

When the CHD NSF was written, there was little high-quality evidence to guide practice for refractory angina and it was mentioned only briefly. However, since 1996, a national centre for the management of patients with refractory angina has been developing at the Royal Liverpool and Broadgreen university hospital trust. This is known as the National Refractory Angina Centre (NRAC). In November 2007, the Cheshire and Merseyside cardiac network published the second edition of its guideline on the management and treatment of stable angina. Although not a stable condition, the document contains a detailed section on refractory angina. This guideline is recognised nationally.

I am due to visit the NRAC in February 2009 and have asked for a national meeting to continue service development in this area.

Antidepressants

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in (a) England and (b) Sefton have been prescribed anti-depressant drugs. [251454]

Phil Hope: The Department does not know the number of people prescribed a particular drug.

The following table provides the number of prescription items prescribed in the community in Sefton primary care trust and England as a whole, that were dispensed in the community in the United Kingdom, for anti-depressant drugs listed in British National Formulary (BNF) section 4.3 for the latest available 12 month period.

Antidepressants: Costs

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost to the NHS of prescriptions of anti-depressant drugs in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in the last 12 months. [250562]

Dawn Primarolo: Information is not available in the format requested.

The British National Formulary classifies anti-depressant drugs within section 4.3. We are able to supply the prescribing costs for drugs within this section for health regions. The latest figures available are for November 2008.

As the areas requested are not health regions we have supplied information for the health regions that best fit those requested (West Hertfordshire primary care trust to represent Hemel Hempstead and West Hertfordshire and East and North Hertfordshire PCTs combined to represent Hertfordshire).

Net ingredient cost (NIC) of anti-depressant drugs (BNF section 4.3), December 2007-November 2008

	Net ingredient cost (£000)
Hemel Hempstead (West Hertfordshire PCT)	1,994.9
Hertfordshire (West Hertfordshire and East and North Hertfordshire PCTs combined)	4,355.3

Notes:
ePACT Data
This information was obtained from the Prescribing Analysis and CosT tool (PACT) system, which covers prescriptions prescribed by general practitioner, nurses, pharmacists and others in England and dispensed in the community in the United Kingdom. For data at PCT level, prescriptions written by a prescriber located in a particular PCT but dispensed outside that PCT will be included in the PCT in which the prescriber is based. Prescriptions written in England but dispensed outside England are included. Prescriptions written in hospitals/clinics that are dispensed in the community, prescriptions dispensed in hospitals and private prescriptions are not included in PACT data.
Net ingredient cost (NIC)
NIC is the basic cost of a drug. It does not take account of discounts, dispensing costs, fees or prescription charges income.

Figures for the answer were sourced from Prescribing Analysis and CosT Tool (ePACT).

Aphasia: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of people with aphasia in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire. [250557]

Ann Keen: We have made no estimates of the number of people with aphasia.

Arthritis: Drugs

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) anti-TNF medicines and (b) disease-modifying anti-rheumatic drugs have been (i) prescribed in hospital and (ii) dispensed in the community in each year since 2000-01. [249261]

Phil Hope: Information on the number of prescriptions for anti-TNF medicines and disease-modifying anti-rheumatic medicines in hospitals is not available.

Disease-modifying anti-rheumatic medicines, including anti-TNF medicines, are listed in the British National Formulary (BNF) "chapter 10.1.3—Drugs that suppress the rheumatic disease process". The following table shows the total number of prescription items dispensed in the community in England for this category and for anti-TNF medicines.

Autism: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what services are available for adults with autism in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire. [250556]

Phil Hope: Information is not available in the format requested. There are 118 care homes in Hertfordshire that have at least one place registered to provide care for adults with learning disabilities.

There are 1,255 places available in these homes. However, it is should be noted that the homes do not register the actual number of places available for each client group, but indicate which groups they can provide at least one place for.

Brain Tumours

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding his Department has provided to external organisations to raise awareness of and provide for patient support for those with brain tumours; and if he will make a statement. [250693]

Ann Keen: The Department provided a total of £34,000 between 2004 and 2007 to Brain Tumour UK, then known as the UK Brain Tumour Society, through section 64 grants (now known as the Third Sector Investment Programme). The grants were provided to enable the charity to raise awareness and provide support for people with brain tumours.

Details of these and other grants to external organisations working to raise awareness and provide support for people with cancer, including brain tumours, is available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Managingyourorganisation/Financeandplanning/Section64grants/index.htm

Cancer

Sir Robert Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate his Department has made of the percentage of newly diagnosed cancer patients who are provided with advice on the financial assistance for which they may be eligible. [250055]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally. Advice to patients on sources of financial help is one of the areas to be included in information prescriptions for patients, as proposed in the White Paper "Our health, our care, our say: a new direction for community services". A system to enable health care professionals to generate tailored information prescriptions for cancer patients is expected to be rolled out later this year.

Cancer: Children

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what training his Department has provided for health care professionals on paediatric brain tumour diagnosis in the last 12 months. [250694]

Ann Keen: The Department does not provide training for health care professionals, nor is it responsible for setting curricula for health professional training. However, we do share a commitment with statutory and professional bodies that all health professionals are trained, so that they have the skills and knowledge to deliver a high quality health service to all groups of the population with whom they deal, whatever their condition.

Contraceptives

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women in each age group were fitted with a contraceptive implant of each type in each of the last 10 years. [250165]

Dawn Primarolo: The information available is shown in the tables.

The following table shows data on prescriptions dispensed in the community. Data on the number of women fitted with an implant by age are not available.

Prescription information is taken from the PCA system, supplied by NHS Prescription Services, part of the NHS Business Services Authority (BSA), and is based on a full analysis of all prescriptions dispensed in the community in England i.e. by community pharmacists and appliance contractors, dispensing doctors, and prescriptions submitted by prescribing doctors for items personally administered in England. The data do not cover drugs dispensed in hospitals.

The following table shows first contacts with women at community contraceptive clinics showing the number of implants fitted by age and year.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many women in each age group and NHS trust area were (a) given prescriptions for the oral contraceptive and (b) given depot contraceptive injections in each of the last 10 years. [250166]

Dawn Primarolo: Data on the number of prescription items dispensed in the community for oral and injectable contraceptives by primary care trust have been placed in the Library. Information is not held prior to 2003. Data on the number of patients receiving a prescription, and also data by age, are not available.

Data for oral and injectable contraceptives supplied by community contraceptive clinics for the seven years preceding 2005-06 can be provided only at disproportionate cost. 2005-06 data for first contacts with women at community contraceptive clinics by age and trust have already been placed in the Library. Data for 2006-07 and 2007-08 have been placed in the Library.

Dental Services: Romsey

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in Romsey constituency received treatment from an NHS dentist in each year from 1997 to 2008. [250169]

Ann Keen: Information is not available in the format requested. However, the number of patients registered with a national health service dentist, in England, as at 31 March, 1997 to 2006 is available in Annex A of the 'NHS Dental Activity and Workforce Report, England: 31 March 2006'. Information is provided by primary care trust (PCT) and by strategic health authority (SHA). Annex C contains information by parliamentary constituency.

This information is based on the old contractual arrangements which were in place up to and including 31 March 2006. This report, published on 23 August 2006, has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dwfactivity.

Under the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006, patients do not have to be registered with a NHS dentist to receive NHS care. The closest equivalent measure to 'registration' is the number of patients receiving NHS dental services ('patients seen') over a 24-month period. However, this is not directly comparable to the registration data for earlier years.

The number of patients seen in the previous 24 months in England, as at quarterly intervals, from 31 March 2006 to 30 June 2008 is available in Table D3 of Annex 3 of the NHS Dental Statistics, Q1 2008-09 report. Information is provided by PCT and SHA but is not available by constituency.

This report, published on 27 November 2008, has already been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dentalstats0809q1.

Health Education

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department has spent to date on advertising campaigns relating to (a) smoking, (b) binge drinking and (c) drug awareness in financial year 2008-09. [247589]

Dawn Primarolo: In the 2008-09 financial year, the Department has spent the following amounts on advertising campaigns relating to smoking and drug awareness, year to date (April to December 2008):

	£ million
Smoking	14.3
Drug awareness	0.4

The drugs prevention campaign (FRANK) is paid for jointly by the Department of Health, the Home Office and the Department for Children, Schools and Families. The figure quoted above relates to the Department of Health's advertising spend only. It does not include the rest of the FRANK campaign activity spend to which Department of Health's contributes a further £2.1 million towards the total cost of £6.6 million in 2008-09.

With regard to advertising campaigns relating to binge drinking, the Home Office now funds this campaign. The Department of Health funds the 'Units' campaign targeted at the 25 years plus age range.

Heart Diseases: Health Services

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by each local health authority on rehabilitation following a heart attack in the last year for which figures are available, ranked from highest to lowest for each region. [250733]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect this information centrally.

Information about cardiac rehabilitation programmes in England is available in the annual national audit of cardiac rehabilitation's (NACR) 2008 annual report, which can be found on the NACR's website:

www.cardiacrehabilitation.org.uk/dataset.htm.

Heart Diseases: Medical Treatments

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which primary care trusts provide trans-catheter aortic valve treatment on the NHS. [251855]

Ann Keen: There is evidence that transcatheter aortic valve implants (TAVI) can be beneficial in a small number of high risk patients. Decisions on funding of interventions such as TAVI are the responsibility of Specialised Service Commissioners with agreement from their local primary care trusts.

This treatment is available at a number of hospitals throughout England.

Human-Animal Hybrid Embryos

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what account the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority took of funding provisions when it authorised research licence R0179 for the creation of animal-human hybrids to the Institute of Human Genetics at the University of Newcastle; and if he will make a statement; [250429]

(2) what account the HFEA took of funding provisions when it authorised research licence R0180 for the creation of animal-human hybrids to King's College London; and if he will make a statement. [250430]

Dawn Primarolo: The HFEA does not take account of the availability of funding when it considers an application for a research licence. The HFEA must consider if the project meets the requirements of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 1990, including that the research is necessary or desirable and the use of embryos is necessary.

Infant Mortality: Disadvantaged

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the progress towards the target of reduction of health inequalities as measured by infant mortality by 2010. [250170]

Dawn Primarolo: The infant mortality aspect of the national health inequalities public service agreement target is starting with children under one year, by 2010 to reduce by at least 10 per cent. the gap in mortality between the routine and manual group and the population as a whole.

Infant mortality rates have fallen since the 1997-99 target baseline, including for the routine and manual group, while the infant mortality gap has widened.

The most recent assessment of this aspect of the target shows a further slight narrowing in the gap between the routine and manual group and the whole population. The gap has fallen to 16 per cent. in 2005-07, compared with 19 per cent. higher in 2002-04. This compares with 13 per cent. higher than at baseline. The target is still challenging, but if the gap continues to narrow at the rate observed since 2002-04, the infant mortality aspect of the target will be met.

The 'Review of the Health Inequalities Infant Mortality PSA target'—together with the 'Implementation Plan for Reducing Health Inequalities in Infant Mortality'—was published by the Department of Health in 2007. The review identified the actions, interventions and 43 local authority areas most likely to help deliver the target. The recently established infant mortality national support team will provide tailored support to the 43 areas to address the target.

Copies of the documents have been placed in the Library.

Influenza: Vaccination

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government is taking to publicise availability of influenza vaccinations in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire. [250564]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Coventry, South (Mr. Cunningham) on 16 December 2008, Official Report, column 682W. The publicity for the seasonal flu campaign carried out by the Department is national, rather than regional.

Injuries: Children

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 19 January 2008, Official Report, column 1195W, on injuries: children, what the equivalent figures were in each of the last five years. [251852]

Ann Keen: The data for finished admission episodes for deliberate and unintended injuries (age 0-15 inclusive) are in the following table.

	Cause
	Unintended	Deliberate (intentional self-harm)	Deliberate (assaults)	Other

Learning Disability

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many cases of mistreatment of NHS patients with learning disabilities have been recorded in each of the last five years; [250900]

(2) what recent steps his Department has taken to ensure that the treatment of patients with learning disabilities by NHS staff meets the requirements of disability discrimination legislation; and if he will make it his policy to set standards of practice for staff of primary care trusts on treating patients with learning disabilities; [250901]

(3) what steps he is taking to establish the confidential inquiry into premature deaths of people with learning disabilities; and if he will make a statement. [250902]

Phil Hope: We do not collect centrally data on cases of mistreatment of national health service patients with learning disabilities. However, the Healthcare Commission has provided some information on the total number of cases which they have received, both open and closed, involving either a complainant[1] or a patient with a learning disability[2].

[1] These might include cases where a carer complains on behalf of a patient who lacks capacity or where a patient has died and someone else complains about an aspect of their treatment.

[2] The Commission does not use the term 'mistreatment' specifically.

Year received	2005	2006	2007	2008	2009	Total
Adult	[1]—	5	30	56	5	96
Child	[1]—	1	8	10	2	21
Age not recorded	1	8	4	3	0	16
Total cases	1	14	42	69	7	133

[1] The Healthcare Commission did not record separately complaints involving people with learning disabilities which is why the numbers in early years are low.

The Healthcare Commission has worked to improve its complaints process to make it accessible for people with learning disabilities. This may be part of the reason for the increase in the number of complaints.

We have launched a national awareness and education programme for the NHS about the disability equality duty. In addition, we are working with the professional regulatory bodies to ensure that the undergraduate curricula for health and social care professionals does include training on learning disabilities, together with wider training on equalities and human rights.

We have introduced a directed enhanced services for annual health checks for people with learning disabilities who are known to local authorities. To deliver the healthcheck, general practitioners and practice staff will receive training in meeting the needs of people with a learning disability

In relation to policy on NHS practice, the NHS operating framework for 2009-10 directs primary care trust to secure general health enquiries that make reasonable adjustments for people with learning disabilities. They should also ensure that there are wider communication and partnership working arrangements to improve the quality of healthcare provided to people with a learning disability. We will work with strategic health authority to review progress.

We will establish a time-limited confidential inquiry to investigate premature deaths of people with learning disabilities. We are currently developing a specification for the inquiry and we expect to invite proposals from potential organisations in the coming months.

Lighting: Health Hazards

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if his Department will commission research into the possible effects on health of the use of low-energy fluorescent bulbs; and what recent discussions he has had at EU level on the use of such bulbs. [250907]

Dawn Primarolo: The Health Protection Agency (HPA) advises the Department on scientific matters concerning optical radiation including low energy light bulbs. The HPA tested a sample of compact fluorescent light bulbs (CFLs) and found that some emitted ultraviolet (UV) radiation which could, under certain conditions, expose people above international guidelines. As a result of its findings the HPA issued precautionary advice on 9 October 2008 to the general public concerning the use of open CFLs in close-working situations. The HPA's advice can be found at:

www.hpa.org.uk/webw/HPAweb&HPAwebStandard/HPAweb_C/1223445516605?p=1153822623869

The HPA's research was considered alongside other available evidence to inform a report by the European Commission's Scientific Committee on Emerging and Newly Identified Health Risks (SCENIHR). SCENIHR's opinion on light sensitivity can be found at:

http://ec.europa.eu/health/ph_risk/committees/04_scenihr/scenihr_opinions_en.htm

During 2008, officials in the Department undertook a literature review on lighting and light sensitive and neurological conditions and made the scientific references available to SCENIHR. The Department is continuing to work with patient groups, clinicians and the lighting industry to keep the health issues under review.

In discussions with the European Commission throughout 2008, with regard to implementation of the domestic lighting part 1 of the eco-design of energy saving products Directive 2005/32/EC, the Government successfully pressed for consideration of health impacts to be fully considered and for limits to be set on UV emissions from CFLs.

Macular Degeneration: Derbyshire

Natascha Engel: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people had non-age-related macular degeneration in Derbyshire in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; [249975]

(2) how many people had diabetes-related macular degeneration in Derbyshire in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008. [249976]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not held centrally.

Mental Health Services: Finance

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent on mental health care in (a) England and (b) Sefton in each of the last 10 years (i) in absolute terms and (ii) per head of population; and how much he estimates will be spent on such care in the next (A) five and (B) 10 years. [251455]

Phil Hope: These data are not collected centrally in the format requested. However, the following table shows the expenditure per head of population under Mental Health in England and Sefton Primary Care Trust for financial years 2003-04 to 2006-07:

Total expenditure and the expenditure per head of population under Mental Health in England and Sefton PCT for financial years 2003-04 to 2006-07

2006-07	9,125,740	49,632	183	166

[1] For consistency the expenditure figure include substance abuse. Data cannot be separated for earlier years. In 2006-07, £716,330 was spent on substance abuse, 7.8 per cent. of the total Mental Health expenditure.

[2] Values for financial years 2003-04 to 2005-06 are based on the programme budgeting and population data for South Sefton PCT and Southport and Formby PCT, which merged to form Sefton PCT in 2006-07.

Mental Health Services: Restraint Techniques

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 21 February 2008, Official Report, column 961W, on mental health services: restraint techniques, (1) whether it will be mandatory for all staff engaged in physical restraint interventions to receive accredited training; [250580]

(2) when he expects accredited training in the therapeutic management of violence to be implemented; [250581]

(3) when he expects the guidance of the National Institute for Mental Health in England to be published; [250582]

(4) whether all responses to the National Institute for Mental Health in England consultation on The National Minimum Standards for the Safe and Therapeutic Management of Aggression and Violence in Mental Health In-patient Settings have now been considered. [250583]

(5) with reference to the answer of 20 February 2008, Official Report, column 812W, on mental health services: training, whether all staff working in mental health and learning disability services have now received the Promoting Safer and Therapeutic Services syllabus training in line with his Department's March 2008 target. [250584]

Phil Hope: We remain committed to the principle of accreditation of training in the management of aggression in psychiatric settings and are discussing the detail and management of a proposal with key stakeholders. We hope to make a further announcement in the spring. The additional guidance will be published when the proposal is agreed.

Responses to the consultation on the national minimum standards for the safe and therapeutic management of aggression of aggression and violence in mental health inpatient settings have been considered.

Figures collected by the National Health Service Security Management Service in December 2007 show that 88 per cent. of frontline staff working in NHS mental health and learning disability bodies had received the Promoting Safer and Therapeutic Services syllabus training. NHS bodies reported that by March 2008 98 per cent. of frontline staff would have received this training.

Mental Health Services: Training

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what training his Department will make available to independent mental health advocates before the statutory obligation to commission independent mental health advocates comes into force on 1 April 2009; and whether that training will be mandatory. [250741]

Phil Hope: To help prepare for the introduction of independent mental health advocates (IMHAs), the Department has commissioned the National Institute for Mental Health in England to run regional one-day training workshops for potential IMHAs, mental health advocates and health and social care professionals. These workshops will run prior to 1 April 2009 and attendance will be voluntary.

Midwives: Gloucestershire

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many full-time equivalent midwives were in post at (a) Gloucestershire Royal hospital, (b) Cheltenham General hospital and (c) Stroud maternity ward in each of the last two years. [250785]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally, below trust level. The following table shows the number of full-time equivalent midwives in post in Gloucestershire primary care trust and Gloucestershire Hospital NHS Foundation Trust under which the hospitals and ward in question fall.

NHS hospital and community health services: Qualified midwifery staff in each specified organisation as at 30 September each specified year

Musculoskeletal Disorders: Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made on the scoping study of the provision of NHS and social care rehabilitation services, as referred to on page 24 of his Department's Musculoskeletal Services Framework of July 2006; and what opportunities have been identified to improve such NHS-funded services. [249158]

Ann Keen: The scoping study of the provision of national health service and social care rehabilitation services has not been completed.

Musculoskeletal Disorders: Medical Treatments

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the critical mass of annual (a) shoulder replacement, (b) ankle replacement, (c) elbow replacement and (d) scoliosis correction procedures is, as referred to on page 40 of his Department's Musculoskeletal Services Framework of July 2006. [249159]

Ann Keen: The Department has not undertaken a review of the levels of critical mass required in the provision of shoulder replacement, ankle replacement and elbow replacement.

The National Specialist Commissioning Group are currently reviewing scoliosis treatment and will be working with specialist providers in developing this work.

Musculoskeletal Disorders: Pharmacy

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in what ways the community pharmacy contractual framework has enabled pharmacists to help people with musculoskeletal conditions since 2006 as referred to on page 22 of his Department's Musculoskeletal Services Framework of July 2006; and if he will make a statement. [249157]

Phil Hope: In addition to their traditional role of advising people on how to take their medicines to best effect, the community pharmacy contractual framework, introduced in April 2005 has improved the quality and range of services that pharmacists offer to patients and the public, including those with musculoskeletal conditions by:

including support for self care, providing healthy lifestyle advice and signposting people to other service providers as essential services provided by all community pharmacies;

introducing medicines use reviews by accredited pharmacists in accredited premises to review patients' current medicines in discussion with the patient to ensure they get the maximum benefit from them and resolve any problems the person may be encountering with them; and offering a range of locally-commissioned services that can benefit those with musculoskeletal conditions, such as stopping smoking, home delivery and full clinical medication reviews.

The White Paper, Pharmacy in England: Building on Strengths—delivering the future proposes to extend the range of services provided by pharmacies especially for people with long-term conditions including introducing a support service for people newly prescribed medicines for a long term condition within the community pharmacy contractual framework. Discussions will be held with NHS Employers and the Pharmaceutical Services Negotiating Committee to see how such a service can be incorporated into the framework.

These figures relate to incidents as they are reported. In practice and after investigation, many incidents are found to be local hardware, software or infrastructure problems, or they are re-categorised with the agreement of the user. The figures should therefore not be interpreted as being a reflection of system performance.

Performance figures are published on the NHS Connecting for Health website to show performance against service level agreements (SLAs). The actual performance against the SLAs shows a good service.

Some 91 per cent. of NASP severity 1 incidents, and some 94 per cent. of NASP severity 2 incidents in the table relate to reports relating to the NHS national broadband network (N3) where there are around 27,000 individual service connections against which incidents can be logged.

NICE: Weber-Shandwick

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what payments the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence has made to Weber-Shandwick for public (a) affairs and (b) relations work since its inception. [250235]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not held centrally. Payments made by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) to external companies are a matter for NICE as an independent body.

Personal Injury: Compensation

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many occasions the Compensation Recovery Unit challenged the statements of insurers and their agents on medical treatment in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [250680]

Mr. Bradshaw: As part of the administration of the NHS injury cost recovery scheme, the compensation recovery unit (CRU) is required to conduct compliance checks. CRU uses risk based sampling to identify cases to be challenged. In 2007-08, 60,440 of these checks were completed.

Pharmacy

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with the Office of Fair Trading on follow-up work arising from the OFT's investigation of control of entry regulations in the pharmacy market. [250933]

Phil Hope: The OFT report "The control of entry regulations and retail pharmacy services in the UK", was published in January 2003. Since then, officials have had various meetings with the OFT to discuss matters of mutual interest.

The OFT gave evidence to a review led by Anne Galbraith, former chair of the Prescription Pricing Authority, in spring 2007. Her report "Review of NHS pharmaceutical contractual arrangements", was published in April 2008 alongside the White Paper "Pharmacy in England: Building on strengths—delivering the future. A copy of the report has been placed in the Library and is also available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_083815

OFT and departmental officials have also met recently to discuss issues arising from the 2008 pharmacy White Paper consultation "Pharmacy in England: Building on strengths—delivering the future—proposals for legislative reform".

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps he plans to take to link primary care trusts' pharmaceutical needs assessments to strategic planning and commissioning processes; [250934]

(2) what steps his Department has taken to ensure that each primary care trust area has an up-to-date pharmaceutical needs assessment in place. [250935]

Phil Hope: The White Paper "Pharmacy in England: Building on strengths—delivering the future" highlighted that primary care trust pharmaceutical needs assessments should contribute to joint strategic needs assessments, which all PCTs and upper-tier local authorities have a duty to undertake. The support programme on pharmaceutical needs assessment being devised for PLTs, led by NHS Employers, is expected to include guidance on linking joint strategic needs assessment and pharmaceutical needs assessment.

Following publication of the White Paper, the Department asked NHS Employers to set up a short-term working group to review requirements for pharmaceutical needs assessments and to develop a support programme for primary care trusts. The first element of this programme—"Pharmaceutical Needs Assessments (PNAs) as part of world class commissioning—Guidance for primary care trusts", was published on 7 January 2009. A copy has been placed in the Library and it is also available at:

www.nhsemployers.org/PNAguidance.

More resources will follow later this spring. In addition, as part of the world class commissioning programme, the Department plans to publish further information for PCTs on how to commission pharmaceutical services.

The Department first advised primary care trusts to undertake pharmaceutical needs assessments in 2004-05. However, our White Paper stated that while many PCTs have reviewed these assessments or plan to do so, not all PCTs had yet considered the need to either update or review their assessments. The Health Bill 2009 introduced on 15 January 2009 contains proposals to require primary care trusts to assess pharmaceutical needs in their area and to publish a statement of those needs. Subject to parliamentary approval, new regulations, to be derived from powers in the Bill, will set out the requirements for how and when these assessments should be carried out.

Primary Care Trusts: Hampshire

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent on administration by (a) Hampshire Primary Care Trust, (b) Southampton PCT and (c) their predecessor trusts (i) in total and (ii) per capita in each year since 1997. [250158]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is shown in the following tables. Data have been provided for the period 2001-02 to 2007-08, which are the only years available by individual organisation.

Notes:

Main procedure

The main procedure is the first recorded procedure or intervention in the Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) data set and is usually the most resource intensive procedure or intervention performed during the episode. It is appropriate to use main procedure when looking at admission details, (e.g. time waited), but a more complete count of episodes with a particular procedure is obtained by looking at the main and the secondary procedure.

Hip replacement procedures: Total Hip Replacement

OPCS-4.2 codes

W37—Total prosthetic replacement of hip joint using cement
W38—Total prosthetic replacement of hip joint not using cement
W39—Other total prosthetic replacement of hip joint

W37.4—Revision of one component of total prosthetic replacement of hip joint using cement
W38.4—Revision of one component of total prosthetic replacement of hip joint not using cement
W39.5—Revision of one component of total prosthetic replacement of hip joint NEC
W39.6—Closed reduction of dislocated total prosthetic replacement of hip joint W93—Hybrid prosthetic replacement of hip joint using cemented acetabular component
W94—Hybrid prosthetic replacement of hip joint using cemented femoral component
W95—Hybrid prosthetic replacement of hip joint using cement

Hip replacement procedures: Total Prosthetic Replacement of Head of Femur

(These codes are included because they are for replacement of part of the hip joint.)

OPCS-4.2 codes

W46—Prosthetic replacement of head of femur using cement
W47—Prosthetic replacement of head of femur not using cement
W48—Other prosthetic replacement of head of femur

Additions in OPCS-4.3

W48.5—Closed reduction of dislocated prosthetic replacement of head of femur

Additions in OPCS-4.3

W40.4—Revision of one component of total prosthetic replacement of knee joint using cement
W41.4—Revision of one component of total prosthetic replacement of knee joint not using cement

W42.5—Revision of one component of total prosthetic replacement of knee joint NEC
Hemiarthroplasty, unicondylar or unicompartmental knee replacements
(These codes are included because they are for replacement of part of the knee joint.)

For the following codes (W52-W54) a site code is required in the secondary position. Both codes must be included in the search. The site codes are also listed as follows.

OPCS-4.2, 4.3

W52—Prosthetic replacement of articulation of other bone using cement
W53—Prosthetic replacement of articulation of other bone not using cement
W54—Other prosthetic replacement of articulation of other bone

The possible site codes, which would occur in a secondary procedure position (see footnote), are as follows:

Z76.5—Lower end of femur NEC
Z77.4—Upper end of tibia NEC
Z84.4—Patellofemoral joint
Z84.5—Tibiofemoral joint
Z84.6—Knee joint

Secondary procedure

As well as the main operative procedure, there are up to 11 and 3 prior to 2002-03 secondary operative procedure fields in HES that show secondary or additional procedures performed on the patient during the episode of care.

Data quality

HES are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts (PCTs) in England. Data is also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Ungrossed data

Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in the data, i.e. the data are ungrossed.

Time waited (days)

Time waited statistics from HES are not the same as the published waiting list statistics. HES provides counts and time waited for all patients admitted to hospital within a given period, whereas the published waiting list statistics count those waiting for treatment on a specific date and how long they have been on the waiting list. Also, HES calculates the time waited as the difference between the admission and decision to admit dates. Unlike published waiting list statistics, this is not adjusted for self-deferrals or periods of medical/social suspension.

PCT/strategic health authority (SHA) data quality

PCT and SHA data was added to historic data years in the HES database using 2002-03 boundaries, as a one-off exercise in 2004. The quality of the data on PCT of treatment and SHA of treatment is poor in 1996-97, 1997-98 and 1998-99, with over a third of all finished episodes having missing values in these years. Data quality of PCT of general practitioner (GP) practice and SHA of GP practice in 1997-98 and 1998-99 is also poor, with a high proportion missing values where practices changed or ceased to exist. There is less change in completeness of the residence-based fields over time, where the majority of unknown values are due to missing postcodes on birth episodes. Users of time series analysis including these years need to be aware of these issues in their interpretation of the data.

The PCTs used are as follows:
5P3—West Hertfordshire PCT
5P4—East and North Hertfordshire PCT

Method of admission

The method of admission is how the patient was admitted to hospital. When calculating time waited, admissions are elective so the following methods are used:
11 Elective—from waiting list
12 Elective—booked
Code '13 Elective—planned' is not included as it has been the patients choice to defer.

Tobacco: Sales

Mr. Dhanda: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will offer financial assistance to small businesses to cover the costs incurred in removing cigarette displays in shops. [250718]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government currently have no such plans.

Tuberculosis: AIDS

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of people who presented with tuberculosis in 2008 were subsequently diagnosed with acquired immune deficiency syndrome. [250127]

Dawn Primarolo: Data for tuberculosis (TB) and HIV co-infection for 2008 are not yet available. The most recent data available are for 2005.

Data from the Health Protection Agency (HPA) indicates that, in 2005, the proportion of cases of tuberculosis in England aged 15 years and over co-infected with HIV was 7.9 per cent.

Notes:

1. This figure is based on the retrospective matching of the national Enhanced Tuberculosis Surveillance database (ETS) and the national HIV/AIDS reports database.

2. Matching is carried out retrospectively because there is often considerable delay in reporting of cases and data are, therefore, available for 2005 only at present.

3. This figure also includes HIV/AIDS patients with TB as an AIDS defining illness who were not identified in the national TB database.

4. The proportion provided is for all cases of co-infection with TB and HIV because we do not have information on which infection was acquired first.

5. This figure does not include cases of co-infection in children because HIV in children is reported separately.

Vaccination: Costs

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost to the NHS of a single dose of DTP vaccine was in each year since 2000. [251409]

Dawn Primarolo: A vaccine containing diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis (DTP) only, has not been distributed since October 2004 because DTP has been combined with other vaccines. The individual cost of vaccine and the total cost to Government, is commercial-in-confidence.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding since it was established; and how much funding was provided to each. [247361]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I am advised that this question can be answered only by incurring disproportionate costs.

Coal: Imports

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much coal from what countries of origin was imported in the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available. [250054]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The following table shows how much coal has been imported by country of origin in 2007. Data for 2008 will be published in the Digest of UK Energy Statistics in July 2009.

	Thousand tonnes
Russia	20,854
Republic of South Africa	7,742
Australia	4,260
Colombia	3,854
United States of America	2,523
Canada	1,771
Indonesia	1,455
People's Republic of China	265
European Union	495
Other countries	146
Total all countries	43,365

Diesel: Prices

Mrs. McGuire: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps the Government are taking to ensure that energy companies reduce diesel prices in line with both crude oil and petrol prices. [250305]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I recently met with the UK Petroleum Industry Association, which represents fuel retailers, to impress upon them the urgency in passing on any reductions in costs to consumers. Recent increases in the difference between petrol and diesel retail prices are due to a relative shortage of the availability of wholesale diesel due to constraints in refinery capacity.

The Office of Fair Trading is responsible for ensuring that UK markets are competitive.

Energy: Prices

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps he is taking to encourage energy suppliers to (a) publicise the availability of and (b) maximise take-up of social tariffs by eligible customers. [249200]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Suppliers agreed at the fuel poverty summit organised by Ofgem in April 2008, to provide greater visibility of their offers. Following this Ofgem has worked with the suppliers to ensure that information about their social tariffs and programmes and a contact phone number for consumers to check their eligibility, is available on all the suppliers' websites.

Energy suppliers have committed to collectively spend £100 million this year, rising to £125 million next year and £150 million by 2011 on social assistance. In order to meet this commitment to Government the suppliers need to inform their customers about the assistance available to vulnerable groups through their social tariff scheme.

Expenditure on suppliers' social assistance is monitored by Ofgem and they estimated, in a report published in December 2008, that over 800,000 customer accounts are now benefiting from a social tariff. This is a significant increase, almost doubling, since March 2008 which is a good indication of the level of awareness of the assistance suppliers offer.

Fuel Poverty

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what his most recent estimate is of the number of people (a) in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency, (b) the Tees Valley, (c) the North-East and (d) the UK who are living in fuel poverty; and what forecast he has made of the number of people in the North-East who will be living in fuel poverty in 10 years' time. [249566]

Joan Ruddock: The most recent year for which sub-regional estimates of fuel poverly are available is 2003. The data for fuel poverty levels for 2003 come from the fuel poverty indicator dataset available online at:

http://www.fuelpovertyindicator.org.uk

In 2003, there were around (a) 2,400 fuel poor households in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland; (b) 17,700 fuel poor households in the Tees Valley; (c) 95,000 fuel poor households in the North-East; and (d) two million fuel poor households in the UK.

No regional projections have been made of fuel poverty.

Fuel poverty is not measured at an individual level.

Nuclear Power: France

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what discussions he has had with the French Government on nuclear fuel recycling following the agreement between the UK and France to co-operate on nuclear energy. [248541]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: No further discussions yet have taken place with the French Government on nuclear fuel recycling following the agreement between the UK and France to co-operate on nuclear energy.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Arms Trade: Israel

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what information his Department holds on the number of F16 jets used by the Israeli air force in the recent military operation over Gaza which contain British-made components; and what steps the Government have taken to ensure that none of the British-made heads up units were incorporated in Israeli F16 jets involved in bombing Gaza recently. [249635]

Ian Pearson: This Department does not hold any such information.

The UK operates a licensing system built around pre-licensing assessment whereby it assesses the risk of misuse of UK supplied equipment before deciding whether or not to grant a licence. All export licence applications are carefully assessed on a case-by-case basis against the Consolidated EU and National Arms Export Licensing Criteria. Judgments on export licence applications take account of the information and circumstances at the time of application. HMG seeks advice from its advisors in its diplomatic posts overseas in relation to all export licence applications, including for Israel.

Construction: Apprentices

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will take steps to ensure that construction companies undertaking public sector infrastructure works are required to employ apprentices. [244277]

Mr. Simon: I have been asked to reply.

Over the last 10 years this Government have rescued the apprenticeships programme, more than doubling the number of starts to over 180,000 in 2006/07.

To support apprenticeships in construction, Government Departments and agencies have now committed that when they let a new construction contract, they will consider making it a requirement that successful contractors employ apprentices as a proportion of the project work force. We estimate that this will support some 7,000 apprenticeships over the next three years.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department and its agencies provides for staff. [249067]

Mr. McFadden: This Department does not directly operate any catering facilities. Catering in our main BERR buildings in central London is provided by our contracted service provider, Baxter Storey. This includes a staff restaurant and a coffee shop in 1 Victoria Street and a cafe area in Kingsgate House, 66-74 Victoria Street.

I have approached the chief executives of the Insolvency Service and Companies House and they will respond to the hon. Member directly.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 26 January 2009:

The Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has asked me to reply to your question (2008/566) what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department and its agencies provides for staff.

The Insolvency Service does not provide catering outlets for its staff. However, we do provide free tea and coffee for customers and staff.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 26 January 2009:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question, reference 249067, to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Companies House has two staff canteens operated by a third party contractor.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what percentage of contractors and suppliers to (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have reported that they are compliant with the Government's security standards following publication of the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government, and the accompanying document, Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action, on 25 June 2008. [245319]

Mr. McFadden: BERR's Information Asset Owners work with their service delivery partners to ensure adherence with the operating principles and standards set out in the Government's report on Data Handling Procedures in Government.

I have asked the chief executives of Companies House and the Insolvency Service to respond to the hon. Member directly.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 26 January 2008:

The Minister of State, for the Department of Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) has asked me to reply to you directly in respect of your question (2008/346) asking what percentage of contractors and suppliers to (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have reported that they are compliant with the Government's security standards following publication of the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government, and the accompanying document, Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum action, June 2008.

The Insolvency Service wrote to its contractors and suppliers in November 2008 regarding compliance with 'Data Handling Procedures in Government'. To date we have had 34 replies confirming positive compliance, representing 47% of the total issued.

Letter from Gareth Jones dated 26 January 2009:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

We identified seven suppliers as part of the Cabinet Office Data Handling Review and have asked them to complete a questionnaire showing their status with regard to the Data Handling Procedures. Of those, four have returned the questionnaire. Subject to minor clarifications, we are content that all four are generally compliant with the procedures and working toward full compliance where applicable. We are actively chasing the remaining three suppliers for their returns.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have which allow contractors to store personal data of UK citizens overseas; for which contracts this applies; in which countries the data for each contract is held; and how many people have their data stored overseas in the case of each such contract. [245336]

Mr. McFadden: BERR is not aware of any jurisdictions other than the UK where any personal data are held.

I have asked the chief executives of Companies House and the Insolvency Service to respond to the hon. Member directly.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 26 January 2009:

The Minister of State, for the Department of Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) has asked me to reply to you directly in respect of your question (2008/347) asking how many contracts (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have which allow contractors to store personal data of UK citizens overseas; for which contracts this applies; in which countries for each contract is held; and how many people have their data stored overseas in each case of each such contract.

The Insolvency Service supplies personal information to two contractors based outside the UK.

The first is to a company based in the United States. The data supplied comprises details of unclaimed monies; name of estate from which the payment was made; amount and date of payment; name and address of payee. The company's role is to trace the creditors who are owed the unclaimed monies and report this information back to the Insolvency Service. Approximately 2,500 records are provided to the company each year.

The second is a company based in France. This company is used to process Insolvency Service staff claims and is only provided with a limited amount personal information, being: staff name, pay number, grade and payment amount. Sensitive personal information, such as the bank account details are not shared with this company and is only amalgamated when the claims are back in the UK on The Insolvency Service IT System. Approximately 3,500 staff have their names and other limited personal data stores on this system.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 26 January 2009:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Companies House does have any contracts that allow storage of personal data overseas.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what percentage of the IT systems in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies is fully accredited to the Government's security standards. [245300]

Mr. McFadden: All IT systems in BERR are fully accredited to the Government's Security Standards.

BERR agency chief executives will be responding separately regarding IT systems in their organisations.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 26 January 2009:

The Minister of State, for the Department of Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) has asked me to reply to you directly on behalf of the Insolvency Service in respect of your question (2008/349) what percentage of the IT systems in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies are fully accredited to the Government's security standards.

I would like to answer the second part of your question in relation to the Insolvency Service. Its legacy infrastructure was accredited to Government standards when first introduced but it cannot meet current standards. However, the service is some way through a major overhaul of its core IT system which will then be subject to the accreditation process.

Our principal case management systems are many years old and did not go through a separate accreditation process. However these systems are due to be replaced in the next 6 months by new systems which will be accredited as they are introduced.

A recent review has identified a small number of applications which have a medium term life and are not adequately accredited. These will be put through a retrospective accreditation.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 26 January 2009:

I am responding on behalf of Companies House to your recently tabled Parliamentary Question to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Companies House is certified to ISO/IEC 27001:2005. This effectively covers all IT systems provided in-house.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when the Minister of State for Trade plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 24 October 2008 on the findings of the Community Pubs Inquiry report. [242434]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 11 December 2008]: I have been asked to reply.

I wrote to the hon. Member on 21 January and am sorry for the delay in doing so. I hope to respond to the findings in the Community Pubs Inquiry report shortly. The recommendations cover the policy interests of several Government Departments and DCMS is collating a Government response.

Motor Vehicles: Industry

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions he has had with trade unions in Wales about the economic difficulties facing the car industry. [247557]

Ian Pearson: BERR Ministers and officials regularly have discussions with business and trade unions on issues relating to the car industry.

Small Businesses: Bank Services

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent steps the Government have taken to assist small businesses to obtain lending from high street banks. [248318]

Ian Pearson: In the pre-Budget report on 24 November 2008, my right hon. Friend the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced a package of Government support for small and medium sized businesses to help them through the current economic difficulties.

Since then the Government have been working alongside the banks, business organisations and financial organisations to ensure that we speedily transform this announcement into real help for business.

On 14 January 2009, as part of the Government's Real Help for Business, my noble Friend the Secretary of State for Business, announced that businesses can now access the full range of support.

Information on the range of schemes that are available can be found at:

http://www.businesslink.gov.uk/realhelp

Small Businesses: Procurement

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many contracts were awarded to small and medium-sized enterprises through the supply2.gov.uk website in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; how many he expects to be so awarded in 2008-09; and what estimate he has made of the monetary value of such contracts. [246771]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 12 January 2009]: The supply2.gov.uk site offers consolidated access to public sector opportunities and allows businesses to search and view open lower-value contract opportunities in a single place. It does not measure contract awards. No estimate is available for the number or value of contracts won through the site.

Small Businesses: VAT

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations he has received on the effect on small businesses of administering the temporary change to the rate of value added tax. [249649]

Ian Pearson: The Department is in regular contact with small businesses and their representatives on a range of issues, including VAT. HMRC provides advice and guidance to all VAT registered businesses, and is the primary contact point for any issues arising.

Textiles: Imports

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his policy is on the importation of fur from Canadian black seals for use in making hats; and if he will make a statement. [248340]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The Government's opposition to the annual Canadian seal hunt is well known and remains unchanged. We have lobbied to promote EU-wide action and we are pleased that on 23 July 2008, the European Commission proposed an EU-wide ban on the import, export and sale of seal products from a range of species where it cannot be proved that the seals were killed without suffering avoidable pain or distress. The Government welcome this proposal and is working with the European Commission to introduce effective legislation as quickly as possible. Our aim is for a complete ban on the commercial trade in all pinniped products (i.e. seals, sea lions and walrus).

Whitehall and Industry Group

Mr. Maude: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the (a) objectives and (b) functions are of the Whitehall and Industry Group. [250470]

Ian Pearson: The objective of the Whitehall and Industry Group (WIG), which is an independent, neutral, not-for-profit organisation, is to provide a bridge between the private sector and Government for mutual learning and benefit.

It does this through various means, including by arranging people exchanges between organisations; by organising events on particular issues to promote engagement between business and Government, and by running cross-sector leadership programmes.

Further information about WIG can be found on its website:

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support Agency

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether he has authorised the Child Support Agency's implementation of its agency steer under its Operational Improvement Plan. [244000]

Kitty Ussher: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, whether he has authorised the Child Support Agency's implementation of its agency steer under its Operational Improvement Plan.[244000]

The Child Support Agency's three year Operational Improvement Plan, was announced by the then Secretary of State John Hutton in February 2006. He endorsed the measures set out in the plan designed to increase the amount of maintenance flowing to children. Ministers continue to be briefed regularly on the Agency's progress in implementing the plan. I understand however that your question refers in particular to the Agency's efforts to collect arrears of child maintenance.

It may be helpful if I explain that it is the Commission's position that child maintenance arrears should be paid immediately. Where this is not possible the Child Support Agency will attempt to negotiate the payment of a lump sum, by reference to the available information about the non-resident parent's current financial commitments to support them in negotiating the maximum amount possible. The Agency may also enter an agreement with the non-resident parent to recover all arrears as quickly as possible. In the absence of any exceptional circumstances this will normally be within two years.

The Agency has been given the power under regulation 11 of the Child Support (Collection and Enforcement) Regulations 1992 to impose a deduction from earnings order to collect an amount of money which does not exceed 40% of a liable person's net earnings. Similarly, sections 35, 36 39a and 40 of the Child Support Act 1991 set out the other main enforcement powers the Agency can employ when seeking the payment of child maintenance arrears. The commitment set out in the Operational Improvement Plan was to consistently and effectively apply these powers to ensure that maintenance flows to children when they need it most.

As a result, the Agency is collecting more child maintenance arrears than it has ever done before and in September 2008 collected £14.6 million in maintenance arrears alone, more than twice the average amount collected each month before the introduction of the Operational Improvement Plan. Between 1 April and 30 September 2008, the Agency has collected £80.3 million in arrears, bringing to almost £297 million the total collected in maintenance arrears since April 2006.

The Child Maintenance and Other Payments Act 2008 will strengthen the range of enforcement and debt management powers available to the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. The Commission will bring these powers into force as soon as practicable in order to build on the Agency's improvements and will continue to focus on collection of outstanding arrears.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Children: Maintenance

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much and what proportion of outstanding child maintenance arrears were recovered in each month since May 1997. [242178]

Kitty Ussher: The administration of the child maintenance system is a matter for the Commissioner of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how much and what proportion of outstanding child maintenance arrears were recovered in each month since May 1997. [242178]

This information is available in Table 19.5 of the September 2008 Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary of Statistics (QSS). The latest version is available in the House of Commons library or online at the following link:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_sep08.asp.

The amount of arrears collected in each month from April 2003 to September 2008 is provided in the attached table. Levels of arrears are not recorded in the format you requested prior to the introduction of the current computer system (CS2) in 2003.

The information you requested on the proportion of outstanding child maintenance arrears recovered is not available. Since June 2006, the Child Support Agency has been contracting out the collection of some arrears to debt collection agencies. For cases managed by debt collection agencies, the agreement to pay back the maintenance arrears and in particular, the amount to be paid each month is a matter between the debt collection agency and the non-resident parent. As such, the Agency no longer has the information to assess cash compliance for all cases. Whilst the total amount of debt is known, the monthly amount of arrears the non-resident parent is expected to pay the debt collection agency is not.

In September 2008, the Agency collected or arranged £98.7 million in maintenance of which £14.6 million was arrears. This is the highest level of maintenance and arrears collected or arranged by the Agency in one month ever.

Notes:

1. Amounts of maintenance collected for recent months are subject to minor revisions.

2. Figures are rounded to the nearest 0.1 million.

3. The amount of arrears received was previously being under counted due to the omission of up to £2 million worth of payments to the Agency. DWP have completed work to correct this. More detail can be found on the contents page.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average amount of maintenance recovered by the Child Support Agency was from all cases (a) with maintenance outstanding and (b) in which maintenance has been recovered in each month since May 1997. [242193]

Kitty Ussher: The administration of the child maintenance system is a matter for the Commissioner of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what the average amount of maintenance recovered by the Child Support Agency was from all cases (a) with maintenance outstanding and (b) in which maintenance has been recovered in each month since May 1997. [242193]

The attached table sets out the average amount of maintenance arrears collected in all cases including those cases where payments have not been received. It also sets out the average amount of child maintenance arrears collected in those cases where a payment has been received. This information, which is only available for cases from March 2003, shows the significant increase in the amount of arrears collected by the Agency in the last three years.

The Agency's three year Operational Improvement Plan, launched in April 2006 focused on improving compliance and enforcement, to increase the amount of money flowing to children. In the twelve months to September 2008, the Agency collected or arranged almost £1.1 billion in child maintenance, of which £149 million was arrears. This is an 84% increase in arrears collected compared to the year to March 2006.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for what reasons some Child Support Agency cases are processed clerically; and how procedures differ between those cases processed clerically and those processed electronically. [246578]

Kitty Usher: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, for what reasons some Child Support Agency cases are processed clerically; and how procedures differ between those cases processed clerically and those processed electronically. [246578]

Cases are processed clerically when for technical reasons it is not possible for them to be progressed using the CS2 computer system.

All cases, including those being managed clerically at the Bolton office, are subject to the same legislative and procedural rules.

This arrangement has been beneficial to clients as it ensures the efficient processing of their case through to successful maintenance outcome. By the end of September 2008, almost £60 million in child maintenance had been passed to parents with care whose cases are processed clerically. Clerical cases represent less than 3% of the Agency's total caseload.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of non-resident parents in receipt of benefit are subject to deductions from earnings orders which specify the payment of £5 per week. [249023]

Kitty Usher: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what proportion of non-resident parents in receipt of benefit are subject to Deduction from Earnings Orders which specify the payment of £5 per week. [249023]

The Commission contacted you to clarify your question. It was confirmed that the answer requested was for the proportion of non-resident parents on benefit and working part-time who are subject to a Deduction from Earnings Order with a weekly liability of £5.

At the end of February 2008, the latest date for which information is available, there were 306,400 cases with a calculation where the status of the non-resident parent is recorded as being on benefit. Around 500 of these cases, under 0.2%, are subject to a Deduction from Earnings Order, or Deduction from Earnings Request, where the weekly liability is £5.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average weekly child maintenance payment to parents with care in receipt of means-tested benefits was in the latest period for which information is available. [249625]

Kitty Usher [holding answer 20 January 2009]: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the Hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner, as the Child Support Agency is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what the average weekly child maintenance payment to parents with care in receipt of means-tested benefits was in the latest period for which information is available. [249625]

The latest benefits data available is from the quarter ending February 2008. This shows that the Agency collected or arranged child maintenance on behalf of 161,000 parents with care who were also in receipt of Income Support or income based Jobseeker's Allowance. The information available is recorded monthly. The average monthly amount of maintenance collected or arranged in February 2008 on these cases was £113. This includes both regular maintenance and maintenance arrears.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Children: Poverty

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what factors his Department has identified as the main causes of child poverty. [250438]

Kitty Usher: We published 'Ending Child Poverty: Everybody's Business' in March 2008, which highlights the main causes and outcomes of child poverty. The report identified that children raised in workless households are at far greater risk of poverty than those in working households. Other causes of child poverty are a lack of skills and educational qualifications, parents or children with a disability or poor health, low aspirations and living in deprived communities and communities with higher crime rates.

For those who can, work remains the surest and most sustainable route out of poverty. Our policies on welfare reform, childcare, back to work help, skills development and in-work support will further increase parental employment and family income.

Legislation, planned for this session, will ensure all levels of Government play their part in delivering these policies and meeting our target to eradicate child poverty by 2020.

Departmental Air Travel

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East of 6 October 2008, Official Report, column 58W, on carbon emissions: Government departments, what distance of air travel was offset by his Department and its participating agencies in 2007-08; and what proportion of such travel was (a) domestic, (b) short-haul and (c) long-haul. [250038]

Jonathan Shaw: I would refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 19 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1018-19W.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in the last five years; how much has been spent on wallpaper since 2001; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248059]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department has an estates private finance initiative contract with Trillium for the provision of fully fitted and serviced accommodation and for which the Department pays an all inclusive unitary charge. This unitary charge includes a risk price element for all aspects of building maintenance, repair, routine decoration and refurbishment, known as Life Cycle Works. These separate elements cannot be disaggregated from the overall expenditure on Life Cycle Works. The Department has made no expenditure on wallpaper since 2001. Any future expenditure on decoration will be provided for within the unitary charge.

Some "improvements" are not covered by the unitary charge and are funded separately as capital expenditure. Capital expenditure includes major projects, and the fit-out of new buildings, such as the rollout of the new Jobcentre Plus network and other departmental initiatives in the Pension Service and Debt Management. The Department's capital expenditure on these major projects in the last five years is provided in the following table. Separate costs for "decorating" and "otherwise improving" could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

DWP capital expenditure on major projects 2003-04 to 2007-08

	£ million
2003-04	282.3
2004-05	117.3
2005-06	278.9
2006-07	162.2
2007-08	48.2

Departmental Catering

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department and its agencies provides for staff. [249086]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department has a Private Finance Initiative contract with Trillium for the provision of fully fitted and serviced accommodation, which includes catering. Trillium delivers the catering service through its service partner, Eurest.

Catering is provided in 133 Department for Work and Pensions locations. All of these catering outlets are directly operated by Eurest and there are no franchised outlets. A list of all 133 locations which have catering outlets has been placed in the Library.

Departmental Databases

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East of 13 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1303-4W, on departmental databases, if he will list each of the identified postcode sectors in the 50 local authorities that ACORN analysis was used to target the Central Office of Information marketing and advertising. [250298]

Jonathan Shaw: We have placed in the House Library the list of postcode sectors identified through ACORN analysis for the No Ifs, No Buts Targeting Benefit Fraud campaign.

Departmental Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248702]

Jonathan Shaw: The information is as follows:

End of year performance bonuses

DWP employees in pay bands below the senior civil service are eligible for an annual individual performance bonus if they attain a "top", "higher" or "majority" rating under the annual performance and development system. The amount of bonus awarded is differentiated on the basis of an employee's pay band and the performance level achieved.

For the senior civil service end of year bonuses are determined on an individual basis by the relevant DWP SCS Pay Committee.

Performance awards are payable in July and are attributable to performance in the previous financial year. In the 2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09 financial years a total of £40.68 million, £36.61 million and £23.32 million has been paid respectively. This is broken down as follows:

Table 1: Department total

Financial year	Total paid (£ million)	Total number of recipients
2006-07	40.68	116,096
2007-08	36.61	111,943
2008-09	23.32	107,726

Financial year	Total paid (£ million)	Total number of recipients
2006-07	39.01	115,896
2007-08	34.88	111,741
2008-09	21.50	107,518

Table 3: Total SCS

Financial year	Total paid (£ million)	Total number of recipients
2006-07	1.67	200
2007-08	1.73	202
2008-09	1.82	208

Notes:

1. The information in tables 1 and 2 is based on the numbers of employees recorded on the DWP payroll systems as having received a qualifying performance mark. These are headcount.
2. Some individuals may have received more than one type of bonus payment in the year, which is why the information has been presented separately and not as an aggregated total.
3. The performance bonus is paid in the financial year following the performance year of 1 April to 31 March.
4. The total amount paid includes Employers National Insurance Contribution (ERNIC).
5. In-year cash bonus data was previously held on a separate IT system. Data from this system can be obtained only from a third party and there would be a cost ascribed to this provision. This would bring the cost of answering this PQ to above the threshold considered proportionate.
6. These figures are the best available.

Special bonus and voucher payments

Individuals may also be entitled to special bonus payments either as cash or retail vouchers. Vouchers, as an alternative to cash payments, were introduced in May 2006 These are one-off recognition awards, payable at any time during the performance year and are not linked to the annual pay award.

It is not possible to provide separate data for in-year cash bonuses across three years. However, the cost in a typical year for cash bonuses is around £2.7 million with payments made to approximately 11,250 individuals (based on 2007-08 payments).

The cost for voucher payments was £0.9 million in 2006-07, £1.77 million in 2007-08 and £1.03 million in 2008-09.

Disability Living Allowance: Children

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many claims have been (a) received and (b) approved for disability living allowance for children below the age of (i) 18, (ii) 16 and (iii) 10 years in each year since 1990; and if he will make a statement. [248617]

Jonathan Shaw: Information is not available in the format requested. The available information is in the following table.

Disability Living Allowance cases in payment by age for those aged less than 18

	All	Under 10	10-15	16-17

Disability Living Allowance: Fuels

Sir Robert Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his most recent estimate is of the proportion of disability living allowance likely to be spent on the recipient's fuel bills. [251109]

Jonathan Shaw: No estimate has been made. Recipients of disability living allowance are free to spend their benefit according to their own priorities.

Discrimination: Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans he has to extend the consultation period for "Improving Protection From Disability Discrimination" in line with criterion 2 of the Government's Code of Practice, as set out by the Cabinet Office; and if he will make a statement. [249474]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 2 January 2009]: The Government have no plans to extend the consultation period on "Improving Protection From Disability Discrimination".

I explained in my foreword to the consultation document that it was necessary to have a short consultation period to ensure that proper consideration could be given to how any legislative proposal would fit with the provisions in the forthcoming Equality Bill.

In order to obtain an appropriately broad range of input to the consultation, the written consultation was supplemented by a range of discussions with key stakeholders including representatives from the fields of disability, equality, business, advice and the voluntary sector.

Employment and Support Allowance: Manpower

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the (a) longest, (b) shortest and (c) average length of contract offered to temporary staff employed specifically to support the introduction of employment support allowance was; [241453]

(2) at which locations those staff appointed by Jobcentre Plus specifically to support the introduction of employment support allowance worked; and how many worked at each such location; [241454]

(3) how many of the 2000 staff originally appointed to support the introduction of employment support allowance are (a) still working in their original role, (b) employed on temporary contracts elsewhere in Jobcentre Plus and (c) employed on permanent contracts elsewhere in Jobcentre Plus. [241455]

Jonathan Shaw: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions in relation to the temporary staff recruited to support the introduction of Employment and Support Allowance. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus recruited 2125 people, including temporary staff, to support the introduction of Employment Support Allowance, as part of our workforce plans for the whole business requirement. They were deployed specifically to backfill other core delivery areas, to release our existing staff to deliver Employment Support Allowance. Temporary contracts are usually offered on the start of employment for a period of up to 26 weeks, although due to recent operational needs, some contracts have now been extended beyond this date. Our Resource Management reporting system does not allow us to identify the average contract length, contract status or by location for someone who has been recruited to work on Employment and Support Allowance backfill. This is because these staff resources are accounted for as part of our wider business resource.

From the recruits brought in over the summer 2008, there have been some conversions from temporary to permanent/fixed term contracts, although numbers are small. Unfortunately, we are not able to identify on a cost effective basis where these individuals are still working on the original role they were employed to undertake or if they are now undertaking a new role.

Employment Schemes

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of people expected to gain access to the scheme announced for people unemployed for six months or more in (a) England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [248468]

Mr. McNulty: The £500 million package of further support that we announced on 12 January 2009 includes four options: a job with a recruitment subsidy; support to start a business; volunteering opportunities, and work-related training. We expect to help a total of about 500,000 people through these options over the next two years, starting from April.

The recruitment subsidies, support to start a business and volunteering opportunities will be available in England, Wales and Scotland and we would expect them to be spread proportionately between them. The work-related training option will apply just to England.

In Northern Ireland, the provision of employment and skills services is the responsibility of the devolved Administration, who will continue to determine their own priorities for supporting jobseekers.

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what terms and conditions will be set for employers in relation to (a) applying for and (b) using an Employers' Golden Hello; [248469]

(2) whether he plans to set a limit on the number of Employers' Golden Hello incentives available to each employer. [248470]

Mr. McNulty: On 12 January, the Government announced a package of additional support worth £500 million for people who are still unemployed after six months. This additional support will be available from April 2009 and includes making available an expanded range of work and training options that a Jobcentre Plus adviser would be able to offer customers.

One of these options will be jobs supported by recruitment subsidies. Eligible customers will attract a £1,000 recruitment subsidy and Train to Gain funding worth on average £1,500.

The recruitment subsidy will be offered to employers who are committed to working with us to recruit jobless people, primarily through local employment partnerships. The subsidy will be targeted—employers will not be able to claim it by right and we will not make any payments if the employer has dismissed or made redundant any existing employees in order to recruit someone under this option.

Further details of how the subsidies will be delivered are still under discussion, and we will involve businesses and trade unions in those discussions. Subject to these discussions, and in line with current practice in the new deals, we do not intend to set a limit on the number of incentives available to each employer.

Employment Services: Redundancy

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has had with Scottish Executive Ministers on providing a rapid response service for employees in Scotland threatened with redundancy. [248545]

Mr. McNulty: I met with Fiona Hyslop MSP, Scottish Government Cabinet Secretary for Education and Lifelong Learning on 27 November 2008 to discuss what action would be taken in Scotland to address issues arising from the current economic situation. One of the matters for discussion at the meeting was an agreement that officials work closely together to respond to the economic downturn.

We agreed to address a conference in Glasgow on 9 February that will bring together all those involved in dealing with redundancies at a local level to consider how we can further improve the service. This will include discussion about Jobcentre Plus's Rapid Response Service.

Within Scotland, Jobcentre Plus is an active participant in a long-standing Scottish Government initiative called Partnership Action for Continuing Employment (PACE), which provides a consistent and co-ordinated public sector response to redundancy.

European Social Fund

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much of the European Social Fund spending announced on 15 October 2008 and 4 November 2008 has been assigned to employment projects; what those projects are; and how much in total has been (a) assigned and (b) spent to date. [244800]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 18 December 2008]: The £50 million of European Social Fund money announced on 15 October 2008 will support retraining and skills for people who are currently facing redundancy and those looking for work, so that they can quickly move back into sustainable employment. Provision will be delivered through the Learning and Skills Council, which plans to invite tenders in January 2009, with a view to projects being in place in spring 2009.

The £27 million of European Social Fund money announced on 4 November 2008 will support innovative projects both to extend employment opportunities and to develop workforce skills. Of the £27 million, about £17 million will support projects to extend employment opportunities, although a precise figure cannot be provided until the application process is completed. The deadline for applications is 16 January 2009, and projects are expected to start in spring 2009. Information on successful projects will be available at that stage.

Housing Benefit: Fraud

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how much it cost to establish the telephone hotline for reporting suspected cases of housing benefit fraud; and what annual expenditure his Department incurs in operating the service; [249020]

(2) how many of the cases of suspected housing benefit fraud reported via the online form or telephone hotline have led to a conviction in each month of the last two years; [249022]

(3) how many and what proportion of reports submitted by telephone and online have correctly identified individuals committing housing benefit fraud in each month of the last two years; [249040]

(4) how many people have used the telephone hotline for reporting housing benefit fraud in each month of the last two years; [249041]

(5) how many people have used the online form for reporting individuals committing housing benefit fraud in each month of the last two years. [249042]

Mr. McNulty: The National Benefit Fraud Hotline was set up in August 1996. It was extended to include housing benefit fraud referrals in September 2003, information on the costs of extending the service for housing benefit fraud are not available.

The annual expenditure incurred in operating the National Benefit Fraud Hotline for 2007-08 is in the following table.

	£000
Staff costs	904
Non staff costs	345
Vertex call centre[1]	338
Total	1,587

[1] The Preston contact centre is dedicated to handling National Benefit Fraud Hotline calls with additional support from Vertex. Vertex is the outsourced provider of the out of hours telephone contact centre service. Vertex costs are included in the figures.

Notes:

1. The operational costs of administering the National Benefit Fraud Hotline include the costs of administering the housing benefit fraud service. These costs cannot be separated.

2. The table contains directly attributable costs of the National Benefit Fraud Hotline; however there are further costs across DWP that cannot be separately identified, namely:

Actual telephone call costs that cannot be separated from overall DWP Corporate IT costs

Overflow work taken on by other sites at Grimsby Europarc and Telford Plaza

Follow on costs such as the cost of pursuing prosecutions.

3. The National Benefit Fraud Hotline started to do tax evasion work in November/December 2007 and tax evasion costs are included for four months of 2007-08.

Information regarding referrals made to the National Benefit Fraud Hotline or online is not available by benefit type. Therefore, it is not possible to provide specific information on the outcomes of housing benefit fraud referrals received from either the hotline or online.

Information on the total number of housing benefit referrals from all sources accepted for investigation, prosecutions and convictions for the last two financial years is in the following table.

	2005-06	2006-07
Referrals accepted for investigation	190,898	166,979
Prosecutions	7,717	5,885
Convictions	6,234	5,734

Jobcentre Plus: Breastfeeding

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 10 November 2008, Official Report, column 914W, on Jobcentre Plus: breastfeeding, what the outcome was of the review of the policy on breastfeeding in Jobcentre Plus offices. [248189]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves, dated 27 January 2009:

The Secretary of State has asked me to respond to your question, pursuant to the Answer of 10 November 2008, Official Report, column 914W, on Jobcentre Plus: breastfeeding, what the outcome was of the review of the policy on breastfeeding in Jobcentre Plus offices. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

I can confirm that this review has now been completed and operational guidance was updated on 19 December 2008 to include a paragraph ensuring that all Jobcentre staff are made aware that, wherever possible, every effort must be made to provide a mother wishing to breastfeed her baby with a suitable area to do so.

Jobcentre Plus: Oxfordshire

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many extra people will be employed by Jobcentre Plus in Oxfordshire on the Rapid Response Service, with reference to the Pre-Budget Report; [240398]

(2) how many of the extra 2,000 staff at jobcentres proposed in the Pre-Budget Report will be employed in Oxfordshire. [240399]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many extra people will be employed by Jobcentre Plus in Oxfordshire on the Rapid Response Service, with reference to the Pre-Budget Report and how many of the extra 2,000 staff at jobcentres proposed in the Pre-Budget Report will be employed in Oxfordshire. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

No additional staff have been specifically recruited to be employed on the Rapid Response Service in Oxfordshire. Each District has appointed a Rapid Response Manager and we have a pool of 10 Rapid Response volunteer staff from Oxfordshire District who can be deployed where additional help is required.

Whilst it is not possible at this stage to say how many of the extra staff proposed in the Pre-Budget Report will be employed in Oxfordshire, under our existing plans between December 2008 and January 2009 we are recruiting 99 permanent staff within the Jobcentre Plus District of Berkshire, Buckinghamshire and Oxfordshire. Of these 99 recruits, 21 will be based in offices in Oxfordshire. Further recruitment is planned into 2009 but it is too early to state which District or County they will be allocated.

I have asked Lynn Conolly, the District Manager for Berkshire, Buckinghamshire and Oxfordshire, to meet with you to discuss workforce plans for Oxfordshire and to explain how Jobcentre Plus is responding locally to the economic downturn.

Jobcentre Plus: Telephone Services

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what records Jobcentre Plus keeps of the (a) number, (b) direction, (c) content and (d) outcome of telephone calls to Jobcentre Plus helplines from members of the public; and if he will make a statement. [245660]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what records Jobcentre Plus keeps of the (a) number, (b) direction, (c) content and (d) outcome of telephone calls to Jobcentre Plus helplines from members of the public; and if he will make a statement. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus keeps a record of volumes of calls made to each of the service lines we operate. We do not however keep a detailed record of the content of each call made. We operate over 10 different service lines ranging from benefit claims to job matching and the National Benefit Fraud hotline. Jobcentre Plus does not keep a record of the outcome of each call. However, a recording is taken and retained of all calls received with the exception of those made to the National Benefit Fraud Hotline and the Tax Evasion Hotline. Calls made to these services are not recorded as we aim to protect anonymity.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many calls were received by Jobcentre Plus call centres in each of the last 24 months; what the average waiting time was for such calls to be dealt with in each month; and how many dropped calls there were in each month. [249279]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked the Acting Chief Executive to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves, dated 27 January 2009:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many calls were received by Jobcentre Plus call centres in each of the last 24 months; what the average waiting time was for such calls to be dealt with in each month; and how many dropped calls there were in each month. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus currently has 31 contact centres offering telephony services to our customers.

The attached table provides information on:

the number of calls offered and answered by Jobcentre Plus contact centres for the past 24 months.

the number of 'abandoned' calls each month for the past 24 months. This is the number of callers who hang up (terminate the call) whilst waiting in the queue for their call to be answered.

average speed of answer times. This is the average length of time it takes for a call to be answered.

Jobcentre Plus contact centres have only been able to collate information on speed of answer times centrally since July 2008, following the introduction of a new telephony platform which enabled this information to be recorded.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what targets have been set for Jobcentre Plus offices in relation to (a) jobseeker's allowance and (b) employment and support allowance; and if he will make a statement. [246131]

Mr. McNulty: Jobcentre Plus has six national targets; these apply to its whole range of activities including the administration of Jobseeker's Allowance. Employment and support allowance was introduced on 27 October 2008 for new customers claiming on the grounds of disability or ill health. Employment and support allowance will be woven into the existing performance framework for Jobcentre Plus.

The six national targets are:

> Job Outcome Target—This is the measure of our success in helping people in to work. It is based on an automated reporting system, which reports movements into work and off benefit by matching Jobcentre Plus and HMRC data.
> Customer Service Target—This measures Jobcentre Plus' performance in meeting the standards and commitments set out in the organisation's customer and employer charters.
> Monetary Value of Fraud and Error—Contact Centre Directorate has a direct impact on this target by taking appropriate action when fraud is suspected during interaction with the customer and more specifically through the referrals that are generated from calls to the National Benefit Fraud Hotline .
> Average Actual Clearance Times—This is measured through the processing of claims within specified average actual clearance times, for Incapacity Benefit, Income Support and Jobseeker's Allowance—18 days, 11 days and 12 days respectively.
> Employer Engagement Target—This is measured by "mystery shopper" calls made by an independent organisation and is a measure for professionalism and information provided over the phone.
> Interventions Delivery Target—This is a measure of the efficiency of Jobcentre Plus in booking customers in for work-focused interviews within set timescales to provide effective employment support and advice.

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether contractors delivering back-to-work services for jobseeker's allowance claimants will refer non-compliant claimants to Jobcentre Plus before or after a decision is made on whether to impose sanctions on the client. [246270]

Mr. McNulty: The provider will raise entitlement and sanction doubts and refer the relevant information to Jobcentre Plus before any decisions on sanctions are made. The provider will be required to try to contact the customer to give them the opportunity to explain the reason for their non-compliance, before passing all relevant information to Jobcentre Plus. Jobcentre Plus will be responsible for handling all subsequent decisions on benefit sanctions and will notify the customer of the outcome. The provider will continue to be responsible for supporting the customer back to work for the balance of their time on Flexible New Deal."

Local Employment Partnerships

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average public expenditure per job provided under the local employment partnerships programme has been since the programme's inception. [248430]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not yet available. The In Work Better Off Impact Assessment (DWP, July 2007) estimated a cost of £400 for each person finding work through this initiative. Actual costs to public expenditure may be lower. People on benefit who find work will gain financially as their in-work income from earnings and tax credits will be higher than their out-of-work income from benefits and tax credits. A full evaluation of local employment partnerships is planned. Reports will be published 2009-11 using a range of qualitative and quantitative research methods.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many employers in each region have signed-up to local employment partnerships in each quarter since local employment partnerships were established. [248441]

Mr. McNulty: The information is in the following table.

Numbers of employers signed up to local employment partnerships

Jobcentre Plus region	Number of employers'[1] signed up to local employment partnerships: by September 2008	Number of employers'[1] signed up to local employment partnerships: during quarter ended December 2008	Total employers signed up to local employment partnerships

New Deal for Disabled People

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been spent on supporting people with a learning disability through the New Deal for Disabled People Programme in each year since its establishment. [247182]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 19 January 2009]: New deal for disabled people is a pan-disability programme open to incapacity benefit (and now employment and support allowance) customers, on a voluntary basis, with a range of health conditions or disabilities. Details of expenditure specifically related to people with a learning disability are not held.

We are working across Government to give people with learning disabilities the support they need to access work. The Getting A Life project, which is being trialled in 10 areas, is working to identify what needs to happen to ensure that young people with severe learning disabilities leave education and go on to achieve paid employment and full lives. The Government have also made a commitment in the New Opportunities White Paper to produce an employment strategy for people with learning disabilities. The strategy will be published in the spring.

Pension Credit: Fraud

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his most recent estimate is of the cost to his Department of fraud and error in the pension credit system in each of the last three years. [248835]

Mr. McNulty: DWP estimates for fraud and error in Pension Credit for 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08 are contained in the DWP publications "Fraud and Error in the Benefit System April 2005 to March 2006: Spending Review 2004 target baseline", "Fraud and Error in the Benefit System: April 2006 to March 2007" and "Fraud and Error in the Benefit System: April 2007 to March 2008", copies of which are available in the Library.

Poverty

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's definition of poverty is. [250440]

Kitty Ussher: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave the hon. Member for Epsom and Ewell (Chris Grayling) on 7 February 2008, Official Report, column 2419W.

Remploy: Consultants

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many external consultants Remploy engaged between April 2005 and April 2008; and at what total cost. [247868]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 15 January 2009]: The available information is in the following table.

Consultants engaged by Remploy

	2005-2006	2006-2007	2007-2008
Number of consultancy companies	28	30	67
Cost (£)	180,400	411,600	983,000

Sabbatical Leave

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether employees on extended periods of sabbatical leave on part pay are deemed to be available for work during the sabbatical period. [251114]

Jonathan Shaw: Under jobseeker's allowance legislation employees on periods of sabbatical leave on are not deemed to be available for work.

Social Security Benefits

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) if he will make it his policy to collect information on the number of EU nationals who continue to receive UK benefits on their return from the UK to their country of origin; [246067]

(2) if he will make it his policy to collect information on expenditure on payment of benefits to people who are (a) not UK nationals and (b) not resident in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [246068]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 19 January 2009]: There are no current plans to collect the information in the format requested.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he is taking (a) to tackle benefit fraud and (b) to ensure that information about benefit fraudsters provided via public helplines is acted upon. [249301]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 19 January 2009]: The Government are committed to paying the right benefits to the right people at the right time. As part of that commitment we have specific strategies in place to tackle both fraud and error.

We have a well defined and successful strategy for tackling benefit fraud based on preventing, detecting and deterring fraud. Our current estimate for fraud across all benefits remains at its lowest ever level at 0.6 per cent. of benefit expenditure. This is down from 2 per cent. in 2000-01.

Our strategy initiatives include a hard hitting media campaign, cross checking information on benefit claims against other data sources as well as professionally qualified investigators. The Fraud Investigation Service ensures that the quality and professionalism of investigation is maintained to consistently high standards providing operational direction on all fraud related matters within the Department. Although the Fraud Investigation Service is managed under Jobcentre Plus, it provides fraud investigation for all the Departments benefits.

We also continue to develop innovative new measures such as data matching with credit reference agencies.

We are also toughening our sanctions regime by introducing a first-offence benefit penalty as part of the Welfare Reform Bill.

Every call to the national benefit fraud hotline is examined by the Department and where appropriate the case is then passed to either the Fraud Investigation Service for investigation or to compliance teams in Jobcentres, who will scrutinise the relevant benefit claim, interview the customer and make appropriate adjustments to entitlements.

In 2007-08 there were almost 250,000 referrals to the benefit fraud hotline by phone, via the internet and in writing, as a result of which nearly £18 million worth of recoverable overpayments were identified.

Take-up Task Force

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to his Department's press release of 5 January 2009 on the Take-up Taskforce, what steps he expects the Taskforce to take consequent upon the responses it received from local authorities. [249506]

Kitty Ussher: The Take Up Taskforce has issued a Call for Evidence of examples of good practice across the UK relating to increasing take-up of benefits and tax credits by parents. The deadline for local authorities and their partners to submit evidence is 20 February 2009.

The evidence will help to inform the Taskforce's recommendations to Government on ways to help local services support parents to take up their benefit and tax credit entitlements, in order to contribute to tackling child poverty. Recommendations will be reported in spring 2009.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Adult Education: Finance

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the adult Learning and Skills Council budget for (a) Hertfordshire and (b) England was in the latest year for which figures are available. [249861]

Mr. Simon: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) budget for adult learning was set out in the latest grant letter to the LSC issued on 18 November 2008. For 2008-09 the budget is £4,275 million rising to £4,525 million in 2009-10.

The LSC makes decisions about allocations of funding to specific areas based on strategic discussions with FE Colleges and providers, partners and other organisations. This ensures that the needs of the local communities are met and that the activity delivered supports the council's key priorities and targets. Mark Haysom, the council's chief executive, will write to the hon. Gentleman with further information including the most up-to-date figures available for Hertfordshire. A copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Apprentices

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what assessment he has made of the effect of the current economic climate on the number of employers taking on new apprentices; [247551]

(2) how many apprentices have had their apprenticeships terminated by their employer in each (a) year from 1997 to 2002 and (b) month since January 2003. [247552]

Mr. Simon: Last year a record number of people started an apprenticeship: 225,000 in 2007/08. We recognise that the economic downturn means that some employers will recruit fewer apprentices but others expect to take on more than they do now. Last week the Prime Minster announced a £140 million package to provide an extra 35,000 apprenticeship places over the coming year. I am confident that by expanding the number of apprentices in new areas and increasing provision in the public sector we will continue to offer a high quality training opportunity for young people and adults. We do not hold data centrally about the number of apprentices who have had their apprenticeships terminated by their employer.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what percentage of students entering (a) apprenticeships and (b) advanced apprenticeships were already in employment in each year since 1997. [249995]

Mr. Simon: Information on what route apprentices have come from is not currently available. However, a national apprenticeships vacancy matching service is being developed by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) to provide a high quality service to employers wishing to recruit apprentices, and to young people and adults considering an apprenticeship. This service will help deliver the objective outlined in World-class Apprenticeships to expand and improve the quality of our apprenticeships programme. The service will be available across England by April 2009. Part of the future role of the service will be to provide the new National Apprenticeship Service (NAS) with management information on apprenticeships.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he is taking to encourage people to take up apprenticeships. [249842]

Mr. Simon: We are taking a wide range of steps to encourage more people to take up apprenticeships and to encourage more employers to offer high quality places. In 2007/08 we saw a record high 225,000 people starting an apprenticeship. We also believe apprenticeships can play a key role in our response to the current economic downturn. The Prime Minister recently announced a £140 million package to provide an extra 35,000 apprenticeship places over the coming year in both the public and private sectors to help strengthen the country's competitiveness.

On 12 January 2009 the new online National Apprenticeship Vacancy Matching Service went live. The first chief executive of the new National Apprenticeship Service takes up post on 2 February 2009 and our National Apprenticeship Service will be fully functional from 1 April 2009 with a remit to expand apprenticeships and provide a single point of contact for employers and apprentices. To raise awareness and encourage more employers to take on or offer more apprenticeships a new national advertising campaign will commence in February fronted by Sir Alan Sugar.

Our New Opportunities White Paper published 13 January 2009 announced the Government's commitment to extending group training associations; ensuring all apprentices have clear progression routes; and commitment to work towards an entitlement to an apprenticeship for all young people leaving care. Looking to the future, we have set ambitious targets for the growth of the apprenticeships programme. Apprenticeships provisions will be taken forward as part of the forthcoming Children, Skills and Learning Bill, including provisions to ensure that an apprenticeship place is available for all suitably qualified young people by 2013. The Education and Skills Act 2008 requires schools to provide impartial careers information, advice and guidance. The National Apprenticeship Service will support schools in providing advice on apprenticeships.

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding since it was established; and how much funding was provided to each. [247376]

Mr. Simon: The Department makes payments to charities and voluntary bodies. However, to provide details on all of these would incur disproportionate cost.

Funding provided to charities that received over £100,000 is as follows:

			£000
Name of body	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09
Royal Anniversary Trust[1]	166	167	[2]—
National Foundation for Educational Research (NFER)[3]	250	95	32
Social Mobility Foundation	—	121	100
UK Council for International Student Affairs	444	515	525

[1] Royal Anniversary Trust funding will be confirmed at year end

[2] Tbc

[3] NFER funding is year to date only

In addition there are several charitable bodies that are contracted to provide services for the Department, which makes the following payments:

			£000
Name of body	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09
Lifelong Learning UK	1,299	13,081	19,500
NIACE[1]	2,574	10,004	5,099
SKILL[2]	100	160	100
PET[3]	256	255	268

[1] National Institute for Adult Continuing Education

[2] National Bureau for Students with Disabilities

[3] Prisoners Education Trust

Higher education institutions have charitable status and are funded by the Higher Education Funding Council for England (a non-departmental public body of DIUS).

Some of the Department's non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) are registered charities. These NDPBs are contracted to provide agreed outcomes. The funding provided to these bodies by the Department and predecessor Departments are as follows:

			£000
Name of body	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09
Design Council	6,179	6,069	6,035
Quality Improvement Agency (QIA)	82,775	109,764
Learning and Skills Improvement Service (LSIS)	—	—	100,000

Note:

QIA was part of the merger to form LSIS in October 2008, hence there are no figures for QIA in 2008-09

Departmental Air Travel

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many official journeys (a) he and his predecessors and (b) his officials made by plane since his Department was established. [247507]

Mr. Simon: Travel by Ministers and civil servants is undertaken in accordance with the ministerial code and the civil service management code respectively.

From the period July 2007 to date the Secretary of State for the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills undertook 12 official journeys by air and his civil servants undertook 1836 official journeys by air. These figures have been provided by our service provider; however there could potentially be a low number of official air journeys undertaken by the Department's

Secretary of State and his civil servants that were booked outside of our service provider route where an official expenses claim was raised; this information can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings since his Department's inception; how much has been spent on wallpaper; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248058]

Mr. Simon: The Department for Innovation Universities and Skills (DIUS) was created as a result of machinery of government changes in June 2007. Therefore, any details prior to this date are not available.

In 2007-08 the Department spent £4.874 million on leasehold improvements. This was mainly in respect of its building at Kingsgate House. In 2008-09 it is planned to spend some £103,000 on its leasehold improvements.

The Department pays rent for its occupancy of Kingsgate House to the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform. It also pays a smaller amount for its occupancy in Moorfoot, Sheffield, to the Department for Children Schools and Families. This charge also includes facilities management charges which comprise, among other things, charges for routine maintenance, utilities, security, waste disposals and insurance.

No money has been spent, or is planned to be spent, on wallpaper.

Departmental Catering

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which (a) food and (b) drinks suppliers have been used by his Department since it was established; and how much his Department paid to each such supplier. [248365]

Mr. Simon: The Department does not manage the buildings that it occupies. Accordingly, food and drink purchased for events at DIUS offices is generally provided by the catering contractors of the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and the Department for Children, Schools and Families. Catering at events held elsewhere is generally provided by the venue.

Further details, including expenditure on food and drink, are available only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department and its agencies provide for staff. [248077]

Mr. Simon: Almost all of the Department's staff are based in buildings managed by the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (in London) and the Department for Children, Schools and Families (in Sheffield, Runcorn and Darlington). The catering facilities provided by these Departments for their own staff are also available to DIUS staff. A small number of DIUS staff are based at Polaris House, Swindon, and have access to the catering facilities provided by the Research Councils for their own staff. Staff of the National Weights and Measures Laboratory and the small number of DIUS staff based in Teddington can use the catering facilities at the National Physical Laboratory. The Intellectual Property Office staff can use the on-site catering facilities provided by the Office for National Statistics.

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many members of staff in his Department have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones belonging to his Department in each year since its inception. [248249]

Mr. Simon: None, in all categories.

Departmental Disabled Staff

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what conclusions his Department has reached in fulfilment of its duty under section 3.111 of the statutory code of practice of the disability equality duty. [248062]

Mr. Simon: The Department of Innovation, Universities and Skills published its first Single Equality scheme in December 2008. It sets out the Departments commitments and plans for reporting on progress on all equality issues, including disability. Copies are available on the DIUS website at:

http://www.dius.gov.uk/publications/index.html

Departmental Finance

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much it cost to establish his Department. [248088]

Mr. Simon: The costs of setting up the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills in June 2007 were met within the existing departmental budgets of the former Department for Education and Skills (now Department for Children, Schools and Families) and the former Department for Trade and Industry (now Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.)

Further information on all departmental expenditure is available in the Department's Resource Accounts:

Departmental ICT

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills with reference to the answer of 29 October 2008, Official Report, columns 1126-27W, on departmental ICT, what the (a) expected completion date and (b) estimated cost of each of the projects was at their outset. [242167]

Mr. Simon: According to our records, the following lists the projects currently being undertaken by DIUS and its agencies. Also shown are the originally expected dates and costs and the latest forecasts dates and total costs at completion.

Projects	Expected completion date	Estimated cost when complete (£000)	Original expected due date	Original expected cost (£000)

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills with reference to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 503W, on departmental personnel, how many (a) staff without posts and (b) priority movers there are in his Department; how many of the staff without posts were classified as such upon return from maternity leave; and how many of the staff without posts have been classified as such for at least (i) six and (ii) 12 months. [250104]

Mr. Simon: There are currently nine staff in the Department who are classed as priority movers, none of whom returned directly from maternity leave. All nine priority movers have been without a permanent post for six months and four staff for 12 months.

The Department has introduced a new brokerage service in January 2009 in support of active matching of staff into posts in the Department and wider Civil Service. All staff are engaged in project work and short-term business priority posts until a permanent position is secured.

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many complaints about advertisements sponsored or funded by his Department were made to the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) in each year from 1997 to 2008; and how many of these were upheld by the ASA in each year. [246652]

Mr. Simon: The Advertising Standards Authority received seven complaints about seven cases between 1 January 1997-21 December 2008, and none of these were upheld.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department and its agencies since its inception; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the adviser so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246971]

Mr. Simon: The Department was created on 28 June 2007. The detailed information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The Department sponsors a number of advisory non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) which provide independent expert advice on a number of issues. Appointments to NDPBs are governed by the principles set out in the Commissioner for Public Appointments' Code of Practice. Summary information is published in 'Public Bodies' which can be accessed online at:

www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/public/bodies

or copies are available in the Libraries of the House.

Summary information on the political activity of individuals appointed to posts regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments' Code of Practice is published each year in the Commissioner's Annual Report.

In addition, the Government are committed to publishing an annual list detailing the number and costs of special advisers. Information for 2007-08 was published by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 99-102WS.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248415]

Mr. Simon: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 18 December, Official Report, column 1057W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes in each of the last three years. [248709]

Mr. Simon: Since its inception, the Department has spent a total of £566,000.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and how much was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [249857]

Mr. Simon: Annual performance bonuses are paid to staff in the SCS in line with central guidance from Cabinet Office. The percentage of the SCS pay bill to be spent on SCS performance bonuses is determined each year by the senior salaries review body. The Department was created on 28 June 2007. Since then 63 bonuses have been awarded for the performance year 2007-08 worth a total of £449,994.

Departmental Procurement

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what proportion of invoices for goods and services procured from small and medium-sized businesses were paid within 10 days of receipt by (a) his Department and (b) the agencies for which his Department is responsible in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [243355]

Mr. Simon: The Department for Innovation Universities and Skills (DIUS) was created as a result of machinery of government changes in June 2007. Therefore, any details prior to this date are not available.

The information is not available in the format requested as the Department does not separately identify its suppliers as small or medium-sized businesses. The Department does not discriminate by size because many small or medium-sized businesses can be found within larger supply chains.

Until October 2008, the Department was required to monitor and publish payment performance against a 30-day payment target and does not therefore currently publish information about payment within 10 days. However, following the Prime Minister's commitment of 8 October that central Government Departments will make payment within 10 days, the Department will additionally report 10-day payment performance from the period January to March 2009.

The Department does hold information on the proportions of valid invoices for all goods and services procured and paid within 30 days of receipt by the Department and its agencies in 2007-08. These are as follows:

	Percentage
Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills	99.4
National Weights and Measures Laboratory	97.0
UK Intellectual Property Office	98.2

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department's central media and communication unit has spent on public surveys since its inception. [248026]

Mr. Simon: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills was formed in June 2007, following the machinery of government changes.

Since its inception, DIUS central communications unit is estimated to have spent £680,000 on qualitative research and omnibus or other quantitative surveys of the public. Of this total an estimated £275,000 has been spent on qualitative research (primarily campaign development) and £405,000 on quantitative or omnibus research (primarily campaign evaluation).

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what use (a) his Department and (b) service providers under contract to his Department make of (i) 0844 and 0845 telephone numbers and (ii) revenue-sharing telephone numbers for calls from members of the public; for which services such numbers are used; what prefixes are used for revenue-sharing numbers; how much revenue has accrued from revenue-sharing numbers in each of the last five years; what consideration his Department has given to introducing 03-prefixed telephone numbers for calls to all such services; and if he will make a statement. [247345]

Mr. Simon: Comprehensive information about 0845 and similar numbers is not readily available centrally and to respond fully would involve an extensive information collection exercise which would exceed the recommended disproportionate cost threshold. However, using a variety of information and data sources, I can confirm that the following numbers are in use:

Departmental Work Experience

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many graduate interns his Department currently employs. [249121]

Mr. Simon: The Department took two interns on the Summer Development Programme and one intern on the Summer Placement Scheme in 2008 through bids to Cabinet Office for their Summer Diversity Internship programmes which aim to attract high calibre people from diverse backgrounds.

The Department and Department for Children, Schools and Families have made a combined bid for 15 Summer Development Interns and 15 Summer Placement Interns for 2009.

Educational Institutions: Expenditure

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department has spent on college buildings in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in each year since 1997. [250560]

Mr. Lammy: In 1997-98, the total capital expenditure in Further Education colleges in England in the financial year 1997-98 was nil.

In total since that time, this Government have invested £2.4 billion and will be investing a record further £2.3 billion across the next three years.

Capital funding for further education colleges is administrated by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) and I have asked Mark Haysom, the LSC chief executive, to write to the hon. Member with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in the House Library.

Further Education: Offenders

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether there are any restrictions on people on the sex offenders register being able to enrol at further education and sixth form colleges; whether colleges are entitled to know if any of their students are on the sex offenders register; and whether the police are expected to inform colleges if they believe a student on the sex offenders register may pose a threat to other students, including those aged under 18 years. [250219]

Mr. Simon: There are no specific restrictions on sex offenders being able to enrol at further education or sixth form colleges. Nor is there any general entitlement for colleges or sixth form colleges to know whether any of their students are sexual offenders subject to current notification requirements or who have been subject to such requirements in the past. However, under the terms of the national multi-agency public protection arrangements (MAPPA) guidance, the police, and other MAPPA agencies, are required to consider whether to disclose information to third parties (including schools and colleges) in all MAPPA eligible cases. This includes all offenders subject to the notification requirements.

We expect in relevant cases that the police will provide information about an individual where a college needs to be aware of that individual's previous convictions if they affect the safety of other learners, young or old. The detail of that information would depend on the particular individual and the nature of the offence and would be provided following a proper assessment of risk of harm to others.

Further Education: Standards

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the projected expenditure on the further education improvement body is in each of the next five years. [247544]

Mr. Simon: In 2008-09 the combined total projected expenditure by all Government Departments on the Learning and Skills Improvement Service (LSIS) is expected to be £145,285,000; in 2009-10 DIUS' contribution to LSIS' total projected expenditure is expected to be £96,470,000; and in 2010-11 total DIUS expenditure is expected to be £87,470,000. Projected expenditure beyond 2010-11 is not available.

Learning and Skills Council for England

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many capital projects were approved under the Learning and Skills Council capital project funding in (a) February, (b) March, (c) April, (d) May, (e) June, (f) July, (g) August, (h) September, (i) October, (j) November and (k) December 2008. [248610]

Mr. Simon: It is thanks to this Government's commitment to colleges that investment in college capital projects will amount to £2.3 billion between 2007 and 2011.

As a result of this and past spending under this Government nearly 700 projects, at 330 colleges have been agreed by the Learning and Skills Council.

The following table describes all capital projects approved by the Learning and Skills Council for the requested period. This includes all capital proposals approved in principle and in detail, for all proposals seeking capital support from the Further Education, Adult Safeguarded Learning, and 16-19 capital funds.

	Number of capital proposal approved (FE, Adult Safeguarded Learning, and 16-19)

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by his Department, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250142]

Mr. Simon: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State at the Department for Transport, on 21 January 2009, Official Report, column 1434W, about cars provided by the Government Car and Despatch Agency.

Details of other official vehicles used by the Department are not held centrally and would incur disproportionate cost to provide.

Research: Finance

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he plans to take to increase funding for research at new universities. [251922]

Mr. Lammy: On 22 January, the Department's grant letter to the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) was published. This outlines the broad principles on which we expect HEFCE to base their funding allocations. This letter states that we expect HEFCE

> "to continue to recognise and reward the highest levels of research excellence wherever it is found."

It also made reference to the importance of both rewarding pockets of excellence, and of adequately supporting the institutions with the largest volumes of world-class research:

> "I know that you will need to maintain high levels of funding for those institutions with the largest volumes of world-class research whilst rewarding and nurturing pockets of excellence elsewhere."

Research: Leukaemia

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the Medical Research Council's expenditure was on (a) leukaemia and (b) brain tumour research in (i) 2005-06, (ii) 2006-07 and (iii) 2007-08. [250689]

Mr. Lammy: The Medical Research Council is one of the main agencies through which the Government support medical and clinical research.

The MRC is currently funding a large portfolio of site-specific and general underpinning cancer research. In 2007/08, the MRC's expenditure on cancer research amounted to £89.5 million.

The MRC's expenditure on research related to leukaemia and brain tumours in 2005/06 to 2007/08 is as follows:

	Spend
Area	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Research related to leukaemia (£ million)	13.8	13.5	14.0
Research related to brain tumours (£)	900,000	940,000	970,000

The aforementioned brain tumour figures include core funding to the MRC Clinical Trials Unit in London for various clinical trials in brain cancer.

The MRC, Cancer Research UK, Leukaemia Research and Children with Leukaemias have each committed £100,000 per annum for three years (from 1 April 2007) to the UK Children Cancer and Leukaemia Group in Leicester. Further information can be found at:

http://www.ukccsg.org/public/about_us/introduction/activities.html

Sector Skills Councils: Qualifications

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what advice he has received from the UK Commission for Employment and Skills on the funding and management of the cross-sector standard setting bodies; [247542]

(2) what recent discussions have taken place between his Department and the UK Commission for Employment and Skills on the future of cross-sector standard setting bodies. [247543]

Mr. Simon: The UK Commission for Employment and Skills has undertaken mapping work on the coverage of National Occupational Standards (NOS) and qualifications development by Sector Skills Councils (SSCs) and Standard Setting Bodies (SSBs). This recognises the need for a co-ordinated approach for national occupational standards that are commonly found across all sectors of the workforce. The UK Commission will progress arrangements for ensuring consistency across SSCs and SSBs on cross-sector standards. Proposals were put to the UK Vocational Qualification Reform Programme Board in November setting out how the UK Commission intends to ensure comprehensive occupational coverage. The proposals recognise the expertise and importance of cross-sector standard setting bodies, and are currently the subject of consultation in the Devolved Administrations. In the meantime funding and management of cross-sector standard setting bodies will continue in line with current arrangements.

Skilled Workers

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which 10 employment sectors have the greatest acknowledged skills excess; and what the current level of unemployment in each sector is. [249097]

Mr. Simon: The National Employer Skills Survey is a key source of data for the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills in order to understand the skills shortages across industry sectors. These surveys are undertaken by an independent research organisation.

The following table is taken from the National Employer Skills Survey (NESS) 2007 (published May 2008) and shows the number of skills shortage vacancies (SSVs) occurring in each SSC sector, and the density of these SSVs in comparison to total vacancies and employment.

Table 3.11: Number and density of vacancies by SSC (p. 56)

Notes:
Figures rounded to the nearest 25.
* is used where the base size was less than 25. Figures in italics denote base sizes of 25 to 49 and should be treated with caution.

It is evident from the table that there are no sectors which have an excess of skilled workers. All sectors have, to a varying degree, skills shortage vacancies.

Students: Bankruptcy

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) how many students were declared bankrupt in each of the last 15 years; [249895]

(2) how many students have entered into individual voluntary arrangements since such agreements were introduced. [249896]

Mr. Lammy: Provisions were included in the Higher Education Act 2004 to prevent student loans from being written off on bankruptcy. The numbers of students notifying the Student Loans Company of their bankruptcy declined from 2004 after the legislation came into effect. Currently student loans are not exempt from IVAs.

[1] Publicly-owned loans. Figures rounded to nearest 5.
[2] IVA includes Trust Deed for students who moved to Scotland.
[3] Since 2004 student loans are not written-off due to bankruptcy. From that time the number of students notifying the SLC of their bankruptcy has declined.

The Government's student finance package is designed to ensure that finance should not be a barrier to a higher education course. Student loans from the Government are not like commercial loans: interest is paid at the rate of inflation, so in real terms students only pay back what they borrowed. For income contingent loans available since 1998, repayment is linked to earnings and borrowers only repay if their earnings are over £15,000 and those taking out a student loan from 2006 have their debt cancelled after 25 years.

Students: Children

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what the average childcare grant payment to students was in the most recent period for which figures are available; [250973]

(2) how much his Department allocated for childcare grant awards to students in each year since 1997; [251886]

(3) how many and what proportion of students attending (a) higher education institutions and (b) foundation education colleges were women with children under the age of three in each year since 1997; [251989]

(4) how many and what proportion of women with children under the age of three years were classified as (a) full-time and (b) part-time students in each year since 1997; [251990]

(5) how many and what proportion of students in (a) higher education and (b) foundation education institutions received at least one childcare grant payment in each year since 1997; [251991]

(6) how much on average (a) part-time and (b) full-time students receiving a childcare grant received in grant payments in each year since 1997; [251992]

(7) for how many weeks a year students eligible for a childcare grant receive the grant. [251993]

Mr. Lammy: The childcare grant is available for full-time, higher education students with dependent children in registered or approved child care; it is not available to part-time students. For 2008/09, the childcare grant meets 85 per cent. of actual costs up to a maximum of £148.75 per week for one child (85 per cent. of the actual costs of up to £175 a week) or up to £255 per week for two or more children (85 per cent. of the actual costs of up to £300 a week) throughout the year.

The following table shows the number of higher education students receiving childcare grant in England in each year since 2004/05[1]; consistent information is not available before 2004/05. The table also shows the average payment and the total expenditure in each year.

[1] Student numbers are rounded to the nearest 100, average amounts are rounded to the nearest £10.

Academic year	Students	Amount (£ million)	Average (£)
2004/05	6,700	18.5	2,760
2005/06	7,300	22.1	3,040
2006/07	8,300	27.2	3,270
2007/08	8,900	31.2	3,[illegible]0

Students receiving childcare grant make up around 1 per cent. of higher education students applying for some form of student finance support.

While information is available on students who receive a childcare grant, information is not held centrally which identifies students with children under three, who do not apply for a childcare grant. Therefore the numbers in the table do not necessarily cover all full-time students with children under the age of three. No information is held centrally which identifies part-time students with children under the age of three.

Students: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many students in each subject area received funding from the Learning and Skills Council in each year since 2003-04. [247134]

Mr. Simon: Table 1 shows the number of learner enrolments/starts by sector subject area which were funded by the Learning and Skills Council, from 2004/05 to 2007/08 academic year. Data cannot be provided on a comparable basis for 2003/04.

Notes:

1. Data for ACL, Further Education and UFI are based on learner enrolments. One learner may enrol on more than one course e.g. 2 A-levels and will be counted for each learning aim they are recorded on.
2. Data for Work-based learning and Train to Gain are based on learner starts, by year in which the programme of learning was started.
3. Data for Work-based learning include apprenticeships (all levels) and Entry to Employment.
4. Data do not exist on a comparable basis prior to 2004/05.
5. Figures may not sum to totals due to rounding.
7. Train to gain was launched in April 2006, so comparable data do not exist for 2004/05.

Vocational Training

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what studies his Department has made into giving Government funding to firms to move staff on to part-time working and to use the remaining time to retrain them. [250836]

Mr. Simon: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills has not conducted research specifically on the issue of Government funding to businesses to move on to part-time working and provide training part-time.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

10 Downing Street

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the retail prices of (a) oven gloves, (b) aprons, (c) teddy bears, (d) photo frames and (e) fruit drops were in the Downing Street gift shop (i) before and (ii) after the reduction in the rate of value added tax to 15 per cent. [249952]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 13 January 2009, Official Report, columns 581-82W.

10 Downing Street: Cost Effectiveness

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the answer of 17 July 2008, Official Report, column 625W, on Downing Street: cost effectiveness, what Gershon savings have been made by 10 Downing Street in each year since the requirements for such savings were set. [249904]

Kevin Brennan: The Prime Minister's Office forms an integral part of the Cabinet Office. Details of the Cabinet Office's Gershon Efficiency Programme in relation to SR 2004 were reported in full for the final time in Cabinet Office Autumn Performance Report 2008 which is available in the Libraries of the House for the reference of Members.

10 Downing Street: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether the internal works to No. 10 Downing Street associated with the planning application with Westminster City Council reference 08/00696/1884 have been completed; and what expenditure has been incurred on them. [250337]

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much has been spent from the public purse in connection with work in 10 Downing Street associated with Westminster city council planning application reference 08/00696/1884; and on what date the work was completed. [252475]

Kevin Brennan: The work has been completed. Expenditure figures for 2008-09 will be available after the end of the financial year, once the Cabinet Office accounts have been audited and laid before Parliament.

Carers: Vocational Training

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will bring forward proposals for extended periods of work experience, training and mentoring for care leavers as part of development of policy under the New Opportunities: Fair Chances for the Future White Paper. [249543]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

Our White Paper "New Opportunities: Fair chances for the Future" includes a commitment to improve the support given to care leavers. The Government will fund the National Care Advisory Service for the next two years to work with local authorities and national employers to develop and test models of support into employment. These models will be extended to half of all local authorities in 2010-11 as part of a phased national roll-out. They will include ensuring that care leavers are able to have the opportunity to benefit from apprenticeships, work experience and career mentoring to put them on the path to success.

We will also be taking steps so that from September 2009 all suitably qualified care leavers will be offered an apprenticeship place, with a view to making this a legal entitlement from 2013.

Census

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will re-assess the merits of the 100-year rule prohibiting publication of census details in the light of the early release of the 1911 census information. [249612]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated January 2009:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your question asking whether the merits of the 100 year rule will be re-assessed. I am replying in her absence. (249612)

There are no plans to change the policy of closure of census records. Censuses from 1921 onwards were taken under the authority of the Census Act 1920 and are retained in the custody of the National Statistician with the approval of the Lord Chancellor by virtue of Section 3(4) of the Public Records Act. The 1921 Census records are scheduled to be released to the public in January 2022.

We know from experience that there are public concerns about the confidentiality of the Census and the uses to which the information is put. At the time of a Census explicit assurances are given about the confidentiality of information supplied. If the period of closure for census records were changed now, we would be concerned that this would impact negatively on the public's response. Censuses are conducted for statistical purposes and the later use of them by genealogists is a secondary benefit that should never be allowed to jeopardise the coverage and quality of future Censuses.

This policy has recently been re-stated in the 2011 Census White Paper which was published on 11 December 2008.

Please note that the 1911 Census will not be fully open to the public until January 2012. On 13 January the National Archives began releasing a set of information from the 1911 Census. This does not include sensitive personal information, which is currently withheld.

Central Government: Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the Office for National Statistics' Public Sector Employment figures for (a) Q2 2008 and (b) Q3 2008, what increases in the employee headcount of which Government (a) Departments and (b) agencies account for the overall increase in central Government employment; and by how much the headcount increased in each case. [249905]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question, with reference to the Office for National Statistics' Public Sector Employment figures for (a) Q2 2008 and (b) Q3 2008, what increase in the employee headcount of which Government (a) departments and (b) agencies account for the overall increase in central government employment; and by how much the headcount increased in each case. (249905)

In Q2 2008, employment in central government increased by 10,000. This increase was driven by a growth in employment in the NHS (12,000 increase). In the same period, the number of employees in the Civil Service decreased by 3,000 (Annex A). A full breakdown of government department and agencies for Q2 2008 is presented in Annex B.

In Q3 2008, employment in central government increased by 15,000, primarily because of growth in employment in the NHS (21,000 increase). The number of employees in the Civil Service remained the same as the previous quarter (Annex A). A full breakdown of government departments and agencies for Q3 2008 is presented in Annex B.

[1] Numbers are rounded to the nearest 10, and numbers less than five are represented by "*". Data not available is represented by "—".
[2] The UK Statistics Authority (the Authority) was established on 1 April 2008, when the 'Statistics and Registration Service Act 2007' came into effect. One of the functions of the Authority is to oversee the Office for National Statistics (ONS)—its Executive office. As such, one departmental return has been made for the Authority incorporating ONS.
[3] On 1 April 2008, employees of the General Register Office were transferred from the UK Statistics Authority to the Identity and Passport Service (IPS).
[4] As of 1 April 2008, field interviewers are now classified as civil servants and are included as UK Statistics Authority employees.
[5] On 1 April, the Pesticides Safety Directorate became an Executive agency of the Health and Safety Executive.
[6] As of 1 April 2008, the Assets Recovery Agency merged with the UK's Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA).
[7] The Disability and Carers Service and the Pension Service are now called the Pension, Disability and Carers Service.
[8] Communities Scotland, Scottish Agricultural Science Agency and Scottish Building Standards Agency were abolished on 1 April 2008. Staff moved into the Scottish Government.
[9] Scottish Housing Regulator was set-up on 1 April 2008.

Charities

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many charities were removed from the Register of Charities, broken down by reason for removal, in the last three years for which figures are available. [249554]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the Charity Commission. I have asked the commission to reply.

Letter from Andrew Hind, dated 21 January 2009:

As the Chief Executive of the Charity Commission, I have been asked to respond to your written Parliamentary Question on the number of charities removed from the Register of Charities in the last three years for which figures are available and to give the reasons for such removals.

The table below provides details of the charities removed from the Register of Charities in the last three financial years.

Reason for removal	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08	Total
Ceased to exist or operate due to merger, incorporation or transfer of funds	1,592	1,725	1,436	4,753
Ceased to exist or operate for other reasons	3,344	2,691	3,270	9,305
Voluntary removal of charities below the minimum registration threshold	28	8	245	281
Duplicate registrations and other corrections	174	152	122	448
Total	5,138	4,576	5,073	14,787

During the current financial year the Commission has introduced new measures to identify charities that have ceased to operate and where appropriate remove them from the Register. This is expected to result in an increase in the number of charities removed from the Register in the current year and several thereafter.

Children: Disadvantaged

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (a) how many and (b) what percentage of working age households had no one in work in each year since 1997, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [249371]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question how many and what percentage of working age households had no one in work in each year since 1997, broken down by parliamentary constituency. (249371)

The available information is provided in the attached table. A copy of the table has been placed in the Library of the House.

The information requested has been answered using annual estimates derived from the Annual Population Survey (APS) household dataset, which are only available from 2004. Estimates before 2004 are derived from the Labour Force Survey and are of insufficient quality for answering this question due to the detail requested. It is vital to note that as with any sample survey, estimates from the APS are subject to a margin of uncertainty as different samples give different results.

Figures for households are based on working age households. A working-age household is a household that includes at least one person of working-age, that is a woman aged 16 to 59 or a man aged 16 to 64.

Estimates that are deemed unreliable for practical purposes are presented in italics. These estimates are based on small sample sizes and are subject to large variability. Estimates that are reliable are shaded.

Departmental Standards

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the Cabinet Office's definition of avoidable contact as referred to in its Departmental Strategic Objective (DSO) 4 (Key Progress Measure 1) is; and whether the Cabinet Office has sole responsibility for delivery against the targets associated with DSO 4. [249967]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Office defines avoidable contact as

> "contact that adds no value to the outcome. It includes contact that is nugatory, duplicative or caused by failures in business processes".

This is the definition as set out in the 2007 Service Transformation Agreement Progress Measure 1.

The targets associated with DS04 were derived from the two progress measures set out in the 2007 Service Transformation Agreement. These relate to avoidable contact reduction and rationalisation of Government websites. Responsibility for delivering these targets lies with the Departments responsible for delivering the relevant services. Responsibility for tracking progress, encouraging changes that will enable these targets to be met and fostering sharing of best practice lies with the Cabinet Office.

Futurebuilders Fund

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 17 December 2008, Official Report, column 835W, on Futurebuilders: Catz Club, which body scrutinises and evaluates the activities of the Futurebuilders Fund in place of the Futurebuilders Advisory Panel. [249968]

Kevin Brennan: The Futurebuilders programme is delivered by Futurebuilders England Ltd. under contract to the Cabinet Office. Oversight is provided by the following mechanisms:

internal and external audit, as part of the Cabinet Office, including the Cabinet Office Audit and Risk Committee through reporting to Cabinet Committees, where appropriate.

Sheffield Hallam university is carrying out an independent evaluation of the Futurebuilders programme.

In addition, the new Third Sector Advisory Body is responsible for overseeing the implementation of the Third Sector Review commitments and priorities and advising on Office of the Third Sector programmes, including Futurebuilders.

Government Departments: Standards

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many joint avoidable contact workshops were held in November and December 2008; and which Government Departments were represented at such workshops. [249962]

Mr. Watson: Four avoidable contact workshops were held in November and December 2008—two for local government on 11 November and 25 November, and two for central Government Departments on 26 November and 8 December. The following Departments and agencies attended the central Government workshops:

The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP), the Department for Transport (DfT), the Department of Health (DH), HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC), NHS Direct, the Ministry of Justice (MoJ), the Office of Fair Trading (OFT), the National Archives, the Identity and Passport Service (IPS), UK Borders Agency (UKBA) and the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA).

Income: Families

Stephen Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what proportion of families in England have a gross income of less than £58,000 per year. [247547]

Mr. McNulty: I have been asked to reply.

24.2 million families, 91 per cent. of all families, have a gross income of less than £58,000 per year.

Notes:

1. The Family Resources Survey is a nationally representative sample of approximately 26,000 households.

2. Data for 2006-07 were collected between April 2006 and March 2007.

3. The figures are based on a sample of households which have been adjusted for non-response using multi-purpose grossing factors which align the Family Resources Survey to Government office region populations by age and sex. Estimates are subject to sampling error and remaining non-response error.

4. Weekly income is based on self-assessment and therefore may be subject to misreporting.

5. Income data on the Family Resource Survey are not equivalised. Equivalisation is the process in which household income is adjusted to account for variation in household size and composition.

6. Family has been interpreted to mean benefit unit, which is defined as a single adult or a couple living as married and any dependent children. Same-sex partners (and cohabitees) are also included in the same benefit unit.

7. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 100,000.

Lobbying

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he expects to respond to the First Report from the Public Administration Committee on Lobbying: access and influence at Westminster (HC 36-I). [249965]

Kevin Brennan: The Report from the Public Administration Select Committee was published on 5 January. The Government aim to respond within two months of publication.

Lone Parents: Income

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what estimate he has made of the average wage of working lone parents (a) in England, (b) in Wales, (c) in Scotland, (d) in Northern Ireland and (e) nationwide in each of the last 10 years. [249194]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what estimate has been made of the average wage of working lone parents (a) in England, (b) in Wales, (c) in Scotland, (d) in Northern Ireland and (e) nationwide in each of the last 10 years. (249194)

The information requested is not available. The Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE) is the principal source of statistics on employees' earnings but the survey does not collect details of employees' family circumstances. The Labour Force Survey (LFS) collects information about each member of participating households and can therefore be used to estimate how many lone parents there are in work. However, the LFS cannot be used to estimate their average earnings.

Office of the Third Sector: Consultants

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which external consultants the Office of the Third Sector hired in 2007-08. [250322]

Kevin Brennan: The Office of the Third Sector (OTS) has engaged outside consultants for specialist recruitment exercises for senior public appointments, for procurement exercises and for the development and/or review of data sources, policies and programmes. The following external consultants were used during 2007-08:

Hedra;

Odgers Ray and Berndtson Ltd.;

ECOTEC Research and Consulting;

Community Development Foundation;

Tribal Consulting;

Get 2 the Point;

Professor Steve Wilcox;

CL Ideas;

Third Sector Prospect;

St. Chad's College;

BMG Research; and

Clive Jones.

Pay: Private Sector

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the median wage of a full-time (a) private and (b) public sector worker was in each year since 1996-97. [249955]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what the median wage of a full-time (a) private and (b) public sector worker was in each year since 1996-97. (249955)

Levels of earnings are estimated from the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE), and are provided for all employees on adult rates of pay whose pay for the survey period was not affected by absence.

The attached table shows the Median Gross Weekly Earnings for United Kingdom full time employees by private and public sector from 1997 to 2008. Results prior to 1997 are not available for the United Kingdom.

Unemployment: Cambridgeshire

Mr. Paice: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people were unemployed in South East Cambridgeshire constituency in each of the last 12 months. [250241]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated January 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many people were unemployed in South East Cambridgeshire constituency in each of the last 12 months. (250241)

Estimates are not available at this level of geographical detail due to the small sample sizes.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Apprentices

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many apprenticeships there were in each of the last five years. [247479]

Mr. Simon: I have been asked to reply.

The following table shows the number of apprenticeship starts and completions in England for 2003/04 to 2007/08.

Apprenticeship starts and completions in England, 2003/04 to 2007/08

Castle View Secondary School: Playing Fields

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what discussions his Department has had with (a) Essex county council and (b) Castle Point borough council on the disposal of Castle View secondary school playing fields for housing development; and if he will make a statement. [249779]

Jim Knight: As part of the Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme, the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF), and its delivery agents—Partnerships for Schools (PfS), have not engaged in any discussions with Essex county council or Castle Point borough council regarding the disposal of Castle View secondary school playing fields for housing development.

Child Minding: Young People

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what the minimum age at which a child may be left alone is; [247822]

(2) what the legal minimum age is for a child to act as a babysitter. [249163]

Beverley Hughes: The minimum age at which a child may be left alone is not prescribed in law. If anyone has concerns about the welfare of a child who is left alone, irrespective of their age, they should follow the procedures set out in "Working Together to Safeguard Children" for making a referral to either the local authority children's social care services or the police. These statutory agencies will then follow their normal processes for assessing whether the child is a child in need or at risk of suffering harm and for deciding what action should be taken to safeguard the child's welfare.

The law does not prescribe a minimum age below which a child may not act as a babysitter.

Children in Care: Education

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress his Department has made towards meeting its 2004 public service agreement target to narrow the gap in educational achievement between looked-after children and their peers. [247365]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information on progress on 2004 public service agreements can be found in the DCSF's Autumn Performance Report 2008: progress against public service agreements. This document is published on the DCSF website.

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/aboutus/reports/#apr.

Children: Abuse

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children were abused whilst subject to a child protection plan in each of the last five years in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland. [248827]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The available figures cover children who are subject to a Child Protection Plan and include information on category of abuse which led to the plan being put in place and re-referrals. These are available in the annual statistical first release "Referrals, Assessments and Children and Young People who are the subject of a Child Protection Plan, England". The latest figures can be found at the following link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000811/index.shtml

Children: Poverty

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the Government's policy is on tackling non-financial aspects of child poverty; and if he will make a statement. [250430]

Beverley Hughes: Polices on early years, education, health and communities set out in our "Children's Plan" together with those in our "New Opportunities" White Paper will help to break the cycles of inter-generational poverty for the future while ensuring that all children get the best start in life now.

For those who can, work remains the surest and most sustainable route out of poverty. Our policies on welfare reform, childcare, back to work help, skills development and in-work support will further increase parental employment and family income.

Legislation, planned for this Session, will ensure all levels of Government play their part in delivering these policies and meeting our target to eradicate child poverty by 2020.

Children: Protection

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children have been identified as being at risk of sexual exploitation in each children's services area in the last year for which figures are available. [250603]

Beverley Hughes: The Department does not hold this information.

Children's Centres

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many Sure Start children's centres are in operation. [251120]

Beverley Hughes: There are currently 2,920 Sure Start children's centres in England providing access to services to over 2.3 million children and their families.

By 2010 there will be at least 3,500 centres, one for every community, offering permanent and universal provision to help ensure that every child gets the best start in life.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Scott: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been spent on (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings in each year since the Department's inception; how much has been spent on wallpaper in that time; and what plans there are for further spending on departmental decoration. [248012]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families was created on 28 June 2007.

Information since this time on the amount of expenditure broken down into (a) maintaining, (b) decorating and (c) otherwise improving departmental buildings; wallpaper and plans for further spending on departmental decoration could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Departmental Catering

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which (a) food and (b) drinks suppliers have been used by his Department since it was established; and how much his Department paid to each such supplier. [248779]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families does not hold this information as we do not contract directly with suppliers of food and drink. The Department's catering and hospitality service is provided through an external commercial contract catering provider who manage their own supply chain for food and drink suppliers and are only able to provide this information at a disproportionate cost.

Departmental Information Officers

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessors spent on press officers in each of the last 10 years. [247308]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The figures requested are outlined in the following table.

	Spend (£000)
1998-99	869
1999-2000	887
2000-01	1307

	Spend (£000)
2001-02	1097
2002-03	1314
2003-04	1352
2004-05	1200
2005-06	994
2006-07	1156
2007-08	1173

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what expert advisers have been commissioned by his Department and its agencies since 1997; on what topic each was commissioned; and whether the advisers so appointed made a declaration of political activity in each case. [246661]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department was created on 28 June 2007. The detailed information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The Department sponsors a number of advisory non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs) which provide independent expert advice on a number of issues. Appointments to NDPBs are governed by the principles set out in the Commissioner for Public Appointments' code of practice. Summary information is published in 'Public Bodies' which can be accessed online at www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/public/bodies

or copies are available in the Libraries of the House.

Summary information on the political activity of individuals appointed to posts regulated by the Commissioner for Public Appointments' code of practice is published each year in the Commissioner's annual report.

In addition, the Government are committed to publishing an annual list detailing the number and costs of special advisers. Information for 2007-08 was published by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister, on 22 July 2008, Official Report, column 99-102WS.

Departmental Pay

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make it his policy that temporary and permanent employees of his Department employed at the same grade receive the same hourly rate of pay. [248404]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 18 December, Official Report, column 1115W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been spent by his Department on staff reward and recognition schemes since its inception. [248718]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Since its inception, the Department has spent a total of £2.1 million which includes bonus payments and other rewards.

Departmental Personnel

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 25 June 2008, Official Report, columns 405W, on departmental manpower, how many priority movers there are in his Department; how many of them were classified as such after returning from maternity leave; and how many staff have been classified as such for at least (a) six and (b) 12 months. [250191]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department currently has eight priority movers, none of whom are returning from maternity leave as these staff return to their previous work areas.

All staff are actively engaged in work during this transition period, on either key projects or short-term business priority posts.

There are currently no priority movers over six months.

Departmental Responsibilities

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department's three-year skills strategy has been finalised. [247190]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department's Skills Strategy for its staff has been finalised and will be communicated to staff in early 2009 as part of a wider People Strategy.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on how many occasions his Department's (a) External Scrutiny Group, (b) Implementation Review Unit, (c) Primary Heads Reference Group and (d) Secondary Heads Reference Group met in (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008. [247275]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information is as follows:

(a) The External Scrutiny Group met on 11 occasions in 2007, and on 12 occasions in 2008.

(b) The Implementation Review Unit met on seven occasions in 2007, and on nine occasions in 2008.

(c) The Secondary Heads Reference Group met on three occasions in 2007, and on six occasions in 2008.

(d) The Primary Heads Reference Group met on three occasions in 2007, and on three occasions in 2008.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 22 December 2008, Official Report, column 10W, on education maintenance allowance, what meetings he has had with the Learning and Skills Council to monitor the administration of education maintenance allowance payments. [248570]

Jim Knight: During October and November 2008, DCSF Ministers met with the Learning and Skills Council on nine occasions specifically to discuss the administration of EMA payments.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many applicants for education maintenance allowance for 2008-09 are due outstanding payments; and what estimate he has made of the sum of such arrears. [250777]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom the LSC's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in both Libraries.

Education Maintenance Allowance: South West

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many young people were (a) eligible for and (b) claimed education maintenance allowance in each parliamentary constituency in the South West in (i) 2006-07, (ii) 2007-08 and (iii) 2008-09. [250776]

Jim Knight: Eligibility for the Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) is based on household income. The Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) does not hold information on the household income of all households with a 16 to 19-year-old who participate in a course that meets the EMA valid provision criteria. Therefore it is not possible to calculate the precise number of young people who were eligible for EMA.

The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) operate EMA on behalf of DCSF. Mark Haysom the LSC's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member with the information requested on how many young people claimed education maintenance allowance in each parliamentary constituency in the South West in (i) 2006-07, (ii) 2007-08 and (iii) 2008-09. A copy of his reply will be placed in both Libraries.

Education: Assessments

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what qualifications are considered equivalent to (a) GCSE and (b) A-level by his Department. [240619]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: All level 2 qualifications approved under section 96 of the Learning and Skills Act (2000) contribute towards the reported performance at key stage 4.

Similarly, all level 3 qualifications approved under the Act contribute to reported performance at post-16.

An exhaustive list of equivalent qualifications and the size of their contributions can be found at QCA's National Database of Accredited Qualifications website:

http://www.ndaq.org.uk

Free School Meals

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of children (a) in England and (b) in each local authority area (i) were entitled to free school meals in (A) 2006, (B) 2007 and (C) 2008 and (ii) are so entitled in 2009; and if he will make a statement. [249889]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The number and percentage of children nationally and in each local authority area that were entitled to free school meals are shown in the following Statistical First Releases. Figures for 2009 are not yet available:

Pupil Characteristics and Class Sizes in Maintained Schools in England: January 2008 (Provisional) (Figures for nursery and primary schools are available in table 16 and table 17 for secondary schools):

Free School Meals

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of children accessing Sure Start are eligible for free school meals. [249103]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information is not collected centrally.

Further Education: Buildings

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department has spent on college buildings (a) in Jarrow constituency, (b) in South Tyneside, (c) in the North East and (d) nationwide in each year since 1997. [249561]

Mr. Simon: I have been asked to reply.

As the following table shows, in 1997-98 the total capital expenditure in further education colleges in England in the financial year 1997-98 was nil.

In total since that time, this Government have invested a massive £2.4 billion and will be investing a record further £2.3 billion across the next three years.

Capital funding for further education colleges is administrated by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) and I have asked Mark Haysom, the LSC chief executive, to write to my hon. Friend with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in the House Library.

Note that figures for 2003/04 are for 15-year-old candidates as figures for pupils at the end of key stage 4 are not published.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of pupils achieved five or more GCSEs at grades A* to C including English, mathematics, science and a modern foreign language in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008. [251084]

Jim Knight: The proportion of pupils at the end of key stage 4 achieving five or more GCSEs and equivalents at grades A* to C including English, mathematics, science and a modern foreign language was 24.1 per cent. in 2007 and 23.7 per cent. in 2008.

GCSE and A-level: Foreign Languages

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many candidates sat modern languages examinations at (a) GCSE and (b) A-level in each of the last five years, broken down by language studied. [250803]

Jim Knight: The information requested can be found in the following tables. The latest GCSE figures are taken from the Statistical First Release "GCSE and Equivalent Results in England, 2007/08 (Revised)" and can be found in table 10 at:

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what foreign languages are offered for study at (a) GCSE and (b) A-level. [250804]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The following modern languages are offered both at GCSE and A-Level: Arabic, Chinese, Japanese, Modern Greek, Bengali, Modern Hebrew, Panjabi, Polish, Dutch, Gujarati, Persian, Portuguese, Turkish, French, German, Spanish, Irish, Italian, Urdu, Russian. Latin and Ancient Greek are also offered at GCSE and A-Level.

GCSE: Children in Care

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of young people in year 11 who had spent at least one year in care gained five or more GCSEs graded A* to C in the most recent year for which figures are available. [251782]

Jim Knight: The information requested shows that in 2007 (the most recent year) that 12.6 per cent. of young people in year 11 who had spent at least one year in care gained five or more GCSEs graded A* to C.

This can be found in Table C in the Statistical First Release 'Outcome Indicators for Children Looked After, Twelve months to 30 September 2007—England' at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000795/index.shtml

General Certificate of Secondary Education: Mathematics

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many and what percentage of (a) all pupils and (b) pupils eligible for free school meals who took GCSEs were not entered for mathematics GCSE in 2008; [251988]

(2) how many and what percentage of (a) all pupils and (b) pupils eligible for free school meals achieved a pass at mathematics GCSE in 2008, broken down by grade. [252074]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: In 2008, of all pupils in maintained schools who were at the end of their key stage 4 studies, 22,123 (3.7 per cent.) had not been entered for mathematics at GCSE. For pupils eligible for free school meals, 6,324 (8.5 per cent.) had not been entered for mathematics at GCSE.

In 2008, of all pupils in maintained schools who were at the end of their key stage 4 studies, the numbers and percentages achieving a pass in GCSE mathematics by grade for all pupils, and pupils with FSM, is given in the following table:

	*A	A	B	C	D	E	F	G	U

Gifted Children: Primary Education

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding his Department has provided for the Young, Gifted and Talented programme in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [247403]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: There is no separate budget for schools to spend on their gifted and talented learners but the Department identified some £1 billion, last financial year and this (i.e. 2007-09), to support personalised education for all pupils, including tailored support for gifted and talented learners.

The CfBT Education Trust is the Department's national managing contractor for the Young Gifted and Talented Learner Academy. The National Strategies also support gifted and talented education as part of their work contracts. The value of these contracts is commercial in confidence.

The Department has historically spent between £10-20 million annually on such central support for delivering gifted and talented education.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the steps taken under the Young, Gifted and Talented programme to target those schools which in 2007 did not identify any gifted or talented pupils. [247404]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The January 2008 school census shows that 94.4 per cent. of all secondary schools and 76.3 per cent. of primary schools were identifying some 780,250 gifted and talented learners. This represents annual increases of 4.1 per cent. and 15.2 per cent. respectively in the proportion of secondary and primary schools identifying learners and an overall increase of over 81,000 in the numbers of learners identified as gifted and talented. The provisional figures from the summer 2008 census show further increases in the proportion of secondary and primary schools identifying and a total figure of 802,170 of gifted and talented learners. This represents solid progress towards our target of 100 per cent. of schools and colleges identifying up to one million gifted and talented learners by 2010.

Languages: Pre-School Education

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether children are able to meet the assessment areas in the early years foundation stage in a language other than English. [251334]

Beverley Hughes: The early years foundation stage profile sums up and describes each child's development and learning achievements at the end of the early years foundation stage. It is based on ongoing observation and assessment in six areas of learning.

Personal, social and emotional development
Communications, language and literacy
Problem solving, reasoning and numeracy
Knowledge and understanding of the world
Physical development
Creative development

All of the assessment scales in each area of learning can be assessed in the home language, for those learning English as an additional language. However, scale points 4-9 of the communication, language and literacy scales should be assessed in English.

Mathematics: Teachers

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of mathematics teachers in primary schools have qualified teacher status in mathematics. [251047]

Jim Knight: The information required is not available in the format requested.

Teachers in primary schools are qualified to teach all subjects of the national curriculum including mathematics.

National Curriculum Tests: Contracts

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 848W, on national curriculum tests: contracts, on what date each risk assessment referred to in the answer was reported to Ministers. [251050]

Jim Knight: As a matter of course, officials regularly provided Ministers with briefing and updates on test cycle progress, covering current issues, risks and remedial action taken. Officials reported their assessment of key risks to National Curriculum test delivery to Ministers in submissions on 7 February 2008, 2 April 2008 and 10 June 2008. Ministers responded to these assessments by seeking reassurance from QCA and NAA that they had suitable action in hand to secure delivery of their contractors' obligations.

Play

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent guidance his Department has issued to early years settings on children learning through free play. [250968]

Beverley Hughes: The early years foundation stage is based on facilitating development and learning through play. Alongside the "Statutory Framework for the Early Years Foundation Stage" published in March 2007, we issued a package of materials comprising "Practice Guidance for the Early Years Foundation Stage". This guidance contains advice and additional information for practitioners on how to implement the learning and development requirements of the early years foundation stage through play. The guidance includes a CD-ROM which directs providers to a range of additional information and provides examples of effective practice.

The National Strategies have also published a range of additional guidance on the areas of learning within the EYFS which must be delivered through planned and purposeful play.

Play: Tyne and Wear

Mr. Henderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding the Government have released to local authorities within the Tyne and Wear area for the maintenance of existing children's play areas and the establishment of new ones in the last 12 months. [241098]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Our public consultations have shown a consistent and strong demand from children and families for better outdoor play spaces near to where they live. In the Children's Plan we committed to invest an additional £235 million to fund up to 3,500 new and refurbished public play areas nationally, to transform local provision.

As part of this programme of investment from 2008-09 to 2010-11, all local authorities will be designated as play Pathfinders or Playbuilders. On average all play Pathfinder authorities will receive £2 million capital funding and £500,000 revenue funding over the course of the programme and Playbuilder authorities will receive around £1 million capital and £45,000 revenue funding. Play Pathfinder authorities will develop a minimum of 28 play areas and a new staffed adventure playground, while Playbuilder authorities will develop a minimum of 22 play areas by 2011. This includes both new play areas and significant refurbishment of existing play areas.

There are currently two play Pathfinder authorities (North Tyneside and Sunderland) and two Playbuilder authorities (Gateshead and Newcastle) in the Tyne and Wear area. The following tables show the capital and revenue funding allocations each of these four authorities will receive for 2008-09.

As part of the launch of the Play Strategy on 10 August we announced the next wave of our capital programme roll-out. For the Tyne and Wear area this means that from April 2009 one of the existing Playbuilders, Newcastle, will become a play Pathfinder and the fifth authority in the area not currently receiving funding, South Tyneside, will become a Playbuilder.

Pre-School Education

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children aged (a) below one, (b) two, (c) three and (d) four were in the care of a (i) maintained nursery, (ii) Sure Start children's centre, (iii) private, voluntary or independent nursery and (iv) childminder in each of the last four quarters. [251039]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey collects information on the ages of children in child care and early years providers in England in the form given in tables 1 and 2. The survey does not collect data quarterly, therefore annual figures have been provided.

Table 1: Age breakdown for number of children attending child care and early years providers: 2007

Type of provider	Under 2 years	2 years	3 years	4 years
Full day care	167,900	203,100	249,700	144,400
Full day care in children's centres	14,300	18,800	19,700	11,000
Sessional care	5,200	63,500	158,600	93,700

Holiday clubs	4,200	5,800	10,600	19,200
Childminder	53,300	39,700	33,600	26,500
Nursery schools[1]	—	—	17,600	20,600
Primary schools with nursery and reception classes[1]	—	—	119,200	214,000
Primary schools with reception but no nursery[1]	—	—	—	83,800

[1] These providers were only asked for the number of children in the age groups where figures are presented.

Notes:

1. Children may attend more than one provider and therefore may be included in the figures for more than one of the provider types in the table.
2. Sessional care: defined as "facilities where children under eight attend day care for no more than five sessions a week, each session being less than a continuous period of four hours in any day. Where two sessions are offered in any one day, there is a break between sessions with no children in the care of the provider."

Table 2: Proportion of children in England attending child care and early years providers by age group: 2007

Notes:

1. These providers were only asked to provide data on the age groups where proportions are presented.
2. Children may attend more than one provider and therefore will be included in the proportions for more than one of the provider types in the table. For this reason some columns total more than 100 per cent.
3. Sessional care: defined as "facilities where children under eight attend day care for no more than five sessions a week, each session being less than a continuous period of four hours in any day. Where two sessions are offered in any one day, there is a break between sessions with no children in the care of the provider."

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children aged (a) below one, (b) two, (c) three and (d) four attended a formal childcare setting in each of the last four quarters. [251040]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Survey of Parents collects information on the types of childcare used by families. Table 1 as following shows the figures from the 2007 Parents Childcare Survey on use of formal childcare by the age of the child.

Table 1: Use of formal childcare in the last week, by age of child

The Childcare and Early Years Survey of Parents is a sample survey therefore absolute numbers of children cannot be provided.

Quarterly figures are not available.

Pre-School Education: Finance

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 16 October 2008, Official Report, column 1498W, on pre-school education: finance, when he expects the child care strategy to be published. [251231]

Beverley Hughes: The child care strategy document will be published on 28 January 2009.

Pre-school Education: Inspections

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he has been informed of any complaints made to Ofsted of alleged maladministration by Ofsted relating to inspections of nursery schools in Sittingbourne and Sheppey constituency. [250684]

Beverley Hughes: We have not been informed of any such complaints made to Ofsted. As an independent non-ministerial Government department, Ofsted has its own internal complaints procedure. There is also an independent complaints adjudicator for Ofsted which handles around 30 complaints a year. These are cases which have exhausted the internal complaints process and where the complainant remains dissatisfied. The complaints adjudicator publishes an annual report which is presented to Ministers; this does not provide details of individual cases. The latest report can be found at http://www.ofstedadjudicator.co.uk/pages/publications/2007_ara.pdf.

Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many and what proportion of pupils temporarily excluded from school in the last 12 months were placed on a part-time curriculum; and how long on average the period of part-time attendance was; [248599]

(2) how many and what proportion of pupils excluded temporarily from school received assessment and support from their local authority's educational psychology service in the last 12 months; [248600]

(3) how many and what proportion of pupils temporarily excluded from school were subsequently assessed by an educational psychiatrist who advised the school on how to support their needs in the last 12 months. [248601]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information is not collected centrally.

Pupil Exclusions: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of pupils eligible for free school meals were permanently excluded in the last year for which data are available. [251295]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The available information is provided in the table. The figures in the table provide the number of exclusions and not the number of pupils excluded.

In a small number of cases, individual pupils might have more than one permanent exclusion.

School Census

Pupils: Bath

Dan Norris: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding was provided (a) per primary school pupil and (b) per secondary school pupil in Bath and North East Somerset in 2007-08. [251844]

Jim Knight: The per pupil revenue funding figures for Bath and North East Somerset for 2007-08 and 2008-09 are shown in the following table. Since 2006-07 the dedicated schools grant (DSG) is the main source of school funding. As the DSG is distributed through a single guaranteed unit of funding and is distributed from central to local government, a primary/secondary split is not available. The figures are for all funded pupils aged three to 19 and are provided in cash terms:

	DSG + grants per pupil—Bath and North East Somerset

Schools: Finance

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which schools in the National Challenge initiative reported a budget surplus in the last year for which data are available; and how much the surplus was in each case. [249147]

Jim Knight: I have placed the information requested in the Library. It sets out the value of the budget surplus as at 31 March 2008, for those maintained schools which are being supported with National Challenge funding. Please note that all the figures provided here for 2007-08 exclude schools in Cumbria as that local authority has yet to make a 2007-08 Section 52 Outturn submission.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been allocated to each category of possible expenditure under the National Strategies programme in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09; and if he will make a statement. [250550]

Jim Knight: The National Strategies is a key mechanism for supporting schools and local authorities to improve teaching and learning of core subjects. £469 million was allocated for the delivery of the National Strategies programmes in 2007-08. This included:

£377 million support via the Standards Fund for local authority delivery and for schools and settings to access the National Strategies' training and support programmes

£92 million for the central delivery of the National Strategies programmes. This included the provision of an education field force, as well as substantial free Continuing Professional Development (CPD) resources provided through the web and in hard copy for teachers and practitioners.

The expected spend in 2008-09 will be in the region of £471 million.

£306 million support via the Standards Fund for schools and settings to access the National Strategies' training and support programmes.

£60 million for local authority delivery and support to schools which is now a component part of the Area Based Grant paid to local authorities and which allows them to allocate resources according to local needs.

Approximately £105 million for the central delivery of the National Strategies programmes, including increased support for the Functional Skills pilot and the introduction of the National Challenge programme at secondary.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been paid to each national challenge school since June 2008; and if he will make a statement. [248633]

Jim Knight: I have placed the information in both Libraries. It shows the amount of funding which has been agreed through national challenge funding plans. It excludes maintained schools below the floor in city challenge areas (which are funded on a different basis).

Special Educational Needs

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of pupils had special educational needs without statements in January 2008. [247236]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: There were 1,390,670 pupils that had special educational needs that did not have statements; this represents 17.2 per cent. of pupils on roll across all schools. The figures are taken from the 'Special Educational Needs in England: January 2008' Statistical First Release, the latest of which can be found online at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000794/index.shtml.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many maintained special schools (a) opened and (b) closed in 2007-08, broken down by local authority; and how many of those which opened were new builds; [247860]

(2) how many representations his Department has received on the closure of special schools since its inception. [247855]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department's records, based on the available information provided by local authorities for the number of maintained special schools opened and closed in the academic year 2007-08, is given in the following tables. Information on the number of maintained special schools opened in 2007-08 which were newly built is not available.

The Department receives a number of representations on special educational needs issues. Representations on the closure of special schools are not recorded separately.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what funding he plans to provide to local authorities to enable them to implement the speech, language and communication needs action plan; [250434]

(2) which local authorities have been selected as local area pathfinders under the speech, language and communication needs action plan. [250435]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Local authorities already have substantial funding to support children with special educational needs (SEN), including SLCN. Local authorities' planned expenditure to support children with SEN—including speech, language and communication needs (SLCN)—is approximately £5.1 billion in 2008-09 (up from £2.1 billion in 2001-02). The pathfinder programme announced in "Better Communication", the SLCN action plan published in December 2008, will demonstrate how local authorities and primary care trusts can prioritise and commission services for children with SLCN more efficiently and effectively within existing overall resources.

Details of how we will select the pathfinders and details of the funding available will be announced in due course.

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the cost to local authorities was of residential school placements for children with statements of special educational needs in England in the last year for which figures are available. [250572]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information is not collected centrally by the Department. However, during the 2008-09 financial year local authorities in England budgeted net expenditure of over £5.1 billion for the provision of education for children with special educational needs. It is not possible to identify how much of this £5.1 billion was for the total cost of residential school placements for children with statements of special educational needs as the data are not collected in that way.

Teachers: Recruitment

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what discussions Ofsted has had with the Training and Development Agency on the relationship between teacher recruitment and systemic school failure in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [247457]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in both Libraries.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 19 January 2009:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response.

In the last 12 months, there were three informal discussions between Ofsted's staff and those of the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA). These focused on the connection between staff recruitment and retention, and low performing schools. They involved discussion of Ofsted's evidence on staffing issues—for example, the relationship between staff turnover and school performance.

Additionally, Ofsted inspects the quality of teacher training. Its judgements are used by the TDA in its decisions about arrangements for teacher training.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt Hon Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Young Offender Institutions: Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which young offender institutions have been found by inspectors to be providing too narrow a curriculum; and what steps he is taking to remedy the issue. [242006]

Beverley Hughes: Inspection reports on individual young offender institutions (YOIs) are public documents and available on-line and contain specific assessments of the education provision. The annual report of Her Majesty's Chief Inspector of Education, Children's Services and Skills 2007/08 reported that the range of vocational provision for children and young people in secure settings is often too narrow. However, the current re-tendering process for the Offender Learning and Skills Service contracts for the provision of education and training in YOIs has set clear requirements for the core curriculum in YOIs. We also published our plans to improve education and training in custody within the Youth Crime Action Plan (July 2008). This included a commitment to place local authorities in the lead for securing education in juvenile custody, and this is scheduled to form part of the forthcoming Children, Skills and Learning Bill. The aim is to ensure education in custody meets young peoples' personal needs and so far as is practical matches that available for children and young people in the mainstream education system.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Ministerial Statements

Mr. Bone: To ask the Leader of the House what mechanism she uses to monitor the number of occasions on which the media has been given information contained in Ministerial Statements before those statements have been made to the House. [250700]

Chris Bryant: The Leader of the House closely monitors all ministerial statements, written and oral, and is keen to ensure that paragraph 9.1 of the Ministerial Code is always upheld. This makes clear that > "when Parliament is in Session, the most important announcements of Government policy should be made in the first instance, in Parliament."

SCOTLAND

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251452]

Ann McKechin: The information is as follows.

(a) The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members' correspondence. Information relating to 2008 will be published as soon as it has been collated. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

(b) The Scotland Office publishes statistics on the handling of correspondence from members of the public in our annual report. The annual reports for 2007-08 and earlier are available on the SO website at:

http://www.scotlandoffice.gov.uk.

The Scotland Office aims to respond to all correspondence from members of the public within 15 working days of receipt.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the (a) original expected cost, (b) original expected delivery date, (c) actual cost incurred and (d) actual delivery date was of each ICT project undertaken and completed by his Department in each year since 1997; who the contractors for each project were; what the (i) initial estimated and (ii) outturn payment to each contractor was; and if he will make a statement. [251144]

Ann McKechin: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 68W, to the hon. Member for Romford (Andrew Rosindell).

Departmental Public Relations

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the cost of his Department's contracts with public relations consultancies was in each of the last five years. [251530]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office has incurred no expenditure on public relations consultancies in the last five years.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland with reference to the answer of 4 November 2008, Official Report, column 239W, on departmental training, what personal training courses at public expense other Ministers in his Department have undertaken since 1 January 2008. [251314]

Ann McKechin: Ministers in the Scotland Office have undertaken the following personal training courses at public expense since 1 January 2008: 'Presentation and Public Speaking Skills' and an 'Introduction Workshop for New Ministers'.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in his Department attended at least one such training course. [252237]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office have incurred no costs for media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; and have held no such training sessions.

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what expenditure his Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises in each of the last five years. [251870]

Ann McKechin: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Hoon) on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 6W. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the 'Ministerial Code'.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement. [252013]

Ann McKechin: All staff in the Scotland Office are on secondment from the Scottish Executive or the Ministry of Justice, who remain their employers.

The matter of granting time off in lieu is delegated to Departments to determine under the civil service management code, of which section 9 sets out terms and conditions relating to hours of work and how staff should be compensated for working outside their normal pattern.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252014]

Ann McKechin: The Office does not record this information in the form requested.

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by his Department, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250130]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office do not own or lease any cars and do not hold records of the cubic capacity of the engine of cars they hire.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport (Mr. Hoon) on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Crime

Mr. Malins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many prosecutions have taken place for the offence of consuming alcohol in a designated public place in each of the last seven years. [249033]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 21 January 2009]: Data showing the number of defendants proceeded against for consuming alcohol in a designated public place in England and Wales from 2001 to 2007 (latest available) are given in the following table.

Defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts for consuming alcohol in a designated public place, England and Wales, 2001-07[1, 2]

	Number
2001	—
2002	37
2003	108
2004	122
2005	111
2006	101
2007	113

[1] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Community Policing: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will meet a delegation of residents from Castle Point to discuss community policing and the return to use of Hadleigh police station. [249687]

Mr. Coaker: The management of the police estate and the allocation of resources are matters for each police authority and the chief constable to determine.

However, I am happy to meet the hon. Member to discuss community policing in Castle Point.

Crime: Business

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate her Department has made of the cost to UK businesses of (a) shoplifting, (b) fraud, (c) forgery, (d) e-crime, (e) theft from vehicles, (f) theft of vehicles, (g) theft of plant, (h) graffiti and vandalism and (i) other crime in each year since 1997. [247127]

Mr. Alan Campbell: There are currently no year-on-year estimates of the costs of crime to business. I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 13 January 2009, Official Report column 700W, Crime: Business that provided links to the most recent published estimates.

However the Home Office also published some estimates of the costs of crime against retail and manufacturing premises for 1994 as well as for 2002-03 in:

http://rds.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs2/hors146.pdf.

The results from both surveys are broadly comparable and an overview is provided in section 4 of the second report. However it is not possible to identify the year on year trends in between these two surveys. No estimate of the cost of crime to businesses has been published since the 2002-03 report.

Extradition: EU Countries

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what offences British citizens have been (a) arrested and (b) surrendered to the authorities of another EU member state under the provisions of a European arrest warrant since the Extradition Act 2003 came into force. [243022]

Meg Hillier: The Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) is the designated authority for the receipt and transmission of European arrest warrants in the UK. There is no Government involvement in the operation of the EAW. The following table gives a total figure for the number of people extradited to and by the UK since the EAW entered into force on 1 January 2004 until September 2008.

It is not possible from current systems to provide data broken down into British and non-British nationals, nor into types of offence. SOCA is putting in place a new database to record this information non-retrospectively.

Identity Cards: Civil Proceedings

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 145W, on identity cards, what stage the legal case relating to disclosure of Gateway information has reached; how much the Government have spent to date on legal costs for the case; and if she will place in the Library a copy of the Identity Card Gateway Review, redacting commercially sensitive information. [250192]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 508-09W. The tribunal has still not issued its decision.

The legal cost incurred, relating to the disclosure of Gateway information on the Identity Cards programme, is currently £121,000 excluding VAT.

Gateway reports, including the findings and status, are conducted on a confidential basis for senior responsible owners (SRO). We do not, therefore, make this information routinely public.

Police Stations: Closures

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police stations have been closed to the public since 2001. [252277]

Mr. Coaker: The management of the police estate and allocation of resources are matters for each police authority and chief constable, who are responsible for assessing local needs.

Police: Manpower

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many sworn police officers there are in England and Wales; and how many (a) occupy non-front line posts and (b) are on permanent restricted duties. [252276]

Mr. Coaker: There were 141,859 full-time equivalent (FTE) police officers in the 43 forces of England and Wales as at 31 March 2008.

There were 17,573 FTE non-operational police officers in the 43 forces of England and Wales as at 31 March 2008. Such officers include any member of staff whose primary role is to support the delivery of the overarching aims of the police service or to service the internal needs of the organisation.

There were 4,821 police officers (headcount) in the 43 forces of England and Wales on temporary restricted duty as at 31 March 2008.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Defence Equipment

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent improvements have been made to the personal protective equipment for armed forces personnel in active theatres. [250026]

Mr. Quentin Davies: We have recently introduced enhancements to the fit of Osprey body armour which have improved user manoeuvrability. Additionally, a system which allows troops to wear front and back Osprey plates without the soft armour jacket has just been introduced. This system is used by troops who require extra mobility or are operating in confined spaces.

The need to improve personal protection in response to developing threats is continually assessed. Further improvements to body armour and helmets are being developed and are planned to be introduced later this year.

Defence: Military Aircraft

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent improvements have been made to the fleet of frontline UK aircraft. [250027]

Mr. Quentin Davies: In the past year, we have introduced a number of significant improvements to our frontline aircraft capabilities.

We have enhanced our strategic air lift capability by taking delivery of two more C-17s, taking our total C-17 fleet to six aircraft.

We continue to improve our fast jet capabilities with significant enhancements to our Harrier and Tornado fleets to increase their effectiveness in the Close Air Support roles they fulfil in Iraq and Afghanistan. These improvements include our new Paveway IV Precision Guided Bomb, which entered service with the Harriers in December 2008, and which provides the RAF with a state of the art all-weather, day and night, precision bombing capability. The Dual Mode Seeker Brimstone also entered service in December 2008 providing increased target accuracy and reduced risk of collateral damage. On 1 July 2008 Typhoon was declared operational in the air to ground role, while on 21 October the first two Tranche 2 Typhoon aircraft were delivered to RAF Coningsby.

We have also increased our surveillance and reconnaissance capabilities with the introduction of the Airborne Stand off Radar, which achieved its In Service Date in November 2008.

We have increased the number of helicopter airframes and hours available to our commanders in the last two years, delivering a 60 per cent. increase in available flying hours, and will be making a further significant increase in helicopter capacity in Afghanistan over the next two years. By the end of 2009 the first of the eight Chinooks under the Mark 3 reversion programme will be delivered, providing a significant uplift to our heavy lift helicopter fleet. The first of the 12 upgraded Lynx Mark 9 helicopters will also be available by the end of 2009. Taken with additional Apache capability and the Merlins that we plan to move to Afghanistan once they have completed their mission in Iraq, these improvements will deliver a significant increase in our front line helicopter capability.

Departmental Consultants

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost of his Department's contracts with management consultants was in each of the last five years. [251308]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Summaries for the years 1995-96 to 2007-08 of the MOD's expenditure on external assistance, of which management consultancy is a part, are available in the House Library. These summaries also include the spend figures for Defence agencies and trading funds, but they exclude expenditure by non-departmental public bodies, which is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Correspondence

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he plans to reply to letters from the hon. Member for Peterborough on the wearing of service uniforms off base by personnel at RAF Wittering. [250809]

Mr. Kevan Jones: My right hon. Friend, the Minister of State for the Armed Forces replied to the hon. Member on 21 January 2009. I am not aware of any further outstanding correspondence from this Department.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251437]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to correspondence from Members and Peers. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it is ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

The information sought in respect of letters from members of the public could be provided only at disproportionate cost, but the Department aims to respond to all correspondence within 15 working days of receipt.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Fareham of 27 October 2008, Official Report, column 630W, on departmental ICT, what ICT projects his Department and its agencies are undertaking; and if he will make a statement. [251290]

Mr. Quentin Davies: An ICT project can vary from installing single computers and software licences to major programmes, such as the Defence Information Infrastructure. Details of all the ICT projects being undertaken by the Ministry of Defence and each of its agencies is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the initial estimated (a) cost and (b) delivery date was of each ICT project initiated by his Department in each year since 1997; what the (i) outturn cost and (ii) completion date was of each such project subsequently completed; which contractors were hired for each project; and how much has been paid to each contractor in respect of each project to date. [251379]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which ICT projects his Department initiated and abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were incurred in each project; who the contractors for each were; on what date each was (a) commenced and (b) abandoned; and if he will make a statement. [251381]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend East of 11 November 2008, Official Report, column 1000W, on departmental public relations, which firms were used; and what the remit was of each substantive contract. [250281]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 22 January 2009, Official Report, columns 1672-73W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost of his Department's contracts with public relations consultancies was in each of the last five years. [251334]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence gave on 11 November 2008, Official Report, column 1001W, to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend, East (James Duddridge). Information on contracts with public relations consultancies is otherwise not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The MOD publishes annual summaries of expenditure on external assistance which are placed in the Library of the House. The latest edition has been placed in the Library of the House and is available on line at

Directorate of Management and Consultancy Services

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what Directorate of Management and Consultancy Services studies have been issued since 1997-98; [249709]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of each Directorate of Management and Consultancy Services study produced in 2008. [249723]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I will place a copy of the list of substantive studies completed by the Ministry of Defence's Directorate of Management Consultancy Services between January 2000 and December 2008 in the Library of the House. While every effort has been made to ensure the completeness of the list over that period, it has not been possible to confirm absolutely that all substantive studies have been included due to a lack of consistency in recording information during a period of restructuring and change. Records prior to 2000 are not held on a central database and could be accessed and verified only at disproportionate cost.

I will place copies of the reports produced in 2008 in the Library of the House, subject to a check to ensure they do not contain information that should be withheld. I will write to the hon. Member when this has been done.

HMS Endurance

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the out-of-service date for HMS Endurance is. [251892]

Mr. Quentin Davies: On present planning assumptions HMS Endurance will reach her out-of-service date in 2015.

Joint Strike Fighter

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Mid Sussex of 6 November 2008, Official Report, column 676W, on the Joint Strike Fighter aircraft, whether the development and acquisition schedule under the US/UK Memorandum of Understanding was denominated in US dollars. [251931]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Yes.

Supply Estimates

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will break down his Department's Winter Supplementary Estimate 2008-09 on the same basis as in his answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column [illegible]W. [243416]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

Letter from Bob Ainsworth, dated 22 January 2009:

I undertook to write to you on 15 December 2008, (Official Report, column 341W) and 12 January, (Official Report column 99W) in answer to your Parliamentary Questions about Departmental Public Expenditure.

I attach tables which provide a detailed breakdown of the Department's Main Estimates 2007/08, together with a breakdown of the Department's Winter Supplementary Estimates for 2008/09.

I am placing a copy of my letter in the Library of the House.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Badgers

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the badger population in each of the counties of England in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [251235]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Surveys of badger populations in Great Britain were undertaken in the mid-1980s and mid-1990s. In the mid-1980s the badger population was estimated to be 250,000 badgers and in the mid-1990s a survey estimated the population had increased by 77 per cent.

DEFRA is not aware of any other national surveys which have attempted to estimate badger numbers in each of the counties of England.

DEFRA does not have regional breakdowns of these figures.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of dairy herds in each local authority area are under restrictions following a bovine tuberculosis breakdown. [248789]

Jane Kennedy: Bovine tuberculosis data are only collated on a county or regional basis and therefore it is not possible to break the data down by local authority area or by herd type.

A full county breakdown of TB herd statistics for 1998-2007 is available on the DEFRA website. The latest provisional county and regional statistics for 2008 are also published on the DEFRA website.

Carbon Neutral Newcastle

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what grants his Department has given to Carbon Neutral Newcastle; on what dates those grants were made; and for what objectives and purposes. [250835]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 27 January 2009]: Carbon Neutral Newcastle set up a charity Carbon Neutral North East to help deliver its objective of making Newcastle the first carbon neutral city in the world. It delivers elements of the city's climate change strategy, helping people and businesses understand their impact on climate change and providing them with information and support. Carbon Neutral North East also has the wider remit of promoting similar schemes and spreading the low carbon agenda through the north-east.

A grant was made from the Climate Challenge Fund over 2006-07 and 2007-08 to Carbon Neutral North East for a travelling outreach programme using a 'Climate Dome'. This housed an exhibition about climate change, which brought information to the public throughout the north-east region. The Climate Challenge Fund was part of the Climate Change Communications Initiative granting funding to projects across England to encourage more positive attitudes towards tackling climate change. These projects worked through community-based organisations and other trusted intermediaries and used creative communications.

The dates and amounts of grants were as follows:

2006-07	207,746
2007-08	188,275
Total	396,021

I understand this to be the total sum of grants DEFRA made to Carbon Neutral Newcastle. However, officials are still completing their research into the matter, and if any other grants are identified I will write to the hon. Member and place a copy of my letter in the Libraries of the House.

Departmental Regulations

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many regulations were (a) implemented and (b) revoked by his Department in 2008. [250239]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In 2008, DEFRA completed the making of 87 statutory instruments. Of these two were signed on behalf of the Forestry Commissioners, and one on behalf of the Gangmasters Licensing Authority, and two were Orders of the Privy Council.

These statutory instruments revoked 110 enactments, that is to say where all or nearly all of the statutory instrument (or Act in a small number of cases) was revoked.

Flood Control: EC Law

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made in implementing the EU Floods Directive; and if he will make a statement. [251111]

Huw Irranca-Davies: We intend to consult on arrangements for implementing the directive in England this spring, alongside the draft Floods and Water Bill.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what financial and economic impact assessment has been made of the implementation of the EU Floods Directive. [251112]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Impact assessments have been published for many elements of the directive, for example, as part of the Government's response to Sir Michael Pitt's Review of the Summer 2007 floods, which was published in December 2008. Further impact assessments will be published whenever measures to implement the directive are proposed or consulted upon. An example of this will be the impact assessment to be published alongside the consultation document for the draft Floods and Water Bill, which we are intending to publish this spring.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has received on the implementation of the EU Floods Directive; what response he made; and if he will make a statement. [251113]

Huw Irranca-Davies: We continue to have discussions with the Environment Agency, the devolved Administrations and other interested parties about the implementation of the directive upon which we shall consult this spring.

Genetically Modified Organisms: Somerset

Mr. Jeremy Browne: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what plant breeding methods were used to produce the GM-contaminated oilseed rape seeds in Somerset in 2008; [250020]

(2) at what location GM-contaminated oilseed rape seeds were grown in Somerset in 2008; [250021]

(3) whether the variety of GM-contaminated oilseed rape seeds grown in Somerset in 2008 was (a) listed on and (b) awaiting approval for the National List of Varieties; [250022]

(4) what the country of origin was of the GM-contaminated rape seeds grown in Somerset in 2008; [250023]

(5) what steps were taken to protect against the GM-contamination of the oilseed rape seeds found to be contaminated with GM material grown in Somerset in 2008 (a) during cultivation and (b) post-harvest; [250051]

(6) whether the areas immediately surrounding the GM-contaminated oilseed rape seeds grown in Somerset in 2008 have been examined for potential GM-contamination. [250155]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The affected trial grown in Somerset was of a new variety of conventionally bred, open-pollinated oilseed rape. The seed was imported from the USA with a view to being grown in various trials in the UK. This included national list trials, for which an application was made a year after the Somerset trial was sown. However, these did not take place and the variety has been withdrawn from the national list process. The trial in Somerset was carried out privately on behalf of the company that owns and imported the seed.

The conventional seed had a low level of GM seed mixed within it (0.05 per cent. or one in every 2,000 seeds), of a type approved by the European Union for food and animal feed use, but not for cultivation. It did not become known that the seed planted in Somerset had this GM content until after the trial had been harvested. As such, no measures were applied during cultivation to limit the potential dispersal of GM material. After harvest the farmer contracted to grow the trial left the ground fallow and let his livestock graze on emerging oilseed rape 'volunteer' plants (those that grow from seed shed at harvest). The farmer is being advised by the GM Inspectorate on the best way to further manage and reduce any volunteers. Given the low level of GM seed originally sown and the farmer's action post-harvest, it is not expected that GM volunteers will be a significant issue.

A separate trial of a different variety of conventional oilseed rape was grown immediately adjacent to the affected trial crop by the same farmer. Testing indicates that as a result of cross-pollination this adjacent crop acquired a very low adventitious GM presence (less than 0.01 per cent.). No other crops were grown in the vicinity of the affected trial, including on neighbouring farms, that might have been subject to GM cross-pollination. In this situation, it is not proposed to monitor the local area for potential contamination. The accidental sowing of the GM seed has not posed any risk to human health and the environment, and nor should there be any economic prejudice to neighbouring farmers through possible cross-pollination.

The affected trial took place within the south Somerset district council area. We do not think it would be appropriate to disclose the precise location, in part because it might deter people from coming forward with information about potential unauthorised GM releases, which would not be in the public interest. However, we are currently considering requests to release the exact location under the Environmental Information Regulations.

Marine Management Organisation: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent estimate he has made of the cost of establishing the Marine Management Organisation, broken down by budget heading. [251032]

Huw Irranca-Davies: A current estimate of the cost of establishing the Marine Management Organisation, which is currently not broken down by budget heading, can be found in the Impact Assessment for the Marine and Coastal Access Bill. This is available on the DEFRA website.

Pesticides

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with (a) his counterparts and (b) farming industry representatives from (i) other EU member states, (ii) Scotland and (iii) Wales on (A) current and proposed EU pesticide regulations, (B) the import of farm products from countries outside the EU and (C) proposed changes to the EU modulation regime; and if he will make a statement. [251280]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The UK's negotiating position on the proposed authorisation regulation for plant protection products was adopted in consultation with other Departments and the devolved administrations through the Committee on National Security, International Relations and Development's sub-committee on Europe. Ministers worked extremely hard throughout the negotiations to secure a balanced outcome, and held bilateral meetings with Commissioner Vassiliou, Ministers of other member states, and key stakeholders on the proposals and its potential impacts. It remains unclear how the introduction of the regulation will affect the import of produce from outside the EU.

The Secretary of State had numerous discussions with other member states, devolved administrations and stakeholders on the CAP Health Check, including changes to the EU modulation regime. These helped to achieve an increased focus on environmental benefits across Europe, by increasing the rate of compulsory modulation to 10 per cent. by 2012, and therefore the share of CAP funding that goes towards environment and rural development schemes. As part of this, the Secretary of State met Ministers from other member states, including France, Germany, Poland, Czech Republic, Ireland, Denmark and Hungary, as well as Commissioner Fischer-Boel. In their approach to the health check negotiations, the Government worked closely with the devolved Administrations, both through ministerial meetings and technical discussions between officials, and with stakeholders, including through ministerial meetings and a public consultation.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the effects of a reduction in pesticides usage on levels of greenhouse gas emissions. [251987]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 27 January 2009]: My Department is currently not conducting any assessments of the effects of a reduction in pesticides usage on levels of greenhouse gas emissions.

Water Supply

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what steps his Department is taking in its formulation of policy to take account of the impact which climate change will have on England's water resources; and if he will make a statement; [250953]

(2) how many water abstractions have been restored to permitted levels since the Restoring Sustainable Abstraction Programme was launched in 1999; and if he will make a statement; [250955]

(3) what steps his Department is taking to prevent over-abstraction of water from rivers, wetlands, lakes and groundwaters; and if he will make a statement. [250956]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In April 2007, it became a statutory requirement for water companies to prepare and maintain previously voluntary water resources management plans. The water resources management plans look ahead 25 years and include projections of current and future demands for water, and how the companies aim to meet this demand.

In their plans, water companies must take into account the implications of climate change in their supply and demand forecasts, and include an assessment of the impact of each water resource supply option in terms of greenhouse gas emissions.

The Environment Agency has responsibility for managing water resources. The Agency's forthcoming Water Resources Strategy will include the actions that will need to be taken to ensure enough water for people and the environment. It has been informed by research into future river flows to 2050 and groundwater resources to the 2020s and 2030s.

The Environment Agency is the statutory body with a duty to manage water resources in England and Wales and is taking forward the Restoring Sustainable Abstraction (RSA) programme. To date, the RSA has been limited to identifying the sites where abstraction is at unsustainable levels. It has carried out investigations to identify where changes to abstraction regimes are necessary. In many cases those investigations have concluded that the licensed abstractions are having no adverse effect on the environment. Therefore no action to alter licensed abstractions is necessary.

Of the 2,970 Water Resources licences that have been assessed under the habitats regulations review of consents because they were likely to cause a significant effect on high priority Natura 2000 sites (that is special areas of conservation (SAC) and special protection areas (SPA)), 274 have been found to require an options appraisal to remove a possible adverse effect. In 2,696 cases it could be shown that there was no adverse effect on site integrity and therefore no action was required. Further work is required on medium and low priority sites but to date this relates to less than 10 per cent. of the abstraction licences in England and Wales.

It may also be necessary to take action on other sites not designated under the Habitats and Birds Directives or as SSSIs.

The first cycle of the Environment Agency's Catchment Abstraction Management Strategies has helped to improve the Agency's knowledge of where there may be problems of unsustainable abstraction around the country and of specific sites that will require further investigation through RSA.

RSA will also contribute to the Water Framework Directive (WFD) by providing a framework to restore unsustainable abstraction and work towards achieving the WFD target of meeting good ecological status by 2015.

The Agency is expecting to start taking action to revoke or modify abstraction licences at those sites where this is deemed necessary in 2009-10.

Water companies in England have indicated that they intend to take account of the habitats directive changes in their water resource management plans and work with the Environment Agency to resolve unsustainable abstractions. This will mean that some of the licences that have the biggest impacts on some of England's most important conservation sites will be resolved by voluntary changes.

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to ensure that Ofwat takes account of the effects of climate change in its periodic review of water prices; and if he will make a statement. [250954]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Ofwat sets out in its documents "Setting Price Limits for 2010-15: Framework and approach" and "Capital Expenditure for 2010-15: Ofwat's views on companies' draft business plans" how it is taking into account the impact of climate change for the 2009 price review. These documents are available from the Ofwat website.

WALES

Economic Inactivity

6. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the First Minister on levels of economic inactivity in Wales. [250638]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have had many recent discussions with the First Minister about economic inactivity in Wales.

We are working together to help create jobs and help people get back to work, while ensuring that those who cannot work receive the support they need.

Job Losses

7. Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what estimate he has made of the number of job losses in Wales since 1 December 2008. [250639]

Mr. David: Labour Market Statistics figures for December will not be published until next month.

However, working alongside the Welsh Assembly Government, we are doing everything we can to help individuals back into work.

Banking Assistance: Small Businesses

8. Nia Griffith: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the First Minister on policy to ensure banks in receipt of public support assist small businesses in Wales. [250641]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have regular discussions with the First Minister about assistance for small businesses in Wales, not least, at the All Wales Economic summits that I attend.

Defence Training Review

9. Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Defence on the implications for Wales of the defence training review programme. [250642]

Mr. David: The St. Athan Defence Training Academy is a very important project for Wales. The substantial investment of Package 1 will create thousands of direct and indirect jobs both during construction and from 2013, when construction is completed.

Marine and Coastal Access Bill

10. Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will work with the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and the National Assembly for Wales to ensure the effective implementation of the provisions of the Marine and Coastal Access Bill in Welsh waters. [250643]

Mr. David: I have discussed the implementation of new marine legislation with the Welsh Assembly Government. This Government and the Welsh Assembly Government are committed to working together constructively to ensure their successful implementation.

Manufacturing Companies

11. Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with Welsh Assembly Government Ministers on the cash flow of manufacturing companies in Wales. [250644]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Through my work on the National Economic Council and the All Wales Economic Forum, I am in touch with economic developments at the heart of Government and directly from the people of Wales.

Last week, I had also had a constructive meeting with David Rosser (Director CBI) and will be meeting FSB on Monday.

Small Businesses

12. Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment he has made of the levels of support from the Government available to small businesses in Wales. [250646]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Small businesses in Wales have a tremendous amount of support from both the UK and Welsh Assembly governments (WAG), such as the recently announced package of a £10 billion working capital fund, Enterprise Finance Guarantee scheme, and the Capital for Enterprise Fund.

Further, the Welsh Assembly government's Flexible Support for Business scheme provides help and advice as well as operating the Single Investment Fund. Businesses in Wales also benefit from assistance with their tax liabilities from the HMRC Business Support Service.

Public Expenditure

13. Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what the level of public expenditure per head of population in Wales was in 2008. [250647]

Mr. David: Figures for total identifiable public expenditure per head in Wales are published retrospectively by the Treasury as a Command Paper. Figures for 2008 are not yet available.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251429]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of departments in replying to Members correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it is ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

For correspondence from members of the public, information for the current year cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost. The Wales Office aims to respond to all written correspondence within 15 working days. As reported in the Department's Annual Reports, 91 per cent. were answered within the timescale in 2007-08, 93 per cent. in 2006-07, and 94 per cent. in 2005-06.

TRANSPORT

Airwave Service: Maritime and Coastguard Agency

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Airwave handsets issued to the Marine and Coastguard Agency have been lost in each year since their introduction; and how many handsets issued to the Agency have been disabled by the service provider through (a) loss, (b) breakage and (c) other reasons in each such year. [246186]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None.

The Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) has never been issued with an Airwave handset.

The MCA has a fixed set and not a handset as stated in the written answer to the hon. Member for Carshalton and Wallington (Tom Brake) on 17 November 2008, Official Report, column 27W.

A correction has been issued.

Aviation

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many air passenger movements there were through the UK in each of the last three years; and what estimate his Department has made of the number in each year to 2014. [250098]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Civil Aviation Authority statistics on the number of terminal passengers at UK airports are reported in Transport Statistics Great Britain 2008', available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/tsgb/.

The Department for Transport's forecasts of terminal passengers are reported in 'UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts 2009', available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pqr/aviation/atf/

The following table shows: Civil Aviation Authority statistics on the number of terminal passengers at UK airports in 2005, 2006, and 2007; and, the Department for Transport's forecasts of the same for 2008 to 2014.

		Passengers (million)
Outturn	2005	228
	2006	235
	2007	241
Forecast	2008	240
	2009	245
	2010	258
	2011	268
	2012	277
	2013	288
	2014	299

The forecasts of terminal passengers exclude some of the smallest UK airports covered by the outturn statistics. These account for around three million passengers per annum.

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will publish the research underlying figures 1.1, 1.2 and 1.3 in his Department's publication UK Air Passenger Demand and carbon dioxide forecasts. [250357]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The research underlying figures 1.1, 1.2 and 1.3 of "UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts 2009" is set out in chapter 2 of the same report, with further detail in annexes A-D.

Bus Services: Concessions

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the answer of 12 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1166-7W, on bus services: concessions, what discussions the Disabled Persons Transport Advisory Committee has had with the Mental Health Action Group on access to free bus travel concessions. [252088]

Paul Clark: There has been no formal discussion between the Disabled Persons Transport Advisory Committee (DPTAC) and the Mental Health Action Group on access to free bus travel concessions.

However, the Mental Health Action Group has been invited to attend and speak at one of DPTAC's future working group meetings.

Dartford-Thurrock Crossing

Mr. Whittingdale: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what progress his Department has made on its study on a second Dartford crossing; and if he will make a statement. [250912]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport commissioned in February 2008 a study to provide advice on the future need for additional crossing capacity in the lower Thames and identify possible future options.

The study looks to make best use of available transport models to better understand the impacts of current and future demand, and review previous work on what can be done to improve traffic flow through the existing Dartford crossing in the short to medium term.

The study work is nearing completion and we expect to receive the report of the study shortly. Following receipt, Ministers will consider the findings and recommendations of the study, to inform decisions on options to address the short, medium and longer term transport challenges associated with current cross-Thames movements in the area.

Departmental Consultancies

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what payments the (a) Drivers and Vehicle Licensing Agency, (b) Vehicle and Operator Services Agency, (c) Driving Standards Agency, (d) Vehicle Certification Agency, (e) Highways Agency, (f) Maritime and Coastguard Agency and (g) Government Car and Despatch Agency has made to (i) management consultancies, (ii) public affairs consultancies, (iii) public relations consultancies, (iv) advertising agencies and (v) other external consultancies in each of the last five years; [250282]

(2) what payments his Department has made to (a) management consultancies, (b) public affairs consultancies, (c) public relations consultancies, (d) advertising agencies and (e) other external consultancies in each of the last five years. [250433]

Mr. Hoon: Lists have been placed in the Libraries of the House which show the supplier and (where possible) the value and the nature of the consultancy work recorded within the Department for Transport and its agencies accounting systems as consultancy during the four financial years between 2004-05 and 2007-08. Similar data for 2003-04 are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The breakdown of consultancy as requested in the question is not held centrally and to attempt to provide it now would incur disproportionate cost.

The business units within the Department currently use separate accounting systems which record expenditure differently. The totals include a mixture of committed spend (i.e. orders raised) and actual spend incurred. The Professional Services Forum definition of consultancy has been applied since 2005-06 resulting in more accurate coding of expenditure.

Details of payments to advertising agencies are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Most payments relating to advertising expenditure are however made to the Central Office of Information.

The majority of campaign advertising investment by the Department is in support of marketing activities on the THINK! Road safety campaign, Act on CO_2 campaign, Concessionary Bus Fares campaign, aviation security and the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency's continuous registration campaign. Advertising expenditure is the largest value component of the Department's marketing expenditure.

Driving: Licensing

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many driving licences were reported lost or stolen in the last 12 months; and how many valid driving licences there were in that period. [250503]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In the last 12 months 7.5 million driving licences have been issued, including 857,000 issued to replace those reported as lost or stolen. During the same period DVLA held 42.3 million driver records each of which could have a licence issued against it.

Heathrow Airport

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when meetings were held between (a) Ministers, (b) officials and (b) both Ministers and officials in his Department with representatives of BAA to discuss proposals for Heathrow Airport in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [251293]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Ministers have met BAA representatives on 17 occasions since January 2006 to discuss a range of matters related to BAA's UK airports, including Heathrow. BAA met regularly with officials to provide technical and operational expertise.

For propriety reasons, there has been no substantive discussion of Heathrow airport development issues with BAA since the launch of the "Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport" consultation in November 2007 and neither Ministers nor officials have met BAA representatives to discuss such issues since the Secretary of State announced his decisions on 15 January.

Heathrow Airport: Public Consultation

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of the responses to the Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport consultation (a) expressed support for, (b) expressed opposition to and (c) were neutral on the construction of a third runway at Heathrow. [250113]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The consultation did not request views in this format. But an independent assessment of the nearly 70,000 responses received records 8,128 people giving "generic support for expansion" while 16,662 said they "did not want a third runway built at Heathrow". That suggests around 45,000 respondents did not express a clear view either way on a third runway. The full details can be found in the report 'Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport: Report on consultation responses (Ipsos MORI/Detica)' on the Department's website.

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he plans to publish the responses to the Adding Capacity at Heathrow consultation in full. [250114]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A report on the analysis of responses to the Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport consultation was published on 15 January together with other material referred to in my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State's statement on Britain's transport infrastructure. In addition, all of the nearly 70,000 consultation responses may be viewed by appointment at the Department for Transport's offices.

Details are on the Department's website:

www.dft.gov.uk.

Motor Vehicles: Registration

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent representations his Department has received from the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency on the release of vehicle odometer reading data from MOT testing. [251698]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There have been no recent discussions between the Department and The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) on the release of vehicle odometer reading data from MOT testing. VOSA is still considering the benefits and legal issues associated with the further release of such data to non-public bodies. Whether this proceeds will be subject to VOSA/DfT approval processes and overall Agency priorities.

Railway Electrification

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if his Department will commission research into the effects of the electrification of heavily-used rail services in major urban conurbations. [250714]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport is working closely with the rail industry to examine the costs and benefits of further rail electrification. A decision on electrification will be announced later this year.

Railways: Bus Services

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many passengers have travelled on rail replacement bus services funded by his Department over the last 10 years. [247299]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not routinely collect data on passenger usage of rail replacement passenger services because rail services can be subject to amendment due to planned infrastructure improvements or maintenance works undertaken by Network Rail, especially at weekends. Occasionally, disruption to the rail network (due to signalling failures or other operational difficulties) may result in changes to specified rail services.

Railways: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many assaults on (a) staff and (b) passengers on the rail network in each region were recorded in the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [252053]

(2) how many assaults on railway station staff have been recorded in each region in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [252054]

Paul Clark: This information is not held by the Department for Transport, but by the British Transport Police who can be contacted at:

British Transport Police
25 Camden Road
London NW1 9LN
E-mail: parliament@btp.pnn.police.uk

Railways: Industrial Disputes

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many working days have been lost to strike action by workers on (a) the national rail network and (b) the London Underground in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [252059]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not hold the information requested.

National rail network information can be obtained from each of the individual train operators, who each hold this level of detail for their own organisation. Company contact details are available from the Association of Train Operating Companies (ATOC):

ATOC Ltd.
3rd Floor
40 Bernard Street
London

Or via:

http://www.atoc.org/contact.asp

For London Underground this information can be obtained by contacting:

Railways: Standards

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many train services have been cancelled in each year since 1997; how many scheduled train services there have been in each year since 1997, broken down by train operator; and if he will make a statement. [252057]

Paul Clark: In 2007-08, the most recent complete year for which data are available, 6,485,787 trains were planned to operate on the network, and 70,903 were fully cancelled.

For data on previous years, I refer the hon. Member to the answers of 17 September 2008, Official Report, columns 2246-7W, and 22 March 2006, Official Report, column 382W.

The Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) is responsible for publishing and monitoring data on rail performance, and for a breakdown by individual train operator, the hon. Member may wish to consult ORR's publication "National Rail Trends" on their website at:

http://www.rail-reg.gov.uk/server/show/nav.1863

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent on building new roads in each region in each year since 1979; and if he will make a statement. [252050]

Paul Clark: The following tables show the available data on regional expenditure on new construction/improvement and structural maintenance on motorways and trunk roads, as well as regional expenditure on new improvement for highways, lighting, road safety and structural maintenance on local roads for 1999-2000 to 2006-07. These data do not enable new road construction to be identified as a separate category.

This information is available in table 5.4 of 'Regional Transport Statistics' publication at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/statistics/datatablespublications/regionaldata/rts/

Roads: Safety

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much capital funding his Department provided for road safety schemes in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since 1997; [251150]

(2) what funding his Department has provided for highway maintenance and improvement in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside and (c) the North East in each year since 1997. [251211]

Paul Clark: I have placed details in the House Libraries of relevant funding from the Department for Transport provided to local authorities in the north-east. The funding streams covered are:

(a) Block capital funding made available to local authorities since 2000-01 as part of the LTP settlement. This funding is not ring fenced. Integrated block funding is allocated at the Tyne and Wear plan level. Capital highway maintenance funding is allocated to local highway authorities. The table includes aggregate figures for funding provided prior to the introduction of the LTP settlement.

(b) PFI credits allocated to signed street lighting contracts in the north-east.

(c) Revenue and capital funding provided to north-east authorities since 2001-02 for the maintenance of recently detrunked roads. This funding is also not ring fenced. A three year settlement covering 2008-09 to 2010-11 has been made for revenue allocations for detrunked roads.

(d) Funding provided for emergency repairs following flooding to north-east local highways in 2001-02.

(e) Capital funding that the Department has contributed to major local authority road schemes (generally costing over £5 million). The table shows schemes completed since 2000 and those currently being delivered.

(f) Since 2007-08, local authorities have received specific road safety grant. As with integrated block funding, this is allocated at the Tyne and Wear plan level. The distribution of the funding within Tyne and Wear is determined by the local authorities within the road safety partnership. Since 2007, road safety partnership grant has also been allocated to local authorities.

Local authorities are also provided with financial support for road maintenance and road safety schemes through the Revenue Support Grant (RSG), administered by the Department for Communities and Local Government. There is no separately identified highways maintenance component in RSG and it is for each authority to determine how much of it should be allocated to their highway network.

Information is not held centrally on what Gateshead metropolitan borough council and South Tyneside metropolitan council, which cover the Jarrow constituency, have spent within the boundaries of the constituency.

The Highways Agency's reporting systems does not record actual expenditure on a constituency or regional basis. Estimates are compiled for regional expenditure to supplement data reported in the Department's annual report. The estimates for the north-east have been placed in the House Libraries.

Roads: Tolls

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what meetings (a) he and (b) officials from his Department have had since 12 December 2008 with potential providers to discuss the technology and infrastructure required for congestion charging. [251154]

Paul Clark: Since 12 December 2008, no Department for Transport Minister has met with any potential providers on the technology and infrastructure required for congestion charging.

Department for Transport officials responsible for the demonstrations project have, however, in that period had a number of contractual progress meetings with each of the seven framework contractors for the project.

On 18 December, other departmental officials met a group of technical experts and other stakeholders working to promote interoperability across existing and already planned road pricing schemes.

Rolling Stock: Competition

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the recent findings of the Competition Commission on the market for the leasing of rolling stock for franchised passenger services; and what steps he plans to take in response to the Commission's recommendations for Government. [250062]

Paul Clark: The Competition Commission investigation is ongoing and the Department for Transport looks forward to the final report.

The department continues to engage with the Competition Commission on the recommendations.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many speed cameras have been installed on public roads in each year since 1997, broken down by police authority area; and if he will make a statement. [252057]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department only holds information about the number of safety camera sites (covering both fixed and mobile camera enforcement) operating within the National Safety Camera Programme for England and Wales which started in 2001 and ended on 31 March 2007. The information relates to partnership areas which may consist of more than one police force area.

The following table shows the number of speed camera sites operating within the national programme within each year using the "date established" supplied by the safety camera partnerships. Different areas entered the national programme on different dates, and in many cases had established camera sites before joining the programme which are not shown in the table.

Since 1 April 2007 the deployment of safety cameras has been the responsibility of individual local partnerships. The number of cameras in place since then will therefore be a matter for each individual partnership.

Transport: Expenditure

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent on transport projects in each local authority area in England in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [251840]

Paul Clark: Most transport projects in local authority areas are the responsibility of the relevant local transport authority. The Department for Transport allocates integrated transport block and highways maintenance funding to local transport authorities for general capital investment in transport services. This funding is not ring-fenced and local authorities have discretion to spend their allocations in line with their priorities.

Where authorities wish to pursue major schemes they may seek additional funding from the Department, subject to prioritisation of their proposal by the region. Certain other projects may also be eligible for specific grants from time to time.

Details of the capital funding made available to each local transport authority in local transport settlements are available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/regional/ltp/capital/.

The Department spends funds on the strategic road network through the Highways Agency (HA). The HA's reporting systems do not record actual expenditure for local authority areas; expenditure is recorded by project and activity. Estimates are compiled for regional expenditure to supplement data reported in the Department's annual report.

Likewise, funding for other transport projects in England, such as rail projects, is not available on the basis of local authority boundaries.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what transport projects have been announced by the Government and subsequently cancelled in each year since 1997; how much has been spent on each such project prior to cancellation; and if he will make a statement. [252056]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport does not collect this information.

PRIME MINISTER

Adela Mahoro Mugabo

Mr. Leech: To ask the Prime Minister with reference to his answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, column 922, at Prime Minister's questions, what consideration he has given to the case of Ms Adela Mahoro Mugabo. [252390]

The Prime Minister: I wrote to the hon. Member on 4 April 2008 on this matter.

BAA

Justine Greening: To ask the Prime Minister what (a) meetings and (b) correspondence he and officials in No. 10 Downing Street have had with representatives from BAA since 3 October 2008; when each meeting took place; who attended each meeting; and what the subject of each meeting was. [252708]

The Prime Minister: My officials and I have meetings and correspond with a wide range of organisations and individuals on a range of subjects.

Domestic Visits: Costs

Mr. Hands: To ask the Prime Minister what the cost of hotel accommodation for the tour undertaken by Ministers between 7 and 9 January 2009 was; and in which hotels accommodation for the tour was booked. [251070]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 21 January 2009, Official Report, column 1429W.

Intelligence Services

Mr. Hague: To ask the Prime Minister whether new procedures for (a) the analysis and (b) the publication of intelligence material have been put in place since he became Prime Minister; and if he will make a statement. [246282]

The Prime Minister: Since I became Prime Minister the arrangements for the analysis and publication of intelligence material put in place, and the appointments made, have been consistent with the recommendations of Lord Butler's Review.

I announced to the House in my National Security Statement on 25 July 2007, Official Report, columns 841-45, the separation of the position of JIC Chairman from policy adviser to the Government to ensure that assessments are formulated independently and that the Professional Head of Intelligence Analysis role created following Lord Butler's Review would be fulfilled by the JIC Chairman. Last year I also published the National Security Strategy and the National Risk Register.

Following resolutions in both Houses, appointments to the ISC are now made on the basis of nominations by Parliament. Debates on ISC reports will in future take place in both Houses and will be introduced by the Chairman of the ISC or the appropriate ISC member. Arrangements have been made to strengthen further the ISC's ability to scrutinise financial matters and the process of recruiting a general investigator has begun.

Internet

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Prime Minister (1) how many staff in each pay grade work on the No. 10 Downing Street YouTube video platform; [250329]

(2) how many staff work to (a) maintain and (b) supply content for the Ask the PM YouTube channel; [250330]

(3) how much has been spent on website designers to design the Ask the PM YouTube video platform; [250331]

(4) how many (a) hits and (b) unique visitors the Ask the PM YouTube channel has received since its establishment; [250335]

(5) how many video submissions from members of the public have been (a) received and (b) answered since the launch of the Ask the PM YouTube channel. [250336]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1481-82W. Further information requested is available on the Downing street YouTube channel at:

http://uk.youtube.com/user/DowningSt.

A copy of this webpage has been placed in the Library of the House.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Prime Minister (1) which websites are operated by his Office in addition to its main website; and what the operating budget for those websites is; [251213]

(2) which websites were operated by his Office in addition to its main website in the last five years. [251419]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1481-82W.

Ministers

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister how many people whom he has appointed as Government Ministers in the (a) House of Lords and (b) House of Commons accepted their appointment on the basis that their service in Government would be time-limited. [249610]

The Prime Minister: As was the case under previous Administrations, ministerial appointments are in the gift of the Prime Minister.

Ministers: Interests

Mr. Maude: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 470W, on Members' interests, what the reasons are for the time taken to publish the annual statement of Ministers' interests. [250117]

The Prime Minister: The list will be published in the near future.

Ministers: Pensions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Prime Minister what the pension arrangements are for the former Lord Chancellor, Lord Falconer of Thoroton. [250537]

The Prime Minister: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 30 October 2007, Official Report, column 1070W.

Opposition

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Prime Minister what arrangements the Cabinet Secretary plans to establish for talks between permanent secretaries of Government departments and the Official Opposition ahead of the next general election; whether the arrangements will differ from those in previous parliaments; and what discussions he has had on the timetable for such talks. [250310]

Mr. Maude: To ask the Prime Minister who made the decision to offer meetings with senior civil servants before the next general election to the Liberal Democrats. [250514]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Members to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Pendle (Mr. Prentice) on 14 January 2009, Official Report, column 754W.

Sir Fred Goodwin

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister if he will recommend to Her Majesty the Queen that the knighthood awarded to Sir Fred Goodwin for services to banking be withdrawn. [251016]

The Prime Minister: The authority to grant and cancel honours is contained in the Statutes of the various Orders of Chivalry.

Sports: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Prime Minister on what dates he has met (a) Ministers and (b) UK Sport to discuss the £100 million of private sponsorship for elite athletes announced in the 2006 Budget; and if he will make a statement. [250265]

The Prime Minister: My officials and I have meetings with a wide range of organisations and individuals on a range of subjects.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

House of Commons: Television

Mr. Amess: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many television sets are operationally available on the House Estate, broken down by building; and how many such sets are available in hon. Members' offices. [247807]

Nick Harvey: The number of annunciator (TV) sets available on the House of Commons estate is as follows:

	Number
Palace of Westminster	663
No. 1 Parliament St. Phase 1 (N)	47
Derby Gate Residences Ph 1 (Centre)	19
Derby Gate Phase 1 (S)	103
7 Millbank	112
Norman Shaw (North)	154
Norman Shaw (South)	130
2 The Abbey Garden	12
1 Canon Row	30
Portcullis House	251
4 Millbank 5th and 6th Floors	32
Total	1,553

All Members' offices are fitted with annunciators, and these are included in the above figures. Records are not kept separately of the number of annunciators which are in Members' offices.

Members: Allowances

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission (1) by what date the House of Commons Commission expects the process of scanning and redacting the receipts for hon. Members' expenses since 2004 to be completed; [251045]

(2) by what date the House of Commons Commission expects to place the details of hon. Members' expenses since 2004 in the public domain. [251846]

Nick Harvey: The scanning and editing of Members' claims, receipts etc. for the years 2004-05 to 2007-08 is well advanced. Once this work is complete, individual hon. Members will need to check the records relating to them, and further editing may then be required. A date for publication cannot yet be set.

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission for what reason backdated details of hon. Members' expenses have not yet been published; what factors account for the delay; and if he will ensure that all relevant information will be placed in the public domain by the end of February 2009. [249219]

Nick Harvey: The task of scanning and editing for publication a very large amount of information has proved more difficult than originally envisaged when the proposed arrangements for disclosure of Members' expenses down to receipt level were announced last summer. Ensuring that hon. Members' legitimate security and privacy concerns were taken into account has been complex and has required careful attention to over 700,000 individual records. Once scanning and editing has been completed, individual hon. Members will need to check the records relating to them, and further editing may then be required. This process will not be complete by the end of February 2009 and a date for publication cannot yet be set.

Parliament: Heating

Mr. Amess: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what recent steps the House authorities (a) have recently taken and (b) plan to take to improve the heating within 1 Parliament Street; and if he will make a statement. [248143]

Nick Harvey: The heating in 1 Parliament street is controlled by means of a computerised building management system (BMS). This allows the heating and cooling in each office to be individually monitored and controlled. The original system, installed in 1990, had become obsolete and was replaced by a modern system. The hardware was installed in the 2008 summer recess and the installation of a new control network was completed in November 2008. The arrival of the cold weather in the autumn highlighted a number of software problems which took longer than anticipated to resolve due to the lack of a network, which meant revisiting every office. At the same time, the opportunity was taken to replace any faulty heating or cooling valves and as a result some 50 cooling and 20 heating controls were replaced.

Now that the new BMS is installed, the method of heating control will be modified from a fixed time based method to the more efficient and accurate 'optimised start' method which ensures that the heating is switched on earlier if the outside air temperature is lower. In addition, a survey of the heating capacity of the boilers and associated pipe-work is planned for the 2009 summer recess. This will identify the heating capacity of the boilers and pipe-work, should larger radiators be required in some offices.

Parliament: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Amess: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what estimate has been made of the cost of repairs to the gates on Derby Gate; what reports he has received on the cause of the damage; and if he will make a statement. [248234]

Nick Harvey: The cost of completed repairs to the gates adjacent to 1 Derby Gate was £1,968.40. There are no reports available as the vehicle damage to the gates was minimal.

Portcullis House: Fire Alarms

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission on how many occasions since 1 January 2008 Portcullis House has been evacuated for fire-related reasons; on how many of these occasions a fire was discovered; and what steps the Commission is taking to minimise the number of false alarms. [250745]

Nick Harvey: From 1 January 2008 to 21 January 2009 there were five evacuations from Portcullis House. None were actual fires. They were caused by:

4 March 2008: Technical fault on system—addressed by the fire alarm engineers;

19 August 2008: Operation of manual call point by persons unknown;

26 November 2008: Beam detector actuated by fitting of the Christmas lights in the atrium when on one occasion contractors failed to follow correct process—contractors reprimanded and reminded of correct process;

9 January 2009: Technical fault resulting in actuation of newly installed fire detection camera by art handling activity interfering with beam—camera adjusted to recognise such movements and not activate the alarm; and 20 January 2009: Detector actuated by fumes from cooking; technical fault on alarm system re-set resulted in evacuation alarm activation—fire alarm engineers are investigating the reason the system would not accept the re-set.

To minimise disruption to the occupants, a system is operated in Portcullis House whereby upon actuation of smoke/beam/video smoke detectors outside the atrium, the parliamentary fire section has 15 minutes to identify and resolve an incident before the evacuation alarm is automatically activated. Three of the five evacuations in the last 12 months were triggered because it was not possible during the 15 minutes to verify that the building was safe. On the other two occasions, operation of a manual call point and the interruption of a beam detector in the atrium automatically triggered an evacuation. In order to minimise the number of unwanted alarms, a full fire incident investigation is carried out by the parliamentary fire section, fire safety manager and London fire brigade after every incident to establish the cause of the incident and to identify the person(s) responsible. Key personnel involved in the alarm activation are interviewed and remedial action taken. In the case of technical faults, the fire alarm engineers are called to site to investigate and take remedial action. Fire safety training is regularly reviewed and revised to address trends in activation of fire alarms.

JUSTICE

Cannabis: Fixed Penalties

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidance he has issued on the referral of possession of cannabis cases to the magistrates' courts in circumstances where it followed the issuing of (a) one, (b) two and (c) three previous penalty notices for disorder to the same individual for the same offence. [249536]

Maria Eagle: When penalty notices for disorder become available for the offence of possessing cannabis, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State will issue guidance under section 6 of the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 about their issue.

Also, the Association of Chief Police Officers will publish revised national guidance for the policing of cannabis possession as a Class B drug in England and Wales. This makes clear that while arrest is always the first option, an adult offender is likely to receive a cannabis warning for a first possession offence, and a penalty notice for disorder for a second offence. A third offence will result in arrest and consideration of likely further action including caution, conditional caution or prosecution. All subsequent offences are likely to result in arrest. If any aggravating factors are present the police will escalate the response accordingly. Ultimately, decisions as to the most appropriate disposal for an offender are made by the police and CPS using their professional judgment and experience.

Conveyancing: Fees and Charges

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) from what date the newly appointed charging fee for local authority property search regulations will be effective; [251410]

(2) when he expects to publish the charging fee for local authority property search regulations; and what the reasons are for the time taken to publish them. [251411]

Bridget Prentice: The fee for a personal search of a local land charges register in England is £11. It was set at this level in 2003. The Ministry of Justice is, however, considering whether the fee should be changed following the response to the joint Department for Communities and Local Government—Ministry of Justice 2008 consultation paper Local Authority Property Search Services: Charges for Property Search Services. We received a large response expressing a wide range of views. We are giving them careful consideration but have not yet reached a decision on the way forward. We aim to announce the outcome of the consultation and to publish a response document as soon as is practicable.

Other local authority property search fees in England are set by individual local authorities. The basis on which such fees are to be calculated is set out in the Local Authorities (England) (Charges for Property Searches) Regulations SI 2008 No. 3248 which came into force on 23 December 2008.

Coroners

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the (a) shortest, (b) longest and (c) average length of time in days taken by coroners in (i) Leicestershire and (ii) the rest of England to hold treasure inquests was in each of the last two years. [251129]

Bridget Prentice: Information on the time taken to conduct inquests into finds reported under the Treasure Act 1996 is not collected centrally by the Ministry of Justice, though informal figures collated by the British Museum suggest that the average time for inquests concluded in 2008, from notification of the find to a final verdict, is 173 days.

Ministry of Justice statistics on coroner caseload show that the two coroners whose districts cover the county of Leicestershire and the city of Leicester between them conducted three inquests into treasure in 2007, and two in 2006. Figures for 2008 are not yet available, but are due to be published on the Ministry of Justice website in May.

Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Act 2007

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when the remaining provisions of the Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Act 2007 will be brought into effect. [248652]

Maria Eagle: With two exceptions, all provisions in the Act were commenced on 6 April 2008.

The exceptions are:

Section 2(1)(d) which extends the offence to duties of care relating to those detained at a custodial institution or in a custody area at a court or police station; detained at a removal centre or short-term holding facility; being transported in a vehicle, or being held in any premises, in pursuance of prison escort arrangements or immigration escort arrangements; living in secure accommodation in which they have been placed; and detained patients. We are working to implement this aspect of the legislation within three to five years of implementation of the offence. As stated in our first report to Parliament on this in July last year, the majority of custody providers will be ready in three years. Where implementation can occur sooner with respect to certain organisations, we will put the necessary arrangements in place to achieve this.

Section 10 which provides for the court to require a publicity order. We will implement this section following the issue of a guideline from the Sentencing Guidelines Council since this is a new disposal where we felt it important for guidance to be in place from the outset.

Data Protection

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will bring forward proposals to give powers to the Information Commissioner to audit data controlled in the (a) private and (b) voluntary sectors. [251185]

Mr. Wills: The Information Commissioner already has powers to check and enforce the compliance of data controllers in the private and voluntary sectors with the Data Protection Act 1998 (DPA).

The Information Commissioner may issue an Information Notice under the DPA on any data controller to assess compliance with the data protection principles.

If the Information Commissioner is satisfied that a data controller is contravening the data protection principles, he may issue an Enforcement Notice requiring the data controller to take action to ensure compliance. Failure to comply with either of these Notices is a criminal offence. Schedule 9 of the DPA also allows the Information Commissioner to apply for a warrant to enter and inspect the premises of any data controller he reasonably suspects to be in contravention of the data protection principles or committing an offence under the DPA.

The Information Commissioner may also currently undertake a Good Practice Assessment under s51 (7) of the DPA to assess the data processing procedures of any data controller, providing he has obtained their consent.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which external organisations his Department has engaged to provide training for fast stream civil service staff in the last three years; and how many civil servants in his Department have participated in provision of training for external organisations in that period. [252228]

Mr. Wills: In the past three years the following external organisations have been engaged by the former Department for Constitutional Affairs (DCA) and the Ministry of Justice (since its creation in May 2007) to provide training for fast stream civil service staff:

National School for Government

Westminster Explained

Roffey Park

Logica CMG UK Ltd

GBdirect

Institute for European Business Administration

Industry and Parliament Trust.

Information regarding the number of civil servants in the Ministry of Justice (and formerly the DCA) who have participated in provision of training for external organisations in the same period is not collated centrally and could be determined only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Visits

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department and the former Department for Constitutional Affairs spent on visits by their staff to Brussels in 2007-08; and how many such visits were made by (a) air and (b) rail. [241255]

Maria Eagle: It is not possible to determine how much was spent on visits by staff to Brussels as the expenditure is not separately identifiable within the Department's financial systems. Data on how many overseas visits, to which countries and by which mode of transport are not held centrally. To obtain any such information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

It is possible however to provide data for the main divisions within the Department that undertook such journeys to Brussels for the period requested. These are detailed as follows.

Air: 3

Rail: 45

Total expenditure: £19,352.24

The Department has published rules for official travel in its staff handbook, and all travel is undertaken in accordance with the guidelines set out in the Civil Service Management Code.

Judiciary

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of (a) Lords of Appeal in Ordinary, (b) the Lord Chief Justice and Heads of Division and other judges of the Court of Appeal and High Court, (c) Crown and County Court judges, (d) district judges sitting in crime and civil and family matters and (e) High Court masters who are engaged in administrative and managerial work in addition to their judicial work; and what estimate he has made of the average number of days per calendar month that those in each category spend on such work. [251944]

Mr. Straw: The Ministry of Justice does not currently hold any information on the amount of time spent by judges on administrative and managerial work. All judges may be called on from time to time to assume responsibilities in relation to the courts and jurisdictions they work in. How much time these responsibilities take to discharge will depend on the level of responsibility, the circumstances and the judge.

I am informed that the Judges' Council is undertaking work at present to provide better estimates of judges' workloads. The collection, and any release, of this information is a matter for the Lord Chief Justice.

National Offender Management Service: Apprentices

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills on the participation of the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) in his Department's public sector apprenticeship scheme; what apprenticeship schemes are operated by NOMS; and what plans he has to increase the availability of apprenticeships at NOMS. [250914]

Mr. Hanson: In June 2008, HM Prison Service introduced the Prison Maintenance Departments Apprenticeship scheme for people who are interested in learning a trade.

Currently, NOMS is working in partnership with Skills for Justice to develop an apprenticeship in business administration in the justice sector, tailored to the specific needs of all administrative staff working in NOMS. In the future, there is potential to explore further apprenticeship programmes such as a custodial apprenticeship.

NOMS has also, for some time, worked with Skills for Justice to develop appropriate qualifications for staff, aligned to national occupational standards.

Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his most recent estimate of the average cost per year of keeping an offender in (a) an adult prison, (b) a young offender institution and (c) a secure training centre is. [251160]

Mr. Hanson: The overall average resource cost per offender (prisoner) in England and Wales in 2007-08 was:

(a) adult prisons	38,000
(b) young offender institutions (YOI)	40,000
(c) secure training centres	178,000

Note:
Figures to the nearest £500

The average costs for adult prisons and YOIs comprise (a) the public sector establishments' direct resource expenditure as published in the "Annual Report and Accounts of Her Majesty's Prison Service (HMPS)", increased by an apportionment of costs borne centrally by HMPS and the National Offender Management Service and (b) the resource expenditure of contracted-out prisons also increased by certain costs borne centrally. This involves some estimation. Income from the Youth Justice Board (YJB) in respect of services recharged to the YJB is excluded in order to show the overall cost to the Ministry of Justice. The figures do not include prisoners held in police and court cells under Operation Safeguard, nor expenditure met by other Government Departments (e.g. for health and education). The prisoner escort service is included.

The YOI figure comprises male open and male closed establishments. Adult includes all other establishments except male juvenile category.

The categorisation of costs into adult prisons and Young Offender Institutions is based on the main category of the prison establishment as at 31 March 2008, not on the mix of offenders in the establishments. So for example, where an establishment is primarily adult but has a young offender population, the young offender costs are not separately identified.

The secure training centre cost includes education, healthcare and VAT.

There are a number of factors which will cause differences in prison costs, such as the size, age, location and category of the prison, the mix of prisoners (including gender and age) and the internal regime and rehabilitation work followed.

Reparation by Offenders

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many reparation orders have been issued by each court in each year since 2005. [251228]

Mr. Hanson: The repatriation of a foreign national prisoner from the UK does not require the production of a court order; under the Repatriation of Prisoners Act 1984 a warrant is issued on behalf of the Secretary of State which enables the transfer of a prisoner into the custody of a foreign jurisdiction.

The following number of prisoners were repatriated by England and Wales to a foreign jurisdiction each year since 2005:

	Number
2005	136
2006	111
2007	111
2008	68

The United Kingdom currently has prisoner transfer agreements with over 100 countries and territories.

Repatriation requires the consent of the sentencing state, the receiving state and the prisoners themselves. A prisoner cannot be forcibly repatriated.

Repossession Orders: Uxbridge

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many court orders have been issued for the repossession of homes in Uxbridge constituency in each year since 2001. [250782]

Bridget Prentice: Although figures for the Uxbridge constituency are not available, the following tables show the number of mortgage and landlord possession claims issued and orders made in Uxbridge and Staines county courts since 2001.

The civil procedure rules state that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, Uxbridge and Staines county courts cover areas other than Uxbridge and therefore not all possession actions at these courts will relate to this constituency.

Court level statistics on mortgage and landlord repossession actions from 1987 to 2007 are available on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/mortgatelandlordpossession.htm

These figures do not indicate how many homes have actually been repossessed. Repossessions can occur without a court order being made, while not all court orders result in repossession.

[1] Mortgage possession data include all types of lenders whether local authority or private.

[2] Landlord possession data include all types of landlord whether social or private.

[3] Landlord actions include those made under both standard and accelerated procedures. Landlord actions via the accelerated procedure enables the orders to be made solely on the basis of written evidence and shorthold tenancies, when the fixed period of tenancy has come to an end.

[4] Includes outright and suspended orders, the latter being where the court grants the claimant possession but suspends the operation of the order. Provided the defendant complies with the terms of suspension, which usually require the defendant to pay the current mortgage or rent instalments plus some of the accrued arrears, the possession order cannot be enforced.

[5] The court, following a judicial hearing, may grant an order for possession immediately. This entitles the claimant to apply for a warrant to have the defendant evicted. However, even where a warrant for possession is issued, the parties can still negotiate a compromise to prevent eviction.

[6] The rollout of the Possession Claim On-Line (PCOL) system in late 2006 has affected the availability of court-level data Only those county courts who do not have direct on site access to PCOL were affected. Staines county court does not have direct on site access to this system and figures for 'orders made' are not available for this court from 2007 onwards.

[7] January to September. Figures for the latest year are provisional.

Ministry of Justice

Speed Limits: South West

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were (a) cautioned and (b) fined for speeding in (i) Stroud, (ii) Gloucestershire and (iii) south west England in each of the last five years. [250784]

Maria Eagle: Speeding offences, under the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 and Motor Vehicles (Speed Limit on Motorways) Regulations 1973, can be dealt with by way of written warnings, court proceedings or the issuing of a fixed penalty notice.

Available information collected centrally on the Court Proceedings Database, held by the Ministry of Justice, on the number of persons given a court fine for speed limit offences within the Gloucestershire police force area and the South West region from 2003 to 2007 (latest available) is provided in table 1.

Information collected centrally by the Home Office on the number of Fixed Penalty Notices issued for speeding offences, by area, for the period 2002 to 2006 (latest available) is given in table 2. Data for 2007 are due to be published in the spring of 2009.

Formal cautions are not given for motoring offences.

Data are collected centrally by police force area and therefore information for Stroud is not available.

Table 1: Number of magistrates courts imposed fines[1] for speed limit offences[2] within the Gloucestershire police force area, and the South West region[3], 2003-07[4,5]

		Number of offences

	South West Region	21,976
2007	Gloucestershire	1,111
	South West Region	18,157

[1] Magistrates courts data only. Fines given at the Crown Court total nationally (England and Wales) less than 10 each year.

[2] Offences under the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984 ss. 16, 81, 84, 86, 88 and 89; Motor Vehicles (Speed Limit on Motorways) Regs 1973; Parks Regulation (Amendment) Act 1926—byelaws made thereunder.

[3] Includes, Avon and Somerset, Devon and Cornwall, Dorset, Gloucestershire and Wiltshire police force areas.

[4] It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete.

[5] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Young Offender Institutions: Mental Health Services

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many young offender institutions have an in-reach mental health team providing tier 2 and 3 Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service (CAMHS) in England; how many such institutions are without an in-reach CAMHS tier 2 and 3 service; and what estimate he has made of the annual cost of providing an in-reach CAMHS tier 2 and 3 service for a young offender institution. [251230]

Mr. Hanson: All young offender institutions (YOIs) in England have access to in-reach Child and Adolescent Mental Health Services (CAMHS). YOIs in Wales are the responsibility of the Welsh Assembly Government.

Transfer of the responsibility for commissioning health services in YOIs, and adult prisons in England, began in 2003 and was fully devolved to the national health service by April 2006. Primary care trusts (PCTs) work with their partner establishments to develop a comprehensive health needs assessment of the population and commission on the basis of that need.

Since 2006 all funding including mental health forms part of the wider health care allocation and is paid out as part of the NHS Bundle and part of PCT main allocation. The NHS bundle includes the strategic health authority. All health funding is allocated to NHS bundle and they distribute this to the PCTs.

The Department of Health has provided £1.5 million additional funding for 2007-08, repeated in 2008-09, to extend the range of CAMHS in the secure estate for children and young people.

Young Offenders

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many young offenders have been intensively supervised in the community in each year since 2001; and what the average cost of such supervision per person supervised was in each of those years. [251459]

Mr. Hanson: The following table provides details of the numbers of young offenders aged under 18 who have been placed on the intensive supervision and surveillance programme (ISSP). This programme is the most rigorous and robust community sentence for under 18s supported by an initial three month curfew which is monitored electronically. The cost of ISSP varies from region to region but the Youth Justice Board use an average cost of £6,000 per head with a further £2,250 for the electronic monitoring bringing the total to £8,250.

Intensive supervision and surveillance programme starts 2001 2008

	Number
2001-02	876
2002-03	3,153
2003-04	4,705
2004-05	4,960
2005-06	5,568
2006-07	5,243
2007-08	5,044

Young Offenders: Custodial Treatment

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he is taking to reduce the use of penal custody for child offenders; and how many such offenders are being supervised in the community. [251461]

Mr. Hanson: The Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008 provides for a new generic community sentence for under 18s, the Youth Rehabilitation Order (YRO), which will replace nine existing community sentences. The Order provides a range of requirements providing a flexible sentence that can be tailored to meet individual offenders' needs. It includes two high intensity requirements, intensive supervision and surveillance and fostering set as direct alternatives to custody. The Act will also require a court to consider using a YRO with one of the high intensity requirements prior to custody. If custody is still given the sentencer must explain in court why the high intensity community sentence is not appropriate.

In addition the Government have provided a range of out of court disposals designed to keep low level offences and offenders out of the criminal justice system, yet provide interventions to prevent reoffending. The Criminal Justice and Immigration Act introduces the Youth Conditional Caution which will be available to the Crown Prosecution Service as a final out of court disposal. Both these measures will be brought into effect later this year.

This Government believe in early intervention and prevention, but recognises that where offending occurs we should have a structured, robust sentencing framework aimed at preventing reoffending. However, where the offence is serious or persistent and there is a risk of harm to the public then custody should be available. These aims are set out in the Youth Crime Action Plan published in July 2008.

The number of 10 to 18s getting community sentences in 2007 was 66,007 out of a total of 97,387 sentenced. This counts all types of offence at magistrates' courts and the Crown court. These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he is taking to reduce the number of child deaths in custody. [251462]

Mr. Hanson: The death of any young person is a tragedy. The Government are committed to reducing the number of deaths in custody.

The Youth Justice Board's Child Protection and Safeguarding Programme 2005-08 included a wide range of safeguarding initiatives including:

the introduction of specialised safeguarding posts within Young Offender Institutions;

the introduction of local authority social workers to meet the welfare needs of young people in custody;

the introduction of an independent advocacy service to provide young people with assistance if they wish to make complaints or need advice;

the development of policies and guidance that specifically address the needs of young people, such as anti-bullying and violence reduction;

consideration of building and cell design, including increasing the presence of CCTV cameras in known bullying hotspots; and increased child protection and safeguarding training.

In December 2008, the Youth Justice Board (YJB) published its "Review of Safeguarding in the Secure Estate". Safeguarding remains a priority and the YJB is working with cross-Government partners and secure estate providers to improve the safeguarding of young people in the secure estate.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Alcoholic Drinks: Sales

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 2165W, on alcoholic drinks: misuse, when he expects the terms of reference for the work on evaluating the effects of the sale of alcohol between 3 am and 6 am will be agreed. [260077]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Pursuant to my answer of 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 2165W, I can confirm that my Department is still in discussions with the Home Office about further evaluation of the impact of the sale of alcohol between 3 am and 6 am. No decisions have yet been reached on terms of reference.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether his Department provides guidance to convenience stores with off-sales licences on the (a) positioning of and (b) promotion of alcohol within their shops. [252093]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DCMS does not provide guidance to licensed premises on any matter. However, in our guidance to licensing authorities, we have provided details of the Portman Group Code of Practice on the Naming, Packaging and Promotion of Alcoholic Drinks, which seeks to ensure that drinks are packaged and promoted in a socially responsible manner. In addition, if there is a risk or perceived risk to the licensing objectives (such as the protection of children from harm) as a result of the position or promotion of alcohol, following representations and a hearing, conditions can be attached to the premises licence by the licensing authority to address the concerns.

Apprentices

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the answer of 20 May 2008, Official Report, column 244W, on apprentices, what progress has been made on increasing the number of apprentices in his Department; and how many apprentices his Department employs. [251966]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Royal Parks runs a three year apprenticeship scheme, which commenced in September 2007. There are currently nine first year apprentices and six second year apprentices. Recruitment for a further 10 apprentices will begin in early February 2009.

In 2008-09 there are currently no DCMS staff undertaking apprenticeships or advance apprenticeships, but places continue to be offered and advertised on the in-house intranet for management and administration.

Arts Council England: Grants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much Arts Council England spent on (a) grants for the arts, (b) the Cultural Leadership Programme, (c) managed funds, (d) the Urban Cultural Programme, (e) Own Art and (f) its regularly funded organisations in each of the last five years; and what percentage of expenditure came from (i) the National Lottery and (ii) Exchequer funds in each case. [249410]

Barbara Follett: Information is as follows:

Arts Council England expenditure

Arts Council England advises that it has provided Exchequer and lottery funding for each of the categories requested, as set out in the following table.

£000

How much ACE spent on:	Type	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08

(f) Regularly funded organisations	GIA	279,409	300,900	314,107	325,725

[1] Culture Leadership Funds were part of Restricted Funds until 2007-08. From 2008-09 it was brought into part of the core funding from DCMS.

Percentages of Arts Council Expenditure

Arts Council England has also advised that the above expenditure consists of National Lottery and Exchequer funding in the proportions as set out in the following table:

Percentage of expenditure from (i) the National Lottery and (ii) Exchequer funds in each case

Arts: Finance

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) public money and (b) lottery money has been spent per capita on arts services in each (i) region and (ii) local authority area in each of the last five years. [248320]

Barbara Follett: The information is not available in the form requested. However, public money includes lottery money and, based on information from Arts Council England and population estimates (source: Office for National Statistics, mid-year population estimates 2005, 2006 and 2007), annual per capita spend on the Arts Council's Regularly Funded Organisations and Grants for the Arts programmes in each English region is as set out in the following two tables.

Information for years prior to 2005, and on each local authority area, could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Arts Council England—Regularly Funded Organizations: spend per capita

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251436]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it is ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

We aim to respond to all letters from members of the public within 20 working days of receipt. Statistics on the percentage responded to within this target are available in our annual report. Information on average response times to letters from the public could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the initial estimated (a) cost and (b) delivery date was of each ICT project initiated by his Department in each year since 1997; what the (i) outturn cost and (ii) completion date was of each such project subsequently completed; which contractors were hired for each project; and how much has been paid to each contractor in respect of each project to date. [251377]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department's IT service is outsourced to Atos Origin and all costs are paid to that company.

My Department does not keep a formal register of IT projects. However, records show that the following projects have been undertaken in the last two years:

Project	Planned completion	Estimated cost (£)	Actual completion	Actual cost (£)
Collaboration Space	November 2008	50,000	November 2008	45,000
Electronic Records Management	January 2009	1,500,000	October 2008
Web Content Management (Red Dot)	November 2008	200,000	November 2008	201,000
Desk Top Portal (Frank)	June 2009	100,000	—	—
Google Enterprise Search	March 2009	200,000	—	—
Secure collaboration—Proof of Concept	March 2009	150,000	—	—

Information of earlier projects could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which ICT projects his Department initiated and abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were in[illegible] each project; who the contractors for each we[illegible] what date each was (a) commenced and (b) abandoned; and if he will make a statement. [251389]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department has not abandoned any ICT projects since 1997.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in his Department attended at least one such training course. [252265]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In 2008 DCMS has spent no money on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau.

No such training sessions were held and no DCMS staff attended these training courses.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement. [252037]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In the Department for Culture, Media and Sport and its agency the Royal Parks, staff working (a) in lunch breaks would be entitled to time off in lieu and those staff working (b) in evenings, and (c) at other times outside contracted hours, would either be paid overtime or receive time off in lieu.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252038]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Information relating to days off in lieu granted to staff in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport, its agencies and non-departmental public bodies is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249129]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has not answered any questions where the cost of preparing the answer would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold as Ministers did not believe it to be in the public interest to answer such questions irrespective of cost.

Legacy Trust: Finance

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the Legacy Trust has raised since its establishment; and how much it has received from (a) trusts and foundations, (b) public funds, (c) lottery funds and (d) the private sector. [251740]

Andy Burnham: The Legacy Trust UK was established with a £40 million endowment from the Millennium Commission, Big Lottery Fund, the Arts Council England and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport to support a wide range of innovative cultural and sporting activities for all, which celebrate the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games and leave a lasting legacy in communities throughout the United Kingdom. Of this endowment, £29 million came from the Millennium Commission and Big Lottery Fund with the remaining £11 million from Arts Council England and DCMS.

Since its establishment at the end of 2007 it has identified matched funding of £21,777,250 of which £5,769,411 has been secured.

The breakdown is as follows:

Total identified from Trusts/Foundations	200,000
Total identified from public funds	19,050,250
Total secured to date	5,769,411

The identified public funds, includes the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE), universities in the south-west of England and regional development agencies.

Total identified from private sector: £2,527,000

Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many representations his Department has received on the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 in each of the last three years. [250243]

Barbara Follett: As stated in my response to the hon. Member for Bournemouth East on 19 November 2008, Official Report, column 604W, we have received representations from VisitBritain on behalf of small accommodation providers about the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 and its impact on their establishments. We have also received a small amount of other correspondence from tourism establishments.

Figures on representations from organisations in our sectors could be provided only at disproportionate cost, as we have not maintained a log of specific contact on this issue.

Sport England: Property

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what (a) buildings and (b) land are leased by Sport England; and what estimate has been made of the value of these assets. [250255]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England have advised that they do not own any buildings or land. The Sports Council Trust Company (SCTC), of which Sport England is a member and controlling shareholder, underlease the following properties:

1. 114 Cardigan road, Headingley, Leeds

The SCTC is the Superior Landlord on the above premises which is underlet to The National Coaching Foundation (NCF) with an annual rent of £51,000. This current underlease is due to expire in April 2009 and SCTC are in negotiations to renew this lease for a further four years. The superior lease expires in 2018. Sport England does not receive any of the rental income derived from that premises and are not party to the lease agreement.

2. Bisham Abbey

The SCTC rents out parts of Bisham Abbey including the Abbey, Sports Centre and external areas on the property, to a total of 26 tenants which comprise of both sports clubs, associations and individuals. The total annual rent derived from these leases is £272,586. Sport England does not receive any of the rental income derived from that premises and are not party to the lease agreements.

3. Lilleshall

The Sports Council Trust Company (SCTC) rents out parts of Lilleshall to a total of four tenants which comprise of both sports clubs, associations and individuals. The total annual rent derived from these leases is £16,502. Sport England does not receive any of the rental income derived from that premises and are not party to the lease agreements.

Sports: Facilities

Barry Gardiner: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will monitor the trends in the number of pay-and-play customers at sporting facilities during the economic downturn. [240930]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department has no plans to directly monitor the number of pay and play customers at sporting facilities. However, from October 2008 Sport England's Active People survey has begun to monitor the impact of the economic downturn on sports participation more widely.

Sports: Sponsorship

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what dates (a) he, (b) other Ministers and (c) officials from his Department have met representatives from (i) HM Treasury and (ii) UK Sport to discuss the £100 million of private sponsorship for elite athletes announced in the 2006 Budget; and if he will make a statement. [250263]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The following dates have been identified where the Secretary of State met with UK Sport and the £100 million of private sponsorship for elite athletes was likely to have been discussed: 31 October 2006, 8 November 2006, 11 June 2007, 24 July 2007, 22 October 2007, 23 January 2008, 7 February 2008, 7 May 2008, 9 July 2008, 15 July 2008, 16 September 2008, 30 September 2008, 24 and 25 November 2008, 18 December 2008. I was also present at the meetings on 7 February 2008, 7 May 2008, 24 and 25 November 2008 and 18 December 2008.

DCMS officials have held discussions with UK Sport on the issue of the £100 million sponsorship on a regular basis. In addition, Ministers and officials have had a number of meetings on this issue at which HM Treasury has been represented.

Swimming: Low Incomes

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funds (a) the Amateur Swimming Association and (b) Sport England provide for (i) the teaching of basic swimming and (ii) increasing swimming participation among people on low incomes. [247720]

Andy Burnham: The Government are committed to increasing participation in swimming, as demonstrated by their £140 million investment in the Free Swimming Programme, an element of which will be to provide free swimming lessons.

Increasing overall participation in swimming is also one of the key aims of the Amateur Swimming Association's (ASA) Strategic Plan 2005-09, to which Sport England has contributed in excess of £9 million of whole sport plan funding.

Sport England awarded £3 million to the ASA to support its 'Everyday Swim' project during 2006-08. 'Everyday Swim' is a national project, operating at a number of sites across England, which has the aim of improving people's experience of using public pools and so delivering a sustained increase in participation, including people on low incomes.

UK Sport: Property

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what non-heritage (a) buildings and (b) land are leased by UK Sport; and what estimate has been made of the value of these assets. [250260]

Mr. Sutcliffe: UK Sport have advised that they do not own any buildings or land.

UK Sport operate from offices at 40 Bernard Street, London WC1N 1ST, and lease of this property, which is not listed or scheduled, is treated as an operating lease and UK Sport does not capitalise, in accordance with Generally Accepted Accounting Practice. At 31 March 2008 UK Sport had £0.55 million leasehold improvements in the balance sheet at cost. The depreciated value was £0.1 million.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Carers' Benefits

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the change in expenditure on (a) disability living allowance (care component), (b) attendance allowance and (c) carer's allowance payments after they became exportable within the European economic area; [247660]

(2) what estimate he has made of the change in the number of claimants of (a) disability living allowance (care component), (b) attendance allowance and (c) carer's allowance payments after they became exportable within the European economic area; [247661]

(3) with reference to the written ministerial statement of 13 December 2007, Official Report, column 68WS, on disability benefits (European Court of Justice), what progress has been made in discussions with the European Commission to clarify the extent of the Government's responsibilities following the judgment in the European Court of Justice of 18 October 2007. [247229]

Jonathan Shaw: We set out the entitlement conditions for those customers who are eligible to export an existing award of disability living allowance care component, attendance allowance or carer's allowance on the Directgov website in April 2008. This can be found at:

http://www.direct.gov.uk/en/DisabledPeople/FinancialSupport/Introductiontofinancialsupport/DG_073387

The increase in expenditure is very difficult to predict. Our estimates indicate that, at most, this will result in an increase in the number of customers and benefit expenditure as set out in the following table

	Estimated maximum expenditure (£ million)	Estimated maximum caseload
Disability living allowance	30	20,000
Attendance allowance	10	¹
Carers allowance	10	¹
Total	50	20,000

¹ Equals less than 5,000 and therefore equals zero when rounded to the nearest 10,000

Note:

These estimates relate to 2010-11 because this is assumed to be the first full year following full implementation of the judgment.

We expect to set out entitlement conditions for those wishing to claim from abroad shortly. The directgov website will be updated at that time.

Child Support Agency: Cost-effectiveness

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the cost-effectiveness of the operational improvement plan in place at the Child Support Agency. [242214]

Kitty Ussher: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what assessment he has made of the cost effectiveness of the operational improvement plan in place at the Child Support Agency. (242214)

The Operational Improvement Plan was launched in April 2006 and supported by £120 million of additional funding. The three-year plan aimed to improve the service the Child Support Agency was delivering to its clients and to deliver more money to more children, while the entire system of child maintenance was redesigned. The Agency is currently in the third and final year of the plan and while some challenges remain it is on course to meet all of the commitments that were made when the plan was launched.

As a result of the investment in the Operational Improvement Plan the Agency is now delivering its services far more efficiently and effectively. Indeed, after two-and-a-half years of the plan the number of uncleared cases has fallen significantly, from 264,000 cases that were outstanding in March 2006, to just 95,900 cases outstanding at the end of September 2008. The number of children who receive maintenance has also increased under the plan to a total of 778,200 children in the three months to the end of September, 155,200 more children than received maintenance in the three months to March 2006. In addition, the Agency collected and arranged £1.08 billion in child maintenance in the year to September 2008, which is a considerable increase from the £836 million that was collected in the year to March 2006.

The investment in the Operational Improvement Plan has resulted in more money for more children, and will provide a stable foundation on which the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission can build for the future.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Cold Weather Payments

John Howell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) if he will include RAF Benson as one of the meteorological stations used to determine cold weather payments in Oxfordshire; [247773]

(2) if he will estimate the number of people in Henley constituency who would have qualified for cold weather payments in the period from 1 November 2008 to 11 January 2009 had the determining temperature for the payment been taken solely at RAF Benson; [247778]

(3) how many people in Henley constituency qualified for cold weather payments between 1 November 2008 and 11 January 2009. [247779]

Kitty Ussher: Estimates of the number of benefit units who qualified for cold weather payments between 1 November 2008 and 11 January 2009 are not available by parliamentary constituency or local authority, but only by weather station.

A cold weather payment is triggered for an eligible customer if the average temperature has been recorded as, or is forecast to be, 0°C or below over seven consecutive days at the weather station linked to the customer's postcode.

Postcodes in Henley parliamentary constituency are linked to either Brize Norton, High Wycombe or South Farnborough weather stations. Each of these weather stations triggered twice between 1 November 2008 and 11 January 2009. Therefore eligible benefit units in Henley parliamentary constituency each qualified for two cold weather payments between 1 November 2008 and 11 January 2009. If Henley parliamentary constituency had been linked to RAF Benson, eligible benefit units would still have qualified for two cold weather payments between 1 November 2008 and 11 January 2009.

The inclusion of RAF Benson as one of the meteorological stations used to determine cold weather payments in Oxfordshire will be considered as part of the annual cold weather payment review in summer 2009.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251410]

Jonathan Shaw: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 13 January 2009, Official Report, column 571W, in response to his previous question 244721.

Disability Living Allowance: Chronically Sick

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people claimed the higher rate care component of disability living allowance on the ground of terminal illness in 2007-08, broken down by the smallest geographical area for which figures are available. [244374]

Jonathan Shaw: We do not collect statistics on the number of disability living allowance claimants who are terminally ill. The available information about the number of disability living allowance claimants with the highest rate care component who have claimed under the special rules applicable to people who are terminally ill and not expected to live for more than six months is in the table.

Notes:

1. Although the preferred data source for benefit statistics is 100 per cent. Work and Pensions Longitudinal Study, the 5 per cent. sample data has been used in this case because it provides some detail not yet available from the 100 per cent. data sources, in particular, it identifies those claiming under the Special Rules.

2. Figures are rounded to the nearest hundred.

3. Figures show the number of people in receipt of an allowance, and exclude people with entitlement where the payment has been suspended, for example if they are in hospital.

Disability Living Allowance: Sight Impaired

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer of 17 September 2008, Official Report, column 2226W, on sight impaired: disability living allowance, for what reasons 2010-11 is the earliest date at which the higher rate mobility component of disability living allowance could be extended to people registered blind. [246883]

Jonathan Shaw: Any change to extend entitlement of the higher rate mobility component of disability living allowance to people with severe sight impairments or who are registered blind would necessitate a change to the primary and secondary legislation. Further time will be needed to design, test and implement the administrative processes, which will require changes such as new guidance and training for staff. As a result, the earliest implementation timescale would be 2010-11.

Disabled: Social Security Benefits

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the written ministerial statement of 13 December 2007, Official Report, column 68WS, on disability benefits (European Court of Justice), what legal advice his Department sought ahead of the European Court of Justice's judgment; and at what cost. [247230]

Jonathan Shaw: In addition to legal consideration by internal legal advisers, Her Majesty's Government instructed external counsel to represent the United Kingdom in the proceedings before the European Court of Justice at a cost of approximately £19,000.

Employment Schemes: Contracts

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which employment service contractors in each region did not have their contract for employment services renewed under each (a) New Deal, (b) Employment Zone and (c) Pathways to Work programme in each of the last eight years; and if he will make a statement. [246548]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested in relation to (a) New Deal contracts is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost. The information requested in relation to (b) Employment Zone contracts is provided in the following table. Provider-led Pathways to Work contracts (c) were let in two phases in December 2007 and April 2008 and the earliest date for renewal of any of these contracts will be 2010.

A large number of bids for DWP contracts are received each year from a diverse range of public, private and voluntary sector organisations. All contracts are procured through open and fair competition in accordance with public procurement policy and EU regulations. Contracts are awarded to the bidder who offers the best quality and value for money against objective and published criteria, using fair and open competitions.

Delivery of welfare to work services by the private and voluntary sectors is an important feature of our welfare reform strategy. We set out last February our future approach to commissioning welfare to work (Cmnd 7363) and last month's White Paper (Cmnd 7506) described how we intended to devolve more powers to private, public and voluntary providers.

North West Wales	Work Connections	May 2002
Middlesbrough	Working Links	October 2003
Nottingham	Nottingham City Partnership	October 2003
Southwark	Working Links	April 2004

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was paid to (a) private and (b) voluntary sector employment service contractors in each region under each (i) New Deal, (ii) Employment Zone and (iii) Pathways to Work programme in each of the last eight years; and if he will make a statement. [246569]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not held centrally and is available only at disproportionate cost.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the (a) agreed contract employment target, (b) award payment structure per client and (c) names were of each (i) private and (ii) voluntary contractor for each (A) New Deal, (B) Employment Zone and (C) Pathways to Work programme in each region that involved contracting out employment services in each of the last eight years; and if he will make a statement. [246595]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested in relation to contract employment targets and the award payment structure for clients is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, the names of each (i) private and (ii) voluntary contractor for each of the current (A) new deal (B) employment zone and (C) pathways to work programme (phases 1 and 2) in each region are shown in the following tables. For completeness, the names of the public sector organisation delivering these programmes is also included.

Delivery of welfare to work services by the private, voluntary and public sectors is an important feature of our welfare reform strategy. We set out last February our future approach to commissioning welfare to work (Cmnd 7363) and last month's White Paper (Cmnd 7506) described how we intended to devolve more powers to private, public and voluntary providers.

Employment Schemes: English Language

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions to how many (a) UK citizens, (b) non-UK EU citizens and (c) others his Department and Jobcentre Plus offered an English for Speakers of Other Languages course in order to help them secure employment in the last 12 months; and at what cost to the public purse such offers were taken up. [249197]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not routinely collected and could be made available only at disproportionate cost.

DWP and Jobcentre Plus do not collect data on national origin as part of the skills referral system. Jobcentre Plus signposts customers to provision made available through Jobcentre Plus New Deal, the Learning and Skills Council, local authorities and other organisations from the public and voluntary sector. Language support is not delivered in isolation but as an integral component within a suite of basic skills provision delivered through programmes such as New Deal and the Learning and Skills Council's Employability Skills Programme.

Jobcentre Plus funded provision is only available to customers who have the legal right to work in the UK and, furthermore, have qualified to receive benefits. It is therefore right and proper that those who are expected to contribute to the UK economy should be supported in their efforts to do so.

Housing Benefit: Greater London

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people were in receipt of housing benefit in each London borough in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [249555]

Incapacity Benefit: Overpayments

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much incapacity benefit was overpaid due to (a) fraud, (b) official error and (c) customer error in each of the last 10 years; and what proportion of the total expenditure on incapacity benefit this represented in each of these years. [246721]

Jonathan Shaw: DWP estimates of fraud and error in incapacity benefit up to and including 2005-06 were provided in the answer to PQ/07/117960 (Mr. Laws). DWP estimates for 2006-07 and 2007-08 are contained in the DWP publications "Fraud and Error in the Benefit System: April 2006 to March 2007" and "Fraud and Error in the Benefit System: April 2007 to March 2008", copies of which are available in the Library.

Income Support: Lone Parents

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what employment support through Jobcentre Plus has been available to lone parents with children under the age of 12 since the changes to the eligibility rules for income support came into effect in November 2008; what such support will be available to lone parents with (a) children under the age of 10 when the changes to the eligibility rules for income support come into effect in October 2009 and (b) children under the age of seven when the changes to the eligibility rules for income support come into effect in November 2010; and if he will make a statement. [246547]

Kitty Ussher: In addition to the support that every jobseeker on JSA gets from 24 November 2008 when these changes started, lone parents also continue to have voluntary access to additional comprehensive support and advice under the new deal for lone parents from the start of their jobseeker's allowance claim, as well as other support from Jobcentre Plus to help them prepare for, enter and remain in work. This includes pre-employment support via training opportunities and in-work support via in-work credit, Jobcentre Plus personal adviser support and the in-work emergency discretion fund.

If a lone parent is still claiming jobseeker's allowance after six months, they will enter supported job-search, where the full range of new deal for lone parents help will still be available. However, if a lone parent reaches 12 months on jobseeker's allowance they will switch to flexible new deal provision which will provide job-search support tailored to the specific needs of lone parents and address-related barriers to employment. At this point, voluntary access to new deal for lone parents will not be necessary.

The aforementioned support will also become available to lone parents as the eligibility rule changes in October 2009 and November 2010 affect them.

Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefit: Osteoarthritis

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether his Department has plans to accept osteoarthritis of the knee as a qualifying condition for industrial injuries disablement benefit; and if he will make a statement. [illegible]

Kitty Ussher: The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions is considering the recommendations contained in the Industrial Injuries Advisory Council report Osteoarthritis of the Knee in Coal Miners, CM7440, published on 21 August 2008.

Jobcentre Plus: Advertising

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many vacancies for positions within the Jobcentre Plus network have been advertised in each of the last 12 months. [illegible]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to respond to the question you asked regarding how many external vacancies for positions within the Jobcentre Plus network have been advertised in each of the last 12 months. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The available information is in the following table.

External vacancies advertised by Jobcentre Plus in 2008

	Vacancies
January	464
February	1,067
March	1,291
April	536
May	588
June	548
July	506
August	701
September	461
October	508
November	860
December	701

Note:
The information provided does not include temporary vacancies. Responsibility for temporary recruitment lies with individual vacancy holders within Jobcentre Plus and this is not collated centrally.

Jobcentre Plus: Recruitment

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) whether the recent announcement to recruit 6,000 new Jobcentre Plus frontline staff positions includes the retention of those employed to support the introduction of the employment support allowance; and if he will make a statement; [246626]

(2) with reference to the answer of 4 November 2008, Official Report, columns 263-64W, on Jobcentre Plus: manpower, what Jobcentre Plus's latest estimate is of the number of (a) staff and (b) personal advisers there will be in each of the next 12 quarters, broken down into the smallest geographical area for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [246717]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply your questions asking whether the recent announcement to recruit 6,000 new Jobcentre Plus frontline staff positions includes the retention of those employed to support the introduction of the employment support allowance; and with reference to the Answer of 4 November 2008, Official Report, columns 263-4W, on Jobcentre Plus manpower—what is Jobcentre Plus' latest estimate of the number of (a) staff and (b) personal advisers will be in each of the next 12 quarters, broken down into the smallest geographical unit for which figures are available. These are issues which fall within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The table below shows the original numbers of full time equivalent posts in Jobcentre Plus projected in each of the years covered by the Department's Comprehensive Spending Review (CSR) 2007, together with the revised figures reflecting the pre-budget Report settlement. Plans for 2010/11 are under review and a firm figure is not yet available.

March each year	Original projected number	Revised estimated number (December 2008)
2009	65,453	69,000
2010	61,985	72,700
2011	58,529	—

While Jobcentre Plus will have an additional 6,000 staff in the next operational year we do not yet have the detailed plans on their deployment as these are still being worked on. We are therefore unable to say at this point which of these staff will be Personal Advisers. I am also unable at this stage to provide details for the next 12 quarters as this goes beyond the end of the department's CSR 2007 and information about the next CSR settlement.

It is not possible to say how many of the extra 6,000 staff will come from those employed to support the introduction of the Employment Support Allowance. Significant recruitment is underway to achieve these revised numbers, and we hope that those employed to support the introduction of the Employment and Support Allowance will apply successfully for those recruitment exercises. Civil Service recruitment rules constrain our ability simply to extend the contracts of all these people for the whole period of the Spending Review.

Pension Credit

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of (1) the value of unclaimed pension credit to which pensioners in (a) Castle Point and (b) Essex are entitled at the latest date for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [243902]

(2) the number of pensioners in (a) Castle Point and (b) Essex who were entitled to pension credit but had not claimed it at the latest date for which figures are available. [243903]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The latest estimates of the take-up rates, value of unclaimed benefit and the number of those entitled to but not receiving means-tested benefits in Great Britain, covering income support, pension credit, housing benefit, council tax benefit and jobseeker's allowance (income based) are published in the report "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up in 2006-07".

Estimates of eligibility and therefore the value of unclaimed pension credit and those entitled to pension credit but not claiming are not available below the level of Great Britain.

Pension Credit: Ashford Kent

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people resident in Ashford constituency (a) were entitled to and (b) claimed pension credit in each year since 2005. [249195]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Estimates of eligibility to pension credit are not available below the level of Great Britain.

The latest estimates of the take-up rates and the number of those entitled to but not receiving Pension Credit are published in the report "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up in 2006-07":

The number of household recipients and individual beneficiaries of pension credit in Ashford constituency 2005-08 are shown in the following table:

As at May each year	Household Recipients	Individual Beneficiaries
2005	3,950	4,920
2006	4,040	5,040
2007	4,090	5,110
2008	4,120	5,150

Notes:

1. The number of households in receipt are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Household recipients are those people who claim pension credit either for themselves only or on behalf of a household.
3. Individual beneficiaries includes both claimants and their partners.

Pension Protection Fund

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pension schemes have applied for protection under the Pension Protection Fund in the last two years. [248814]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Pension Protection Fund (PPF) pays compensation to members of defined benefit and hybrid pension schemes which are underfunded at the point their sponsoring employer experiences an insolvency event. Pension schemes do not specifically apply for protection under the PPF but they are required to notify the PPF in the case of an insolvency event. Notifications are required for all occupational pension schemes although only defined benefit and hybrid schemes are eligible for PPF compensation.

Following notification, eligible schemes enter an assessment period, after which they may enter the PPF.

The relevant figures are in the following table:

	Notifications received from all schemes	Schemes entering the PPF assessment period
2007	1,646	115
2008	2,725	112

As at 31 Dec 2008, 289 schemes were in the assessment period.

Since the PPF opened in April 2005,106 schemes have completed assessment, of which 68 have entered the PPF.

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the increase in the size of the Pension Protection Fund's deficit was in (a) each year since 2004 and (b) 2009 to date. [248815]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Pension Protection Fund (PPF) was established by the Pensions Act 2004 and opened its doors for business on 6 April 2005. The deficits recorded in the annual accounts have been as follows:

	Deficit (£ million)
2005-06	343
2006-07	609
2007-08	517

Audited figures for 2008-09 are not yet available.

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what provisions he has made in respect of the future of the Pension Protection Fund; and if he will make a statement. [248816]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This Government made robust provisions for the Pension Protection Fund (PPF) through the Pensions Act 2004. The PPF is managed by an independent Board and is designed to work in a benign environment and in a downturn.

The PPF provides security and reassurance to around 12 million members of the defined-benefit pension schemes that it protects.

The PPF paid out compensation of around £3.7 million between 2 December 2008 and 1 January 2009 and has around £3 billion in assets. There are no liquidity problems for the PPF, and compensation continues to be paid. The PPF is like a pension scheme and that it only pays out compensation when it falls due.

The Government, the PPF, the Pensions Regulator are monitoring the economic and financial situation carefully to asses how to respond to different scenarios. We continue to keep all these issues under review, to ensure that we have a flexible, proportionate and effective pension protection regime.

Pensioners: Payments

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department takes to ensure that pensions are not withheld from pensioners whose mail has been returned by the Post Office for any time after an investigation into the reason for the mail being returned has been concluded; and if he will make a statement. [250153]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I refer the hon. Member for Castle Point to the written answer I gave on 22 January 2009, Official Report, column 1684W.

Post Office Card Account

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 42W, on the Post Office Card Account, if he will place in the Library a copy of the script of the message that staff use when speaking to customers. [248739]

Ms Rosie Winterton: When discussing account options with customers staff use the messages contained in the document 'Collecting Account Details'. This is guidance rather than a script. A copy of this document will be placed in the Library.

Poverty: Children

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of children in (a) Vale of York constituency and (b) England were born into families in relative poverty in (i) 2006 and (ii) 2007. [247612]

Kitty Ussher: The information requested is not available.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many children in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire were considered to be in severe poverty in (i) 1999 and (ii) 2007. [249059]

Kitty Ussher: The information requested is not available.

Our child poverty statistics, published in the households below average income series, only allow a breakdown of the number of children in low income at Government office region level.

Redundancy: Dartford

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what practical support and advice is provided by his Department and its executive agencies to workers in Dartford who are facing redundancy. [242572]

Jonathan Shaw: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what practical support and advice is provided by his Department and its executive agencies to workers in Dartford who are facing redundancy. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus has a number of measures to support companies and their employees who are facing redundancy.

A strengthened Rapid Response Service was launched on 12 November, doubling funding from £3 million to £6 million. It is being promoted through relevant press and on-line. The Pre Budget Report announced a further doubling of Rapid Response Service funding—£12m will be available in 2009/10.

Through the Rapid Response Service, Jobcentre Plus has access to funds to enable those individuals made redundant to receive the necessary help to get them back into work. Such measures could include:

Skills Transfer Analysis (to help identify an individuals transferable skills and training needs relevant to the local labour market);

Job-Focussed Training (to assist individuals with appropriate training and certification linked to employment or self-employment linked to the needs of the local labour market).

In conjunction with the South East Regional Development Agency, our staff will provide pre-redundancy advice about benefit entitlement and claim making arrangements, as well as advice about job hunting and job vacancies. We will also work closely with any job placement provider that may be engaged by the company facing the prospect of redundancy.

Jobcentre Plus Kent District has appointed a Rapid Response Manager and we have a pool of Rapid Response volunteer staff from Kent District who can be deployed where additional help is required.

In addition, Jobcentre Plus across the South East has a joint initiative with South East England Development Agency, known as the Continuing Employment Support Service, which tailors support for companies and their affected workforce and has helped place many people in new careers, by giving them the tools to find alternative employment as quickly as possible, either directly or via local partners.

Social Fund: Manpower

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) at which locations Social Fund staff work; and how many such staff work at each location; [241447]

(2) how many staff have worked on the Social Fund in each month in each of the last five years. [241448]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions has asked me to reply to your questions asking at which locations Social Fund staff work and how many such staff work at each location and how many staff have worked on the Social Fund in each month in each of the last five years. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The following tables attached at Annex 1 provide the average number of staff working on Social Fund from April 2008 to September 2008, the mid point of the 2008/09 operational year for each Benefit Delivery Centre and Contact Centre.

Historically it is difficult to make a robust estimate of the number of staff working on Social Fund alone. Although Social Fund activity was recorded on our Activity Based Modelling System, we know that for many of these staff Social Fund was only part of their work. Following centralisation of benefit processing, which began in April 2006 and was completed in March 2008, we can be more confident that our data represents people working full time on Social Fund.

Overall our data shows staff working on Social Fund for 2003/04 around 3,400; 2004/05 around 3,200; 2005/06 around 3,200; 2006/07 around 3,300 and 2007/08 around 3,600.

State Retirement Pensions: Overpayments

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people received pension overpayments in (a) the UK, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in the last 12 months. [249578]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is not available by region, district or constituency. The national figure for pension related overpayments is in the following table. This is split between state pension and pension credit overpayment.

Volume of pension related overpayments

	April 2007 to March 2008	April 2008 to December 2008
Pension credit	136,031	112,466
State pension	229,626	168,600

Support: Mortgages

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, (1) how many people claiming jobseeker's allowance have been claiming support for mortgage interest payments for two years or more; [249366]

(2) how many people have been claiming support for mortgage interest payments for (a) less than six months, (b) between six months and one year, (c) between one and two years and (d) two or more years. [249367]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not available.

Territorial Army: Jobseeker's Allowance

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people claiming jobseeker's allowance are members of the Territorial Army. [248665]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not available.

Train to Gain Programme

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what demand there has been from employers for Train to Gain in each of the last five years. [247621]

Mr. Simon [holding answer 14 January 2009]: I have been asked to reply.

Train to Gain builds on the Employer Training Pilots which were very successful in engaging employers and employees in training up to a first full level 2. Train to Gain started to roll out regionally in April 2006 achieving full national coverage in August 2006. Data on Train to Gain is not available prior to this date.

Train to Gain is a growing programme and employer demand is increasing. In 2005-06 (April 2006 to July 2006) there were 4330 employer engagements and 32,400 learner starts. In 2006-07 (August 2006 to July 2007) there were 47,490 employer engagements and 206,300 learner starts. In 2007-08 (August 2007 to July 2008) there were 52,080 employer engagements and 331,800 learner starts.

Winter Fuel Payments

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people over the age of (a) 60 and (b) 80 years have claimed the winter fuel allowance in (i) the UK, (ii) the North East, (iii) Tees Valley district and (iv) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency since its introduction. [244898]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information about the number of payments made to households in those areas is in the following table. 2006-07 is the latest year for which information is available.

Information relating to winter fuel payments for the winters of 1997-98 and 1998-99 is not available. Information regarding Northern Ireland is a matter for the Northern Ireland Office.

Data for Tees Valley District are not available.

	Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency	North East	Great Britain
Winter fuel payments made to people aged 60 or over
1999-2000	16,030	461,690	10,084,130

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cold weather payments were made (1) to people living in Glasgow North West constituency in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; [248547]

(2) in (a) 2006, (b) 2007 and (c) 2008. [248548]

Kitty Ussher: Estimates of the number of cold weather payments made are not available by parliamentary constituency or local authority, but only by weather station.

The available information is shown in the following table.

Cold weather payments made in Great Britain

	Number
2005-06	988,000
2006-07	402,000
2007-08	472,000

Notes:
1. Figures for 2005-06 and 2007-08 include payments triggered in March but not actually made until April of the following year.
2. Figures have been rounded to the nearest 1,000.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of winter fuel payment applications which have been delayed owing to incomplete application forms in the latest period for which figures are available. [248887]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 19 January 2009]: Over 95 per cent. of winter fuel payments are made automatically before Christmas. This is to reassure pensioners that they will have extra money available to pay for heating their homes during the coldest part of the year before the winter heating bills arrive.

To date for this year's exercise over 12 million payments have been made and, of them, 63,000 (0.5 per cent. off all winter fuel payments made) claims for winter fuel payments suffered a delay in processing, which was due to customers not supplying all the information required to progress their claim.

Winter Fuel Payments: Wansdyke

Dan Norris: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many claims for winter fuel payments were made by households in Wansdyke in each of the last five years. [251836]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information on winter fuel payment claims made by households in Wansdyke is not available. The following table shows the number of households in Wansdyke constituency receiving a winter fuel payment in the last five years. Figures for winter 2007-08 are not yet available but we expect the numbers to be similar.

	Number of households in Wansdyke constituency receiving a winter fuel payment
2002-03	13,635
2003-04	13,940
2004-05	14,335
2005-06	14,680

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Trade Unions: Legal Opinion

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will place in the Library a copy of the legal advice commissioned by the Office of Fair Trading on whether trades union members are consumers for the purposes of consumer protection legislation. [250296]

Mr. Thomas: The OFT did not commission external legal advice on whether trade union members are consumers for the purposes of consumer protection legislation, conducting a preliminary internal analysis only.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Domestic and Sexual Violence

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what recent discussions she has had with ministerial colleagues on steps to ensure that women are not discouraged from giving evidence in court proceedings in cases of domestic and sexual violence. [250985]

Maria Eagle: Successful prosecutions for domestic violence and rape have both increased since 2003. We want to build on this, which is why we have committed to:

> Expanding the Specialist Domestic Violence Court (SDVC) programme;
> Ensuring there are Specialist Officers and Specialist Rape Prosecutors across the country; and
> Making video-recordings of rape victims automatically admissible as evidence-in-chief in trials.

I have regular discussions with ministerial colleagues on this matter through the inter ministerial group on sexual and domestic violence.

Departmental Internet

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality which websites were operated by the Government Equalities Office in addition to its main website in each year since its inception. [251310]

Maria Eagle: Since its inception in 2007, the Government Equalities Office has operated one website:

> www.equalities.gov.uk

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the policy of the Government Equalities Office is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if she will make a statement. [252027]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office's policy is to allow staff time off in lieu for work in lunch breaks, evenings and at other times outside contracted working hours. These arrangements are subject to agreement between individual staff and their line managers and take account of the business needs of the Office.

TREASURY

Adjudicator's Office: Complaints

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints were received by the Adjudicator's Office in each of the last five years. [251175]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is provided in the Adjudicator's Office annual reports, available from the following website > http://www.adjudicatorsoffice.gov.uk/publications.htm

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average time taken to resolve complaints made to the Adjudicator's Office was in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [251186]

Mr. Timms: The average time taken from receipt to resolution was 23 weeks in 2007-08.

Information relating to 2008-09 will be collated at the end of the financial year and will be published in the Adjudicator's Office 2008-09 annual report.

Adjudicator's Office: Correspondence

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what targets his Department set for the Adjudicator's Office to respond to correspondence in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09; and what his assessment is of the performance of the Adjudicator's Office against these targets. [251176]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs does not set targets for the Adjudicator's Office. The performance targets for the Adjudicator's Office are set out in its annual business plan. The targets for dealing with correspondence, along with performance against these targets, are as follows:

> 1. When a customer first contacts the Adjudicator's Office and a written response is required, 95 per cent. of responses will be within 10 working days. Actual performance against this was 97.3 per cent. in 2007-08.
> 2. 95 per cent. of investigation correspondence dealt with within 15 days. Actual performance against this was 98.3 per cent. in 2007-08.

Information relating to 2008-09 performance will collated at the end of the financial year and will be published in the Adjudicator's Office 2008-09 annual report.

Banks: Regulation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what restrictions he has put in place to prevent the payment of bonuses to bankers who work for those institutions in which the Government has a majority stake. [248145]

Ian Pearson: On 13 October, implementing the measures announced on 8 October, the Chancellor announced that the Government would be underwriting capital investments for Royal Bank of Scotland and, on successful merger, for HBOS and Lloyds TSB.

UK Financial Investments Ltd. (UKFI), which is wholly owned by the Government, will oversee the conditions attached to subscribing to the Government's recapitalisation fund, including in relation to remuneration policies. UKFI will work to ensure management incentivisation based on long-term value maximization, which attracts and retains high quality management and which minimizes the potential for rewarding failure.

Northern Rock and Bradford and Bingley have their own conditions on remuneration—these are set out in their respective shareholder relationship framework documents, available on the Treasury website.

More broadly, on 13 October the chief executive of the Financial Services Authority wrote to the chief executives of the major banks and building societies, setting out the criteria for remuneration policies and practices which are properly aligned to sound risk management and controls. The FSA is currently undertaking a review of regulated firms remuneration practices and the authorities have made it clear that failure to comply with the standards set out in the 13 October letter will be reflected in the FSA's risk assessment of firms and will be taken into account when setting capital requirements.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) guidance and (b) instructions he has issued to those banks in receipt of public money under the Bank Lending Programme announced on 19 January in respect of lending to overseas-registered companies with (i) operations and (ii) no operations in the United Kingdom. [250936]

Ian Pearson: As set out by the Chancellor on 19 January 2009, Official Report, columns 485-86, the Government intend to negotiate lending agreements with each bank which will be binding and externally audited in return for access to support measures.

Child Trust Fund: Wansdyke

Dan Norris: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many children in Wansdyke constituency have been eligible to receive a voucher to open a child trust fund account in each year since the scheme's inception; and how many such accounts were opened in each of those years. [251834]

Ian Pearson: Constituency level data, including parental account opening figures, on Child Trust Fund accounts was published on 6 November 2008 and can be viewed on the HM Revenue and Customs' website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/ctf/cons-stats-oct08.pdf.

This information is not broken down by year as HMRC does not hold the information in that format.

Corporation Tax

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate he has made of the full-year cost to the Exchequer for (a) 2009-10, (b) 2010-11 and (c) 2011-12 of reducing the main corporation tax rate to 25 per cent.; [251190]

(2) what estimate he has made of the full-year cost to the Exchequer for (a) 2009-10, (b) 2010-11 and (c) 2011-12 of reducing the small companies rate of corporation tax to 20 per cent. [251191]

Mr. Timms: The direct revenue effects of a one percentage point change in both the small companies' rate and the main rate of corporation tax are shown in table 5 of "Tax Ready Reckoner and Tax Reliefs November 2008".

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/d/
pbr08_taxreadyreckoner_287.pdf

These estimates will be updated at Budget 2009.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251448]

Angela Eagle: The Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of departments in replying to Members correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

This information relating to correspondence from members of the public could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Disclosure of Information

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress the inquiry into the premature disclosure of information from his Department in 2008 has made. [251702]

Angela Eagle: It has been the policy of successive Administrations not to comment on the initiation of, content of, or outcome of internal leak inquiries.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which ICT projects initiated by his Department were abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were incurred on each project; who the contractors were; what the date of (a) commencement and (b) abandonment was in each case; and if he will make a statement. [251137]

Angela Eagle: In respect of projects prior to September 2008, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr. Hammond) on 10 September 2008, Official Report, column 1950W, and to the answer given by the then Financial Secretary to the Treasury to the hon. Member for Angus (Mr. Weir) on 9 October 2006, Official Report, column 289W.

HM Treasury has no record of any projects that have been abandoned since then.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 428W, on departmental ICT, what his most recent estimate is of (a) the cost and (b) the completion date of each of the projects referred to; and if he will make a statement. [251246]

Angela Eagle: In respect of the Consultancy Frameworks Contract, which was completed in July 2008, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 428W.

The Corporate Shared Service Programme, completed in January 2009, will have actual costs of £1.36 million.

Departmental Internet

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which websites were operated by his Department in addition to its main website in the last five years. [251300]

Angela Eagle: The Department has operated the following websites in the last five years:

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which websites are operated by his Department in addition to its main website; and what the operating budget for those websites is. [251406]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 20 November 2008, Official Report, column 683W, on websites operated by the Department and their budgets.

Departmental Pay

Mrs. May: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and what was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [249865]

Angela Eagle: Bonuses are paid to senior civil servants to reward and incentivise high performance. Recipients will typically have consistently performed at a very high level. In 2006-07, 69 bonuses were paid at a cost of £517,000 and in 2007-08, 82 bonuses were paid at a cost of £585,000.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much capital expenditure has been brought forward in response to the economic downturn by his Department, its agencies and non-departmental public bodies to (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; from which years such expenditure has been brought forward; and if he will make a statement. [251398]

Yvette Cooper: The 2008 Pre-Budget Report announced that £3 billion of capital spending from 2010-11 will be brought forward to support businesses and jobs across the country. The Chancellor's Departments have not brought forward any capital expenditure. The Chancellor's Departments and their agencies all have small capital budgets that mainly relate to information technology expenditure. A thorough evaluation was undertaken that concluded it would not be appropriate to bring forward capital expenditure for the Chancellor's Departments. This was due to the limited size of the projects and value for money problems involved in doing so.

Departmental Security

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many departmental identity cards have been reported lost or stolen by staff in HM Revenue and Customs in the last 24 months. [250518]

Mr. Timms: In the period 1 January 2007 to 31 December 2008, HMRC staff lost 298 departmental identity cards, and 41 were reported stolen. These losses represent a small proportion of the 30,000 ID cards held by HMRC.

HMRC provides a Helpdesk facility that enables staff to report such losses and thefts, and allows the Department to take appropriate steps to maintain security across all its estate, including reporting to the police and notification on the card administration database.

Departmental Television

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many flat screen televisions his Department has purchased since 1997. [251654]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1889W, to the hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr. Hammond).

Departmental Training

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 29 October 2008, Official Report, column 1096W, on departmental training, what personal training courses at public expense other Ministers in his Department have undertaken since 1 January 2008. [251317]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers attended three courses in the period concerned. The courses were intended to enable Ministers to carry out their duties effectively in line with the ministerial code.

Departmental Written Questions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of hon. Members' questions for written answer on a named day his Department has answered on the day named in the 2008-09 Session of Parliament to date. [251899]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers endeavour to answer written parliamentary questions promptly wherever possible. Of the 169 named day questions tabled to the Treasury in the current parliamentary Session, 103 (61 per cent.) were answered on the day nominated by questioners.

Financial Services: Regulation

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what role his Department played in discussions leading to the recent decision of the Financial Services Authority to remove its prohibition on short selling of shares in financial institutions. [251268]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 26 January 2009]: The Financial Services Authority (FSA) reviewed its recent short selling restrictions and, after consulting publicly, decided to extend the short selling disclosure regime until 30 June 2009 and allow its prohibition on the short selling of shares in financial institutions to expire.

The FSA is independent of Government, though is accountable to Parliament, HM Treasury, regulated firms and consumers. The Government do not have a general power of direction over the FSA.

The UK tripartite authorities, HM Treasury, the Bank of England, and the FSA, have worked, and continue to work, together to take all necessary steps to ensure the stability of the UK financial system. As was the case with previous administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such discussions.

Foreign Exchange

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the amount of sterling traded on each day of the last two months. [251664]

Ian Pearson: The Government do not estimate daily trading volumes in foreign exchange markets.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what projection he has made of the prevailing exchange rate between the pound sterling and the (a) euro, (b) Thai baht and (c) US dollar in each of the next 12 months. [251666]

Ian Pearson: As set out in footnote 2, on page 146 of Pre-Budget Report 2008 (Cm 7484), the Government's economic forecast is based on the assumption that the exchange rate moves in line with an uncovered interest parity condition, consistent with the interest rates underlying the economic forecast. The Government do not publish forecasts of sterling against individual currencies.

Fraud: Currency

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has made representations to (a) the euro area authorities on the abolition of the 500 euro banknote and (b) the United States administration on abolition of the 100 dollar bill as a means of making criminal payments more difficult. [250589]

Ian Pearson: Her Majesty's Government recognise that high denomination banknotes can present a money-laundering risk, and we continue to work with our international partners through the EU's Committee on the Prevention of Money Laundering and Terrorist Financing and the Financial Action Task Force (FATF) to reduce these risks where possible.

Government Shareholding

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) in relation to the preference shares taken by the Government in (a) Lloyds Bank, (b) HBOS and (c) Royal Bank of Scotland, whether non-payment of the preference dividend by the board of directors would be treated as an act of default entitling the Government to initiate proceedings for winding-up the company; [249678]

(2) in relation to the preference shares taken by the Government in (a) Lloyds Bank, (b) HBOS and (c) Royal Bank of Scotland, if he will bring forward proposals to (i) make them cumulative and (ii) adjust the coupon on the shares to a lower rate; [249679]

(3) in relation to the preference shares taken by the Government in (a) Lloyds Bank, (b) HBOS and (c) Royal Bank of Scotland, whether, if the board of directors decide to pass the dividend the lost dividend will be recoverable for the public purse. [249680]

Ian Pearson [holding answers 20 January 2009]: The terms of the agreements with the recapitalised banks on preference shares were set out in Chancellor's statements to the House on 8 October 2008, 13 October 2008 and 19 January 2009, and in press notices on HM Treasury's website. The placing and open offer agreements are available in the House of Commons Library.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to reply to the hon. Member for Orkney and Shetland's letter to him of 20 October 2008 on petrol prices in Orkney and Shetland. [251098]

Angela Eagle: I met with the hon. Member on 4 June to discuss the issues raised in his letter of 20 October 2008 to the Prime Minister and wrote on 24 November 2008.

Public Expenditure

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many jobs the Government plans to create through expenditure on eco-friendly projects; what estimate he has made of the proportion of such jobs which will go to British workers; and how much money the Government plans to spend in this respect. [251069]

Angela Eagle: At the 2008 pre-Budget report, the Government announced that £3 billion of capital investment would be brought forward from 2010-11 to 2009-10 to support a number of different industries and sectors through the current downturn. This included a green stimulus of £535 million, comprising:

£100 million new funding for the Warm Front scheme and £50 million brought forward from 2010-11 to 2009-10;

£60 million to provide to accelerate household energy efficiency and heating measures under the Decent Homes programme;

£300 million to accelerate delivery of up to 200 new rail carriages;

£20 million accelerated flood defence spending; and

£5 million accelerated spend on the British Waterways canal network.

The Prime Minister has announced that total public sector capital investment is expected to create or support approximately 100,000 jobs across the country in 2009-10.

Revenue and Customs: Complaints

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons the HM Revenue and Customs website does not give a postal address for complaints. [248231]

Mr. Timms: Tax complaints should be sent to the local tax office. The address for each local office can be found on HMRC's website.

For all other complaints, the addresses can be found on relevant HMRC correspondence or from HMRC's telephone helpline.

Revenue and Customs: Manpower

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many pre-surplus staff there were at HM Revenue and Customs and its agencies at the end of each quarter from March 2007 onwards; [250273]

(2) with reference to the Answer to the hon. Member for Newcastle upon Tyne, Central (Jim Cousins) of 13 June 2007, Official Report, column 1123W, on Revenue and Customs: manpower, what the definition is of pre-surplus staff. [250274]

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the Answer of 10 December 2008, Official Report, column 197W, on departmental personnel, how many of the pre-surplus staff classified as such upon return from maternity leave; and how many of the pre-surplus staff have been classified as such for at least (a) six months and (b) 12 months. [250116]

Mr. Timms: Since 2005, HMRC have reduced their overall headcount from 105,000 staff to 88,000 staff. HMRC have committed to reducing staff numbers further over the coming years.

My hon. Friend'sanswer of 21 January 2009, Official Report, column 1473W described how the pre-surplus arrangements work. Pre-surplus status is a term used by HMRC as part of their arrangements for managing workforce changes. When work volumes reduce or it is planned to move work to another location, HMRC use pre-surplus arrangements to help manage the consequent change in staffing requirements. HMRC use this scheme to help re-deploy staff to new roles ahead of any change in staffing requirements in a particular location or business unit.

Potentially surplus staff are given pre-surplus status and then have priority for any vacancies that arise that they apply for. This allows HMRC to address proactively any potential staffing surplus as a result of a change in the business. Pre-surplus staff continue to carry out essential work for the Department as they await new jobs. This is a sensible way to make best use of the skills of people during a period of radical reconstruction to improve service to customers.

If pre-surplus measures do not resolve the situation, staff can be declared 'surplus' after which the Department can start to move to redundancy. The pre-surplus arrangements are a key part of our strategy for managing surpluses, and the Department remains committed to avoiding compulsory redundancies as far as this is reasonably practicable.

Information on pre-surplus information was only retained from the quarter ended September 2007. The figures provided as follows provide a snapshot of the position at each date. The position changes on a daily basis.

Numbers of pre-surplus staff in HMRC

	Number
June 2007	n/a
Sept 2007	3,197
Dec 2007	2,420
Mar 2008	1,998
June 2008	2,275
Sept 2008	2,240
Dec 2008	2,865

n/a = Not available.

The current number of pre-surplus staff (20 January 2009) is 2,824. The number of pre-surplus staff on maternity leave is 18. The number of staff pre-surplus for at least six months is 34 and there are 21 who have been pre-surplus for more than 12 months.

Revenue and Customs: Standards

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what HM Revenue and Customs' public service agreement and associated targets are for quantities of (a) heroin, (b) cocaine and (c) crack cocaine seized on entry to the UK in (i) 2008, (ii) 2009 and (iii) 2010. [251087]

Mr. Timms: Public service agreements (PSAs) refer to high level objectives set by Government and shared across Departments, for the current spending review period, 2008-9 to 2010-11. Individual Departments have, for this period, set departmental strategic objectives (DSOs) that will measure their achievement against PSAs and core business objectives. HMRC's DSO3 specifically relates to reducing the amount of illicit imported and exported goods.

The PSA/DSO targets for heroin and cocaine are set out in the following table. Seizures of crack cocaine are not targeted separately—the target for cocaine includes crack cocaine.

	2007-08	2008-09	2009-10
Heroin
Number of seizures	61	67	67
Quantity (kg)	700	527	527
Cocaine
Number of seizures	1,176	1,174	1,174
Quantity (kg)	2,600	2,368	2,368

Valuation Office: Databases

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) name, (b) address and (c) size is of each (i) used and (ii) vacant space for each entry on the e-PIMS property database, excluding sensitive information. [252190]

Angela Eagle: The information requested has been placed in the Libraries.

Welfare Tax Credits

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what targets his Department has set for the time taken to process (a) a notification of a tax credit claimant's change of circumstances and (b) any subsequent amendment of a tax credit award; and if he will make a statement; [246608]

(2) how long on average it has taken to process a notification of (a) a tax credit claimant's change of circumstances and (b) any subsequent amendment of a tax credit award in each year since the scheme's introduction; and if he will make a statement; [246609]

(3) how many notifications of changed circumstances relating to tax credits HM Revenue and Customs received in each month of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [246610]

Mr. Timms: Performance outturn for all new claims, renewals and changes of circumstances for 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06 can be found in the Department's autumn performance reports which are available at:

www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/reports.htm

Information relating solely to change of circumstance notifications for 2006-07 and 2007-08 is provided in the following table.

	Target (Percentage)
	86 per cent. in five working days	95 per cent. in 30 working days
2006-07	89.7	92.7
2007-08	89.1	91.6

The majority of changes of circumstances are notified to the tax credits helpline and are processed at the time of the call. The changes that impact on the 30-day target are usually notified in writing.

The Tax Credit Office now has a separate internal measure that aims to process 80 per cent. of all written notifications in 15 working days and 98 per cent. in 30 calendar days in 2008-09. HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) is working hard to identify how resources can be most effectively deployed to achieve this aim.

Detailed information about the number of change of circumstance notifications received is not available in the format requested.

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many times bailiffs have been deployed with respect to the recovery of tax credit overpayments (a) in each year since 2003-04 and (b) in each month in 2008-09 for which information is available; and what the average level of overpayment was. [249234]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs does not deploy bailiffs to recover tax credit overpayments.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions his Department has used the services of a private debt collecting company with respect to the recovery of tax credit overpayments (a) in each year since 2003-04 and (b) in each month in 2008-09 for which information is available; and what the average level of overpayment was. [249236]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs does not currently deploy private debt collecting companies for the recovery of tax credit overpayments.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent discussions he has had with (a) sector skills councils and (b) individual employers on the revised Apprenticeship Blueprint, with particular reference to (i) college-based and (ii) work-based programmes. [246312]

Mr. Simon: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is leading the development of the revised Apprenticeship Blueprint. The LSC has consulted with Sector Skills Councils (SSCs), Standard Setting Bodies (SSBs) and other employer representatives involved with the Apprenticeship Framework Approval Group to develop the revisions to the Apprenticeships Blueprint. The LSC met SSCs, SSBs and other employer representatives in December 2008 to discuss the revisions and a full public consultation on the revised Blueprint will be launched in February 2009. We expect SSCs, employers, colleges and providers of work-based programmes to respond to the consultation.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many apprentices there were in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [251126]

Mr. Simon: In the 2006-07 academic year, there were 184,400 apprenticeship starts. The number of apprenticeship starts in 2007-08 was 224,800. This information was published in a statistical first release on 18 December 2008.

There has been a renaissance in apprenticeships, and starts have been increasing, from 65,000 in 1996-97 with 27 per cent. completion, with 2008 completions standing at 64 per cent. Framework completions have increased from 39,000 in 2001-02 to 111,800 in 2006-07 and 112,600 in 2007-08.

My right hon. Friend, the Minister of State for Higher Education and Intellectual Property, wrote to the hon. Member on 11 March 2008, Official Report, column 286W, on the subject of how we count apprenticeships. In "World-Class Apprenticeships", we announced that we were changing the way we count apprenticeships, moving to counting the number of people starting an apprenticeship in the year ('starts') and the percentage who complete an apprenticeship ('completion rate'). Therefore, information on the total number of apprenticeships in training during the year is not available.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills on how many occasions in the last 12 months Ministers in his Department have used their discretion to rule that a parliamentary question for written answer should be answered because it would be in the public interest to do so, even though to do so would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold of £700. [249128]

Mr. Simon: The information requested is not recorded. As a matter of general principle, we aim to provide as much information as possible when answering written questions and would consider providing an answer, despite it exceeding the disproportionate cost threshold, if it was deemed to be in the public interest.

Educational Institutions: Construction

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills which colleges have submitted applications (a) in principle and (b) in detail as part of the Building Colleges for the Future programme; which have yet to receive final approval for their projects; and if he will make a statement. [251978]

Mr. Lammy: In 1997-98, the total capital expenditure in further education colleges in England in the financial year 1997-98 was nil.

In total since that time, this Government have invested £2.4 billion and will be investing a record further £2.3 billion across the next three years.

Capital funding for further education colleges is administrated by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) and I have asked Mark Haysom, the LSC chief executive, to write to my hon. Friend with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in the House Library.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of (a) the adequacy of the Learning and Skills Council's capital budget for further education colleges to fund pending capital projects and (b) the effect of spending on such projects on local economies. [252094]

Mr. Simon: In 1997-98, the total capital expenditure in further education colleges in England in the financial year 1997-98 was nil.

In total since that time, this Government have invested £2.4 billion and will be investing a record further £2.3 billion across the next three years.

Currently more than 250 projects are under way and funded by the LSC—helped by the recent decision to accelerate £110 million in 2008-09 from future budgets to help beat the downturn.

In total, since the programme began under this Government, nearly 700 projects, at 330 colleges have been agreed. Only 42 colleges have not yet benefited from investment. The programme has therefore been a huge success.

But the pace of demand for capital funding has increased. Projects and the scale of Government funding they require are becoming increasingly ambitious.

In addition there are signs that the ability of colleges to raise their own funds for proposed projects is being affected by the downturn.

It is for this reason that over the next few weeks the LSC will be working closely with colleges that have submitted or are working on bids, to look at the individual current positions before making further funding decisions.

As a result of this the consideration of a small number of applications that were due for decision—both in principle and in detail—has been deferred from December to March.

Research by PricewaterhouseCoopers in 2003/04 into the effects of capital investment on educational outcomes found that capital investment appears to have a marked effect in increasing the level of student retention on courses and success. Frontier Economics updated the research in 2007 ('Evaluating the impact of capital expenditure in further Education' available from the Learning and Skills Council website) and confirmed a link with higher student enrolment.

We know that colleges build strong communities economically and socially. To ensure we maximise the value of our capital investment, all contractors working on college projects are now required to have in place a formal training plan that maximises access to apprenticeships, work-based learning and other training opportunities.

GCE A-Level

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of A level entrants were (a) 19 and (b) over 21 years of age in each year since 1997. [249241]

Mr. Simon: Table 1 shows the number of learners in further education undertaking at least one A level or AS level in each academic year since 2003/04 by age group, the earliest year for which we have comparable information.

Table 2 shows proportions, by age, of learners in further education undertaking at least one A or AS level.

Awarding Body data on A level examination entries is analysed by the Department for Children, Schools and Families as part of the "School and College Achievement and Attainment Tables" publication. However, this work only covers qualifications entered for by 16-18 year olds. Therefore, we do not have information readily available on adults entered for A level examinations.

Table 1: Learners in further education undertaking at least one A or AS level by age, 2003-04 to 2007-08

Age	2003/04	2004/05	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08

2. This information does not include learners studying A/AS Levels in Schools or Higher Education Institutions.
3. Figures may not sum to total due to rounding.
4. If a learner is studying A/AS levels over more than one year, they will be counted in each year for which they are studying.
5. It is not been possible to split out A level learners from those undertaking AS levels.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when he plans to reply to the letter of 3 December 2008 from the hon. Member for Walsall, North on the Learning and Skills Council. [248917]

Mr. Simon: A response to the hon. Member for Walsall, North's letter was sent on 26 January 2009.

Students: Finance

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what progress has been made on the first annual review of the list of subjects exempt from the restrictions on funding for students taking an equivalent or lower qualification. [251127]

Mr. Lammy: The Secretary of State established when he finalised this policy in January 2008 that the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) should conduct an annual review on its impact. I wrote to HEFCE earlier this month setting out the terms of reference for the review. I told HEFCE that they should consider whether there is evidence that any changes to the current approach will help universities respond more effectively to the challenges of the economic downturn. I also instructed that a review should not lead to a significant net increase in the overall number of ELQ students studying exempt or protected subjects because we will continue to give priority for public funding to those who have not yet obtained a first higher education qualification. HEFCE has started work on the review and plan to report later in the year.

Vocational Training: Finance

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many (a) adults and (b) adults over 25 years received Skills for Life funding in (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05 and (iii) 2005-06. [249116]

Mr. Simon: Table 1 shows LSC-funded Skills for Life participation—the number of learners aged 25 or over as at 31 August (academic year age) and all adults (aged 16+), in the 2004/05 and 2005/06 academic years. Information on Skills for Life participation is not available prior to 2004/05.

Table 1: LSC-funded Skills for Life Participation, 2004/05 and 2005/06

	2004/05	2005/06
Adults aged 25 and over	232,100	300,100
Total Adults (all ages, 16+)	870,600	1,010,800

Notes:
1. These figures include learners at further education colleges (including learndirect), Work Based Learning (including apprenticeships, Train to Gain and entry to Employment) and Adult Safeguarded learning.
2. Figures are a count of the number of learners that participated at any point during the year. Learners undertaking more than one course are counted only once for each data collection. However, learners that are included in different data collections, whether that relates to different years or different funding streams will be counted more than once. For example, if a learner is undertaking an apprenticeship and Train to Gain qualification, they will be counted twice in this table.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Reconstruction

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to involve Afghan nationals not resident in Afghanistan in his Department's efforts to stabilize Afghanistan. [244581]

Bill Rammell: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is in regular contact with the Afghan community and non-governmental organisations in the UK. We have invited Afghans living in the UK to participate in round-table briefing sessions with officials to discuss the situation in Afghanistan, and will do so again in future. We are holding a conference early next year involving the Afghan community, non-governmental organisations and other interested parties. The conference will feature prominent Afghans based in the UK speaking about the situation in Afghanistan, and will seek to promote debate about how best we can work together to support stabilisation efforts in Afghanistan.

Armed Conflict: Reconstruction

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on achieving improvements to post-conflict stabilisation policy at the UN and EU; and what contribution the UK is making to these efforts in the areas of (a) strategy and leadership, (b) capacity and (c) funding, as referred to in his Department's Autumn 2008 Performance Report. [246256]

David Miliband: Following the UK-chaired May Security Council debate, the UN Secretary-General was mandated to produce a report on Peacebuilding and Early Recovery by May 2009. A UK-hosted conference in July and a follow-up conference in Copenhagen have helped to build international consensus on the need to address three key gaps—in strategy and leadership, capacity and funding. We are working to ensure that the UN Secretary-General's report is ambitious and provides the basis for real improvements in delivery on the ground. Ministers and senior officials have met with key UN officials and other member states to urge an ambitious reform agenda. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's Special Envoy on Conflict Resolution Mechanisms visited New York and Brussels to emphasise the importance that the UK places on this work. In the context of the EU, we ensured that a focus on post-conflict stabilisation reform was included in the review of the European Security Strategy in December, and the UK will continue to push forward work to improve capabilities for EU missions during the Czech EU presidency.

Charities

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs to which (a) charities and (b) voluntary organisations his Department has provided funding in the last five years; and how much funding was provided to each. [247379]

Gillian Merron: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Climate Change

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of its capacity to adapt to climate change; and what plans he has to publish a climate change adaptation strategy. [241189]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) works to ensure that its estate is as sustainable as possible and that we properly manage all environmental risks to our operations.

The FCO works with other Government Departments notably the Department of Energy and Climate Change to deliver Government objectives on climate change and is committed to delivering a low carbon, high growth global economy.

The FCO consular strategy takes into account that climate change may produce more extreme weather events requiring a crisis response (for example, an increase in the number and intensity of tropical storms). We work closely with the travel industry to minimise any risks to British nationals overseas in such circumstances.

The FCO has no plans to publish a climate change adaptation strategy, but details of all of the above work can be found in the FCO annual report.

Commonwealth Scholarships

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer to the right hon. Lord Morris of Manchester of 14 October 2008, Official Report, House of Lords column WA45, on the Commonwealth Scholarships Programme, whether the working group on scholarships has been formed; what its (a) composition and (b) mandate is; and when it is expected to report. [240672]

David Miliband: The interdepartmental working group on scholarships has been established. Its membership includes the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills, the Department for International Development, UK Trade and Investment, the Scottish Executive, the Welsh Assembly Government (to be confirmed), the Department for Employment and Learning Northern Ireland, Universities UK, Research Councils UK, the Higher Education Funding Council for England, the Higher Education Funding Council for Wales, the Scottish Funding Council, The Russell Group, the British Council, the Commonwealth Scholarship Commission and the Confederation of British Industry (to be confirmed).

The group is a vehicle for the exchange of information and ideas between government, the higher education sector and organisations which deliver scholarships in order to improve the UK scholarship offer to international students. Its terms of reference are for approval at its first meeting on 19 February 2009, but I have placed the draft terms in the Library of the House.

The group does not have a deadline to produce a report. It will continue to work for as long as is useful.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many requests for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 have been made to his Department since 2005; how many such requests were (a) agreed to and (b) refused in each of those years; how many refusals were subject to appeal to the Information Commissioner in each of those years; how many appeals were successful; if he will place in the Library copies of the material subsequently provided in each case; how much was spent by his Department opposing each appeal; which (i) consultants and (ii) law firms were employed by his Department in connection with each appeal; and if he will make a statement. [245080]

Gillian Merron: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Minister of State for Justice my right hon. Friend the Member for North Swindon (Mr. Wills) on 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 507W.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to page 7 of his Department's Autumn 2008 Performance Report, which 130 UK-based policy slots are in the process of being deleted; and what the 130 new positions created are. [246268]

David Miliband: In March 2008, FCO Ministers agreed to realign the Department's global network in order to deliver its new strategic framework. This has resulted in a shift of staff to strengthen our presence in countries critical to the achievement of our objectives and to reinforce our policy work in London, and a reduction in staffing in Europe.

By March 2009, we intend to have created around 170 new policy positions filled by UK-based staff, and we are in the process of deleting around 130 old positions. We will keep the staffing of our global network and UK operation under regular review to ensure that we remain best placed to handle our international priorities.

On current plans, these changes will include the following:

New policy positions

DSO 5 Counter Terrorism and Weapons Proliferation

Seven new D6 (First Secretary) positions in the Middle East, North Africa, East Africa and South Asia.

New C5 (First Secretary) position at UKMIS Vienna

Six new C4 (Second Secretary) positions in North Africa, South Asia, Indonesia, Sudan, Washington and at UKDIS Geneva.

New C4 (x7), B3 (x2) and A2 positions in the FCO, London, and four new C4 positions in a joint FCO/Home Office Unit.

New C4 positions in Washington, Brasilia, Mexico, Vancouver, Beijing, Chongqing, Guangzhou, Jakarta, Seoul, Tokyo, Moscow (x2), New Delhi and Copenhagen.

New B3 position in Brasilia.

New SMS (x2), D7 (x2), D6 (x5), C4 (xlO), B3 (x6), A2 (x3) and Al positions in the FCO, London.

DSO 8 (Develop Effective International Institutions)

New SMS position in Warsaw.

New D6 positions in Brasilia, Stockholm, Addis Ababa and Moscow

New C4 position in Beijing.

New SMS position in the FCO, London.

Deleted positions

Europe

A2 positions in Athens, Belgrade, Berne, Bratislava, Brussels Embassy (x2), Bucharest (x2), Budapest, Dublin, Gibraltar (x2), Helsinki, Ljubljana, Madrid, Paris, Prague, Rome, Sofia, Tirana, The Hague, Valletta (X2) and Vienna.

B3 positions in Berne, Athens (x2), Brussels, Gibraltar, Lisbon, Luxembourg, Madrid, Oslo, Paris (x2), Riga, Rome (x2), Stockholm, Tallinn, the Hague, Warsaw, Zagreb.

C4 positions in Athens, Berlin (x2), Bratislava, Bucharest, Copenhagen, Kiev, Lisbon, Oslo, Prague, Sofia, The Hague, Warsaw.

C5 position in Berlin.

D6 positions in Berlin (x2), Bratislava, Budapest, Dublin, Ljubljana, Madrid, Paris (x4), Rome, Sarajevo, Vilnius.

D7 positions in Brussels and Bucharest.

SMS positions in Prague, Rome, The Hague and Warsaw.

Americas

SMS position in Canada.

D6 positions in the United States network (x2), Brasilia and Buenos Aires.

C5 positions in Antigua and the US network.

C4 positions in Brasilia, Mexico City, Guatemala and the US network.

B3 positions in Kingston and Canada.

A2 positions in Buenos Aires, Mexico City and the US network.

FCO, London

SMS, D6 (x2), C5, C4 (x4), B3 (x4), A2, Al positions in Sustainable Development and Business Group.

SMS, D7, C5, C4, B3, A2, Al positions in Science and Innovation Group.

B3 position in Climate Change and Energy Croup.

D6 (x4), C4, B3 (x2), Al positions in Drugs and International Crime Department.

D6 (x2), C4, A2 positions in Counter Terrorism Department.

B3 position in Counter Proliferation Department.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how the planned allocative efficiencies for CSR07, set out in the Table of Value for Money Projects on page 26 of his Department's Autumn 2008 Performance Report, will be achieved; and if he will provide a breakdown of the changes. [246265]

David Miliband: Allocative efficiencies in the comprehensive spending review value for money programme are generated when resources are reassigned from lower priority areas to release funding for reinvestment in higher priority areas.

We aim to provide a full breakdown, of all allocative efficiencies achieved in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's 2009 departmental report.

Departmental Travel

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what expenditure his Department has incurred in providing transport for Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises in each of the last five years. [251877]

Gillian Merron: The Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA) are responsible for providing ministerial transport in line with the ministerial code. The GCDA service is provided at a standard monthly charge during working hours and no additional cost would usually be incurred for transporting Ministers between Parliament and departmental premises.

Information on the expenditure incurred for ministerial transport by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office for each of the last five financial years were given in a written answer by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport on 30 June 2008, Official Report, columns 578-80W, and in a written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 22 July 2008, Official Report, columns 116-18WS.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement. [252029]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office gives managers authority to allow their staff to take time off in lieu as an alternative to payment for overtime, by mutual agreement, when they are required to work outside contracted hours.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many days off in lieu were granted to staff in (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies for working (i) in lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours, in the last year for which figures are available. [252030]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not maintain a central record of the number of days taken off in lieu by its staff serving in either of these categories in the United Kingdom or overseas. Time off in lieu is authorised and managed locally by line managers.

Diplomatic Service: Education

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 25 July 2006, Official Report, columns 1272-3W, on ambassadors (education), where his Department's assessment development centres are located. [244248]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office holds its assessment centres at Wiston House, Wilton Park, Steyning, West Sussex.

Wilton Park is a Foreign and Commonwealth Office executive agency.

Diplomatic Services: Equality

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many ambassadors and high commissioners are (a) male and (b) female and identify themselves as (i) white and (ii) from another ethnic group. [251312]

Gillian Merron: UK heads of mission overseas are designated high commissioner when accredited to a Commonwealth state, and ambassador when accredited to a foreign state. In dependent territories they serve as governors.

28 out of 193 staff currently serving as UK heads of mission overseas are female.

Five UK heads of mission have recorded that they are from a non-white British ethnic minority, and five opted not to declare their ethnicity.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is committed to increasing the diversity of its work force at all levels, including its senior representatives. Our objective is both to reflect the diversity of modern Britain at home and overseas and to promote equality and harness different approaches and perspectives.

Faroe Islands: Whales

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he plans to hold discussions with Faroese representatives on the recent slaughter of whales in the Faroe Islands; and if he will make a statement. [244053]

Gillian Merron: The UK recognises with deep concern that these actions still occur in Faroese waters and we regularly raise the matter with Denmark at the International Whaling Commission.

The UK will continue to be extremely critical of these small cetacean (dolphin and porpoise) hunts because of their limited regulation, cruelty and unsustainable numbers taken.

All cetaceans are protected in EU waters under the Habitats Directive and no EU country hunts small or large cetaceans. We would like to see the Faroese observe this and other EU conservation directives in their efforts to seek greater integration and co-operation with the EU.

Gaza: Overseas Visitors

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government are assisted in the repatriation of any UK citizens from Gaza during the conflict in the region. [248107]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 19 January 2009]: We are providing consular assistance to all British nationals in Gaza who require it. In view of the particular circumstances in Gaza, this includes those with dual UK/Palestinian nationality. So far 11 individuals have requested permission to leave, which we are arranging to facilitate.

As elsewhere in the world, we will provide consular assistance to EU and in certain circumstances to Commonwealth nationals whose countries do not have diplomatic representation. Currently three persons have requested assistance to leave, which we are facilitating.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many individuals working for private military security companies registered in the UK have been killed on duty in Iraq since 2003. [243110]

Bill Rammell: The Government do not maintain figures detailing the number of fatalities or casualties of the employees working for private military security companies in Iraq, be they registered in the UK or elsewhere. We could find no collation of this information held by other bodies or organisations.

Iraq: Weapons

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 11 November 2008, Official Report, column 883W, on Iraq: weapons, what reports he has received from the International Atomic Energy Agency of its discussions with the orginators of the intelligence. [244151]

Bill Rammell: As I said in my answer to my hon. Friend on 11 November 2008, Official Report, column 883W, we understand that the originators of the intelligence discussed the issue with the International Atomic Energy Authority (IAEA), but have not received any further reports on this matter. Intelligence is exchanged on a confidential basis and we would not expect the IAEA to discuss with us such information it had received from a third country.

Languages

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 9 July 2008, Official Report, column 1660W, on languages, how much has been paid in the current financial year to each of the 15 foreign language training providers who have a framework agreement with his Department. [240671]

David Miliband: The following table provides these details.

Foreign language training provider	£
Ana Lazarevic	44,675.00
Communicaid	377,305.72
European Business School	0.00
Farnham Castle	4,820.90
Gateway	141,771.67
Institut Francais	38,221.50
King's College London	131,839.49
L2	82,892.70
Language Services Direct	64,674.55
LSI	2,202.70
LSE	0.00
Linguarama	40,888.83
Rainbow	42,349.25
SOAS	198,421.00
WLC	96,813.05

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what budget allocation his Department has made for the services of foreign language training providers in (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10. [240835]

David Miliband: The budget allocation for 2008-09 for provision of language training was £4.29 million. The budget for 2009-10 has not yet been allocated.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether (a) the UK and (b) other countries through the UN (i) have organised and (ii) plan to organise medical aid to assist Israeli casualties following rocket attacks from Gaza; and if he will make a statement. [247983]

Bill Rammell: Israel has reported 13 casualties as a result of the current violence in Gaza only four of them civilians. The Israeli Government have made no request to the international community for medical aid as a result of rocket attacks from Gaza. The UK has been clear in its call for an immediate and durable ceasefire to bring the violence to an end.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he (a) has taken and (b) plans to take at the United Nations on discrimination against Jewish communities in Arab states; and if he will make a statement. [247986]

Bill Rammell: The UK condemns any discrimination against religious communities and minorities including Jewish communities. We consistently raise human rights in discussions at the UN and directly with Arab states, Israel and other states at all levels.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions (a) he, (b) Ministers and (c) officials in his Department have had with (i) Arab states and (ii) the government of Israel on discrimination against Jewish communities in Arab states; what response was received from each; and if he will make a statement. [247987]

Bill Rammell: The UK condemns any discrimination against religious communities and minorities including Jewish communities. We consistently raise human rights in discussions with Arab states, Israel and other states at all levels.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to allow the sale of arms to Israel; and if he will make a statement. [247988]

Bill Rammell: The policy is absolutely clear: where there is a clear risk of shipments of exports being used either for internal repression or for external aggression the export licence is not granted.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he (a) has taken and (b) plans to take at the United Nations on the rights of Jewish refugees from Arab states; and if he will make a statement. [247989]

Bill Rammell: We have taken no such steps and have no plans do to so.

Nigeria: Oil

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the situation in the Niger Delta; and what discussions he has had with the Nigerian Government on this matter. [248543]

Gillian Merron: The Government remain concerned at the continuing high level of violence and instability in the Niger Delta. The key to resolving the crisis is domestic political will within Nigeria, and a systematic approach to security, governance and development. We support the Nigerian Government on Delta issues, for example through a £2 million project to promote transparency and accountability of state and local government expenditure in the Delta and through support on maritime training. My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, has discussed these issues several times with the Nigerian authorities in follow-up to discussions between my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister and President Yar'Adua in July 2008. He also discussed the Delta with the Foreign Minister Maduekwe in December 2008 and with President Yar'Adua in January 2009.

Nigeria: Violence

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the government of Nigeria on action against the perpetrators of the violence which took place in Jos between 28 and 30 November 2008; and if he will make a statement. [243159]

Gillian Merron: Following the rioting in Jos on 28-30 November 2008, the Government have had discussions with the Nigerian authorities, both at local and at ministerial level, and will continue to monitor the situation carefully. The government of Nigeria has taken various measures, including a temporary curfew, to avoid further violence. The Nigerian Inter-Religious Council has held a meeting in Jos under the chairmanship of the Sultan of Sokoto and Catholic Archbishop John Onaiyekan to help prevent future violence.

Nuclear Fuels

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what timescale has been agreed for the International Atomic Energy Agency to approve the conditions and modalities for a nuclear fuel bank, as set out in the Conclusions of the 2914th meeting of the General Affairs Council on 8 December 2008. [246269]

David Miliband: The UK is continuing to work with our European partners to achieve the successful establishment of a Nuclear Fuel Bank under International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) auspices. As part of our ongoing commitment to this project, the EU has pledged to provide €25 million to assist the Nuclear Threat Initiative in achieving its announced goal of $100 million. Although it is not possible to predict when modalities and conditions for such a project will be agreed, the matter will be raised at the next IAEA Board of Governors, to be held in Vienna from 2 to 6 March 2009. The matter is also the subject of ongoing discussion at the EU Working Group on Non-Proliferation.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's contribution will be to the 25 million euro the European Union is planning to contribute for the creation of an International Atomic Energy Agency nuclear fuel bank; and if he will make a statement. [246283]

David Miliband: EU Foreign Ministers agreed in December to contribute up to €25 million once the conditions and modalities for the nuclear fuel bank have been defined and approved by the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA)'s Board of Governors. At least 80 per cent. of the EU contribution will come from the European Commission's Instrument for Stability, a tool designed to address situations of crisis and instability in third countries. Any balance is expected to be financed by the EU's Common Foreign and Security Policy Budget. Details of the UK's contribution to the EU budget are set out at:

> http://www.fco.gov.uk/en/fco-in-action/institutions/britain-in-the-european-union/eu-policies/economic-and-social-affairs/eu-budget

Nuclear Weapons: Arms Control

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the statement by the then Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs, the right hon. Member for Derby South (Margaret Beckett), of 14 March 2007, Official Report, column 301, in response to the hon. Member for Ilford, South (Mike Gapes), what subsequent discussions he has had with the governments of (a) India and (b) Pakistan on their becoming signatories to the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty; and what response he received. [244117]

Bill Rammell: Ministers and officials regularly discuss nuclear non-proliferation with the governments of India and Pakistan. We make clear our wish to see both countries sign the Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) as non-nuclear weapon states. Although neither country has indicated it is ready to accede to the NPT, we are working to bring both India and Pakistan closer to the international non proliferation mainstream, including through the negotiation of a fissile material cut-off treaty.

Rashid Rauf

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the United States Government on the suspected death of Mr. Rashid Rauf following a US air strike on the village of Ali Khel on 22 November 2008. [245663]

Bill Rammell: We do not have confirmation of the death of Rashid Rauf. Following a request from his family, we have requested official confirmation from the Government of Pakistan.

No specific representation has been made to the US Administration.

Russia: Broadcasting

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will discuss with his French counterpart the termination of Russian language broadcasts by EU member states to (a) Russia, (b) Belarus, (c) Azerbaijan and (d) Uzbekistan. [245877]

Caroline Flint: We did not discuss with the French presidency the termination of Russian language broadcasts by other EU member states to Russia, Belarus, Azerbaijan or Uzbekistan. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has no plans at present to discuss this with the current Czech EU presidency. The UK did raise with the French the BBC World Service's Azerbaijan service (that includes Russian broadcasting) ending on 31 December 2008 by order of the Azeri National Radio and TV Broadcast Council. We will continue to monitor the situation and will raise with the Czechs as appropriate.

Sight Impaired

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what guidelines his Department follows in respect of making printed materials and forms accessible to people suffering red/green colour blindness. [245716]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not have any specific guidelines in respect of making printed materials and forms accessible to people suffering red/green colour blindness.

Somalia: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial assistance the Government have provided for the deployment of the African Union force in Somalia in the (a) last and (b) current financial year; and if he will make a statement. [243876]

David Miliband: In financial year 2007-08, the UK committed £8.3 million support to AMISOM (the African Union force in Somalia). This included assistance with Ugandan and Burundian troop sustainment (fuel, food, rotation costs, airlift); assistance with Burundian troop allowances; and supplies to the Ugandan battalions (trucks, vehicle spares etc).

We have allocated and expect to provide around £9 million of assistance this financial year, including further support to Burundian troops. We will keep this sum under review, in the light of the situation on the ground in Somalia and of discussions in the UN Security Council on the UN role.

The UK also contributes to the EU's African peace facility, which has provided funds of €19.7 million (euros) to AMISOM between March 2007 and December 2008. A further €20 million (euros) will be provided in 2009.

St. Helena: Airports

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on access to St. Helena after the planned retirement from service in 2010 of RMS St. Helena; what the consequences for that policy are of the decision to postpone the St. Helena airport project; and if he will make a statement. [244935]

Mr. Michael Foster: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 14 January 2009, Official Report, columns 836-37W, to my hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Heeley (Meg Munn).

Students: Finance

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) grants and (b) loans his Department has given to student organisations in the last 12 months for which figures are available; and what the purpose was of the payment in each case. [246859]

Gillian Merron: This information is not held centrally by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

FCO posts overseas may provide grants or loans to student organisations as part of programmes that contribute toward their strategic objectives. Individual student scholarships, to study in Britain as part of the Chevening Scholarship Programme, are administered on our behalf by the British Council and totalled £31.3 million in 2007-08.

Terrorism

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what funding his Department has made available for the Government's counter-radicalisation agenda for each year until 2010-11. [243031]

Bill Rammell: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has allocated approximately £80 million for counter-radicalisation over the next three years: £19 million in 2008-09, £24 million in 2009-10 and £37 million in 2010-11.

Thailand: Politics and Government

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government has made representations to the Thai government on the recent anti-government protestors' blockade of Bangkok's two main airports; and if he will make a statement. [240302]

Bill Rammell: I spoke to the Thai ambassador on 28 November 2008 to urge the Thai authorities to do everything in their power to restore public order and reopen Bangkok's airports. I emphasised the urgent need to assist those British nationals affected by the blockade and underlined the damage the situation was doing to Thailand's international reputation.

In addition, from the day protests at the airports began, our embassy in Bangkok has repeatedly passed similar messages to senior members of the Thai Government, military, major political parties and others with influence on the situation. On 4 December 2008, the British ambassador participated in a joint demarche with US, EU, Canada, New Zealand, Japan and Korea colleagues and spoke to caretaker Prime Minister Chavarat Charnvirakul, emphasising that Thailand's leaders should work to ensure future political activity was legal and not aimed at Thailand's visitors or wider economic interests.

Treaty of Lisbon

Ms Angela C. Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the Government plans to restart its contingency preparatory work for implementation of the Lisbon Treaty should it come into force. [253023]

Caroline Flint: The Government will in no way pre-empt the decisions of those countries that have yet to ratify the Lisbon treaty. However, in light of the decisions at the December 2008 European Council, we will now work on all possible scenarios. This will include preparing for the possibility that the Lisbon treaty will come into force. We have a responsibility to engage in discussions to ensure that any institutional arrangements being planned for the event that the Lisbon treaty comes into force reflect our national interest. Not to do so would be irresponsible. I can, however, assure the House that work will remain on a contingency basis only and that no formal decisions will be taken unless and until the treaty enters into force.

Ukraine: Anti-Semitism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he (a) has had since July 2008 and (b) plans to have with EU counterparts on levels of anti-Semitism in (i) Ukraine and (ii) Russia; and if he will make a statement. [247758]

Caroline Flint: We monitor these issues closely with our EU partners in Brussels, Kyiv, and in Moscow. We have previously expressed our concerns about xenophobia and racism at a senior level to the Ukrainian authorities. Racism was raised with Russian authorities by the EU in human rights talks in October 2008, and we had a thorough discussion of the issue in our own bilateral human rights talks with the Russians on 16 January this year. Both countries understand the seriousness with which we view these questions. We will continue to monitor this situation and raise these matters with the appropriate authorities in future, should it be necessary to do so.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland with reference to the answer of 12 November 2008, Official Report, column 1209W, on departmental consultants, how much his Department, its agencies and executive non-departmental public bodies spent on external consultants between May 2007 and March 2008. [243395]

Mr. Woodward: Information is collated on an annual basis from April to March. In the period April 2007 to March 2008, my Department, its agencies and executive non-departmental public bodies spent £4,419,074 on external consultants.

The Northern Ireland Office formalised its approach to the employment of consultants when it introduced its "Policy on the Use of External Consultants/Professional Services" in July 2006. Staff throughout the department are now more conscious of the public interest in the subject and of the need for a strong case before considering the employment of consultants.

Departmental Working Hours

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the policy of his Department and its agencies is on granting staff time off in lieu for working (a) in lunch breaks, (b) in evenings and (c) at other times outside contracted working hours; and if he will make a statement. [252015]

Paul Goggins: Business areas may make local arrangements with staff to allow an adjustment to their flexible working hours time sheet if a requirement to work through a lunch break or in the evening is unavoidable.

Staff who are required to work at other times outside contracted working hours i.e. Saturday or Sunday are compensated with an overtime payment appropriate to their grade band. Staff who are required to work on any public or bank holiday are compensated by time off in lieu equal to the hours of attendance plus a payment at single time rate for the hours of attendance. When time off in lieu cannot be given, payment for all of the hours is given at the rate of double time (overtime grades) or single time (non-overtime grades). Payment is subject to the appropriate overriding maxima. Staff who are required to work on any privilege holiday are compensated by time off in lieu equal to the hours of attendance. When time off in lieu cannot be given, payment for all of the hours worked is given at the rate of double time (overtime grades) or single time (non-overtime grades).

Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what cars are (a) owned, (b) leased, (c) hired and (d) otherwise regularly used by his Department, broken down by cubic capacity of engine. [250139]

Mr. Woodward: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport on 26 January 2009, Official Report, column 10W.

In addition, my Department leases the following cars:

Make	CC	Number
Volvo	2500	2
Seat	1900	1
Volkswagen Golf	2000	1
Ford Mondeo	2000	1

Whilst in Northern Ireland on official business Northern Ireland Office Ministers use vehicles provided by the Police Service of Northern Ireland.

No vehicles are owned or hired.

Police Service of Northern Ireland: Recruitment

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many former Royal Ulster Constabulary police officers have been recruited by the Police Service of Northern Ireland in each of the last five years; and at what cost. [252316]

Paul Goggins: That is an operational matter for the chief constable. I have asked him to reply directly to the hon. Member, and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Prisoners

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many prisoners in Northern Ireland were detained as a result of non-payment of fines in each of the last five years. [251274]

Paul Goggins: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given to the hon. Member for East Antrim (Sammy Wilson) on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1644W.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Reconstruction

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the budget of his Department's provincial reconstruction team in Helmand province has been in each year since 2002; how much has been spent in each year; which organisations have managed the projects undertaken; what monitoring, impact assessments and evaluations have been undertaken in respect of each project in each year since 2002; and if he will make a statement. [245774]

Bill Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

The UK took responsibility for Helmand province through the establishment of a provincial reconstruction team (PRT) in 2006. The PRT combines the efforts of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), Department for International Development (DFID) and the Ministry of Defence (MOD) in a comprehensive approach to development. Accordingly, the PRT delivers reconstruction and development projects from a tri-departmental budget managed jointly by FCO, DFID and MOD. £7.04 million was spent in 2006-07 and £9.99 million in 2007-08 from the Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP). To date, £14.08 million (of a Stabilisation Aid Fund budget of £34.41 million) has been spent in 2008-09. Prior to the establishment of the PRT in 2006, there was no specific allocation of funding to Helmand province.

The tri-departmental funding facilitates a range of projects in Counter Narcotics, Rule of Law, Strategic Communications, Governance, Political activities and Area Based Stabilisation. These projects are administered in Lashkar Gah or London, dependent on the implementing agent. Projects are managed through a range of partners including the Afghan Government, local community organisations, international or local non-governmental organisations or external contractors. Programmes are reviewed and updated monthly by an official in the embassy in Kabul and the PRT in Lashkar Gah. Projects are evaluated at six-monthly intervals.

In addition to this tri-departmental budget, the FCO, DFID and MOD also have individual budget allocations. From its bilateral programme fund, the FCO spent £17,000 in 2007-08 on Helmand specific projects.

Burma: Overseas Aid

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding his Department have allocated to the Thailand Burma Border Consortium for 2009-10. [250797]

Mr. Michael Foster: In December 2008, the Thailand Burma Border Consortium (TBBC) submitted, through Christian Aid, a funding proposal to the Department for International Development (DFID) covering three years from April 2009 to March 2012. DFID is considering this proposal in consultation with Christian Aid, other donors to TBBC and TBBC itself.

Departmental Data Protection

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many members of staff in his Department have been (a) investigated, (b) suspended and (c) dismissed for losing (i) memory sticks, (ii) laptop computers, (iii) desktop computers and (iv) mobile telephones belonging to his Department in each year since 1997. [248251]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: All losses of the listed items are investigated, however, the Department for International Development (DFID) does not retain records of the number of staff investigated who were neither suspended nor dismissed. No DFID civil servants have been suspended or dismissed for losing such items in this period.

HIV Infection

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department funds the use of oral mouth swabs to diagnose acquired immune deficiency syndrome. [250126]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: UK Government funded programmes to halt and reverse the spread of HIV and AIDS in developing countries, cover prevention, voluntary counselling and testing, treatment and care. These funds are typically channelled through budget support at the country level to health programmes or as contributions to the core budgets or pooled funds of UN organisations. Information on disaggregated methods used to test for HIV is not therefore readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The World Health Organisation (WHO) has reported that in 2007, 96 per cent. of the HIV antibody tests procured through its bulk procurement scheme were rapid tests, which involve a simple blood test taken from a pin prick. No information on uptake of oral tests is available, and WHO makes no recommendation as to their suitability for use.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the grade and salary range was of each member of his Department's staff seconded to support the Quartet Middle East Envoy in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; how many such staff at each grade and salary range will be so seconded in 2009; how much his Department spent on such staff in (i) 2007 and (ii) 2008; and if he will make a statement. [248783]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) seconded one member of staff to the Office of the Quartet Representative in Jerusalem to provide expert governance analysis. The secondment began in August 2007 and will finish in January 2010. The post is DFID grade A1. The salary range for the post for 2007-08 was £53,490 to £64,925 and for 2008-09 is £55,814 to £66,873.

The total amount spent on the secondment (including salary and support costs) in 2007-08 was £107,228. In 2008-09 we expect costs to be £190,549.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much direct aid his Department has provided to Gaza in the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available. [249870]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: UK development aid to the Occupied Palestinian Territories (OPTs) is for both the West Bank and Gaza. Although some of our aid is earmarked for activities in Gaza, the majority is given for activities in both Gaza and the West Bank.

In the calendar year 2008, we provided £82.3 million to the OPTs. Of this, the following benefited Palestinians living in Gaza: £6.8 million for immediate humanitarian assistance to Gaza announced on 31 December; £19 million to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) to help Palestinian refugees in the region, including the 70 per cent. of Gazans who are refugees; £2 million to the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) for humanitarian assistance; and £50.45 million to the Palestinian Authority which helped it provide essential public services in both Gaza and the West Bank.

As announced on 18 January 2009, the UK has pledged an additional £20 million to help meet needs in Gaza, bringing the total UK response to the humanitarian crisis in Gaza to nearly £27 million since the conflict started.

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) how grant aid from the Government to the Palestinian Authority was used over the last three years, broken down by project; [250447]

(2) how much development aid the Government have given to the Palestinian Authority in each of the last three years. [250449]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: In 2005-06 we gave £13,715,862 to the Palestinian Authority (PA) (including £10 million in emergency budget support through the World Bank Trust Fund); in 2006-07 we gave £14,525,065 to the PA (including £11.875 million through the European Commission Temporary International Mechanism (TIM)); and in 2007-08 we gave £44,143,585 to the PA (including £18.45 million through TIM/PEGASE and £20 million through the World Bank Trust Fund).

The following table shows the support we have given to the Palestinian Authority over the last three financial years, broken down by projects.

Project	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08

Zimbabwe: Overseas Aid

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of the proportion of his Department's direct aid to Zimbabwe which has reached its intended recipients in the last 12 months. [249869]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The delivery of UK aid in Zimbabwe, alongside that of UN and other international agencies, is rigorously monitored and subject to regular reporting, independent evaluation and financial audit. Our estimation has been that UK assistance reaches its intended recipients. When we do hear of any attempt to divert aid, the programme in question is halted immediately while an investigation takes place. However, from 4 June to 29 August 2008, as a cynical and damaging electoral ploy, Robert Mugabe's regime instituted a ban on the operations of NGOs across the country. During this period, large amounts of international food-aid (including UK contributions) were obstructed; none of this aid was diverted, it was simply not distributed. Other non-food aid—including essential medicines and support to people with HIV and AIDS—was distributed where delivery to intended recipients could be assured.

Since the lifting of the ban, the international community has scaled up its response rapidly to provide vital food assistance to over five million Zimbabweans. Despite this massive operation, rigorous monitoring has been maintained, with few reports of obstruction or diversion of aid, and we are confident that UK contributions are being delivered to intended recipients.

HEALTH

Air Pollution

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the annual number of premature deaths caused by air pollution in England; and if he will make a statement. [249764]

Dawn Primarolo: There are many uncertainties involved in estimating deaths brought forward as a result of air pollution. Current estimates are being updated, but in 1998, the Department's Committee on the Medical Effects of Air Pollutants (COMEAP) estimated that 24,000 deaths were brought forward each year due to air pollution in the United Kingdom.

The UK Air Quality Strategy aims to protect against risks to public health from air pollution. Healthy individuals are not thought to be at significant risk of short-term effects from current levels of air pollution in the UK, but associations have been indicated between daily variations in levels of some pollutants and daily variations in mortality and hospital admissions for respiratory or cardiovascular conditions.

An economic analysis to inform the Air Quality Strategy was published in July 2007. It presents detailed assessments of the additional policy measures considered by the Air Quality Strategy (AQS).

www.defra.gov.uk/environment/airquality/publications/stratreview-analysis/index.htm

To inform the UK Air Quality Strategy (2007), COMEAP estimated that the average loss of life expectancy would be around seven to eight months in 2005. With the implementation of measures outlined in the Strategy, this is predicted to drop to around 5.5 months in 2020. As with any average, the loss of life expectancy will be greater than this for some people and less than this for others.

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has commissioned or assessed on the levels of (a) PM_{10}, (b) $PM_{2.5}$, (c) ozone, (d) nitrogen dioxide and (e) nitrogen oxide in the atmosphere; and if he will make a statement. [249765]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has commissioned a number of research projects to assess the links between public health and the air pollutants.

Projects recently commissioned in 2008 are:

Title	Institution
Health implications of polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons in indoor environments	University of Birmingham
Short- and long-term effects of air pollution on cardiovascular disease events	London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine
Lifecourse Effects of Air Pollution on cardiorespiratory morbidity in the MRC National Survey of Health and Development	Imperial College, London
Oxidative potential of particulate matter and risk of cardiovascular disease: a hybrid toxico-epidemiological study	King's College, London
An investigation of the effects of long term exposure to air pollution on cardiorespiratory morbidity in a large population cohort	St. George's, University of London
A study of the concentration-response relationship for the effects of ozone on health	St. George's, University of London
Quantification of health impacts of airborne particulates: comparing estimates based on personal exposure and outdoor concentrations	University of York

The published reports of previous projects are available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publichealth/Healthprotection/AirPollution/index.htm

The effects of particles, S02 and ozone have all been quantified and valued as part of the UK Air Quality Strategy review in 2007, using recommendations by the Department's Committee on the Medical Effects of Air Pollutants (COMEAP).

The health effects considered include both short-term effects (daily deaths, respiratory and cardiovascular hospital admissions) and long-term effects. There is, however, still considerable uncertainty surrounding the precise scale and mechanisms linking air quality and health, especially for the long-term effects on life expectancy.

Brain Tumours: Research

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what funding the National Cancer Research Institute provided for (a) brain tumour and (b) leukaemia related research in (i) 2004-05, (ii) 2005-06 and (iii) 2006-07; [250690]

(2) what initiatives the National Cancer Research Initiative is managing in relation to care and treatment of those with brain tumours. [250691]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Cancer Research Institute (NCRI) is a membership organisation that brings together the major funders of cancer research in government, the voluntary sector and industry along with cancer patient representatives to ensure a national strategic approach to cancer research. The NCRI does not itself fund or manage research.

The NCRI publishes an analysis of the national cancer research portfolio that includes details of expenditure by its partner organisations on research into individual tumour sites. The analysis is available on-line at:

www.ncri.org.uk/includes/Publications/reports/analysisReport08.pdf

A more detailed account of annual aggregated portfolio expenditure is given in an associated data package available at:

www.ncri.org.uk/includes/Publications/reports/Data_package.xls

Breast Cancer

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many diagnosed cases of malignant neoplasm of the breast there were in (a) Essex and (b) England in each of the last five years. [250034]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Dennis Roberts, dated January 2009:

The National Statistician has been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many diagnosed cases of malignant neoplasm of the breast there were in (a) Essex and (b) England in each of the last five years. I am replying in her absence. (250034)

The most recent available figures for newly diagnosed cases of breast cancer are for the year 2006. Figures for the years 2002 to 2006 are in the table below.

Table 1: Registrations of newly diagnosed cases of breast cancer[1], Essex and England, 2002-06

Geographical area		2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Essex	Male	5	6	10	6	12
	Female	936	990	951	1,115	1,035
England	Male	258	291	267	235	275
	Female	35,294	37,486	37,649	38,464	38,064

Cancer: Children

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what funding the National Cancer Research Network has provided for paediatric oncology in each of the last five years; and what proportion of this support has been spent on projects relating to (a) brain tumours and (b) leukaemia treatment and care. [250692]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Cancer Research Network (NCRN) forms part of the National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) clinical research network. It supports high quality research studies funded by the NIHR and its research partners through the provision of the necessary health service infrastructure.

The NCRN's specialised research network on paediatric oncology, led by the UK Children's Cancer and Leukaemia Group, receives dedicated funding from the NCRI. The amounts allocated over the last four years have been:

2005-06	115
2006-07	117
2007-08	119
2008-09	122

The Department also currently allocates £50,000 a year to each of four NHS trusts specifically to provide infrastructure support for early phase studies devoted to children with cancer.

Information on the attribution of these funds to research relating to individual tumour sites is not held centrally.

Clinical Physiologists: Regulation

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to implement his proposals for the statutory regulation of clinical physiologists. [250681]

Ann Keen: Proposals for the statutory regulation of clinical physiologists will be resolved as part of a separate consultation, as outlined in 'The Future of the Healthcare Science Workforce Modernising Scientific Careers: The Next Steps: A Consultation' published in November 2008. A copy of the consultation has already been placed in the Library.

Consultation plans will be announced in due course.

Colonoscopy

Lynne Featherstone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many colonoscopists are employed by each primary care trust. [252380]

Ann Keen: The information is not collected centrally.

Departmental Allowances

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 15 December 2008, Official Report, column 444W, how much the second homes allowance for David Nicholson and Bill Kirkup were; where the second homes are; and for what reasons they are eligible for the allowance. [246707]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is as follows:

David Nicholson received £37,600 second home allowance.

Bill Kirkup received £25,800 second home allowance.

Both second homes are in London.

Departmental policy allows for individuals to claim Second Home Allowance if they are expected to work away from their permanent workplace for long periods and if the temporary workplace is not within daily travelling distance from their home.

The Department approves such claims where the case meets business needs and demonstrates cost effectiveness.

This allowance is not permanent and is subject to review.

Departmental Catering

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which (a) food and (b) drinks suppliers have been used by his Department in each of the last three years; and how much his Department paid to each such supplier in each of those years. [248384]

Mr. Bradshaw: Provision of food and drink for the Department's catering needs in London is provided under contract by Quadrant Catering Limited. The Department's catering needs in Leeds is provided by Eurest Services.

The Department has paid Quadrant Catering Limited and Eurest Services the following sums on food and drink in the last three years:

2005-06	1,076,479
2006-07	952,046
2007-08	887,844

The information requested to identify the amount paid to each supplier is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) directly-operated and (b) franchised catering outlets his Department and its agencies provides for staff. [249075]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department and its agencies do not have any (a) directly-operated or, (b) franchised catering outlets.

The Department has a contract with Quadrant Catering Limited to supply restaurant and hospitality services to four buildings in London, (Richmond house, Skipton house, Wellington house and New King's Beam house.) Eurest provide catering services to the Department's offices in Quarry house (Leeds) under arrangements through the Department of Work and Pensions.

The Medicines and Healthcare Regulatory Authority at Market Towers ((MHRA)—London) has a contract with Bartlett Mitchell to supply a restaurant service which is subsidised by MHRA. The amount is £72,000 per year. This figure is not directly attributed to food and drink and includes the running costs of the restaurant.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 193W, on departmental personnel, how many staff without posts there are in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies; how many of the staff without posts were classified as such upon return from maternity leave; and how many of the staff without posts have been classified as such for at least (i) six and (ii) 12 months. [250105]

Mr. Bradshaw: The table presents an analysis of staff without posts in the core Department classified by period of time in that situation and by grade. No one has been displaced for a period of over 12 months

NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency and Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency both report that they do not currently have any staff member without a post.

No staff without posts are in this position as a result of return from maternity leave.

Reasons for individuals being without posts include return from secondment or loan outside the Department and staff without posts due to internal restructuring exercises.

	Time displaced
Grade	0 to 3 months	3 to 6 months	More than 6 months	Total
Senior Civil Service	3	0	1	4
Grade 6	0	0	2	2
Grade 7	1	0	0	1
Senior Executive Officer	1	1	0	2
Higher Executive Officer	0	0	0	0
Executive Officer	2	1	1	4
Administrative Officer	7	1	0	8
Total	14	3	4	21

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer to the right hon. Member for Devizes of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1218W, on departmental public relations, if he will list each of the external public firms on which the £5.3 million of expenditure was incurred in 2007-08; and for what reasons in-house communications staff could not provide the requisite services. [250570]

Mr. Bradshaw: The public relations (PR) agencies employed by the Department during 2007-08 were:

Euro RSCG;
Fishburn Hedges Boys Williams;
The Forster Company;
Geronimo;
Grayling;
Munro and Forster;
The Red Consultancy; and Trimedia Harrison Cowley.

PR companies are employed to support a range of marketing and policy initiatives including major public health behaviour change programmes such as tobacco control, sexual health, flu immunisation, hand and respiratory hygiene and drug and alcohol harm reduction campaigns. In addition to providing specialist knowledge of a wide range of media through which the Department needs to communicate with specific target audiences, they also provide extensive creative input to communications programmes. PR companies are a highly flexible and cost-effective resource as they can be commissioned for the duration of each individual project thus reducing the need for increasing internal headcount.

The total expenditure on external PR during 2007-08 (£5.3 million) includes VAT and both fees and costs. Typically costs may include producing materials and newsletters, creation of content for online media, advertorials, photography, research, creation of toolkits for stakeholders and costs incurred for regional activity such as stakeholder or media roadshows.

Departmental Surveys

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department's central media and communication unit spent on public surveys in each of the last three years. [247916]

Mr. Bradshaw: We are committed to consulting and involving the public to ensure that our campaigning activity and all associated publicity materials are shaped around understanding of their needs and attitudes. Our investment in communications research and insight is central in designing and evaluating our communications campaigns.

The Department's Communications Directorate spent the following in each financial year on quantitative surveys among the public in each of the last three years.

	Spend (£)
2005-06	810,440
2006-07	1,122,112
2007-08	1,656,939

These figures include evaluation of public health campaigns; evaluation of major NHS communications initiatives; evaluation of NHS careers campaign and regular tracking of public attitudes towards the NHS.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by his Department on (a) agency and (b) temporary staff in each financial year since 2005-06. [251357]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department allows managers to access temporary staff, when necessary, through appropriate employment agencies at their own discretion, where the appropriate funding is authorised. The Department does not collect information on agency and temporary staff spend in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

General Practitioners: Pharmacy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dispensing GP practices are registered in (a) Stroud constituency, (b) Gloucestershire and (c) England; and what percentage of the total number of practices this represents in each case. [247938]

Phil Hope: The number of dispensing general practitioner (GP) practices and total practices is not available by parliamentary constituency but can be provided by primary care trust (PCT).

The following table provides the total number of GP practices and the number of dispensing GP practices in England, Gloucestershire PCT and South Gloucestershire PCT as at 14 January 2009. The figures in brackets represent the percentage of the total number of practices in each category.

	Gloucestershire PCT	South Gloucestershire PCT	England
All GP Practices	86 (1%)	29 (0.3%)	8,611
Dispensing GP Practices	29 2.6%)	4 (0.35%)	1,129

Source:
NHS Business Services Authority Organisational database

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of inappropriate dispensing of hospital prescriptions in community pharmacies were reported by each primary care trust in the latest year for which figures are available. [248226]

Phil Hope: This information is not held centrally.

Health Services: Merseyside

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health by (1) what means his Department provides access to (a) detoxification services and (b) primary health care for homeless people in Merseyside. [251453]

(2) what assessment he has made of the availability of detoxification services for homeless people in Merseyside. [251458]

Dawn Primarolo: It is the responsibility of primary care trusts (PCT) to plan, develop and improve local health services according to the health needs of their local populations.

The provision of detoxification services in Merseyside is therefore the responsibility of the local PCTs, working in partnership with relevant agencies and stakeholders.

Details of these services can be obtained from the PCTs and Drug and Alcohol Action Teams direct.

Hospitals: Construction

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average capital cost is of major hospital capital building projects initiated under (a) the private finance initiative and (b) other funding arrangements in the last three financial years. [251072]

Mr. Bradshaw: Under the private finance initiative over the last three financial years there have been 20 major hospital schemes (£25 million or over) which have reached financial close and started construction. Capital costs have ranged from £30 million to £1,000 million, with the average being £222 million.

Eight public capital funded major hospital schemes have awarded tenders and started construction over the last three years. Capital costs have ranged from £25 million to £75 million with the average capital cost being £47 million.

Hospitals: Food

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS trusts have (a) declared and (b) been unable to declare that dieticians had confirmed that hospital menus would deliver nutritional requirements sufficient to meet the needs of all patients in the last six months. [250648]

Dawn Primarolo: Information about which NHS trusts have/have not declared that dieticians have confirmed that hospital menus would deliver nutritional requirements sufficient to meet the needs of all patients is not collected centrally.

Knee/Hip Replacements

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time for a (1) knee operation in (a) England, (b) the North East and (c) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency was in the latest period for which information is available; [249549]

(2) hip operation in (a) England, (b) the North East and (c) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland was in the latest period for which information is available. [249623]

Mr. Bradshaw: The median time waited for a hip and a knee replacement in England, the north east, Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland in the latest period for which information is available is shown in the following table.

Median time waited for hip and knee replacements[1] of residents in England, North East Strategic Health Authority (SHA), Middlesbrough Primary Care Trust (PCT) and Redcar and Cleveland PCT in 2006-07

Activity in English national health service hospitals and English NHS commissioned activity in the independent sector

	Median waiting time (days)
	Hip	Knee
England	147	156
North East SHA	145	150
Middlesbrough PCT[2]	171	169
Redcar and Cleveland PCT[2]	167	168

[1] The term knee/hip 'operation' has been classed as too broad by Information Centre for health and social care clinical coders. As a result we have provided waiting times for hip/knee replacements as this is a term requested frequently in other parliamentary questions.

[2] Information Centre for health and social care are unable to break the data down by Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland, but have data for Middlesbrough PCT and Redcar and Cleveland PCT.

Maternity Services: Disadvantaged

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 17 June 2008, Official Report, column 875W, on breastfeeding, what steps are being taken to promote the UNICEF Baby Friendly Initiative to maternity units in areas of high social deprivation. [251307]

Dawn Primarolo: We are investing £4 million in 2008-09 for primary care trusts to develop local interventions to promote breastfeeding. These include implementing the principles of the Baby Friendly Initiative in both hospitals and community settings. As part of this initiative, training will be provided to all frontline staff. The overall aim is to increase breastfeeding rates, maximise the coverage of numbers of non-breastfeeding mothers in England and address inequalities.

Medical Treatments: EC Countries

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many European Health Insurance Cards (a) his Department and (b) other issuers within the UK have issued to non-UK nationals in each of the last 11 years, broken down by member state. [250880]

Dawn Primarolo: The United Kingdom has issued around 30 million UK European Health Insurance Cards (EHIC) to date. A breakdown by year can be found in the following table. The EHIC was only introduced across the European Economic Area in September 2005, therefore data for 11 years are not available. There is only one issuer of the EHIC within the UK, which is the NHS Business Services Authority. The nationality of the applicant is not recorded during the EHIC application process as this is irrelevant: entitlement to free national health service treatment and also to an EHIC, is based on being ordinarily resident in the UK rather than on British nationality or the previous payment of taxes to the UK.

	EHIC cards issued
September 2005-March 2006	5,592,334
April 2006-March 2007	7,189,876
April 2007-March 2008	4,160,935
April 2008-December 2008	2,961,485

Note:

As part of the transition to the EHIC from the E111, E111 applicants could automatically apply for an EHIC by indicating so on the application. 11,477,178 EHICs have been issued in this way.

Mobile Phones: Health Hazards

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to publish the report of Interphone. [251747]

Dawn Primarolo: Interphone is a multinational collaborative population study set up to help determine whether the radio frequency radiation emitted by mobile phones contributes to a cancer risk. It is not in the gift of the Department to publish the results. The study team, based at the International Centre for Research on Cancer in France issued an update on its website in October 2008. This can be found at:

www.iarc.fr/en/ResearchGroups/ClustersGroups/BiostatisticsandEpidemiologyCluster/Radiation-Group/INTERPHONE-Results-latest-update-8-October-2008

Although the whole study has not been published in full, many of the collaborating research centres have already published their own individual results in scientific journals. The United Kingdom based Mobile Telecommunications and Health Research (MTHR) programme has supported two of the interphone centres and details of these studies with a list of publications can be found on the MTHR website at:

www.mthr.org.uk/research_projects/research.htm

The 2007 MTHR report on the full range of studies supported under the MTHR programme can also be found at this website.

NHS: Debts

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of NHS hospital and community health services which will be in deficit at the end of the financial years (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10; and what projections he has made of future likely deficits. [251071]

Mr. Bradshaw: As discussed in the quarter 2 edition of the departmental publication, The Quarter, there are 11 national health service organisations forecasting that they will end the 2008-09 financial year with an operating deficit.

In addition to these eleven organisations, there are six organisations forecasting a technical deficit for the 2008-09 financial year. Five of these organisations have a technical deficit relating to the impairment of assets, which does not form part of their operating position (one of these organisations is also in the list of 11 organisations with an operating deficit). The remaining technical deficit is a phasing issue for a part year foundation trust, relating to the period that it was an NHS trust.

All NHS organisations are currently working to finalise their financial plans for 2009-10. We would expect these financial plans to be in line with the local direction and priorities agreed with their strategic health authorities, and the priorities set out in the Operating Framework for 2009-10.

A copy of the quarter 2 edition of The Quarter has been placed in the Library and can be found at the following website:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsStatistics/DH_091230

NHS: Drugs

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when he expects the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence to issue guidance on the availability on the NHS of (a) Sutent, (b) Nexavar, (c) Avastin and (d) Torisel; [252278]

(2) if he will issue guidance to primary care trusts to the effect that they should make (a) Sutent, (b) Nexavar, (c) Avastin and (d) Torisel available on the NHS where clinicians advise they should be used. [252279]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) is currently appraising sunitinib (Sutent), sorafenib (Nexavar), temsirolimus (Torisel) and bevacizumab (Avastin) for the treatment of renal cell carcinoma. We understand that NICE anticipates publishing its final guidance later this year.

NICE is an independent body responsible for the development of robust, evidence-based guidance for the national health service on the clinical and cost effectiveness of new and existing technologies. The Department has no plans to publish separate guidance to the NHS on these treatments in advance of NICE publishing its final guidance.

The NHS Constitution, which was published on 21 January 2009, includes a right for patients to access drugs and treatments that have been recommended by NICE for use in the NHS and also a further right for patients to expect local decisions on the funding of other drugs and treatments to be made rationally following a proper consideration of the evidence.

NHS: Public Participation

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which local involvement networks are not yet operational; and on what date each is expected to become operational. [250716]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not collected centrally. The statutory duty to ensure that local involvement network activities are carried on rests with local authorities (with social services responsibilities).

NHS: Standards

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to publish the full set of quality measures for acute patient care as referred to on page 50 of High Quality Care for All, Cm 7432. [249154]

Mr. Bradshaw: The assured menu of quality indicators for 2009-10 is being developed in line with the principles of co-production, clinical leadership, subsidiarity and system alignment, set out by David Nicholson in his letter of 5 August 2008.

Specifically, the assured menu of quality indicators for 2009-10 is being developed following a web-based survey run by the Information Centre for health and social care and on the basis of strategic health authority progress reports, requested in a letter to all NHS chief executives, medical directors and nursing directors sent by David Nicholson, Sir Bruce Keogh and Dame Christine Beasley on 18 November 2008. Draft of the assured menu will be shared with NHS colleagues before being presented to the National Quality Board at its first meeting in March 2009 and published following this.

Oxygen: Medical Equipment

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in England were dependent on a domiciliary oxygen system in their homes in each of the last 10 years. [250162]

Mr. Bradshaw: Accurate data on the number of patients using home oxygen are only available from 1 November 2006 onwards.

The following table shows the number of users of the integrated home oxygen service.

Period	Estimated number of patients
1 November 2006 to 31 March 2007	79,000
1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008	82,000
1 April 2008 to 31 December 2008	83,000

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been spent by (a) his Department and (b) each health trust on each type of prescribed domiciliary oxygen therapy in each of the last 10 years. [250163]

Mr. Bradshaw: The budget for the Home Oxygen Service is held within the national health service. Accurate expenditure data on home oxygen are available from 1 November 2006 onwards.

Providing information in the requested format would breach commercial confidentiality.

The following table summarises spending on home oxygen by region:

Region name	1 November 2006 to 31 March 2007[1]	1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008	1 April 2008 to 31 December 2008[1]
North West	4,428,660	11,575,379	10,183,134
West Midlands	3,587,287	9,487,444	8,609,073
Yorkshire and Humberside	3,063,742	7,719,610	6,974,471
London North	2,184,778	5,548,612	4,922,569
East Midlands	2,495,034	6,307,825	5,824,480
South West	4,044,487	17,165,947	13,145,760
Eastern England	4,772,468	13,989,942	12,061,541
South East London, Kent, Surrey and Sussex	3,205,077	9,168,251	7,782,469
South West London, Thames Valley, Hampshire and Isle of Wight	2,626,450	7,615,627	6,198,207
North East	3,358,987	9,507,091	8,077,418
Total	33,766,971	98,085,727	83,779,123

Patient Choice Schemes

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) proportion of first outpatient appointments made through Choose and Book in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by (i) direct and (ii) indirect method used. [252335]

Mr. Bradshaw: In November 2008 which is the latest month for which data are available 399,000 referrals to first outpatient appointments were made through Choose and Book, 50 per cent., of all general practitioner referrals to first outpatient appointment. Of these, 305,000 (76 per cent.) used the direct method and 94,000 used the indirect method of booking.

PatientPak

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what meetings (a) he and (b) his officials have had with representatives of PatientPak Limited to discuss the use of its products by patients in the last 12 months; [251014]

(2) what research his Department has (a) evaluated, (b) commissioned and (c) undertaken on the merits of patient-provided products to prevent viral and bacterial infections in hospitals. [251015]

Ann Keen: The Department has not had any meetings with representatives of PatientPak Ltd. within the last 12 months. However, the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency run product surgeries to offer advice to manufacturers of health care products.

The Department has not undertaken any work on the efficacy of patient-provided products in preventing viral and bacterial infections in hospitals and is not aware of any evidence that these products offer advantages over materials supplied to patients by the national health service.

Our strategy 'Clean Safe Care' draws together the measures required to control infections. Generally, normal soap and toiletries are adequate for patients' personal hygiene during their hospital stay, and hospitals will provide special soap and shampoo to prevent viral and bacterial infections as necessary.

Pharmacy: Hampshire

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what dispensing pharmacies there are in Hampshire; and what volume of products each dispensed in each of the last five years. [250164]

Phil Hope: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Pigmeat: Labelling

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to change the labelling scheme for pork products. [251022]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 27 January 2009]: The Government have no plans to change the labelling scheme for pork products.

However, the framework EC legislation governing general food labelling is currently being revised in Brussels. This includes a consideration of the tightening of criteria around voluntary country of origin declarations, including on pork products. The Government support this move and are actively involved in these negotiations.

In the meantime and in order to help industry comply with the rules and avoid misleading consumers, the Food Standards Agency has had in place since 2002 best practice guidance, which advises for example, that bacon products from imported pork should be clearly labelled as such. Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Ministers are also holding a series of meetings with industry to promote uptake of the guidance.

Tomography

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) magnetic resonance imaging and (b) dual energy x-ray absorptiometry scanners there were in the NHS in each year since 1997. [249275]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not routinely collect this data centrally. However, from information supplied by the Health Protection Agency (HPA) the installed base of magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) scanners in the English national health service plus additional scanners supplied each year from 1997 to 2008 are shown in the following table. The installed base for MRI scanners for 1998 and 1999 were not collected.

The total number of installed MRI scanners for each year can only be considered to be approximate, it is not possible to provide data regarding exact numbers for each year since 1997 due to local variations in timescales for centrally funded scanners from award then delivery and installation, as well as different time periods for the removal from clinical service of the scanners being replaced.

Data for dual-energy x-ray absorptiometry (DXA) scanners are not collected.

MRI scanners installed base	Additional	Total (approximate)
1997	—	110
2000	1	183
2001	19	202
2002	12	214
2003	18	232
2004	31	263
2005	26	289
2006	10	299
2007	0	299
2008	0	299

Note:
The databases of installed equipment held by the HPA contain data supplied periodically by manufacturers and as such can only be considered to be a snapshot in time rather than an absolute position.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Business Community Safety Forum

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the chair of the Business Community Safety Forum has received in allowances in respect of his chairmanship in the last 12 months. [251814]

Mr. Khan: Since his appointment on 24 October 2008, the chair of the Business and Community Safety Forum has received a day rate of £500 on three occasions and been reimbursed for his associated travel and subsistence expenses.

Chief Fire Officers' Association

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) her Department and (b) its agencies are represented on the board of the Chief Fire Officers' Association. [252185]

Mr. Khan: This Department and its agencies are not represented on the Board of the Chief Fire Officers' Association.

Community Infrastructure Levy

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what estimate her Department has made of the receipts (a) each of her Department's executive agencies and (b) each regional development agency will receive from community infrastructure levy; [251801]

(2) who the charging authorities for the community infrastructure levy will be; [251802]

(3) what plans she has to produce an updated impact assessment for community infrastructure levy; [251808]

(4) what proposals her Department has for the (a) level and (b) rates of community infrastructure levy. [251828]

Mr. Iain Wright: Section 206 of the Planning Act 2008 sets out which bodies will be charging authorities for the Community Infrastructure Levy. As part of the consultation on draft CIL regulations, the Government will consult on the use of the section 206(4). Executive agencies and regional development agencies cannot be charging authorities. However such bodies could receive CIL revenue from CIL charging authorities in order to provide infrastructure identified as necessary, through the development plan process, to support development. No estimate has been made of the level of CIL revenue that these specific bodies would receive as this will depend on the infrastructure planning and local decisions about funding priorities made by each CIL charging authority.

The Planning Act together with the CIL regulations will set the framework governing how charging authorities will determine the rate of CIL in their area. The level of CIL will be set locally by each charging authority should they decide to establish a CIL.

Section 211(2) of the Act requires charging authorities to have regard to actual and expected costs of infrastructure; the economic viability of development and other actual and expected sources of funding for infrastructure in setting the rate of CIL.

An updated impact assessment will be produced alongside the CIL regulations which will not come into force before October 2009.

Community Relations

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress the Equality and Human Rights Commission has made in convening forums with employers' networks, the CBI and the TUC to formulate action plans on cohesion. [245545]

Mr. Khan: I understand that the Commission will be developing further links with the private sector and the trade unions as part of its broader stakeholder engagement work in support of its Strategic Plan in 2009. This will include work on promoting good relations and community cohesion.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance has her Department has provided on whether reports produced by local authorities under their new tension monitoring duties will qualify for an exemption from the provisions of (a) the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and (b) the Data Protection Act 1998. [251810]

Mr. Khan: Guidance for Local Authorities on Community Cohesion Contingency Planning and Tension Monitoring published on 6 May 2008, sets a framework which local authorities can use to monitor local issues that may lead to local community tensions, and does not provide advice on whether reports produced by local authorities are exempt from FOI Act or the Data Protection Act. Tension monitoring for local authorities is not mandatory, and all contributors to the tension monitoring process are required to adhere to the principles of data collection set out in the Data Protection Act 1998. Each organisation that makes a contribution to tension monitoring should have local information sharing protocols in place.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on tension monitoring and the activities of political parties. [251811]

Mr. Khan: Guidance for Local Authorities on Community Cohesion Contingency Planning and Tension Monitoring published on 6 May 2008, sets a framework which local authorities can use to monitor local issues that may lead to local community tensions and to put plans into operation if a problem is identified. It is up to each local authority to determine the scope of their tension monitoring and contingency planning.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether Ministers in her Department plan to organise seminars on issues identified in the National Community Forum's report on Sources of resentment and perceptions of ethnic minorities among poor white people in England. [251901]

Mr. Khan: I plan to hold a seminar to discuss the report's findings later this year.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what expenditure her Department incurred on the (a) research for and (b) production of the National Community Forum report, Sources of resentment and perceptions of ethnic minorities among poor white people in England. [251972]

Mr. Khan: The National Community Forum is funded by Communities and Local Government and has advised that the cost of this research was £10,500.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 46W, on local authorities: community relations, what guidance her Department has published on tension monitoring in relation to the provisions of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000. [252485]

Mr. Khan: 'Guidance for Local Authorities on Community Cohesion Contingency Planning and Tension Monitoring', published on 6 May 2008, sets a framework which local authorities can use to monitor local issues that may lead to local community tensions. We are not aware of any local authorities using the powers available under Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000 (RIPA) to conduct their tension monitoring. This Act is therefore not covered in our guidance.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 14 July 2008, Official Report, column 46W, on local authorities: community relations, what further guidance her Department has provided to local authorities on tension monitoring. [252487]

Mr. Khan: The Department does not plan to issue further guidance.

Departmental Correspondence

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's average response time to a letter received from (a) an hon. Member and (b) a member of the public was in each of the last three years. [251437]

Mr. Khan: Communities and Local Government (CLG) will not be able to provide the information requested regarding correspondence from a hon. Member without bearing disproportionate cost.

CLG are able to inform that the Cabinet Office, on an annual basis, publishes a report to Parliament on the performance of Departments in replying to Members correspondence. The report for 2007 was published on 20 March 2008, Official Report, columns 71-74WS. Information for 2008 is currently being collated and will be published as soon as it is ready. Reports for earlier years are available in the Library of the House.

As for correspondence from members of the public, this information could not be provided within disproportionate costs limits but CLG aim to respond to all written correspondence within 15 working days.

Departmental Expenditure Limit

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the Written Ministerial Statement of 25 November 2008, Official Report, columns 52-7WS, on the departmental expenditure limit (2008-09), how much the litigation costs in relation to the transfer of £4.3 million to Firebuy were; and what the litigation concerned. [252164]

Mr. Khan: The transfer of £4.3 million to the Firebuy line in the Department's Winter Supplementary Estimates included provision of £2.4 million for defending litigation brought against Firebuy over the procurement of the Integrated Clothing Project.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 17 December 2008, Official Report, column 786W, on departmental ICT, what her most recent estimate of the (a) cost and (b) completion date of each of the projects listed is; and if she will make a statement. [251243]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 5 November 2008, Official Report, column 545-46W.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which ICT projects her Department and its predecessors initiated and abandoned before completion in each year since 1997; what costs were incurred in each project; who the contractors for each were; on what date each was (a) commenced and (b) abandoned; and if she will make a statement. [251390]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr. Hammond) by the right hon. Member for Don Valley (Caroline Flint) on 1 September 2008, Official Report, column 1420W. The Department has nothing further to report by way of abandoned ICT projects since.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons her Department engaged (a) Band and Brown, (b) Connect PR and (c) Blue Rubicon PR in 2008 to undertake public relations work; and for what reasons such work was not undertaken by her Department. [251779]

Mr. Khan: I can confirm that Band and Brown were engaged to provide PR support for publicity on home information packs, Connect PR were engaged to provide PR support for publicity on regeneration and sustainable communities policy, including the sustainable communities conference, and Blue Rubicon PR were engaged to provide PR support for publicity on the introduction of the energy performance in buildings directive.

The above agencies were engaged to support and extend the work conducted by the Department's Press Office.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department's executive agencies spent on services procured from each of the external public relations and marketing companies included in the Central Office of Information's Public Relations Framework in the last 36 months. [251818]

Mr. Khan: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which (a) public affairs (i) companies and (ii) consultants and (b) external public relations firms have been commissioned by each of her Department's advisory non-departmental public bodies in the last 24 months; and at what cost. [251822]

Mr. Khan: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Temporary Staff

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent by her Department on (a) agency and (b) temporary staff in each financial year since 2005-06. [251301]

Mr. Khan: The Department has spent the following amounts on agency staff in each of the last four years.

	Amount spent (£)
2005-06	8,780,495
2006-07	7,952,576
2007-08	16,267,091
2008 (to December)	12,734,932

Departmental Training

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department spent on digital media training courses provided by the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008; how many such training sessions were held in 2008; and how many staff in her Department attended at least one such training course. [252261]

Mr. Khan: The Department has not commissioned any digital media training courses through the Internet Advertising Bureau in 2008.

Deprivation Indicators

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the geographical barriers score of each local authority in the Indices of Deprivation for (a) 2004 and (b) 2007 was, ranked from highest to lowest in each year. [251734]

Mr. Khan: Geographical barriers is a sub-domain of the Indices of Deprivation which is published at Lower Super Output Area level (geographical units with an average of 1,500 population).

The Government do not produce a score for this at local authority level.

I have placed a table of the LSOA score and rank for this sub domain for 2004 and 2007 in the Library. The table also shows which local authority each LSOA is within, and shows all of England's 32,482 LSOAs.

LSOAs with the highest score, face the greatest geographical barriers (The LSOA with a rank of one is the most deprived on this sub domain, and 32,482 the least deprived).

The geographical barriers sub-domain is calculated from data on road distance to: GP premises; supermarket or convenience store; primary school; and post office.

Derelict Land

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment she has made of levels of brownfield development in (a) England, (b) the South East, (c) Hampshire and (d) Romsey constituency. [251037]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on development on previously developed or brownfield land is taken from the Land Use Change Statistics.

In the period 2003-06,

(a) 58 per cent. of the land changing to a developed use in England was previously developed.

(b) 62 per cent. of the land changing to a developed use in the South-East was previously developed.

(c) 68 per cent. of the land changing to a developed use in Hampshire was previously developed.

(d) 79 per cent. of the land changing to a developed use in the constituency of Romsey was previously developed.

"Brownfield" development has been interpreted as all development on previously developed land, not just residential development. Information on residential development can be found on the CLG website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/planningandbuilding/planningbuilding/planningstatistics/livetables/landusechange/

Domestic Waste

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department issues (a) guidance and (b) instructions to local authorities on the monitoring of household waste for items relevant to community cohesion monitoring exercises. [252302]

Mr. Khan: 'Guidance for Local Authorities on Community Cohesion Contingency Planning and Tension Monitoring', published on 6 May 2008, sets a framework which local authorities can use to monitor local issues that may lead to local community tensions and to put plans into operation if a problem is identified. This guidance does not make specific mention of the monitoring of household waste. It is up to each local authority to determine the scope of their tension monitoring and contingency planning. All contributors to the tension monitoring process are required to adhere to the principles of data collection set out in the Data Protection Act 1998. Each organisation that makes a contribution to tension monitoring should have local information sharing protocols in place.

Fire Services

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the Answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 17 November 2008, Official Report, column 125W, on fire services, whether (a) her Department and (b) Firebuy holds a copy of the minutes of meetings of the FireGuard Project Board. [252216]

Mr. Khan: Firebuy, the national procurement body for the English Fire and Rescue Service, undertook the procurement process for the Fireguard project at the request of 33 fire and rescue authorities, led by the Chief Fire Officers Association. As a consequence, Firebuy was represented on the board, and received minutes of its meetings produced and distributed by the Chief Fire Officers Association.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 4 November 2008, Official Report, column 340W, on fire services, what assessment she has made of the reasons for the level of fire and rescue authority participation in the project; and what arrangements for emergency fire cover there are in the event of a (a) local and (b) national fire service strike. [252328]

Mr. Khan: The Department has not made any assessment of the reasons for the level of fire and rescue authority participation in the Fireguard project. The Civil Contingencies Act 2004 lays down duties for specified 'Category 1 responders', including fire and rescue authorities, to assess, plan and advise in relation to emergencies. For a fire and rescue authority, an emergency includes a period of industrial action.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 16 July 2008, Official Report, column 487W, on fire services, if she will place in the Library a copy of the full research report. [252429]

Mr. Khan: The full research report cannot be disclosed as it is internal advice for the purposes of assisting the development of policy. A summary of the research has already been placed in the Library.

Fire Services: Industrial Disputes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent guidance her Department has given to fire and rescue authorities on whether private contractors (a) can and (b) should cross picket lines in the event of a strike in order to utilise fire equipment and appliances owned by fire and rescue authorities. [252182]

Mr. Khan: The Department has not issued advice to fire and rescue authorities on these matters.

Fire Services: Military Aid

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the armed forces will provide emergency fire cover in the event of (a) a local and (b) a national fire strike, with reference to the FireGuard project. [252179]

Mr. Khan: The 2003 White Paper "Our Fire and Rescue Service", made it clear that no party should proceed on the basis that the armed forces will be available to provide emergency cover in the event of industrial action.

Fire Services: Vaccination

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what arrangements are in place to provide antiviral medicines to firefighters in the event of an influenza pandemic. [252281]

Mr. Khan: There are no specific arrangements for distributing antiviral drugs to fire fighters during an influenza pandemic. The Secretary of State for Health announced that the Government would be increasing the antiviral stockpile to meet the needs of 50 per cent. of the population, so that there would be an antiviral course available for every person infected during a pandemic, even in the UK's reasonable worst-case scenario.

FiReBuy

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the Gateway Review of the Firebuy integrated clothing project was completed; and what the outcomes of that review were. [251860]

Mr. Khan: The Stage 3 Gateway Review on the Firebuy integrated clothing project was completed on 1 August 2007. It is not general practice to make available the outcome of Gateway Reviews.

FiReBuy: Pay

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what remuneration each board member of Firebuy receives. [252082]

Mr. Khan: The chair of Firebuy Ltd. Receives £22,000 per annum for 11 days per month. Each of the other six board members receives £4,000 per annum for two days per month.

FireGuard

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether (a) her Department and (b) its agencies were represented on the board of FireGuard. [252184]

Mr. Khan: Firebuy, the national procurement body for the English Fire and Rescue Service, undertook the procurement process for the Fireguard project at the request of 33 fire and rescue authorities, led by the Chief Fire Officers Association. As a consequence, it was represented on the Fireguard Board. The Department itself was not represented.

Green Belt: Windsor and Maidenhead

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) representations and (b) instructions the Government Office for the South East has given to the Royal Borough of Windsor and Maidenhead on the review of its Green Belt as part of its Local Development Framework. [252300]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government Office for the South East (GOSE) made representations on the Preferred Options (9 March 2006) and Submission (15 December 2006) versions of the Royal Borough of Windsor and Maidenhead's Core Strategy.

At the Preferred Options (9 March 2006) stage it commented:

> "It is assumed that as part of the evidence base the Council will be able to demonstrate that it will be possible to accommodate all likely required development within the Borough over at least the plan period and hence there is no need to review the location and extent of the Green Belt at this time."

GOSE also sought clarification as to whether proposed policies CS19 and CS27 were intended to diverge from national policy in Planning Policy Guidance Note 2 "Green Belts", and if so what the reasoning for this was.

GOSE's representations on the Submission Core Strategy (15 December 2006), included the following:

> "We are ... concerned that the policy and text regarding any potential Green Belt review is somewhat vague. It would be helpful if the Core Strategy could be more-precise as to the circumstances that may trigger the need for a review. In this context we make no assumptions that a review of Green Belt will axiomatically result in the amendment of any particular boundary."

GOSE has not given the Council any instructions on the review of its Green Belt as part of its Local Development Framework.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 28 October 2008, Official Report, column 952W, into home information packs, if she will undertake research on the typical maximum period within which a local authority search in a home information pack will be accepted as valid by a mortgage lender. [251959]

Mr. Iain Wright: On 8 December my right hon. Friend the Housing Minister (Margaret Beckett), announced that she had asked Ted Beardsall (ex-deputy director of the Land Registry) to convene a working group to consider local property searches. This group will consist of industry and consumer representatives and will consider consumers needs, utility and presentation of existing property searches information within home information packs. A representative from the Council of Mortgage Lenders has agreed to join this group.

Homebuy Scheme

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to extend the opportunities for social tenants to purchase and part-purchase their homes; and whether Social Homebuy remains a pilot scheme. [251816]

Mr. Iain Wright: As announced by the Government in December 2007, Social HomeBuy is continuing as a voluntary scheme to increase opportunities for social housing tenants to access home ownership following the ending of the pilot period on 31 March 2008.

Social tenants are also able to purchase their rented homes through the Right to Buy or Right to Acquire schemes and have priority access to the HomeBuy products.

Homelessness: Hampshire

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homelessness applications were made in (a) Test Valley borough, (b) the ceremonial county of Hampshire and (c) Southampton city in each of the last three years. [251095]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected by the Department. Authorities provide data on the number of applications for housing assistance (including those by ineligible households), as well as the number of households who are accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty.

Figures are collected at local authority level. The following table shows the number of applicants who have applied for housing assistance in each local authority within the ceremonial county of Hampshire (which includes Test Valley borough and Southampton city council).

Housing: Regeneration

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the most recent demolition output targets are for each housing market renewal pathfinder. [251824]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table summarises the main demolition output targets agreed by HMR partnerships in their funding agreements with DCLG for 2008-09.

HMR Partnership	Demolition 2008-09
Birmingham/Sandwell	157

Interreg Programme

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which European Union Interreg (a) IVA, (b) IVB and (c) IVC projects have been approved for implementation in the United Kingdom to date. [251862]

Mr. Khan: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Land Use: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will request that Castle Point borough council sends local residents full documentation relevant to the Core Strategy consultation before the consultation process commences; and if she will make a statement. [250952]

Mr. Iain Wright: It is the Government's general approach not to interfere with the jurisdiction of local planning authorities unless it is necessary to do so. Parliament has entrusted authorities with responsibility for day-to-day planning control in their areas as they are normally best placed to make decisions relating to their areas and it is right that, in general, they should be free to carry out their duties responsibly, with the minimum of interference.

The Castle Point Core Strategy will be subject to independent examination by an inspector appointed by the Secretary of State, and a key test of the plan's 'soundness' at the examination will be whether the council has taken sufficient steps to engage the local community and other stakeholders.

The Secretary of State has received formal notification from Castle Point borough council that consultation on the latest version of the Castle Point Core Strategy, the "Core Strategy Proposed Publication Statement", "Key diagram" and "Indicative Site Plans for Castle View, Manor Trading Estate, Stadium Way Employment and West Canvey" commenced on 9 January 2009 and will conclude 20 March 2009.

The documentation is published on the website and available in hard copy form at the borough council's offices.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will request that Castle Point Borough Council publishes details of brownfield sites in Castle Point. [251054]

Mr. Iain Wright: It is the Government's general approach not to interfere with the jurisdiction of local planning authorities unless it is necessary to do so. Parliament has entrusted authorities with responsibility for day-to-day planning control in their areas as they are normally best placed to make decisions relating to their areas and it is right that, in general, they should be free to carry out their duties responsibly, with the minimum of interference.

The Core Strategy Consultation documents include details set out in broad locational terms and shown diagrammatically on the key diagram for development on brownfield sites. The "Canvey Area Action Plan" and the "Benfleet, Hadleigh and Thundersley Plan" will when published make detailed brownfield site allocations of land for various forms of development.

The "Core Strategy Proposed Publication Document" includes a housing trajectory which identifies a five year supply of deliverable housing sites and an 18 year supply of developable sites. The Spatial Strategy seeks to ensure 70 per cent. of new homes are on previously developed land estimated to be provided as in the following table;

Source of capacity	Previously developed land
2008-13	820
2013-18	1,129
2018-26	1,023
Total	2,972
Proportion (percentage)	77.8

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will hold discussions with Castle Point borough council on procedures for development of green belt land in Castle Point when brownfield land remains to be developed; and if she will make a statement. [251055]

Mr. Iain Wright: It is the Government's general approach not to interfere with the jurisdiction of local planning authorities unless it is necessary to do so. Parliament has entrusted authorities with responsibility for day-to-day planning control in their areas as they are normally best placed to make decisions relating to their areas and it is right that, in general, they should be free to carry out their duties responsibly, with the minimum of interference.

The "Core Strategy Proposed Publication Document" provides a clear indication of how regeneration and growth will be distributed within the borough. The existing settlement structure will be maintained by concentrating development within existing settlements with limited peripheral development.

Sustainable growth is proposed that achieves at least 70 per cent. of new homes on previously developed land and safeguards the stated purpose of the metropolitan green belt until 2031. The residual need (approximately 300-500 dwellings to 2026) will be provided for in urban peripheral locations that have limited impact on the openness and function of the greenbelt as set out in Planning Policy Guidance 2. These locations will be identified as site allocations in the "Canvey Area Action Plan" and the "Benfleet, Hadleigh and Thundersley Plan".

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will request that the Chief Executive of Castle Point Borough Council publishes the authority's plans to develop land given to the people of Canvey Island around the Cornelius Vermuyden School and Canvey Village. [251060]

Mr. Iain Wright: It is the Government's general approach not to interfere with the jurisdiction of local planning authorities unless it is necessary to do so. Parliament has entrusted authorities with responsibility for day-to-day planning control in their areas as they are normally best placed to make decisions relating to their areas and it is right that, in general, they should be free to carry out their duties responsibly, with the minimum of interference.

I understand from Castle Point borough council that no planning application has yet been made to them in respect of this proposal. When an application has been made, the council will be required to publicise it in order that the public and other interested parties may make known their views. Before reaching their decision, the council must take into account: the provisions of the development plan for the area; any relevant views expressed by neighbouring occupiers, local residents and other third parties; and any other relevant material considerations which fairly and reasonably relate to the application concerned. They should also be guided by the policies and advice set out in the Department's Planning Policy Guidance Notes, Statements (PPGs and PPSs) and planning circulars.

Legal Opinion

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost of external legal services engaged by her Department was in 2007-08. [251362]

Mr. Khan: External legal costs paid by CLG in the financial year 2007-08 were £1.33 million.

Local Government Finance

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government under what circumstances a local council may transfer assets to community organisations. [250753]

John Healey: Local authorities' power to dispose of surplus assets at less than best consideration is governed by the General Disposal Consent 2003 under the Local Government Act 1972. This provides that an authority will not be required to seek specific consent from the Secretary of State for the disposal of land or buildings which the authority considers will help it to secure the promotion or improvement of the economic, social or environmental well-being of its area as defined in the Local Government Act 2000, and where the 'undervalue' (the difference between the unrestricted value of the interest and the consideration accepted) is less than £2 million.

A local authority will need to demonstrate that the tangible and intangible community benefits accruing from the disposal at less than best consideration outweigh the opportunity costs of not pursuing other options, including the capital receipt that could be obtained from open market sale. The authority will also need to ensure it holds the land under correct powers, that the disposal does not contravene state aid regulations, and that it has obtained a realistic valuation.

Local Government: Elections

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects elections for directly-elected mayors to take place in each of the next 10 years. [250783]

John Healey: The following table details the expected election years for directly-elected mayors over the next 10 years, including the Mayor of London:

Local authority	Mayoral election years
Bedford	2011	2015	2019
Doncaster	2009	2013	2017

Local Government: Shrewsbury

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) planning and (b) other powers the interim authority established for Shrewsbury in the period between the abolition of Shrewsbury and Atcham Borough Council in March 2009 and the elections for new town councillors in June 2009 will have; and if she will make a statement. [250882]

John Healey: The parish council of Shrewsbury, as established on 1 April 2009 will have the normal range of powers available to parish councils from that date. Prior to the parish councillors taking office after the elections in June 2009, the parish council will consist of the councillors elected for the electoral divisions of Shropshire which cover the new parish area.

Mortgages: First-Time Buyers

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 30 January 2008, Official Report, column 446W, on mortgages: first-time buyers, what estimate she has made of the number of first-time buyers, excluding sitting tenants, in England who took out mortgages of 100 per cent. or more of the purchase price of the property in (a) each year from 1979 to 2005 and (b) 2007. [251865]

Mr. Iain Wright: Data on first time buyers (FTBs) using a mortgage are available from the Regulated Mortgage Survey which is supplied to Communities and Local Government by the Council of Mortgage Lenders from 2005. Before this we collected the data ourselves via the Survey of Mortgage Lenders. However, as the survey is a sample, data on the number of FTBs for England are unavailable. However we can derive proportions and these are presented in the following table back to 1980.

Estimated proportion of first time buyers, excluding sitting tenants, that took out 100 per cent. mortgages, in England

	Percentage
1980	0.60
1981	1.97
1982	13.17
1983	13.09

1986	26.05
1987	22.96
1988	11.02
1989	22.29
1990	27.81
1991	15.94
1992	6.34
1993	1.61
1994	1.27
1995	1.14
1996	1.05
1997	0.94

2003	2.38
2004	6.25
2005	6.77
2006	8.29
2007	9.84

Notes:

1. Cases where the mortgage taken out is more than the purchase price have been filtered out due to concerns over data quality.

2. Data from 1982 to 1993 are included although there are concerns over the quality of the data.

Regional Planning and Development: South East

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what dates (a) the hon. Member for Eastleigh and (b) Eastleigh Borough Council made submissions to her Department in respect of each draft of the South East Plan. [251858]

Mr. Khan: The hon. Member for Eastleigh (Chris Huhne) submitted his response to the Secretary of State's proposed changes on 22 October 2008. Eastleigh borough council submitted their response on 23 October 2008.

Eastleigh borough council also submitted a further response to the Examination in Public Panel in June 2006.

Previous rounds of consultation were handled by the South East England Regional Assembly during the preparation of the draft plan. Eastleigh borough council are represented on the Assembly and would have been involved in the preparation of the draft.

Rented Housing: Private Sector

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment has been made of the effect of the use of credit scoring by the private rented sector on households who have had their property repossessed in obtaining alternative rented accommodation. [251805]

Mr. Iain Wright: Landlords are entitled to seek financial references from potential tenants and may use credit scoring in that context. Assuming that they have kept up to date with rent payments, we would not expect a tenant's credit score to be affected by the repossession of a home in which they were staying since, in those circumstances, it is the landlord, not the tenant, who is in default and whose credit rating might be affected.

Rented Housing: Repossession Orders

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of buy-to-let landlords in each region who have had property repossessed in each of the last three years. [250196]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Council of Mortgage Lenders collects data on the number of buy-to-let mortgage possessions. However, these data are only available for the United Kingdom as a whole. Data are only available currently for 2006 and 2007.

Buy-to-let mortgages taken into possession in period, UK

Supporting People Programme

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans the Government has for the future of the Supporting People initiative. [250475]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government's plans for the Supporting People programme were set out in a written ministerial statement on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 90WS.

Urban Areas: Parking

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the Answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 28 October 2008, Official Report, column 978W, on urban areas: parking, if she will make it her policy to undertake research into the effects on town centre economies of levels of car parking charges. [251896]

Mr. Iain Wright: Charges are a matter for individual car park owners and their impact on local economies will depend on many local factors.

The Government will continue to monitor and evaluate the impact and effectiveness of planning policy for town centres from a national perspective, drawing upon annual monitoring reports and other quantitative and qualitative evidence. Local authorities should develop the evidence base for their parking policies in their development plans and local transport plans, undertaking what research they need.

Waste Disposal

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether consideration for compensation payments for householders whose bins are not collected on time falls within the scope of the Redress Review. [251721]

Mr. Khan: The Empowerment White Paper Communities in Control: Real people, real power announced that there would be a concise review of the current arrangements across public services, the private sector and in other countries to look at the feasibility and practicality of introducing and extending the idea of redress for citizens where their council services fail to meet agreed standards. The Secretary of State asked David Cook, Chief Executive of Kettering borough council to chair this independent review, which will consider a range of issues—including the potential role of compensation—and produce recommendations to ensure that local services are putting the consumer at the heart of everything they do. The review is expected to report in spring 2009.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies: Essex

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department carried out checks with Companies House before awarding Greensward Charitable Trust the sponsorship of academies in Essex. [251698]

Jim Knight: As a trust set up by a maintained school, Greensward Charitable Trust was not required to provide any financial sponsorship and no checks were carried out with Companies House before awarding them the sponsorship of academies in Essex.

Boosting Language Auditory Skills and Talking Programme

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Boosting Language Auditory Skills and Talking programme. [251333]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Boosting Language and Auditory Skills and Training programme is a package designed to enhance and enrich the speech, language and communication skills of three to four-year-olds. The programme is being used in over 900 settings, mainly in nurseries as well as playgroups, crèches, parent toddler groups etc. It operates in a number of local authorities mainly in the North East and we understand it has been effective their early years settings.

BLAST is one of many programmes providing early years settings with training and resources to improve the quality of communication and language provision. These programmes have contributed to improving practitioners' knowledge and understanding of early language development as well as creating a rich language environment within settings.

Early language development is a key factor for a child's future success both academically and socially. Through Every Child A Talker we are providing support and funding for early years practitioners in young children's speaking and listening skills. Local authorities are able to use their Every Child a Talker funding flexibly, so that practitioners can take advantage of a range of professional development on early language including BLAST.

Building Schools for the Future Programme: Finance

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much has been spent by his Department on the Building Schools for the Future programme since its launch; and how much funding is allocated to the programme over the next five years. [252661]

Jim Knight: Over the spending period 2005-06 to 2007-08 the following conventional allocations were made for Building Schools for the Future projects: £824 million through supported borrowing allocations, and £514 million of capital grant. In addition, £3,750 million of PFI credits were allocated to the programme.

For the current spending period 2008-09 to 2010-11, the BSF and academies capital resources are being managed together. New resources for these programmes made available from the comprehensive spending review 2007 exercise are: £5,615 million of capital grant and some £3,700 million of PFI credits. In addition, £888 million of committed capital grant for BSF was carried forward from the previous spending period, which is available to be spent in the current period. The resources that will be available from 2011-12 for BSF and academies, and other capital programmes, will be decided as part of the next spending review exercise.

Care Proceedings

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the average cost of obtaining a care order. [244555]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 16 December 2008]: Loughborough university has conducted research into the costs of providing children's services. The costs calculated for children's services of obtaining a court order at 2006/07 prices were £2,765.

The fees (in current prices) charged by the courts for obtaining a care order are shown as follows in relation to three stages:

	Fees for obtaining a care order (£)
On an application for a care or supervision order under Section 31 of the Children Act 1989	2,225
Where an issues resolution hearing or pre-hearing review has been listed	700
Where a final hearing has been listed	1,900

Castle View School: Playing Fields

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what information his Department holds on discussions which have taken place between (a) officers, (b) Members and (c) actual or potential developers under the auspices of Castle Point Borough Council and Essex County Council on development of Castle View School playing fields; and if he will make a statement. [250949]

Jim Knight: As part of the Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme, the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF), and its delivery agents—Partnerships for Schools (PfS), have not engaged in any discussions with Castle Point borough council and Essex county council regarding the development of Castle View School playing fields, and therefore do not hold any information on discussions between officers, Members and actual or potential developers.

Children In Care

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children in each local authority area were (a) looked after and (b) adopted in (i) 2006, (ii) 2007 and (iii) 2008. [250307]

Beverley Hughes: Information on the number and proportion of children in each local authority who (a) were looked after and (b) adopted in the years 2006-08 can be found in tables LAA1 and table LAE1, taken from the Statistical First Release (SFR 23/2008) entitled "Children looked after in England (including adoption and care leavers) year ending 31 March 2008". These show the number of looked after children at 31 March for 2004 to 2008 and also the number of looked after children who were adopted during the years ending 31 March 2004 to 31 March 2008.

Children in Care: Reading

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what programmes his Department has put in place to provide one-to-one reading tuition for looked-after children. [248870]

Beverley Hughes: Looked-after children will benefit from the Every Child a Reader programme, which was established by the KPMG Every Child a Chance Trust in 2005. From September 2008 this programme is being rolled out by the National Strategies on behalf of Government. By 2010/11 it aims to support the bottom 5 per cent. (approximately 30,000) of children aged five and six, some of whom may be looked after, who are struggling to read. Looked-after children who meet the criteria will also benefit from one-to-one tuition which is being introduced on a national basis and which will draw on the lessons learned from the Making Good Progress pilots.

In order to provide targeted support for looked-after children we have also introduced Personal Education Allowances of £500 per annum for looked-after children who are at risk of not reaching national levels of achievement which can be used to provide a range of educational support to meet their needs. This may include one-to-one tuition out of school to help them with their reading.

Through the Children, Young People and Families Grant programme we are funding the Letterbox Club, a two year pilot programme managed by Booktrust, to work with over 1,500 looked after children and their foster carers across 52 local authorities. As part of the Letterbox Club initiative looked-after children aged seven to 11 in foster families receive a parcel of books and mathematics activities every month for six months to help their carers work with them to improve their literacy and numeracy.

Children: Abuse

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children were abused whilst subject to a child protection plan in each of the last five years in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire. [250600]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The available figures cover children who are subject to a Child Protection Plan and include information on category of abuse which let to the plan being put in place and re-referrals. These are available in the annual statistical first release "Referrals, Assessments and Children and Young People who are the subject of a Child Protection Plan, England". The latest figures can be found at the following link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000811/index.shtml.

Children: Cancer

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent discussions his Department has had with the Department of Health on the flexible education provision for childhood cancer survivors. [247217]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department is involved in ongoing discussions with the Department of Health looking at how we can work together to improve services for children and young people with, or recovering from, cancer as part of the Children and Young People Survivorship initiative.

Children: Databases

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what guidance his Department has issued to local authorities on ContactPoint in the last two years; [248766]

(2) what the implementation timetable for ContactPoint is; [248767]

(3) in which local authorities ContactPoint will be first implemented; and what assessments his Department has carried out of their capability to use ContactPoint. [248768]

Beverley Hughes: We have provided, through our Local Authority Readiness Assessment (LARA) system, a wide range of guidance both for local authorities and local and national partners that covers legal, technical and operational issues. For example, we have issued guidance under section 12(12) of the Children Act 2004, which sets out the key statutory requirements of section 12 and the Children Act 2004 Information Database (England) Regulations 2007. We have also issued guidance that covers project management and communications, the use of enhanced Criminal Record Bureau (eCRB) disclosures as part of an individual's application to become a ContactPoint user and guidance on shielding records on ContactPoint.

We announced, in August 2008, that ContactPoint would be deployed from January 2009. We are on track to deploy the first phase from that date and will continue to keep Parliament informed of key developments.

Local authorities have been undertaking work with relevant local partners to identify children whose records may need to be shielded on ContactPoint. For the purpose of shielding only, ContactPoint will be deployed to all local authorities in England from January 2009. Wider ContactPoint functionality will be deployed first to the ContactPoint early adopters. The early adopters are 17 local authorities and two national partners, whose purpose is to test deployment and experience operational processes in a real environment. This will allow the national ContactPoint team to evaluate the processes and make any necessary adjustments, prior to full deployment of the system to other local authorities and national partners.

The 17 early adopter local authorities are Blackburn with Darwen, Blackpool, Bolton, Bury, Cheshire, Cumbria, Halton, Knowsley, Liverpool, Manchester, Rochdale, Salford, Sefton, St. Helens, Stockport, Warrington and Wigan. Two national partners, Barnardo's and KIDS, are also early adopters.

All local authorities and national partners have been required to work through a series of detailed 'readiness assessment' checks and satisfy specified threshold levels, before progressing to the next stage. They are also completing monthly assessments of their progress. Early adopter local authorities have all completed nine readiness assessment checks to date. Other areas will complete a further readiness assessment before being accredited to grant ContactPoint access to users.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families who is responsible for entering children's data into the ContactPoint database; and whether such individuals are required to have had a Criminal Records Bureau check before their appointment. [249010]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 19 January 2009]: ContactPoint will be populated from existing national and local data sources. The persons and bodies who are required and those who are permitted to supply information to ContactPoint are set out in the Children Act 2004 Information Database (England) Regulations 2007. Securing data directly from existing practitioner systems will avoid the need for double data entry on the part of practitioners. Where direct data feeds are not possible, practitioners may be required to enter the information directly into ContactPoint by logging on via a secure web link or indirectly via an authorised user.

Everyone with access to ContactPoint, including operators and administrators, will be subject to stringent security checks, including enhanced Criminal Records Bureau clearance which will be renewed every three years.

Children: Day care

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment, based on the local authority childcare sufficiency assessments, he has made of the adequacy of standards of childcare achieved; and what recent steps the Government has taken to ensure that local authorities meet requirements to provide childcare services by 31 March 2008. [251902]

Beverley Hughes: The Government are committed to the highest possible standards for all child care providers. The Childcare Act 2006 outlined the regulatory regime which is being enforced through a programme of regular inspection against published criteria by Ofsted.

The Childcare Sufficiency Assessments published by each local authority are helping to identify and address any gaps in the provision of child care appropriate to the needs of working parents and those looking to work in their areas. The Government provide support to local authorities through Government offices in meeting the requirement to secure sufficient child care in the area, so far as is reasonably practicable.

Children: Obesity

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what initiatives the Government has introduced for children of pre-school age to reduce childhood obesity in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland. [249829]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives strategy, published in January 2008, set out the Government's plans to reduce obesity, initially focusing on children. Every child should grow up eating well and enjoying being active and we want parents to have the knowledge and confidence to make this happen. There is no single, simple solution to reducing rates of overweight and obesity and therefore the Government are taking action on a number of fronts.

At a national level, the Government are promoting healthy eating and physical activity. The updated Child Health Promotion Programme was published in March 2008. It prioritises obesity prevention and physical activity by promoting positive parenting during pregnancy and the early years of children's lives. We are working to support as many mothers as possible to breast feed and to continue to breast feed for longer—helped by children's centres, health and other services, all promoting healthy weight. The Healthy Start initiative provides free vitamin supplements, vouchers for milk, fruit and vegetables for low income pregnant women and children up to age four.

The introduction of the Early Years Foundation Stage for 0 to five-year-olds means that all early years education providers must promote the good health of children, by providing healthy, nutritious food and active play. The Play Strategy, launched in December 2008, sets out how Government will invest £235 million over 2008-09 to 2010-11 to develop play facilities for children of all ages. Ofcom have introduced restrictions on advertising foods that are high in fat, salt and sugar (HFSS) to children.

At a local level, primary care trusts, working with local authorities, are responsible for co-ordinating work to tackle childhood obesity. PCT plans, developed alongside local authority Children and Young People's Plans, will feed into local area agreements agreed with the Government offices. Local areas will develop and implement their own initiatives based on local needs and circumstances. 130 LAs have chosen to include in their local area agreement at least one child obesity indicator from the National Indicator Set.

Middlesbrough is also one of the nine towns that have been awarded healthy town status as part of the Governments £30 million Healthy Community Challenge Fund. The money will be used to build on existing work and test out ideas on what further action needs to happen to make physical activity and healthy food choices easier for people.

All this is supported by the Change4Life movement at a national and local level which aims to help families eat well, move more and live longer and which is initially focused on families with young children. Change4Life is working with a range of commercial and voluntary sector partners, signing up to play their part and deliver concrete commitments to change both nationally and locally.

Children: Protection

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress his Department has made in its communications campaign on children's safety; and if he will make a statement. [247010]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: One of the key commitments of the Staying Safe: Action Plan was to launch a major communications campaign on children's safety. This commitment was supported with a £9.0 million investment over the CSR 2008-11. It covers all safeguarding priorities in support of PSA 13 (to Improve Children and Young People's Safety) and is aimed at both the children and young people's work force and the general public.

Since April 2008, we have been working across government and the third sector to strengthen and promote messages that promote the safety of children. Such initiatives include a national home safety campaign, a campaign to reduce cyber-bullying, information to schools to help promote fire safety, and support of the established BERR campaign to reduce accidents using fireworks.

We are currently undertaking preparatory work to widen our communications approach for 2009-10 and 2010-11.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what discussions his Department has had with Reading Local Education Authority on the level of protection it provides for vulnerable children. [248866]

Beverley Hughes: In response to Reading's Joint Area Review and 2008 Annual Performance Assessment, Department for Children, Schools and Families officials have held discussions with representatives of Reading borough council, including with the director of children's services, the chief executive and the lead member for children's services, to explore the issues raised in the Joint Area Review report and discuss improvement measures for the council's safeguarding services for vulnerable children and young people. As a result of those discussions, the Department and Reading borough council are commissioning a package of tailored external support which will begin in February, to support necessary improvements in the council's services.

Departmental Cost Effectiveness

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the target for annual efficiency gains by 2007-08, referred to on pages 107-108 of his Department's Annual Report, was achieved. [247201]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The former DFES 2004 Spending Review Efficiency target of £4.35 billion was overachieved with gains of £4.57 billion reported in the 2008 Autumn Performance Report (published December 2008). Within the report there is full disclosure of how the gains were achieved.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of contractors and suppliers to his Department has reported compliance with the Government's security standards following publication of the report, Data Handling Procedures in Government, and the accompanying document, Cross-departmental Actions: Mandatory Minimum Action, on 25 June 2008. [245310]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Since 1 July 2008 all new contracts with contractors have included appropriate clauses to ensure that they are compliant with the Government's security standards. We are also assessing contracts that were let prior to 1 July 2008 to address any security issues. An answer to the percentage question could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Departmental Higher Civil Servants

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many bonuses were awarded to senior civil servants working at his Department and its agencies in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and how much was spent on such bonuses in each of those years. [249853]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department was created on 28 June 2007. Since then 80 bonuses have been awarded for the performance year 2007/08 worth a total of £780,000.

The Department has no agencies.

Departmental Supply Estimates

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families to which budget he has allocated the £2,500,000 moved from non-voted unallocated provision for Sure Start in his written ministerial statement of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 49WS, on departmental expenditure limit (2008-09). [251423]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The non-voted unallocated provision was transferred to voted provision. The £2,500,000 was allocated to 'Sure Start Current Grants not through Local Authorities' in Request for Resources (RfR) 2 Line A.

Education Maintenance Allowance: Kent

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the reasons are for the time taken to make education maintenance allowance payments in Kent in 2008-09. [251689]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the education maintenance allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom the LSC's chief executive, will write to the hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in both Libraries.

Education Maintenance Allowance: Wansdyke

Dan Norris: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many residents of the Wansdyke constituency were in receipt of education maintenance allowance during 2007-08. [251833]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) who operate the Education Maintenance Allowance (EMA) for the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). Mark Haysom the LSC's Chief Executive, will write to the hon. Member with the information requested and a copy of his reply will be placed in both Libraries.

Education: Newcastle-upon-Tyne

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the ranking of Newcastle upon Tyne Local Education Authority in relation to the other local education authorities in the results of the most recent national challenge measurement of achievement at GCSE was; and what bids for funding in respect of the national challenge he has received from Newcastle Local Education Authority. [251766]

Jim Knight: Newcastle has 18 per cent. of its schools attaining fewer than 30 per cent. 5 A*-C including English and mathematics. When ranking local authorities according to percentage of schools below the 30 per cent. threshold in proportion to all schools in local authorities, Newcastle upon Tyne local authority has the 43rd highest proportion of schools below the threshold. However, this ranking is relatively insensitive for those authorities with a small number of schools, since a single institution may represent a large proportion of the authority's schools.

Newcastle upon Tyne has received £380,000 of National Challenge funding. This funding will support schools below 30 per cent., help those in danger of falling below and consolidate ~~recent~~ improvements.

GCSE: Cleethorpes

Shona McIsaac: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of eligible pupils passed five or more GCSEs at grade A* to C in Cleethorpes constituency in each of the last 10 years. [252784]

Pupils[1] at maintained schools located in Cleethorpes constituency passing five or more GCSEs or equivalent[2] at grade A to C, 1998/99 to 2007/08*

	Cleethorpes parliamentary constituency

[3] Figures for 2007/08 are based on revised data.

Mathematics: Teaching Methods

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the innovative Key Stage 3 mathematics lesson materials funded by his Department and the Bowland Trust have been made available to schools. [247401]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The DCSF funded the development of the Bowland maths materials and the Bowland Trust funded the production and distribution. The Bowland materials were completed in summer 2008 and distributed to all state schools by the National Strategies in the autumn 2008 term. The materials have now reached all state schools in England. Any school or college in England can either access the materials online or request copies of the five DVDs by completing an online form. Materials are also available for download free of charge for schools in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland.

National Assessment Agency: Manpower

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) full-time and (b) part-time officials worked at (i) the National Assessment Agency and (ii) the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority in the 2007-08 tax year; how many in each case received bonuses in that year; and if he will make a statement. [251848]

Jim Knight: The number of (a) full-time and (b) part-time officials that worked within the National Assessment Agency (NAA)[1] and the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) for the 2007-08 tax year, and ~~the~~ number of bonuses related to that year, is shown in the following table.

[1] The NAA was part of the QCA, so the figures for NAA are also included within those for the QCA.

	NAA		QCA (which includes the NAA)

Parents: Hearing Impaired

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance his Department issues to local authorities on the provision of interpreters for deaf parents attending parents' evenings. [251232]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Government recognise the additional difficulties disabled parents face in effectively engaging at school-parent communication events such as parent evenings. The provisions in the Disability Discrimination Act (DDA) and the advice to schools and local authorities are primarily around how schools provide services for disabled pupils. Through practice guidance for schools on parent evenings the Department encourages schools to use a number of ways to enhance the relationship with parents and carers, including asking parents what they want and what would encourage them to come into the school.

The Government committed in the Children's Plan Progress Report published in December 2008 to providing guidance for schools and other settings on working with parents, which will include meeting the specific needs of deaf parents and the implications of the DDA for schools work with parents.

Pre-School Education

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the early years foundation stage specification included guidance on how and when children should learn to grip a pen or pencil. [251051]

Beverley Hughes: The early years foundation stage includes an early learning goal that a child should use a pencil and hold it effectively to form recognisable letters, most of which are correctly formed. Supporting practice guidance suggests a range of activities, appropriate to their age that children can do to develop both the large and fine motor skills needed to hold a pencil and write. The guidance indicates that most children would be able to achieve this goal between 40-60 months of age.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans the Government have to assess the effects of the introduction of the early years foundation stage on childcare settings. [252059]

Beverley Hughes: We are assessing the effects of the introduction of the early years foundation stage through a variety of different methods, including research and work with our colleagues in the national strategies. The results from this work will be used to identify and address any issues relating to implementation. We have also started work on the independent post-implementation review of the EYFS for 2010.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate his Department have made of the number and proportion of local authorities which did not meet their requirement to provide a sufficient supply of childcare in the latest period for which figures are available. [252073]

Beverley Hughes: Since April 2008 each local authorities must secure, so far as is "reasonably practicable" sufficient childcare to allow parents in their area to work or undertake education or training leading to work.

The sufficiency duty operates progressively, with local authorities looking both to meet gaps identified in sufficiency assessments and to reduce constraints on sufficiency over time. Local authorities will, themselves, be able to test the sufficiency of childcare through their sufficiency assessments and childcare sufficiency will, of course, form part of the normal performance management arrangements for local authorities.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 16 October 2008, Official Report, column 1495W, on pre-school education, how many and what proportion of children in the 30 per cent. most deprived areas of each local authority were working securely within the 13 assessment areas of the foundation stage profile in each year since 2005. [252076]

Beverley Hughes: Information is only readily available for seven of the 13 assessment scales; these are personal, social and emotional development and communication, language and literacy. Further information on the proportion of children working securely within the additional six assessment scales and for earlier years can be compiled and checked only at a disproportionate cost.

The latest published foundation stage profile results for children working securely in these seven scales, in the 30 per cent. most deprived areas within each local authority, can be found in table D of the additional information for statistical release 25-2008:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000812/index.shtml

Pre-School Education: Labour Turnover

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the average staff turnover rate in daycare settings in England in the last 12 months. [252071]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey collects information on turnover rates for child care and early years providers in England. The data in table 1 are from the 2007 Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey. The information is not available for the past 12 months, therefore the average turnover rate for 2007 has been provided. The turnover rate gives the number of staff that have left as a proportion of all staff who would have been employed at the start of the 12 month period covered by the survey.

Table 1: Turnover rate for child care and early years providers

	2007 (percentage)

Pre-School Education: Manpower

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of people who worked in the childcare sector in each year since 1997. [252072]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey collects information on the number of people working in the childcare sector in England. The data in the following table are from the 2007 and 2001 Childcare and Early Years Providers Surveys. The information is not available for years preceding 2001.

Table 1: Number of staff working in childcare providers

	Number of paid and unpaid staff
	2007	2006	2005	2003	2001

n/a = Data were not collected from these providers during these years.

Note:

1. An individual may work for more than one provider.
2. Base: Childcare providers 2007, 2006, 2005, 2003, 2001. Staff in early years provision in maintained schools are not included.

Pre-School Education: Teachers

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding his Department provides for the training of childcare staff to level 3. [252067]

Beverley Hughes: Funding is provided to local authorities to improve the quality of practice and the capability of the workforce in early years settings within the Outcomes, Quality and Inclusion strand of the Sure Start, Early Years and Childcare Grant. This funding may be used to support the continuous professional development of staff, helping more of them to build up to Level 3.

For the CSR period April 2008 to March 2011 this funding for outcomes, quality and inclusion totalled £438 million. This funding is not exclusively for staff training but, as its name suggests, is to raise quality in general. As funding in main revenue is not ring-fenced, the authority is free to decide how much to spend on each area supported by the grant, in line with local priorities.

Primary Education

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to amend the primary education syllabus to reduce the workload of (a) children and (b) teachers. [248134]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, appointed Sir Jim Rose to undertake an independent review of the primary curriculum. The review is looking at amending primary curriculum programmes of study with a view to reducing the level of prescription, where possible, in order to make the primary curriculum more manageable for schools.

Sir Jim Rose's interim report was published on 8 December 2008, this can be viewed at:

www.dcsf.gov.uk/primarycurriculumreview/

We look forward to receiving his final report in the spring.

Pupils: Diabetes

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance his Department issues to schools on administering of insulin to pupils with diabetes during school hours; what steps it takes to ensure that the guidance is adhered to; and if he will make a statement. [251036]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: This Department issued, in 2005, guidance entitled 'Managing Medicines in Schools and Early Years Settings'. This guidance was published jointly with the Department of Health, and specifically addresses what schools can do to help children with diabetes and other medical conditions.

Although there is no legal duty on schools to administer medication, or to support a child with self-medication, the guidance encourages schools to develop policies on the management of pupils' medicines and supporting pupils with medical needs. It also encourages schools to draw up, in consultation with parents and medical professionals, individual health care plans for children with medical needs.

Pupils: Mental Health Services

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children of (a) primary and (b) secondary school age in each local authority area have been referred to an educational (i) psychiatrist and (ii) psychologist in the last 12 months. [250709]

Beverley Hughes: This information is not collected centrally.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much Government funding was provided per (a) primary and (b) secondary school pupil in each local authority area in 2007-08. [252087]

Jim Knight: The per pupil revenue funding figures for each local authority for 2007-08 and 2008-09 are shown in the following table. Since 2006-07 the Dedicated Schools Grant (DSG) is the main source of school funding. As the DSG is distributed through a single guaranteed unit of funding and is distributed from central Government. A primary/secondary split is not available. The figures in the table are for all funded pupils aged 3-19 and are provided in cash terms:

Religion: Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to develop a national curriculum for religious education; and if he will make a statement. [248017]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Government have no plans to develop a statutory national curriculum for Religious Education (RE). There is a non-statutory National Framework for Religious Education that all major faith groups have endorsed in 2004. Religious Education is already a statutory subject and every maintained school must provide religious education (RE) for all its pupils. It is the responsibility of the head teacher, governing body and the local authority (LA) to ensure that this is done. Local Standing Councils for Religious Education (SACREs), established by the LA, have the responsibility to ensure that local RE syllabuses, taking account of national guidance, reflect the make up of the local community.

Schools: Admissions

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for what reason the words in paragraph 1.65(d) of the School Admissions Code requiring parents' preferences for the school of their choice to be met to the maximum extent possible have been removed from the revised Code. [247030]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We have taken the opportunity afforded by the revised code to remove areas of duplication in the text and therefore to improve clarity for admission authorities. The right of parents to apply for any school they want their child to attend and the duty on admission authorities to ensure that their preferences are met to the fullest possible extent are enshrined in section 86 of the School Standards and Framework Act 1998. The requirement to offer a place, where one is available and where such an offer would not prejudice the provision of efficient education or the use of resources, at the school that is the parents' highest preference is fundamental to the system and is reflected throughout the code and regulations, for example at paragraphs 1.37, 1.42 and 3.15(d).

Schools: Sport

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of 5 to 16-year-olds in each School Sport Partnership participated in a minimum of two hours of high quality physical education and sport each week in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [247475]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The PE and School Sport survey collects data relating to young people's participation in PE and sport. The most recent survey found that an average of 90 per cent. of five to 16-year-olds in England participated in at least two hours high quality PE and sport each week in 2007/08.

The following table sets out pupils' participation in each School Sport Partnership. Copies of the full findings of the survey have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.
